Her sentence to the guillotine is pending before the French clemency board in Paris. Legal circles say the board most likely will reduce her sentence, since in France women are traditionally not subject to the death sentence. It does happen on occasions, the last time 15 years ago.

Five women now are under sentence of death in Algeria, but the case of Djamila Bouhired has attracted far more publicity than the other cases. The respected London Observer, which is often critical of the French in Algeria, compared the Bouhired case to that of Capt. Alfred Dreyfus, wrongfully convicted on an espionage charge in the 1890s.

Many figures in the Middle East have appealed for clemency for the Moslem women and last week Soviet President Klementi Voroshilov made a similar appeal. There has been no official French response but respected segments of the French press have covered the case fully.

Djamila's defenders have not attempted to make a case on whether she was guilty of the crimes charged, which she denied. Rather, the conduct of her trial and her treatment beforehand have come under attack.

It was charged she was held by paratroops for two weeks before being handed over to judicial authorities. French paratroopers have been charged with perpetrating torture on some of their prisoners. The government has denied any widespread torture in Algeria but independent investigations have turned up some cases.

It also has been charged the Moslem girl was tried in an atmosphere that demanded her conviction and that the court procedure was irregular at best. A confession—that she denied having made—was produced on the last day of the trial and the defence claimed no prior knowledge of the document. The French insist her trial proved her guilt.

Expect Capital Investment Will Total $8,500,000,000

OTTAWA (CP)—Capital investment in Canada in 1958 is expected to total $8,500,000,000, close to 1957's record rate of $8,700,000,000, the government forecast today.

The forecast for 1958 is the same as that predicted for 1957. However, the 1957 forecast, released Feb. 11 last year, proved to be on the low side by $200,000,000.

Planned capital invetment in 1958 is based on a recent survey by the federal trade department of Canadian business, institutions, governments and housebuilders. The results of the survey are contained in a report entitled Private and Public investment in Canada—Outlook 1958 released today by the department.

"The 1958 plans call for a continuation of capital spending at close to the record rate of 1957, when $8,700,000,000 was spent for capital purposes, and well ahead of any previous year," the report said.

The 1958 investment forecast features a strong resurgence in outlays for housing and social capital, largely offsetting a lower level of business capital spending.

Expansion is expected to continue at about the 1957 rate in secondary manufacturing, utilities, commercial building and agriculture. However, a lower rate of expansion is planned for resource-based industries.

Capital outlays for mining facilities and spending for plant and equipment in such industries as paper products, iron and steel and non-ferrous metal and non-metallic mineral processing also are expected to be lower this year.

But substantial increases were expected in the construction of hospital and university facilities and in construction expenditures by all levels of government.

The report said demands on Canadian manpower and materials will be of about the same magnitude as in 1957.

"While the over-all volume of capital spending may be a little less than that of last year, the anticipated decline will be wholly in machinery purchases, about 50 per cent of which are normally imported.

Low Offers To Debate Issue

WINNIPEG (CP) — Social Credit Leader Solon Low arrived today and offered to meet "at any time and on any platform" to disprove his charges against the Social Credit and CCF parties.

Mr. Harkness said at Portage La Prairie Saturday the Social Credit and CCF parties did not propose any of the nine amendments incorporated in the Farm Prices Stabilization Bill passed at the last session of Parliament. The minister offered to meet CCF Leader M. J. Coldwell to prove his claims.

Mr. Low is on a two-day campaign. He is to speak at a nomination convention tonight in Steinbach, Man., 30 miles southeast of here. He is to make a Tuesday from Winnipeg.

Sullivan Signs Canadian Team For TV Show

TORONTO (CP) — The Canadian comedy team of Johnny Wayne and Frank Shuster has signed a one-year contract to appear on Ed Sullivan's Sunday night television show, it was announced today.

The Toronto comics met with Sullivan during the weekend and signed a contract that Wayne said would "keep us out of the pool halls." Their first appearance with the show will be May 4.

Sullivan said he hopes to use the pair on alternate Sundays. They'll continue to write their own sketches and "their judgment on comedy will be paramount."

Wayne, 36 and Shuster, 37, have played regular CBC television shows since 1953 and last year began to pick up a reputation outside the country.

Wayne and Shuster first appeared as a team while attending Harbord Collegiate in Toronto and the University of Toronto.

They broke into radio in 1940 and during the Second World War played with an Army show. They continued their career as radio comedians from 1946 to 1953, when they branched into television.

WASHINGTON (AP)—A deluge of proposals and some direct administration moves gave promise today of heavier federal spending to provide jobs and help business in the United States.

While Democrats and some Republicans clamored for more anti-recession action, President Eisenhower ordered a speedup of government construction projects for which money is available, and announced immediate release of $200,000,000 to help make more private loans available for home construction.

Eisenhower also proposed that the federal government, for the first time, provide funds to extend the period of jobless benefits to unemployed workers. Many of these already have exhausted their rights under payment schedules fixed by the various states. These average about $30 a week for a period of 26 weeks.

The weekend brought these other developments:

1. Thirteen of the 16 Democratic members of the House of Representatives banking committee proposed a $2,500,000,000 government loan program to permit construction of public works projects.

2. Eight Republican senators without criticizing Eisenhower's program, suggested heavier spending then Eisenhower proposed and called among other things for federal aid to school construction.

"That kind of talk," he said in a letter to Republican congressional leaders, "evidences lack of faith in the inherent vitality of our free economy and in the American as an individual."

Eisenhower said Labor Secretary Charles Mitchell will submit this week a proposal for a federal extension of state unemployment payments for a brief period.

Old 'Matty' All 'Het Up' Over Putting Lamp Post Near Cottage

"I may have to sit on sentry duty night and day," he declared, "but they'll never put that gibbet up outside my home.

"If the workmen come back they will find me mounting guard on that hole with my blunderbuss. Where is that damned blunderbuss, anyway? I know I had one once—remember using it on an income tax man."

Old "Matty," as he is known to British showgoers, declared war on the village council when workmen dug a hole for the lamp post in front of his 300-year-old cottage.

Matthews put a Chippendale chair over the hole and sat on it. After four hours the workmen gave up and went home. The council will meet tonight to discuss what can be done about the obstruction.

"The damned thing is just like a gallows," complained Matthews. "I am sure they are going to finish up by hanging me, but I am not ready to go yet.'

For his around-the-clock vigil, Matthews wore a suit, a dressing gown, two mufflers, a shawl, fur-lined boots and a deer-stalker hat. He further fortified himself against the March chill by sipping a mug of milk laced with brandy.

"It's the only way I can get any brandy," he said. "In normal times my wife hides it. It was worth sitting out over that hole to get it.

"I don't need that light outside my house. The only time I need a light there is when I am getting lined up for my nightly trip to the neighborhood saloon..

"Income tax men—pay 'em thousands a year and they use it all building monstrous lamp posts. It's a scandal."

The lamp post which aroused Matthews' ire is the last of 250 the village council is installing in the interest of better lighting.

Whip Russia 4-2 In Final Minutes Of Tense Battle

Bus Gagnon, Attersley Score Deciding Goals

By ED SIMON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OSLO (CP) — Two lightning thrusts, 25 seconds apart, brought Canada the world hockey title Sunday night in as nerve-grinding a game as the tournament has ever known.

The climactic goals by Bobby Attersley and Bus Gagnon gave the Whitby representatives a 4-2 victory over a Russian team that had risen to the heights to battle a Canadian side almost universally regarded as a top-heavy favorite before the opening whistle.

Whitby's perfect 7-0 win-loss record brought the world championship to Canada for the 17th time since the series was started in 1920 and the first since 1955 when Penticton Vs beat the Soviets. Canada didn't take part in 1957.

In playoffs for the championship since Russia moved into the event in 1954, both Canada and the Russians have won it twice.

OUTSHONE BY WHITBY

The Russians had been outshone in this tournament by Whitby throughout the eight-team round-robin affair. Their play in earlier matches had been spotty, with flashes of brilliance interspersed with lack-lustre stretches in which inferior opponents made them look ordinary.

But they rocked the Canadians as well as the packed stands of 10,000 spectators in Jordal Amphi Arena.

The Russians scored a brilliant goal in the game's opening minutes. And until their momentary collapse, 3½ minutes before the final whistle, they appeared capable of winning.

"Those Russians were fantastically strong", Canadian manager Wren Blair said afterwards.

"We played a fair but hard game. The Russians were good. They'll take a lot of beating next year.

"I think the Russians saved themselves for this match. I don't think they had gone all out in previous matches".

CANADA SHORTHANDED

TWO WOUNDED

TORONTO (CP) — A detective Saturday night shot and wounded two youths found in the basement of an office building. Clarence Longlad, 16, suffered a grazed neck and Joseph Synak, 18, a foot wound. Both were charged with breaking and entering, possession of burglar's tools and possession of an offensive weapon.

'DOUKS' ARE TOLD OF PROGRAM TO SETTLE IN RUSSIA

Majority May Not Be In Favor of Moving

KRESTOVA, B.C. (CP) — A thousand Sons of Freedom Doukhobors gathered in a barnyard in this Kootenay village Sunday to hear tentative arrangements to move them in a body to Russia, land of their forefathers.

At a meeting marked by hymn singing and a budist demonstration, four Freedomite men who went to Russia to plan the proposed move made their report.

The 1,000 Freedomites present make up only two-fifths of the membership of the fanatical sect, which itself is a numerically small segment of the total Doukhobor population of British Columbia.

The Sons of Freedom came to Canada from Russia late in the 19th century to escape Czarist oppression. They have stubbornly refused to accept Canadian laws, which they claim deprive them of religious freedom.

BITTER ABOUT SCHOOLS

Their bitterness has increased since the B.C. government adopted a policy of forced education of those children whose parents refused to send them to public schools.

After the delegation's report was made to the meeting John J. Perepolkin, chairman of the sect's fraternal council, asked, "Do we go or don't we go?" A great many people in the crowd replied: "We do."

It could not be ascertained whether those in favor constituted a majority.

A member of the governing 32-member council said the Freedomites definitely will go.

It was emphasized that perhaps the decisive factor will be the extent to which the provincial government is willing to help finance the movement. Premier W. A. C. Bennett has indicated that the government will provide assistance.

A group of 15 elderly women standing in the centre of the crowd disrobed early in the proceedings. They did not remain nude for long, however, because of the chilly weather.

POLICEMAN HONORED

HAMILTON (CP)—Police sergeant Jack Tremblay was awarded the Ontario Automotive Transport Association Trophy Saturday night for work performed for the trucking industry. He was honored at a banquet at which 45 provincial truckers were presented with accident-free driving certificates.

TRAFFIC LIGHTS UNSERVICEABLE OVER WEEKEND

SIGNS OF SPRING, GRASS FIRES START

It must be getting closer to spring!

Even the nature of the fire alarms is pointing that way.

Sunday city firemen answered their second grass fire alarm of the year when they were called to an open field near the Swift Canadian plant on Station street.

Two other alarms were also answered on Sunday. One was for an over-heated stove on East Moira Street, and the other was to Ameliasburg. Here firemen did not complete their run. While on their way the call was cancelled and the truck was recalled to the fire station by radio.

NO EXTENSION OF PERMIT DEADLINE

Human being are great procrastinators. Weeks ago it was announced there would be no extension of the auto licence deadline. March 12 was the absolute deadline.

This is March 10. Early this morning long queues began forming outside the motor vehicle licence bureau on Front St. If some of those near the tail-end of the line find on March 12th that they still haven't got their 1958 markers and drivers' permits, it should be hoped they do not procrastinate when it comes to leaving their cars in the garage at home.

The police will be on the lookout after midnight on Mar. 12 for cars still bearing 1957 plates and, after that date, motorists still clinging to their 1957 operators' permits will be liable for prosecution.

Mr. George Olsen, local licence issuer, noted today that approximately 70 per cent of the markers had now been sold and said he felt most licences might still be sold before the deadline.

To assist the "last minute" shoppers the office will remain open on Wednesday afternoon, he said.

Despite Heavier Traffic Accidents Fewer Last Year

Despite the increase in car ownership and the resultant heavier traffic on city streets, motor vehicles accidents in Belleville during 1957 were decreased from the year previous.

This is noted in the annual report of Police Chief Walter Probert which shows accidents last year numbered 409 or 107 accidents fewer than the year before.

Of the total accidents, 131 had sufficient damage to necessitate a report to the Motor Vehicles branch at Toronto. There were 48 persons injured and one fatality.

In the past ten years there have been but eight motor vehicle fatalities in the city. Highest number of fatalities for the above period was in 1956 when three persons were fatally injured. There were no fatalities in the city in 1955, 1953, or in 1949 or 1948.

Chief Probert in his report stresses the importance of traffic regulations and their strict observance by the motoring public.

"Members of the public frequently point out that there are more important duties to which the police should be assigned than the prosecution of citizens for breaches of parking and traffic regulations", he reported.

MUST SUPERVISE TRAFFIC

"Unfortunately, such citizens seem to lose sight of the fact that, irrespective of the local crime situation, the commercial and industrial life of the city cannot exist without supervised traffic. With the ever increasing registration of motor vehicles in this district, this can only be ensured by the constant enforcement of local by-laws governing parking and traffic, coupled with the whole-hearted co-operation of the motoring public."

"Parking and traffic regulations, restrictive as they may appear to the individual motorist," he goes on, "are enacted only following careful study by police, the traffic commission and review by council and should be accepted by all citizens on the basis of "the most good for the most people."

"It is generally agreed that citizens must be prepared to expect certain minor traffic inconveniences for the common good, otherwise chaotic traffic conditions would prevail."

UNFAIR TO POLICE, CLAIM

Chief Probert points out that there are more pleasant duties for the police to perform than traffic law enforcement and suggests it is entirely unfair for the public to criticize the police for enforcing by-laws which their elected representatives have enacted.

Public reaction to police prosecution for traffic misdemeanors are not merely a local condition but according to police reports are world-wide, and also that criticism stems from a minority of motorists who interpret democracy as meaning a life of self-expression and complete disregard for the rights of others. Such persons seem oblivious to the fact that traffic regulations and police enforcement are the basis of free movement of traffic, maximum use of our streets and safety for every man, woman and child in the community.

All police undertakings, it was stressed, whether they involve the prevention of crime, the preservation of peace, or the enforcement of by-laws and regulations, must be supported by the public if they are to meet with success.

"For the most part," Chief Probert says, "I feel we are accorded that support."

Y's Men's Club Elects 1958 Officers

Tentative plans were announced for the opening of a "day-camp" at Oak Lake, next summer.

YMCA Judo Club Fares Well in Queen's Tourney

The Belleville YMCA Judo entered a five-man team in the Queen's University exhibition tournament at Kingston on Saturday, the second such competition for the young Belleville squad.

Clubs from Queen's, Royal Military College, McGill University, Ryerson Tech of Toronto, Ottawa YMCA, Belleville and Hatashita Judo Club of Toronto, participated. Toronto's Hatashita club captured the tournament championship in the third round.

The Belleville team met the strong Ottawa YMCA team in the first round and battled them to a draw at 15 points each. The draw was settled in a single man match with captain Don Dalrymple of Belleville winning for the local club, 15½ points to 15.

The Belleville team was composed of captain Don Dalrymple, Doug Foley, James McLaughlin, Thomas Peyton and Cameron Coulter. Spares were John Fursdon, who replaced Peyton when the latter suffered an injured foot in the second round and Z. Coon.

Cam Coulter was outstanding for Belleville in his first tournament competition. He is an orange belt but he defeated a higher brown belt. Belleville fought against higher graded opponents throughout the competition.

IRANIAN QUEEN VISITS GERMANY

Wishing to escape the attention that royalty always must draw in public, Queen Soraya of Iran slipped out the rear door of a movie theatre in Cologne, Germany, but was caught by a photographer. The Queen's interruption of a Swiss vacation to visit Cologne caused rumors that all was not well between her and Shah Reza Pahlevi. An Iranian embassy spokesman denied the reports and said the queen came to visit her ailing father, Iranian ambassador Khalil Espandiary.

Whole New List Of Street Names Will Be Added

With a booming housebuilding program underway in the Belleville suburban area during the past few years, a whole new list of streets names has come into existence and with annexation in the offing residents who pride themselves on their local geography will have to do a bit of brushing up.

For instance how many city residents can say with certainty where such streets as Sunset Drive; Melrose Ave. Forest Hill, or Sutton Drive might be.

We didn't know either until we happened to check the names of new housing sub-divisions east and west of the city.

In a new sub-division on the Parrott farm east of the city which is now before the municipal board for approval such names as Sunset Drive, Lee Ave., Melrose Ave., Southwood Crescent, Northwood Cresent, Meadowville and Bradley Crescent appear.

In another sub-division on the Parrott farm immdeiately to the north of the highway streets now being built on are named Munroe, Elizabeth and Bradgate.

North of Woodland Acres, the co-operative housing development built two years ago, such names as Lambert Drive, Linton Park Road and Smith Crescent appear.

Other street names in the new housing area which will be taken into the city with annexation are Strathcona Drive, Ellis Ave., Amarilla Street, Symington Street and Rosewood Ave.

West of the city in what is now Sidney township, new street names that have come into being within the past year are Hutton Drive, Leland Drive, Selena Street and Palmer Ave.

For those who are not in the know it is the road formerly known as the O.S.D. Lane. The farm land east of the lane has disappeared and in its place a row of new homes appears.

All the above new street names appear on a new map of Belleville and the annexed area which has been prepared in the City Engineer's department by draughtsman B. Walters.

Vandals Break Windows in Warehouses

Two instances of window - breaking vandalism at the Harriet Street warehouses of Garage Supply and General Electric Company, and forced entry at the Truck and Farm Supply, were reported to city police over the weekend.

Nothing was said taken at Truck and Farm Supply although two windows were found broken and the south doors were found unlocked.

Rings, Watches Stolen From Ronald Keel

Three showcases of gold rings and wristwatches were stolen from the Ronald Keel Jewellery Store over the weekend. Thieves jimmied the front door and escaped with their loot.

The amount of the loot could not be given by store officials this morning until inventory was taken but Mr. Keel said the loss would be "considerable."

It is believed that the theft occurred some time after 4.45 this morning when it was said the last police check was made. The jimmied front door was discovered shortly before nine o'clock this morning.

Two window show cases of rings and watches were cleaned out, as was a wall case.

The job is believed to have been a hurried one and it is thought the thieves may have been in the store only a matter of minutes. Several rings and watches were found strewn about the floor, apparently dropped by the thieves in their hurry to make a get-away.

The break-in is being investigated by J. Clair Hayes and Detective Harold Reid.

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP) — The stock market today edged lower amid the slowest morning trading in a week.

Industrials and base metals each lost about three-quarters of a point on their indices while western oils eased one-quarter of a point. Golds were virtually unchanged.

The 11 a.m. volume of 426,000 shares, although considerably lighter than Friday's 182,000 at the same time, was not much below the pace for most of the sessions last week.

All industrial changes, with the exception of a one-point gain to 48¼ by Trans Mountain Pipe Line, were fractional. Losses among index stocks outnumbered gains but in the whole section there was as many gains as declines.

Asbestos, Imperial Oil and Powell River had advances ranging to ½ points while Stelco, Page-Hersey Tubes, Interprovincial Pipe Line, Canadian Wallpaper A, Canadian Bank of Commerce and Bank of Montreal lost in a ⅛ range.

Consolidated Smelters, Hudson Bay, International Nickel and Noranda all lost fractions among senior base metals. There were few gains in this group. Preston East Dome gained 15 cents at $5.90 among golds but the trend in this section was irregular.

Western oils were lower although most losses were less than 15 cents. Triad, Home Oil A, Dome Explorations and Central Del Rio were among the losers. Bailey Selburn added 10 cents at $8 on a single sale.

Gas Explosion Wrecks Home At Niagara Falls

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP)—A flash gas explosion rocked a half-constructed home in the Cherry Wood Acres sub-division early today. Two men went to hospital with severe burns.

The blast vibrated new homes hundreds of feet away. Wood, bits of plaster and glass were scattered over a wide area.

Admitted to the greater Niagara General Hospital were Digagomo Govani, 35, of Niagara Falls and Ewald Widehauer, 27, of Thorold. Both men underwent emergency surgery for third-degree burns to the hands and face.

Stamford police said the one-storey brick building was "like a huge tank of gas" when the men entered this morning. The flame of a propane gas heater in the basement had gone out leaving a steady stream of gas seeping out from two tanks. The heater had been left on to keep the frost out of the house.

The blast occurred when Widenhauer struck a match to light the flame of the heater, police said. Both men were laborers, employed by contractor Ernest Beyerle.

With the world hockey championship at stake, hearty steak dinners were polished off daily by Canada's entry, Whitby Dunlops. A shipment of 150 steaks donated by a Canadian packing firm, were flown to Dunlops' hotel in Oslo by TCA.

South Hastings Candidates Heard by Farmers' Union

A series of Ontario Farm Union meetings held in Hastings County this week past, have been most successful.

A good attendance of farm men and farm women met in the Orange hall, Cannifton, Thursday evening, to hear the three political candidates of this constituency, and the guest speaker, Mrs. Evelyn Prosser, the lady president of the Ontario Farmers Union, who has completed four years of active union work to date.

The president of Cannifton local, Mr. Borden Forsythe, was chairman and introduced Dr. D. C. McVicker, the Liberal candidate. Dr. McVicker outlined the agricultural program of the Liberal party and said that if he were elected he would promote the interests of the farmers. He said that the farmers have not (in the past) kept their members informed as to their problems. He paid tribute to Mr. Lee Grills as an honest man and a gentleman.

NOT A CURE-ALL

Mr. Lee Grills spoke next, he said that he believed that Bill 237 would be of help to the farmers, that it was not a cure-all for the farmers' problems but was a step in the right direction, that he didn't think that any one piece of legislation could cure all the farmers' difficulties. He also stated he would work as hard for the farmers if re-elected as he had during his last term of office. Mr. Grills gave the Farmers' Union a great deal of credit for their part in causing some important amendments to be made in Bill 237.

Mr. Weese, who was nominated at the CCF nomination meeting on Friday, spoke next. He didn't give the official agricultural platform of his party, but pledged himself to promote the farmers' interests if he were to be elected. He said both his political opponents were good men, but the old line parties were much alike in their thinking.

Mr. Clarence Graham, Hastings County director, introduced and welcomed the guest speaker, Mrs. Evelyn Prosser, the lady president of the Ontario Farmers Union.

OUTLINED O.F.U. GROWTH

Mrs. Prosser outlined the difficult time the Union had to start the organization; the opposition from other groups; the prestige gained over the years; the gradual growth with over 305 locals now active in Ontario. She stressed that the OFU is a direct dues-paying membership organization, the farmers in the organization own, operate, and make the policy, that the directors or the executive cannot change, table, or destroy the policy laid down by the membership at the annual convention, it must be carried to those in authority.

Stating that the OFU was free to criticize any political party that failed to bring in legislation that would help the agricultural industry or failed to carry out existing legislation that was designed to help the farming industry.

ADMINISTRATION BREAKS PROMISE

Mrs. Prosser said the decline of farm income was a direct result of the failure of the last administration to fulfill the promise of Mr. Mackenzie King after the last war. The farmers had lost 48.22 per cent of their net income from 1951 to 1954 and their costs had increased 22 per cent. The Farmers Union is the only farm organization to ask for full parity for farm people, because it is believed that farmers are equal to the rest of the population. The Canadian Federation of Agriculture asks for only 70 to 85 per cent of parity, yet Mr. Gordon Greer of the Ontario Federation of Agriculture, in a bitter attack, said that the Ontario Farmers Union was unnecessary. "I suggest that if farmers really want their voice to be heard and their policy carried out, they should join the only organization qualified to do the job—The Ontario Farmers Union," said Mrs. Prosser.

Mrs. Prosser said the bill could do the job for the farmers but that there wasn't any guarantee that it had to be done, or in other words the help that farmers will receive from this act will depend entirely on the attitude of the government at any time.

The political candidates were given the opportunity for rebuttal or to question Mrs. Prosser on the remarks she had made.

The chairman thanked those taking part in the program, and a motion for a vote of thanks was tendered by Clarence Graham.

Bear Cubs Get 9-5 Victory Over RCAF Team

TRENTON — Trenton Junior Bear Cubs won an 9-5 victory over the RCAF team in an exhibition game in the Community Centre on Saturday night before a very small crowd of fans.

It is understood the Juniors are staging these exhibition games to pay off some of their bills from the past season. It was not revealed how far the club is in the red.

Both teams played a rough game on Saturday and referees Leroy Wannamaker and Gord Flynn dished out 10 penalties to each team. There were no majors issued.

The RCAF team was made up of players from various teams of their league and they had not had the opportunity of playing together before.

Lewis was the high scorer for the Bear Cubs, getting a hat trick and assisted on one other. Scott slammed in two counters and singletons went to Leavey, Vickers, Hunter and T. Yardy.

Stevenson accounted for two goals and two assists for the RCAF team with Gillrie, Durst and Jaquemont getting singles. "Woody" Reid was credited with two assists.

The score at the end of the first period was 3-3 with both teams getting two goals each in the second to make it 5-5. It was in the third frame the Trenton lads outscored their visitors 4-0 to give them the victory.

Standardization Of Street Signs To Take 3 Years

A three-year program for standardization of street signs at hundreds of city intersections has been given the okay by city council and shortly will get underway under the direction of Malcolm Turnbull, city commissioner of works.

The street sign replacement program will conform generally with signs now placed in the Parkwood Heights area and certain other newer subdivisions in the city. The sign plates will be of pressed metal erected on metal poles.

A feature of the new signs will be that they will have a scotchlite surface to make them stand out better in the dark.

Mr. Turnbull said tenders for the new signs would soon be called and when they were purchased they would be erected by the public works department.

Placement of the signs will also be standardized so that they will be readily discernible —and always on the same corner.

Liberal Forced To Withdraw

WINNIPEG (CP)—W. R. (Gib) Weir, Liberal candidate for Portage-Neepawa in the March 31 federal election, has withdrawn because of illness.

Doug Revie, provincial party organizer, said Sunday he was told Mr. Weir is suffering from a non-organic illness.

Mr. Weir, 62, former Liberal party whip, was member of the House of Commons for 27 years before his defeat June 10, 1957 by Progressive Conservative Dr. George C. Fairfield. Dr. Fairfield is standing for re-election.

He served as party whip from 1945 to 1957 and was appointed parliamentary assistant to the prime minister in 1953.

Seven Minor Crashes Reported To Town Police

TRENTON — With town streets bare and free of ice and packed snow after a week of near - summer temperatures, only seven accidents were reported to town police officials during the past week.

Five of them reported only slight damages with fenders and grills suffering the most. One was the result of a car skidding on the last remaining ice on a street where the sun failed to hit heavily.

Another was on private property when a truck with a high ladder tore off a flood light when it was pulling into a local service station. The driver will repace the light, it was reported.

He said he was proceeding along South Street and coming to the intersection of Crown Street a small dog ran out and in front of his truck. He said he was unable to stop and the vehicle ran over and killed the pup.

The dog was wearing a red collar but no tag. The owner is unknown. Bill Gidman, town foreman, was called and the dog was taken away.

Gas Pump Upset, Blaze Results

TRENTON — Two fires over the weekend brought local fire trucks on the run, but neither of them turned out to be serious.

The first call came in Saturday afternoon from the east side of the river when a pick-up truck caught fire on Sydney St. The driver of the vehicle and some helpers had the fire out before firemen arrived. It is believed only slight damage was caused to the motor of the vehicle.

The second alarm was sounded about three hours later when a service station on Front St. called in to report a fire in its gas pump.

It was reported a car pulling out of the station had knocked over one of the pumps and when the electrical wires short-circuited the gasoline fumes exploded and caught fire.

Attendants at the filling station were fighting the blaze when the firemen arrived but were making little headway in putting it out. The firemen unwrapped their foamite equipment and quickly had the wall of flame under control before it could spread or cause an explosion.

Damage, it is believed, was confined to the pump which has since been removed and will be replaced shortly.

8-Inch Perch Wins Man Boat

There were almost 1,000 contestants in the adult ice-hole fishing competition and more than 500 juniors. R. Livingstone of Collingwood won a 14-foot boat with an 8⅛-inch perch in the senior event. Ingo Schaus of Midland won a bicycle with a 7⅛-inch perch in the junior event.

Four Prisoners Escape From Skyscraper Jail

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Four prisoners escaped from Dade county's skyscraper jail in a daring human-fly performance that started on the 23rd storey Sunday night.

They were identified as Norman J. Mackiewicz, 34, accused killer of a policeman; Roger Wayne Carter, 18, of Chicago, awaiting trial in the slaying of a bartender; Howard Bartlett Piccott, about 40, charged with rape; and Edward Landis Kille, 27, a New Jersey native held on a stolen car charge.

Carter hid on the 19th floor and gave himself up an hour after the quartet knotted mattress ticks together and slid down from their 23rd floor cellblock windows. Kille was collared inside the jail-courthouse building as he sought to slip out of it.

MISSED A STEP

Women workers in the 26-storey structure discovered the break when one of the escapees, apparently Carter, missed a step "walking" down the outside of the building's northeast corner and kicked in a window pane on the 19th floor.

Investigators trying to piece together the stages of the spectacular break said that Mackiewicz, Piccott and Kille apparently squirmed back into the building at 15th-floor level, sneaked down stairways and got into a second floor washroom. There they found a long roller towel and used that as a rope to reach ground level.

The 19th to 25th floors are used to house prisoners.

'Deep Freeze' Victim Better

HAMILTON (CP) — Deep freeze victim Andrew Walker, found last week with a body temperature of 76 degrees, was reported to be in good condition today.

General Hospital officials said the 63-year-old orderly had improved steadily over the weekend.

Mr. Walker, beaten and robbed, was found lying in a pool of water on a lonely district side-road last Thursday night. Doctors are making a study of his case.

Robert Gourlay of Hamilton has been charged with assault and robbery.

FANTASTIC RECOVERY

He has only one lung, a severe heart condition and could not ordinarily walk 50 yards without gasping for breath.

What may be the lowest body temperature on record was the case of a two-year-old girl found with a temperature of 60 degrees in Iowa in 1956. She survived.

$5 MILLION WINDFALL

CLEBURNE, Tex. (AP)— Mrs. Agnes Kirk, a rest home owner, has been left property worth at least $5,000,000 according to terms of former patient's will. The bequest was by J. E. Sexton, 80, a bachelor who died Feb. 28. The estate includes an interest in 378 Texas oil wells. Four nieces and a sister were left $100 each.

COMMUNITY CONCERTS

The Belleville Community Concert Association is next week marking its 25th anniversary.

There may be some among its younger members who find it difficult to realize that there was a time when music lovers here had no assurance that the fall, winter and spring seasons would bring opportunities to hear good music by talented artists.

Without this association, though, the local apppearance of vocalists and instrumentalists of established reputation or of great promise could easily become a rare event.

The opportunities to hear good music have multiplied within the lifetime of many of its members. Radio has played a major role. But radio does not give the music-lover an opportunity to see the artist, as well as hear him. We were going to observe that television has remedied this defect, but off-hand it strikes us that the appearance of a reputable artist, presenting a serious program on television, may be quite as rare as would be the presentation of local concerts without the Community Concert Association. Indeed, it may well be that radio and television have in one sense increased the need for such an association, by reducing the interest in local concerts, sporadically arranged, by those with no deep love of good music. If this be true, then it follows that the continued existence of the Community Concert Association is not merely just as important today as it was when the Association was first formed a quarter of a century ago, but that its contribution to the cultural life of the community has been enhanced in value.

The Community Concert Association, by bringing together those people who are prepared to patronize local concerts, and by permitting them to organize in advance so that they can guarantee artists adequate remuneration, fills a need which could not be met in any other way.

SPRING — AHH — UGH!

The calendar says that spring will be here in another fortnight.

Some say that the person who devised the calendar was not a Canadian and that the arrival of spring cannot be determined by the wanderings of the sun back and forth across the equator. Spring, it may be contended, does not arrive in Canada until much later - - until that first warm day in April when the overcoat is suddenly a burden instead of a comfort, or until that day when all the trees suddenly appear to awake to the fact that May 24 is just a few days away and if they are going to be appropriately clothed for the occasion they are going to have to do some fancy bud-busting.

The sad truth is, though, that there is no set time in the season called spring when the resident of this section of Ontario understands what prompted the yearnings of the poet as he sang "Oh to be in England, now that April's here."

If the sudden upsurge of life is to be felt at all, it is much more likely to be experienced in March, even before the official arrival of spring, when the ice in rivers heaves and cracks, when the sunlight dances on the rivulets in the gutters of city streets, when the slush on the sidewalk pokes its way through the holes in the toes of rubbers which one had foolishly hoped would last the season, when the hairline cracks in the basement floor mysteriously develop the capacity to pour forth as much water as a ten-inch pipe, when the paper boy sinks to his ankles in the middle of the lawn which was seeded last fall, when the garden unmasks all the sins of sloth last fall.

Here, in the midst of damp and dirt and dishevelment, one may still catch for a few fragmentary moments that magic feeling of a new beginning, of promised pleasures, of future joys.

Then it is gone again as winter returns and though there may be momentary revivals, man, unlike the thrush, can never recapture that first, fine careless rapture. His attempts are always blanketed by the reappearance of winter, which keeps coming back like a miser looking for a lost nickel, until suddenly there can be no question but that spring is over and that summer has leaped at us full-grown out of the lap of winter.

There is, of course, this to be said for our climate - - summer arrives well ahead of the date scheduled on the calendar.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST

THE PESSIMIST

It's a pretty gloomy world just now;
I must admit the skies are gray,
And I'm a pessimist myself;
It isn't often that I scowl!
Or go my way with frowning lip,
But I've a right today to howl—
I'm one of those who has the grippe.

I notice men and women tread
Their weary way along the street,
Their noses wet, their optics red,
And then I note their shuffling feet,
And when for sympathy I seek,
As any suffering man would do,
The only words I hear them speak
Are: "Sorry, but I've got it, too."

And so I've joined the pessimists.
There is no joy in life, I swear.
I've often advocated smiles
But, with these grippe germs in the air,
I find it hard to wear a grin,
So cut her loose and let her rip;
The world's not such a cheerful place,
Since most of us now have the grippe.

The Year of the Dog

New York Times

The Chinese New Year of 4656 started February 18. According to the Chinese, this is the year of the dog. In the old China people took a long time to prepare for this grand occasion. Chinese markets and shops closed for the holidays for at least ten days, so provisions had to be stocked. The house had to be thoroughly cleaned so as to sweep away the old for the new. Mother would invite relatives to help prepare delicacies for the New Year "open house."

The father of the family would be the only sad man to meet the New Year. He had to meet all debts before the month's end, for his trustworthiness and business credit of the coming year would be determined by that act. He had to buy a new outfit from head to toe for his children. Servants and employees had to be paid a bonus. It was necessary, too, to prepare a sum of cash in the house for "red package." This was money wrapped in red paper for relatives and friends who came to call.

An employee's eyes would be on the New Year's eve dinner table. This was the time for him to find out whether his employment would be continued. If, at at his usual seat, the chopsticks should be pointing downward instead of upward it would mean termination in the next year. He would take the hint and pack.

There was a time when the Chinese believed that all kinds of animals were themselves a reincarnation of a human person in his second life. When one died his deeds would be judged and would decide what form of life he would have in his next life. Should he be a good man he might be rewarded by being a man again; otherwise he might become an animal.

Animals, in any case, were considered to deserve respect and honor. The Chinese people named one for each month in the New Year. They listed twelve to form a cycle, and honored each by turn in the order of rodent, cow, tiger, rabbit, dragon, snake, horse, lamb, monkey, chicken, dog and then pig.

In the old China should a brother knock a tooth from a younger brother's mouth the mother would sigh philosophically and say. "The older one was born in the year of the tiger, the younger that of the dragon. How could there be peace in the family?" When a son planned to marry, the parent would like to know in what year the future daughter-in-law was born; the wrong "animals" might not be able to live in peace.

This Chinese New Year is the year of the dog. The temple of Kuan Yim in San Francisco predicts "prosperity and riches in the Western world." With what the dogs have accomplished last year, the year of the dog might even be brighter. One dog had become the first traveller in space, and two others are goodwill embassadors from Himalaya to the United States.

Nevertheless, the dog in today's China may not have a happy New Year. The new regime has just legalized the slaughtering and sale of dogs as food (a serious crime in the old days), partly to eliminate mouths to feed and mostly to ease the shortage of meat supply. Most humiliating of all, the dog is now "down-graded" to the level of pigs and cattle, and a next life of man in the form of dog is no longer as noble and respected as it used to be.

Fats Do Not Make One Fat

Hamilton Spectator

We always had a warm feeling of fellowship for a distinguished Chinese who came out to the United States to see what famed medical specialists could do for his heart condition. The experts told him, with a certain sheepishness, about a current conviction in the States that you would not be likely to get a coronary attack if you stuck to a rice diet like the Chinese, and, of course, a lot of good honest Americans were eating rice for the popular vitamin of the hour.

The newest and most gaudy phobia has to do with fats and hardening of the arteries, or rather arteriosclerosis, which sounds more interesting to North Americans. A theory quickly grabbed by the public imagination on this enlightened continent was that if you ate fat it formed cholesterol, a fatty substance, in the blood, and lined the arteries with a new plastic product of nature to blot them off and pave the way to heart trouble and the grave.

Now this mania is under rough scrutiny. Dr. Ray Lawson, of Montreal's Royal Victoria Hospital — who has been living on a fat diet for more than a year, has attacked the "Jack Spratt" propaganda as largely nonsense. Meat and fats are beneficial to humans, and, he adds: "fats do not make people fat."

The wise Chinese, of course, do not get heart attacks anything like as often as New York and Toronto people, but they do not have to worry about voting for left wing Conservatives or right wing Liberals, or figuring whether they are in a recession, a depression, or a rolling readjustment when rice becomes less plentiful.

After all, it might be reasoned without too much difficulty, too, that longevity is not for those who eat enough food to look after a lumberjack's job, and then hardly walk more than a block in their working day. If people exercised more, laughed more, at some of these fats it would do them more good than taking them seriously. Nothing is better for the digestion or arteries than a good horse laugh. That certainly has been proven by the medical profession, and by most of us.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

All you young people under sixty should be kind and compassionate enough to carry one of those little name tags you see people wearing at conventions. It is a little clear plastic square, with a safety pin, to fasten to your lapel. And framed in it is a bit of paper, with your name, printed large.

And whenever you approach some old friend who is over sixty, you should whip out this name tag and hastily pin it to your coat. After sixty, we are in the habit of forgetting our nieces' and nephews' names. We meet somebody we have worked at the next desk to for forty years. And blooie! Blank.

Especially if we are with our wife. At the theatre the other night my old friend Samuel Hersenhoren, the orchestra conductor, came up to me. My wife was sitting beside me. Now, who in the world could forget a name like Hersenhoren? You might as easily forget Auchterloney or Przmysl. Besides, Samuel wears a small crew-cut beard. Yet, do you think I could remember Hersenhoren? I was going to introduce him to my wife as Giacomo Puccini, but he went away.

A moment later, the mayor of my city, Mayor Phillips and his wife, kindly greeted us. But one disaster, in this business of name-losing, breeds another. I introduced Mayor Phillips as Mayor McBride, who has been dead and gone these thirty years.

"Darling," I responded, guardedly.

Strength for The Day

THERE IS AN ANSWER

As seminary students approach the end of their several years of training, they begin looking for a church. Usually they must appear before a congregation and show whether or not they can preach acceptably.

Almost always the young seminarian picks out what he considers his best sermon and preaches it over and over again to one congregation after another.

Several years ago a young man looking for a church kept preaching a sermon which had the rather disquieting title, "Things Look Bad." Of course, it was a disquisition on man's sinful and hopeless state, unless rescued by the power of religion. It was a good sermon — in fact sufficiently so that several churches were willing to call the young man.

We live in an age in which it certainly can be said that things look bad. But things have always looked bad. Things looked bad in the world into which Abraham was born, and Moses. The worst moral conditions we confront today are not as bad as those confronted by St. Paul and his fellow Christians in the Roman Empire in the first century. Christianity is a message of hope to a world in which things always look bad, to individuals whose prospects look bad, to those who have a sore and troubled conscience because of past sins.

Yes, things look bad for everybody at some time or other. But there is an answer. That's why we have churches — and spiritual triumph.

Brainstorm System Poor

Hamilton Spectator

Science Service reports that "brainstorming", the modern technique of thinking aloud in groups used by some promotional enterprises, is no aid to creative thinking. In fact, it actually hinders it.

Th eries says that in experiments conducted by Professor Donald W. Taylor at Yale University, 96 students attempted to solve three different problems. Some students worked in groups of four, others worked alone. The hermits did better than the extroverts — not only more ideas, but more original ones.

Yale has struck a blow for human decency, we think. It is repulsive to consider mature people participating in a mass chatterbox charivari in which the man most likely to succeed is the one with the sharpest ear and the loudest voice.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

DISTINCTIONS

An unlearned carpenter once stated this to William James, the famous psychologist: "There is very little difference between one man and another, but what little there is, is very important." It's often but a step from an average human being to one of distinction. Perhaps only a foot ahead — and you have a genius!

It's that small advantage which makes all the difference. I think of the beautiful poem by Robert Frost where he tells of coming to two crossroads, and he "took the one less travelled by, and that has made all the difference."

Such little things often change the whole course of our lives. A missed train, a decision changed, or the sudden impulse of the moment has often "made all the difference." So often we need the guidance and advice of someone else. A great U. S. Senator was a dear friend of mine for many years before he was elected to this high office, but he had many a distinction long before his elevation.

We ought to listen, and read about what is going on in the world, and especially near at hand to us. A person of distinction is one who has absorbed much from life and the living of others. We recognize persons of distinction no matter where we meet them. They are outstanding.

Again a thought from William James. He said: "Properly speaking, a man has as many social selves as there are individuals who recognize him and carry an image of him in their mind. To wound any one of these his images is to wound him!"

It's a wonderful thing to be ourselves. Often it's a distinction to meet something of ourselves on the street, in a crowd, or among our peers. Never should we lack for a friend to warm our spirit, or to add to it.

To Your Good Health

EARLY TREATMENT OF CANCER REDUCES DEATH RATE

Skimming through some reports on medical studies, I came across one concerning the investigations of Dr. Hugh J. Jewett, of Johns Hopkins University, from which it so happens, I received one of my degrees.

He studied a number of cases of cancer of the bladder, and found that the distance to which the cancer worked through the muscular coating of the bladder was important.

If the cancer extended less than halfway through, surgical removal usually was successful. If it had extended more than halfway through, surgical removal rarely was successful.

Here are the figures he gave at a seminar at Walter Reed Hospital: For the less-than-halfway cancers: Of 19 patients, 14 were alive and well, with no sign of cancer, from 5 to 14 years later. That means that almost three-quarters of them were cured.

Of the cancers that had been allowed to go more than halfway through, only two out of 61 patients were well five years later. That is, only about 3 per cent were cured.

The difference between 70-some per cent and 3 per cent—well, you don't have to think about that very long to decide whether early treatment of cancer is important. It is!

Now here's another thought. We all know, of course, that it is not easy to discover an internal cancer early. Skin cancer, yes. We can see it. Maybe, as readers, we don't know whether a persistent sore is cancer or something else. But as doctors, we can make a very good guess by looking at it. A doctor can usually say, "No, that isn't cancer," or "Yes, that looks as though it might be." Or, in doubtful cases, "I don't know, but a simple laboratory test will tell the story in a hurry."

HIGH PERCENTAGE OF CURES

So if a patient shows the doctor a persistent sore, and it happens to be cancer, it is determined quickly, and well over 90 per cent of the cases are cured.

But it's different with the internal ones. You have to wait until there is some sign of trouble. You don't know whether it is cancer or not. But if the patient reports trouble as soon as it exists, then tests will settle the question.

In the 61 cases (less two cured ones) of cancer of the bladder where cure did not result, Dr. Jewett reported that 50 per cent of the patients had had symptoms for a year or longer before they went to their doctors. (I can't help adding that perhaps some of the others had noticed symptoms, too, but wouldn't admit it.)

What I want to stress is that when you have any symptoms of trouble, don't stall. Don't wait. Don't argue to yourself that "maybe it will go away." See your doctor at once, and let him decide whether it is or is not cancer.

If so, you will have 35 times as much chance of getting well.

"Dear Dr. Molner: A neighbor insists that the male is responsible for the sex of the child. I have heard that it is the female. Common sense almost tells me that it's the female, but this friend insists otherwise. What's your opinion? —J.R."

Well, says Dr. Molner, scratching his head, there isn't proof one way or the other, since medical history doesn't record any cases of children born with only one parent. I guess you and the neighbor will have to keep on arguing. I can't settle it!

Sea May Tell Earth's Age

Cornwall Standard-Freeholder

Man may soon be closer than ever before to the answer to the questions "How old is the earth?" and "when did life begin?" The National Geographic Society reports that a new device to probe the sea bottom may help solve the riddle.

The ocean floor is generally covered with a thick layer of silt, plants, shells, bones, meteorites and powdered rock that has sifted down into the depths for millions of years. Since there are no waves on the ocean floor, nothing has disturbed this accumulation of geological material.

Until quite lately people knew almost nothing about the bottom of the ocean, except what was discovered in explorations of the shoreline. About 70 per cent of the world, covered by the oceans, is unexplored. But scientists are beginning to search out some of the depths.

A special probe, invented by a Swedish scientist, Dr. B. Kullenberg, makes it possible to lift long columns of ocean sediment to the surface, and study it. French explorations, notably the Calypso expedition headed by Captain Jacques-Yves Cousteau, have reached the bottom of some of the shallower depths.

At present little is known, apart from the fact that there is but little level land at the bottom of the sea. There are some possibilities of finding wealth, either from wrecked ships, or minerals, that can be extracted. Considerable amounts of oil, as a matter of fact, already come from wells drilled in the sea bottom.

Learning to make full use of the sea, in fact, is one great hope for man while the earth continues to increase rapidly in population. The possibilities of extracting food from the vast fisheries, of making those fisheries more productive in various ways and perhaps even of getting other kinds of food from the waters of the earth are as yet scarcely known.

Although it is commonly observed that the demand for food and other products is outgrowing the means of supplying them, it is also true that vast resources both on land and sea remain untouched. If the demand existed, the land would produce enormously more than it does, especially in North and South America. The sea has not yet been fully called upon. Man will be able to feed himself, if he is blessed with peace and the opportunity to do so.

Pay for Damage To Artificial Limbs, Decision

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario legislature's labor committee today approved a bill extending compensation benefits to workers who have artificial legs or arms smashed in accidents.

Labor Minister Daley told the committee the amendment to the Workmen's Compensation Act resulted from an accident which broke a lumber worker's artificial leg.

The leg was replaced but the compensation board could not pay benefits for the time the worker lost.

MORE FOR WIDOWS

Other amendments increase to $300 from $200 the allowance paid for burial expenses for a man killed on the job, and raise to $300 from $200 the lump sum paid immediately to a widow.

Mr. Daley said a request had been made for the same widow's allowance and for a $200 increase in burial expenses.

"I felt it was better to give an extra $100 to the widow," he said.

OPEN SEASON EXTENDED

The committee also approved amendments to the Labor Relations Act which would defer "open season" in long-term labor contracts to the 23rd and 24th months and annually thereafter the rights of a union to represent employees to be questioned after 10 months.

"We encourage longer agreements and we feel there should be some protection for both employers and employees," said Mr. Daley. "Industry makes plans on the basis of the long-term agreement."

No unions had asked for the change but the minister felt it would benefit both labor and management.

Unemployment Still Is Hot Campaign Issue

By ALAN DONNELLY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

EDMONTON (CP) — Prime Minister Diefenbaker says his government's actions have brought about a decline in unemployment.

"In my opinion as a result of our actions the worst has taken place and we now are on the way back," he said here Saturday night.

His audience was the second-largest of his election campaign so far. The 2,750 seats in the huge Jubilee Auditorium were filled and another 2,000—the estimate of the auditorium manager—listened to the Progressive Conservative leader over loudspeakers in the foyers and a basement hall.

Mr. Diefenbaker's speech also contained the most vigorous presentation so far of his claim that the former Liberal government had let the economy decline by taking no action on an economic report a year ago warning of unemployment "clearly greater than seasonal."

CHARGES CONCEALMENT

"They concealed," he said of the Liberal cabinet ministers. All the Liberal cabinet ministers had received the report, he added.

"None of them read it. All of them hid it."

From Edmonton the Conservative leader moved by train during the weekend into British Columbia, where in the last election Conservatives won seven of the 22 ridings.

Sunday by rail through the Rockies was a day of rest and occasional station stops, where he left his private car to shake hands with small crowds to see him.

In brilliant sunshine at Jasper he signed dozens of autographs for youngsters, shook hands with almost all of the 200 present, and learned of Canada's victory over Russia in the world hockey championships.

"They weren't so hot after all," he remarked of the Russians.

HOOP-LA IN ALBERTA

His arrival in Edmonton Saturday was marked by the largest welcoming reception of his campaign. At least 2,000 stood shoulder-to-shoulder inside and outside the CNR station. Cheers marked his slow progress through the crush of people to a cavalcade which paraded, with bands, the four blocks to his hotel.

As Mr. Diefenbaker arrived on stage, behind six papers, a rear curtain was drawn back to disclose a giant maple leaf with the party initials PC. And lights played on a huge sign: "We trust John Diefenbaker."

Much of his speech, as on earlier occasions, dealth with his promise of a national development program with emphasis on opening the north through roads and rail lines.

Mr. Diefenbaker also called the toll of nine former Liberal cabinet ministers not contesting this election. In last year's election campaign the Liberals had asked who could take the places of such men.

"One doesn't hear that argument any more," he commented.

ABOARD PEARSON TRAIN (CP)—Lester B. Pearson whistle-stopped across Newfoundland in a drenching rain Sunday, scooting out of the "Pearson special" to shake hands with some 1,000 persons in a dozen hamlets.

It was a day of quiet campaigning. The campaign party shook and swayed as the quaint five-car train, put together specially for Mr. Pearson, jogged and bumped its way across the 437-mile route from Stephenville on the west coast to St. John's on the east.

Mr. Pearson made no major speeches, merely moving among the crowds at whistle stops, shaking hands and waving as some of his staff handed out key chains bearing Mr. Pearson's photograph.

Accompanying Mr. Pearson was J. W. Pickersgill, former Liberal citizenship minister and member in the last Parliament for Bonavista-Twillingate.

PREDICTS SUCCESS

Mr. Pickersgill told reporters the Liberals had nothing to worry about in Newfoundland.

They would come through on March 31 in even better shape than they were before.

Of the province's seven seats, the Liberals held five and the Progressive Conservatives two in the last Parliament.

The big spectacle was to come today when Premier Joseph Smallwood launches what he has described as the biggest welcoming parade ever seen in Newfoundland. Mr. Pearson is to appear at three rallies at St. John's tonight, flying to Sydney, N.S., after the meetings are over.

HEARS HOCKEY GAME

Mr. Pearson showed himself in fine spirits joking with reporters and listening to the broadcast of the Canada-Russia world hockey match at Oslo.

When Canada won 4-2 he wired a message of congratulations to Whitby coach Sid Smith.

Saturday at Chicoutimi, Que., Mr. Pearson called for the creation of a national flag and for an end to unemployment.

Acknowledging a tremendous cheer from a crowd of more than 2,000, Mr.Pearson spoke for a full 35 minutes in French.

He said he had received some warm welcomes but none as warm as the one in this aluminum and paper community of 35,000.

A motorcade of soms 150 cars, flanked by scores of youths carrying placards, led him from nearby Bagotville airport to this city- some 130 miles north of Quebec.

So many cars followed him to his afternoon rally that police had to block off traffic. The Apprentice Training School auditorium was packed with spectators.

PARTY LEADERS CONFER

Social Credit Leader Solon Low and Premier Manning (left) of Alberta have spoken from the same platform once during the campaign for the March 31 general election. The Social Credit premier took a more active part in the 1957 campaign but this year has been busy with a session of the Alberta legislature. The two are shown during a brief meeting in Alberta to discuss party affairs. (CP Photo).

Christ Church EBWA Lists Activities

The monthly business meeting of the Afternoon Branch of the W.A. of Christ Church, Belleville, was held on Thursday with a good attendance. Mrs. Horace Wright presided at the piano.

The Scripture reading was taken from Philippians 2, in which Paul exhorted them to unity and humility by the example of Christ. A most appropriate portion for each one in this Lenten season.

The president, Mrs. Godden, led in the prayer Litany and special prayers for those in the missionary field.

The sum of $50 was voted toward a fund started in Belleville for a piano for the Diocese of the Yukon. Bishop Greenwood, while visiting Belleville two weeks ago, especially mentioned a parish in his Diocese where a young clergyman and his wife are working together, and, as she is very musical, he hoped to provide them with a piano in the near future when funds would permit.

The Diocesan annual meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary is to be held at Christ Church, Belleville, this year. The dates are April 22, 23 and 24. There will be representatives from all of the branches of the W.A. in the Diocese at this meeting. Mrs. Horace Wright, 84 Moira Street West, is the secretary of billeting, and anyone who is willing to be a hostess to one or more of the visiting members is asked to get in touch with Mrs. Wright, Woodland 8-6998, at once so that her task may be made easier. This is a big undertaking and worthy of each one's support.

ELECTED DELEGATE

Mrs. Dorothy Diment was elected the official delegate for the branch.

In tribute, a one minute silence was observed for a faithful member of the Auxiliary, Mrs. S. Bowyer, who passed away a week ago. Her 89 years were filled with devoted service to her Christian faith, and many are the memories of work performed by her ready hands.

Mrs. Bowyer's name will be entered in the "Book of Remembrance" for the Diocese.

Mrs. W. Kempston was appointed the united thank-offering secretary. This is a special personal fund for each member and any others of the parish who wish to set aside extra givings for blessings received.

A donation of $25 was voted toward the work of the Little Helpers' secretary, Mrs. A. Swain. There are nearly 600 Little Helpers on the Christ Church roll, and each one receives a birthday card when they celebrate their birthday. Mrs. Swain and her assistant, Mrs. C. Reid, organized this project and also contact new Little Helpers and their mothers.

It was decided to continue with the payment toward the educational fund of the Indian boy, Sushil Chand. This is done through M.S.C.C.

LENTEN PROJECT

A Lenten project was discussed and each member agreed to bring some small articles such as safety pins, bobby pins, combs, toothbrushes and paste, cosmetics, writing papers and envelopes, that would be suitable to make up hospital bags for patients who enter outpost hospitals where supplies are hard to get. Many of these patients come quite unprepared and some of the luxuries that are a benefit to speedy recovery are much appreciated by both patients and attendants.

Mrs. G. G. Wright continued the study of Japan from the book "The Cross and the Chrysanthemum," by Beverley Horton, B.A., B.L.S., bringing to the attention of the members the great changes in Japan today and how the church is facing these problems and helping the people to understand Christianity.

Mrs. Batchelor and Mrs. Pierson served refreshments.

'Landscape Art' Topic at Alpha Lambda

Mrs. Murray Johnson, Bridge St. East, played hostess to members of Alpha Lambda Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi on Monday evening. Prior to the business meeting Dr. Joan Bronskill gave a most informative address on "The Artist's Landscape."

Dr. Bronskill pointed out that "visual art is produced with formal artistic elements. It creates subtle emotional states or moods, and broadens the aesthetic range of experience of all who perceive it. There is no law which requires that a painting must tell the same story to each and every spectator, or that it must tell one at all. The function of the artist is to help one to understand the nature of things; to realize the possibilities in the world; to develop insight or enlarge imagination by creating or revealing new subjects.

As a result, an artist may rearrange, eliminate elements which distract, or consciously distort. Today the tendency is rather to undervalue the importance of the subject, such as, to insist upon the supreme value of its treatment and to lay stress upon the fact that any subject, however trivial, ugly, even revolting, may in the artist's hands be transformed into a thing of beauty."

PICTORIAL ARTS

The basic problems of the pictorial arts including surface design, space form and movement were reviewed in a most interesting manner by the speaker, as well as a most revealing resume of the two great schools of the 17th century — the "Classical" and "Naturalistic."

Dr. Bronskill reminded the group that "in modern painting far more effects are achieved by a variety of lighting and the glare of noon is considered the worst, not the best light, for landscape painting. So much of the beauty of landscape is due to the play of light that by it, even the dullest view may be transformed into radiant beauty. The modern painter is often content to rely for his effect upon this alone. Our own famous Canadian painters, T. Thomson, A. Y. Jackson and H. Harris have used this technique to perfection in their interpretations of the rugged bleak grandeur of the Canadian northland."

President Mrs. V. McLean thanked Dr. Bronskill for a most interesting address and then conducted a short business meeting. Mrs. Robt. Laughlen gave a complete report on the Black and Gold Ball. The members in their efforts to see that everyone had a good time, can be assured of future successes for this social event.

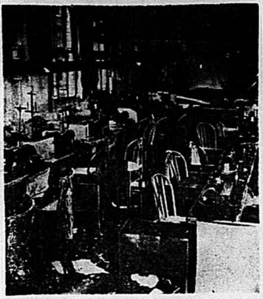
Alpha Lambda will play host to Gamma Mu and Xi Alpha Mu chapters at a bridge this month.

Following the business meeting the chapter adjourned to the home of Mrs. Spence Wonnacott where Xi Alpha Mu entertained the girls of Alpha Lambda and Gamma Mu for coffee.

THE "SACK" LOOK AT THE SOURCE



A dress manufacturing plant in New York stands idle during a walkout of 105,000 members of the International Ladies' Garment Workers Union. Seven states were involved in the strike that cut off almost three-quarters of the nation's dress output at a time when needles should be humming to put ladies into sacks for Easter.

St. Margaret's W.A., Guild Meet Jointly

Recently the W.A. and the Evening Guild of St. Margaret's-on-the-Hill enjoyed an evening together viewing a series of slides on missionary work in Japan.

The evening began with the regular meeting of the Evening Guild with Mrs. G. Mountford presiding. An interesting letter was read by Mrs. W. Todd from the W.A. Dorcas secretary in Prince Albert, Sask., thanking the Guild for its generous gift of baby clothes.

The president announced that plans were being made to hold a "military whist drive" in the church hall soon after Easter.

Mrs. G. Mountford outlined the history of the W.A. and its work, and introduced the W.A. president, Mrs. J. Bennett.

The W.A. meeting was opened with the singing of "The Love of Christ Constraineth Us," followed by prayer led by Mrs. J. Bennett.

The regular business meeting followed. The president announced that St. Margaret's W.A. would be responsible for billetting five delegates to the W.A. Diocesan annual meeting to be held in Christ Church, Belleville, April 22, 23 and 24.

COLORED SLIDES

The colored slides were then shown by the Rev. L. A. Page, who kindly operated the projector. The commentary was read by Mrs. A. Watson. The slides portrayed Japan in the changing beauty of the seasons, the culture and work of her people; her economical difficulties and the part played by the Anglican Church of Canada in sending devoted men and women to help solve those difficulties by teaching the all powerful love of Jesus Christ for all men.

Mrs. R. Chipman, on behalf of the Evening Guild, thanked the W.A. for sharing this evening with them and hoped the two groups could join together again for another memorable evening.

This special evening was convened by Mrs. W. Roblin and the refreshments were served by members of her group in the Evening Guild. The blessing was pronounced by Mr. Page.

Gamma Mu Prepares Gift For Needy

The business meeting of Gamma Mu Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi was held Monday at the home of Mrs. D. Boyce, Cherry Gardens. Members brought grocery items to make up a hamper for a needly family aided at Christmas by the chapter.

The president, Mrs. J. McDonald, asked for volunteers to help with the Belleville Red Cross Blood Bank. The girls could assist with the registration of donors, serving refreshments, or work on the telephoning committee.

Mrs. J. L. Acton, representing the nominating committee, gave the committee report and elections for this year's officers will be held at the next regular meeting.

The social hour was a coffee party held at the home of Mrs. S. Wonnacott to entertain members of Gamma Mu, Alpha Lambda and Xi Alpha Mu.

The president of Gammu Mu thanked the hostesses, Xi Alpha Mu, for the opportunity of sharing such a pleasant evening with other Beta Sigma Phis.

GOOD MANNERS

By Mrs. Beeckman

SON ENGAGED . . . NOW WHAT SHOULD HIS FAMILY DO?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

The girl to whom our son has just become engaged has no parents, and she lives with her grandparents. In this circumstance what is the proper thing for us to do? Thank you for any help you will give us. — M.

You, the engaged young man's parents, should make the first social move to establish a good and close relationship between the families, your family and the girl's grandparents. And this should be done as soon as possible. If you already know them, this is simple. If you haven't met them, you (and your husband, if possible) go to call on them (telephoning first to ask about a convenient time for them.)

If the fiancee and her grandparents live at a distance, you either write or telephone to her, telling her how happy you are about the engagement and warmly welcoming her into the family; and you write or telephone to the grandparents telling them your happiness about the engagement and naturally chatting with them about the two young people and their plans.

This welcoming-into-the family gesture . . . by call or telephone or letter . . . is extremely important, as the first gesture. After this has been done, either family may invite the other family to any occasion — dinner (seated or buffet), Sunday luncheon, tea or other late-afternoon party, whatever is convenient.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, a newspaper editor, a women's editor and two writers. Each article is a summary of an actual case history. The Council reports on problems that have been dealt with by responsible agencies and counsellors.

Mildred R. — I want my chance to live.

Leonard R. — We are stuck with our marriage.

• • •

Mildred R. — My husband and I are in our early 20's and have been married nearly five years. We have a 4-year-old son.

Ours was a "forced" marriage. Our parents learned that we had been intimate and insisted we marry even though we knew we weren't in love.

We were so unhappy that we decided to go our separate ways. Leonard began to date others and I didn't object. I wanted to do the same, but I was tied down by the baby.

Now that the baby is old enough I want to put him in nursery school and get a job. I haven't had a chance to live, but Leonard has had his fling and now wants to settle down. It's a little late for that!

• • •

Leonard R. — Is it ever too late to see your mistakes? I have dated dozens of girls during the past three years and have had quite a few adventures. It certainly wasn't as much fun as I expected. It cost me good money too — money that could have gone into making a nice home and saving for our son's education.

I realize that Mildred and I are never going to have any great love. It was wrong of our parents to force the marriage, but we are stuck with it and should try to make the best of it for our child's sake.

Instead of going to work, I think that Mildred should settle down to child raising in earnest. A family helps to settle you down in life.

• • •

The Council: Leonard seems to have learned a few things, but he still has quite a way to go before he can help his wife — who has learned nothing.

Leonard shows that he looks to a family to keep him on the straight and narrow path — just as his parents served this purpose in the past. He doesn't seem to realize that this is putting a bit too much of a burden on his children.

A happy family is an outgrowth of real tenderness and respect between two individuals. It should not exist for the purpose of holding together two rootless, antagonistic individuals.

We can't blame Mildred for showing little interest in "child raising" for a husband who rules out the possibility of love. Leonard's practical outlook has its points, but it takes more than practicality for a couple to get through the dullness and harshness that constitute a good part of living.

It won't do to look back on the mistakes of the past. If Leonard is sincere in his desire to live a better life, he must recognize that he still has to woo and win his wife. In the process of doing this he may find out that he cares for her more than he believes. And Mildred, too, may find it a thrilling "fling" to really win her husband.

This couple could also benefit by some guidance from their clergyman or a social worker attached to a family agency.

Codfish Cakes As Maritimers Like Them

By Mary Moore

Greater love hath no woman for her readers than that she carry in her suitcase all the way from Halifax a box of codfish.

However, it paid off, and the aroma is a think of the past. When I made codfish cakes last night for a genuine Maritimer he said they were the real thing.

Dinner Menus

by Mary Moore

MONDAY

Baby Beef Liver, Panfried; Southern Cream Gravy; Fluffy Mashed or Riced Potatoes; French Fried Onion Rings; Old-Fashioned Cole Slaw with Boiled Dressing; Hot Blueberry Cottage Pudding with Nutmeg Sauce; Coffee.

With Abbie Lane to shop with me, and point out the brand to buy, and Howard Outerbridge to judge the results, I was in authoritative hands. Abbie, as many of you know, is a Halifax alderwoman and radio commentator. Howard was born in Hebron near Yarmouth, N. S., attended Mount Allison University and went on to become one of the best known United Church missionary - teachers in Japan. In spite of his erudition and familiarity with the halls of highest learning, he still knows a good codfish cake when he tastes it.

I went to considerable trouble to perfect these because this is Lent, they are very economical and our audience is full of nostalgic Maritimers whom I am sure will bless me. I want the girls on strict budgets to adopt this dish with enthusiasm, for it will help them over many a time when cash is low. Salt cold may be bought at your local fish store or supermarket.

CODFISH CAKES

(Maritime Style): Freshen dry salt codfish by soaking in cold water to cover well overnight in cool place. Drain very well. Now shred the fish with fingers or fork and measure 2 cups well packed. Pare 4 large potatoes — (enough to make 4 cups — double the quantity of fish — when mashed); cut them into quarters and add them to the shredded cod in large saucepan, cover with boiling water, put on lid and boil until potatoes are very tender. I boiled mine 40 minutes. Drain very thoroughly, keeping in mind as you drain that water won't fry! Beat and mash until fish and potatoes are wellmixed and smooth. Add 2 large beaten eggs and beat some more. Add 2 tablespoons butter, and a generous shake of black pepper, no salt, and beat again until ever so light. Mixture should be soft. Take up by dessertspoonfuls and drop into hot (390 deg.) deep fat. Don't fry more than 6 at a time or they lower the temperature of the fat too much. When the bottom is pure golden turn over and finish other side. Transfer to hot platter on which you have temporarily spread 2 or 3 paper napkins and keep hot in warming oven while you finish remainder of batch. This amount will serve 6 to 8 people generously. Note: To those of you who are not deep-fat frying enthusiasts, I should add that I used my 8-inch copper bottomed frying pan with one-half to three-quarters inch of corn oil in which to fry the codfish cakes. If you have a frying - kettle with basket use it of course, but it requires more oil.

HAPPY HELPERS M.B.

BETHEL-ZION —The monthly meeting of the Bethel Maple Leaf Mission Band was held on Tuesday afternoon at the Bethel School.

The meeting was opened by the leader, Mrs. G. Tummon, and was presided over by the president, Glen Ketcheson.

The opening hymn, "When Mothers of Salem" was led by John Willshire. Last meeting minutes were read by secretary Dick Willshire, and treasurer's report was given by John Willshire. Collection was taken by Betty Fox.

It was thought nice to have a name for the Mission Band and after some active discussion it was decided "The Happy Helpers" would be a suitable one.

A study took place on the Second Commandment, which will be the roll call for the March meeting.

Mrs. G. Tummon led in a study of India, assisted by Gary Ray, Don Blair, Carolyn Blair, Beverley Ray, Beth Playne, Jackie Playne and Helen Chambers.

Toronto Actress Saw 2 Faces Of Show Business in Night

By JOSEPH MacSWEEN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

NEW YORK (CP)—The hazel eyes of Anne Helm saw the two faces of Broadway show business in one week—one night, in fact.

The critics praised the young Toronto actress for her first Broadway performance in the comedy Cloud 7, but they panned the show itself. It folded in a week.

The blow fell on a Friday night.

Anne, radiant, had joined the rest of the cast in taking three curtain calls before an enthusiastic, if small, audience.

When the curtain fell the actors were called together and told that the show was closing. Fond hopes were changed to bitter defeat.

WANTS MUSICAL

How did this hit the 19-year-old girl—who could pass for a well-developed 16?

"Well, it's tough, of course, but there will be another day," she said philosophically as she climbed the three flights of steel stairs to her dressing room in the John Golden Theatre.

"I'm hoping for a musical—that's my big aim," added the tiny actress, who also is a ballet dancer.

Miss Helm made her professional debut in the off-Broadway play Clerambard, and regards Cloud 7 as an important career opportunity despite its failure.

She played the part of the vivacious, bouncy, pretty daughter of the stars, Ralph Meeker and Martha Scott. As Sally Reece, she portrayed well the exuberance of a teen-ager in love.

NO TEARS

Meeker visited Anne in her dressing room following the final show, apparently expecting to find her in tears. But instead she was calmly making plans for a modelling chore the following day.

Said Meeker: "This was a real audience-show—the people liked it. Three things killed it: The critics, bad weather and Lent."

With Anne also was her mother and business manager, who also is a career girl, "studying to be a photographic journalist." She does publicity shots for her curvaceous daughter, who is five feet 4½ inches and weighs 110.

Anne's brother, Walter Peter, 17, a singer, also is in Manhattan, doing television work and aiming for Broadway.

PLAYED ALICE

The auburn - haired actress's first stage appearance was as Alice in Alice in Wonderland, in a Toronto school production when she was 11. An interest in fancy skating later led to an interest in dancing, and she studied ballet in Montreal and Toronto, later studying dramatics in New York.

"She has received a couple of movie bids, but is biding her time," said Anne's mother. "Meanwhile, like all young actresses, she makes a living by modelling."

During the last three years, she has appeared on numerous television productions, including the Steve Allen, Phil Silvers, Perry Como and Eddie Fisher shows.

This is our lending policy...

"The charge has been made that the small businessman has suffered more from the policy of monetary restriction than have the other segments of the business community . . . as far as (our) bank is concerned this is not true . . . our policy has been to take care of the legitimate credit needs of all of our customers . . . we made a survey of our loan accounts under and over $100,000 as at June 30, 1957 and June 30, 1956 . . . in this period the number of our loans under $100,000 showed a greater increase than the number in excess of this amount and in total there was no significant change in the pattern."

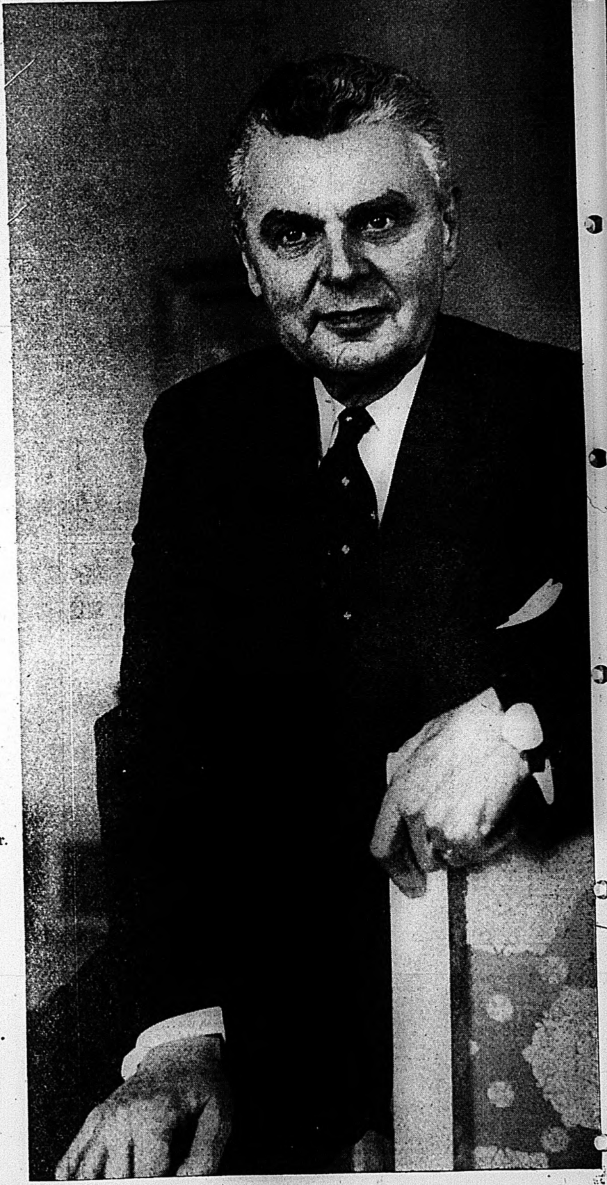
my fellow Canadians:



IN THE SHORT SPACE OF EIGHT MONTHS, the Government, in which it is my privilege to serve as Prime Minister, has laid the foundations for a new National Development Policy to equalize opportunity and raise the standard of living of Canadians in all our provinces. In doing so, we believe we have honoured our promises in keeping with your mandate of last June. In that spirit, we now submit for your approval our record of accomplishment since you entrusted us with the conduct of your government.

We have already reduced taxes by $178,000,000 including income tax reductions for 4½ million Canadians.

We have increased old age pensions to $55 a month and increased old age assistance payments and pensions for the disabled and for the blind. We have doubled federal grants for hospital construction.

We have provided $87,000,000 in financial assistance to the provinces including special grants to the Atlantic Provinces to raise their level of economic opportunity.

We have increased and extended allowance and disability pension benefits for 250,000 veterans and their families.

Since last June, there has been a progressive easing of the previous government's tight money policy which had an adverse effect on various industries and small businesses in Canada. Bank interest rates have been reduced. $300,000,000 has been provided for housing loans resulting in a current all-time high in winter home building.

We have taken measures to find new markets for our wheat and other farm products and to recover export markets which had been drastically reduced while our resources were being exported in raw or semi-processed form.

We have made an effective start on our broad program to bring the income of farmers into line with that of other salary and wage earners. We have provided cash advances for farm stored grain; limited unfair imports of farm products; assisted dairying and other phases of agriculture; and introduced legislation, long sought by farmers, to stabilize and increase farm prices by relating them in advance to production costs and other factors.

We have provided long-overdue salary increases to our armed forces and to civil servants.

We have undertaken an extensive program of major works projects to provide more jobs for Canadians in all provinces.

These are some of the achievements of your Conservative Government. What we have done so far is, of course, only a start on the fuller policy of Canadianism which we put before you last year. We have done what could be done in this short space of time as a minority government. We now come before you again to ask your mandate to carry on with a working majority which will enable us to translate our entire program into effective action for the benefit of all Canadians.

Yours sincerely,

JOHN G. DIEFENBAKER

Canadians Help Build Boys' Town

Less than a decade ago Brother Vincent went out from the Order of St. Gabriel in Montreal with the dream of founding in far-away Singapore a "Monument to the Youth of Malaya" — a Boys' Town where abandoned, underprivileged and "problem" boys of every race, colour and creed would have a home, a school and a place to call their own. Today the dream has flowered into a thriving cosmopolitan town where Malayan, Chinese and Indian boys live and grow in an atmosphere of cheerful goodwill and cooperation.

BOYS' TOWN CALENDAR
HELP US BUILD THEIR TOWN

Cane furniture making, at which the boys are particularly adept, has always been very popular at the school. The youths, who range from 13-17 years, worship each according to his own faith.

Brother Emanuel (centre) who also comes from Montreal, conducts a history class in the tranquility of the pleasant grounds which make up the Town.

The carpentry class is under the supervision of Brother Henry of France. Here are built most of the cabinets, desks and chairs required in the school and dormitories. When a boy is ready to graduate every effort is made to help him find suitable employment; many are permitted to continue living in Boys' Town until they feel ready to move out into that larger world from which the Town first gave them shelter.

Students Want Official Support Of Associations

QUEBEC (CP) — Three Montreal students who camped outside Premier Duplessis' office Friday after he refused to see them said Sunday they will stay and renew their requests if "we get official support from all student associations in the province."

Bruno Meloche, Jean - Pierre Goyer and Francine Laurendeau of the University of Montreal waited all day in a corridor outside the premier's office after a secretary said Mr. Duplessis refused to see them.

They said then they were willing to give up their school year and would "wait forever if necessary."

They issued a statement Sunday saying they would stay if they get official support from student associations at Quebec's six universities. Mr. Meloche said they would try to see the premier again today in any case.

They want Mr. Duplessis to set a date for a meeting with delegates from the province's six universities to discuss provincial university grants and bursaries. The premier has twice refused to meet such a delegation.

Russians Have Big Start Says State Secretary

WASHINGTON (AP) — State Secretary Dulles says the Russians have a big start on the United States in the exploitation of space.

And he told the House of Representatives foreign affairs committee in a closed session:

"I don't know what it is going to cost to get to the moon, or whether it is possible for us to beat the Russians at it . . ."

U.S. Air Force and industry space experts have predicted that a rocket can be fired to the moon this year.

Dulles said that while the Russians have a good start in exploiting outer space, the U.S. is closing the gap but "it cannot be done immediately and perhaps we can't do it as soon as they can."

Dulles' testimony Feb. 26 was made public by the committee Sunday after being censored.

Entered Store, Couldn't Steal, Youth Is Freed

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Larry Ford, 19, stood in front of a market window nine days ago. There was food inside and Larry was hungry.

He had 22 cents in his pocket, had been out of work a month and was desperate. He broke the window.

For 10 minues he pondered whether to steal for his wife and child. Finally he walked away.

"I couldn't do it," he told police later when they found him and put him in jail.

TIDE WAS TURNED

Today Larry is out of jail. The storekeeper was moved by the circumstances and declined to press charges.

From throughout the country has come a tide of letters, all saying, in effect: "You're okay in our book."

Many enclosed money—amounts from $1 to $25. Two persons wrote offering jobs.

Policemen who arrested Larry also turned benefactors and gave the Fords food and money.

St. Mary's P.T.A. Enjoys Colored European Slides

CAMPBELLFORD — The regular meeting of the P.T.A. of St. Mary's Separate School was held on Thursday, with a good attendance. In the absence of the president, Mr. Morria, Mr. Heffernan acted as chairman. The secretary, Mrs. Ed. O'Connor read the minutes of the last meeting, and Mrs. Jack Clarey read the treasurer's report in the absence of Mrs. J. Smith.

Mr. James Forestell outlined the plans for the euchre and dance to be held on March 17th.

PANEL DISCUSSION

An interesting feature of the evening was a panel discussion concerning the effect of television on children. Mr. Emmett Lee acted as chairman with Rev. Sr. Edwina representing the teachers and Mrs. Ralph Nuttall, Mr. Jack Clarey and Mr. Claude Paul representing the parents. A lively discussion followed in which the participants decided on how television affects a child's homework, his health, his discipline and his education. It was concluded that it is the parents' duty to select the program and decide on the amount of time that a child may view television.

COLORED SLIDES

The highlight of the evening was the showing of many colored slides by Miss K. O'Shaughnessy who took these while on a trip to Great Britain, Ireland, France and Italy, and along the Mediterranean. The views consisted of the beautiful gardens and lakes of Scotland and Ireland, the ancient castles of England; the famous shrine of Lourdes in France and the cathedrals and St. Peter's Square in Rome.

Mr. Jack Clarey thanked Miss O'Shaughnessy for sharing her interesting trip with the audience.

Following this, a social hour was spent during which Mrs. William Masterson and her assistants served coffee.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker Moving Into High Gear for Stretch Drive in the Campaign

Election Day is three weeks away. In this story a CP reporter covering the Diefenbaker tour reviews issues emphasized by the prime minister through the campaign's opening weeks.

By ALAN DONNELLY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

With his election campaign at the half-way point, Prime Minister Diefenbaker apepars to be moving into high gear for a closing drive to the March 31 voting day.

The 62-year-old Progressive Conservative leader who kept up a whirlwind tempo throughout his campaign last year, set an easier pace during the first three weeks of this year's bid for a majority mandate.

In travels that took him from Manitoba to Newfoundland and back, he repeatedly set forth his stand on unemployment, trade, national development, agriculture and social security.

On those topics his role is a defensive ont of standing on the government's record since it took office last June 21.

But in his attacks on the Liberals — the other parties have been pretty well ignored so far — Mr. Diefenbaker has shown flashes of last year's fighting form with which he led conservatives back into power after 22 years, with a minority 113 of the 265 Commons seats.

Those close to the prime minister say he deliberately kept his early electioneering under wraps awaiting a late build-up. Mostly he made one speech a day.

Midway through last week, however, he seemed to drop these tacics during a three-day swing through Southern Ontario. Wednesday he pumped hands through two big, exhausting receptions in Windsor and Leamington and followed with an hour-long speech at Chatham. Next day there was more hand-shaking at Kitchener and a major rally in Hamilton.

This week the pace probably will be equally brisk during four days in British Columbia, one of the key provinces in Conservative hopes. Then he swings back to Eastern Canada for the two-week wind-up.

So far his audiences have been generally larger, under comparable circumstances, than those of last year's campaign.

WINNIPEG RALLY BIGGEST

Party officials claimed the turn out of nearly 5,000 for his Winnipig opening speech Feb. 12 was the largest political meeting ever held on the Prairies.

At Charlottetown he spoke to 1,100 — another 300 couldn't get in in the same hall where last year several hundred fewer turned out. He drew some 1,500 at the supper hour in 8,200-population Leamington Liberal territory before 1957. Almost 4,000 went to a $2-a-plate banquet in Trois-Rivicres.

His biggest audience reaction comes when he deals with the Liberal pledge of $400,000,000 in tax cuts, and with the motion presented Jan. 20 in the Commons by Liberal Leacer Lester B. Pearson proposing a turnover of government without an election

On tax cuts he reiterates that the former Liberal government, including Mr. Pearson, rejected Conservative demands a year ago for reduced taxation.

He mocks Mr. Pearson's Commons motion, depicting it as a plea to "give us back our jobs but please let's not have an election."

A times he adds: "That's the way they change governments in Venezuela."

He accepts unemployment as a major election issue, devoting much of his speeches to it, but says Canadians won't swallow attempts to pin blame on the government.

The government, he says, has a $1,185,000,000 works program this year to provide "thousands and ten of thousands of jobs." It had cut income taxes by $146,000,000, raised old age pensions and other social welfare payments, extended the period for wintertime unemployment insurance by two months, and provided $300,000,000 in housing funds to push winter home-building to a record winter pace.

He charges the Liberals took no action a year ago despite a warning report from economic advisers.

On occasion he has said this is not the time to try to place blame for unemployment. But he adds that the present situation is the result of Liberal trade and tight money policies.

MAIN PLEDGE

The main promise of Mr. Diefenbaker's campaign is to undertake a major national development program, with roads and railways to open northern resources, federal aid to self-liquidating provincial projects, and encouragement to greater processing in Canada of raw materials.

That was a promise of last year's campaign for which, he says, a majority mandate is required from the voters. He states that 1957 promises of an immediate nature have been implemented.

Another big promise is to implement a contributory retirement pension plan, patterned on U.S. social security where there is no government aid, as an addition to existing government-financed pensions and other welfare payments

There have been either veiled hints of future action or promises to give "warm consideration" to certain things: Increased Quebec representation in the cabinet, price supports for fish and farmer-produced pulpwood, lower tobacco taxes, a St. Lawrence River bridge at Trois-Rivieres, action against import dumping of foreign textiles, a better deal for the Maritimes in railway freight rates.

Conservative trade policy is presented as one that seeks new export markets in Britain, the Commonwealth and elsewhere with less concentration on trade with the U.S.

Wishes Teacher Smart Enough For 2nd Grade

WASHINGTON (AP) — The first grader who sent in his letter to the Washington Post's "favorite teacher" essay contest readily admitted liking Miss Davis."

In fact, he scrawled:

"I wish she was smart enough to teach second grade too next year."

Ten in Family Escape Blaze, Mother Burned

KINGSTON (CP) — The mother of seven children was taken to Hotel Dieu Hospital early today after she and nine other family members fled through a wall of fire as flames swept their one-storey frame home.

Mrs. Marguerite Asselstine suffered burns to her back, forehead and arms.

Her husband, Wilbert Asselstine, received a leg injury and head burns and their daughters, Audrey, 15, and Marilyn, 3, were treated for burns and detained in hospital.

Other residents of the house were the other Asselstine children, Doris 14, Betty 12, Paul, 11, Edward 7, Gary 5, and Mrs. Asselstine's brother, Robert Pearson.

FEAR FOR CHILDREN

It was feared at first the seven children were trapped in the flaming house which was destroyed in less than an hour.

The Asselstines drove to a fire alarm box to sound the alarm and then drove on to the home of friends, Mr. and Mrs. James Salter. Firemen didn't learn all were safe until Mr. Salter went to the scene of the fire sometime later.

A neighbor, Mrs. Sarah Abrams also called police about the fire after a man pounded on her door and said the house next door was burning down.

"I said, my God, and told him to run to see if he could get any people out because there were seven children in there," Mrs. Abrams said.

She said she did not know who the man was but that he was driving a red transport truck.

There was no immediate loss estimate or explanation of what caused the fire.

Artist Said Dying From Tribal Curse

SYDNEY, Australia (AP)—Australia's famous aboriginal artist, Albert Namatjira, today was reported slowly dying from a tribal curse.

The Sydney Daily Mirror says that many people in Alice Springs, where the artist is in hospital, believe that Arunta tribesmen "pointed the bone" at him — an ancient aboriginal method of doing away with offenders.

The bone is pointed in a special ceremony and the victim traditionally weakens and dies.

Namatjira was admitted to hospital about eight months ago after he had burned his left hand in his camp fire while sleeping. The hand became infected and doctors amputated the index finger. He was discharged at the end of the year but later came back.

The Mirror says Namatjira, once a husky, strapping man, has wasted away and seldom speaks now. It says it is believed the bone was pointed at the artist because he obtained full citizenship rights last year.

BIGGEST EARTH ON EARTH

The world's largest map—a 52 foot diameter, air-supported globe, designed to seat 160 people inside—is shown as it was exhibited at Idlewild Airport, N.Y., before being shipped to the world's fair in Brussels, Belgium. Visitors to the fair will enter the big ball to witness a demonstration of astral effects including twilight, moving clouds and a star-filled sky which will serve as background for a short film that will dramatize the shrinking of time and space from Magellan's cruise 400 years ago to the jet clippers of today.

In 21 Days Canadians Will Have Their Say at the Polls

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

From one end of the land to the other, politicians today were raising their cries for votes in the March 31 federal election. Canadians can respond in exactly 21 days.

Liberal Leader Lester B. Pearson moved through Newfoundland while Prime Minister Diefenbaker opened a British Columbia visit. CCF Leader M. J. Coldwell worked Saskatchewan and Social Credit Leader Solon Low cultivated Manitoba. Behind all parties was a busy weekend.

Mr. Diefenbaker drew the second-largest crowd of his campaign so far when he spoke in Edmonton to more than 4,700 persons Saturday night. For his appearance in the Civic Auditorium, spotlights gleamed, bands played and CCF gate-crashers were ejected from a scene likened to that of a Hollywood premiere.

Mr. Pearson visited Chicoutimi, Que., Saturday before flying to Newfoundland and was the centre of a similar spectacle. His motorcade from the airport at Bagotville included some 150 cars and police had to block off traffic around the auditorium where he spoke.

MANY SPEECHES

From many sections of the country rose the voices of supporting players.

Social Credit Premier W. A. C. Bennett of British Columbia said at Chilliwack, B.C., that Canadians "are following John (Diefenbaker) straight into the unemployment office."

The Progressive Conservative government had made promises that "were never fulfilled." Its public works program was "only on paper and is a myth."

"I welcomed my friend John as a great change in policy, but it was only a change in faces," said the premier. "My friend John fumbled the ball and the Conservatives will be known as a party of unfulfilled promises."

Both Mr. Diefenbaker, at Edmonton, and Labor Minister Michael Starr at Vancouver said the peak of unemployment has been passed. Mr. Starr said he expecte figures for February will show about 600,000 unemployed compared to 520,000 Jan. 15, but the figure should begin to drop now.

BAD-TIMES SIGN

At Chicoutimi, Mr. Pearson said that while the Conservatives are not "entirely responsible for unemployment," many Canadians are beginning to think that "the Tories herald hard times just like crows tell of the arrival of spring."

He also called for creation of a national flag and for an end to unemployment.

On his way to Newfoundland, Mr. Pearson had to spend Saturday night at Fredericton when bad weather grounded his plane in Prince Edward Island. At the hotel he met State Secretary Ellen Fairclough, campaigning for the Conservatives. They shook hands.

At Owen Sound, Justice Minister Davie Fulton said the Progressive Conservatives plan to introduce a bill of rights if returned to power. He did not elaborate.

He also said Mr. Pearson and his followers are describing the Liberals as the only part of national unity. But "at the same time he follows, to my surprise and disappointment, the system of sowing seeds of fear and suspicion" in Quebec. The justice minister spoke at a campaign meeting for Percy Noble, PC candidate in Grey North.

Stanley Knowles, deputy CCF leader, said at Sydney, N.S., that Canadian working people recognize that better labor legislation has been won for them by the CCF minority group in Parliament.

"The whole question of the right of workers to organize in trade unions and collective bargaining procedures has been strengthened and improved by the work of the CCF in Parliament,' he said.

Busy Paul Martin, former Liberal health minister, said at Winnipeg that Mr. Pearson "is perhaps the most powerful, solid single voice for peace among the nations of the world."

Canada could make no greater contribution to world peace than to elect Mr. Pearson, winner of the 1957 Nobel peace prize, as prime minister, he said.

External Affairs Minister Sidney Smith said at Montreal that the Liberals' Pearson-for-peace slogan is "miserable, phoney, foolish and misleading." No one man could bring peace to the world.

"What is supposed to be the opposite of the Liberal slogan? Diefenbaker for war?"

Canada had a strong and vital voice in world matters because of its economic development and "because it wants no territory and has no objective other than to promote world peace."

HARKNESS BOOED

Agriculture Minister Douglas Harkness was heckled, booed and hissed at when he spoke about the government's farm prices stabilization legislation at Portage la Prairie, Man. A round of boos greeted his statement that it is the greatest thing ever in Canadian farm legislation. He spoke to about 200 persons in a half-filled parish hall.

Mr. Martin said at St. Malo, Man., that the original version of the farm prices bill, later amended in the Commons, was so bad that two Manitoba Conservatives attacked it in Parliament.

Moving on to Beasejour, Man., Mr. Martin said Canada should open a friendship campaign with other countries so that they will want to buy Canada's wheat and other grain rather than that of other countries.

At Morris, Man., he challenged Mr. Diefenbaker to say whether Canada has received from the U.S. a note reflecting on the status of relations between the two countries. "The way to get along with your neighbor is not to insult him," he said at another point.

Finance Minister Donald Fleming spoke to two Conservative rallies in Quebec City Sunday. He said his party's respect for provincial rights is in sharp contrast to the "take it or leave it" attitude of the former Liberal government.

Health Minister J. Waldo Monteith said at Keewatin, Ont., that Canada's old age pensioners would still be receiving $46 a month, instead of the current $55, if the Liberals were still in power. He also said the national hospital insurance scheme would still be "no more than a scrap of paper."

CLOSE CASTLE GROUNDS

LONDON (CP) — The vast grounds of Windsor Castle, frequent weekend home of the royal family, were closed Saturday because of a nearby outbreak of foot and mouth disease. The park was closed to protect two large herds of frisian cattle which graze there.

Two Boys Found Walking Along Railway Tracks

LINDSAY, Ont. (CP) — Two boys reported missing when they failed to return from a hike were found by police shortly after dawn today. Nearly 200 volunteers had taken part in an overnight search for them.

John Hughes, 10, and Michael Kearns, 13, and their small beagle dog were found walking along the CNR tracks about two miles south of here, heading home. They were tired but in good condition.

Experienced woodsmen in the search party said they were amazed at the calmness of the youngsters. Said one policeman: "If a lot of adults were half as smart there would be fewer bush deaths."

The boys said they became lost Sunday afternoon when they walked too far along an old bush road "that didn't lead anywhere." They spent part of the night wandering through a dense swamp until they reached an abandoned barn. They started a small fire to warm themselves.

At dawn today, the boys said, they heard a train whistle and saw a locomotive's smoke in the distance. Using it as a marker, they walked through bush to the railway line.

Although temperatures in the area dipped to 20 degrees overnight, the boys were warmly dressed and said they did not feel the cold. They ate sandwiches brought with them.

The large-scale search started Sunday when Michael's mother, Mrs. Clarence Kearns told police the boys had promised to be home for dinner.

Fatal Accidents All on Highways, Death Toll Is 15

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Motor vehicles killed 15 Canadians this weekend.

It was a rare weekend with no deaths reported by fire, drowning or various other causes.

A Canadian Press survey from 6 p.m. local time Friday to midnight Sunday showed the following traffic toll by provinces: Ontario 6, Quebec 3, New Brunswick 2, Nova Scotia 2, Alberta and British Columbia one each.

Ontario List

Jack Scadding, 25, of Mimico in a two-car collision near Malton Sunday. Police said they believed Mr. Scadding, a [illegible]-year-old junior announcer with a Brampton radio station CFJB, fell asleep at the wheel of his car, which rammed into the rear of another vehicle. The announcer had driven Valerie Gillespie of Pickering home from a hockey game.

Sidney B. Smith, 38, and Steven Danec, 44, both of Cochrane in a two-car smash north of Kirkland Lake Sunday.

Henry G. Safranyos, 20, in a car-train crash at Dunville Saturday. Mr. Safranyos, a son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Safranyos of Wellandport, apparently did not see the train coming.

Scout Leaders Should Provide Good Programs

PETERBOROUGH (CP) — An RCAF officer says many 15-and 16-year-old boys leave the Boy Scout movement because they think the program is "sissy."

Group Capt. E. R. Johnston of RCAF Trenton told 575 Scouting leaders attending a Quinte regional conference Saturday that their program is not enough of a challenge to teenagers. This was the fault of Scouting leadership "at all levels.'

"Scouting is missing the boat if we do not present a program that will hold the interest and exploit the leadership potentials of the 15 and 16 year olds," he said.

CONDITION SATISFACTORY

TORONTO (CP)—Hospital officials described as "quite satisfactory" the condition of Rev. Charles Lanphier, noted Roman Catholic church broadcaster who underwent an operation a week ago Monday for removal of his voice box. He has suffered from throat cancer for about two years. Father Lanphier has been director of the Radio League of St. Michael's since he organized it 25 years ago.

Armed Services Vote Can Affect Outcome in Some Spots in Close Civilian Vote

OTTAWA (CP)—The armed services vote — announced about a week after election day in Canada — can affect the outcome of individual constituency contests, especially where the civilian vote is close.

A total of 116,767 members of the active forces in Canada and abroad are eligible to vote in the service polls. So are 7,225 wives living abroad with their servicemen husbands, and 6,563 veterans in 32 hospitals across the country for a grand total of 130,555.

This total is 1,023 lower than the 131,578 service poll eligibles in the general election of last June. In that vote, 74,437 ballots were cast at service polls. It is not possible to determine just how many servicemen vote each election, because many servicemen in Canada choose to vote at regular civilian polls instead of those set up for the services.

SOME AT HOME

A serviceman may vote at either a civilian or service poll if he lives in the electoral district which is his ordinary place of residence — his residence on enlistment or that which was designated by him the previous December. He must vote at a service poll if he lives outside his home electoral district.

Although the service vote will be conducted March 24 - 29, the totals are not expected to be added to the March 31 civilian totals in the various ridings until Saturday, April 5.

The service votes are pooled for counting at four points: At London, England, for ballots from Britain, Germany and such other points as Egypt and Indochina; at Halifax, for the Maritimes; at Ottawa, for Ontario and Quebec; and at Edmonton, for Western Canada.

Among those pooled at Ottawa are votes by Canadians at service polls in United States centres, while votes from Japan are funnelled into Edmonton.

VOTE SCRUTINEERS

Of the potential service vote of 130,555, a total of 52,254 ballots could be handled at Ottawa; 22,470 at Halifax, 34,327 at Edmonton and 21,504 at London.

Scrutineers representing the Progressive Conservative, Liberal, CCF and Social Credit parties are appointed for each of these points, along with a special returning officer, each with a chief assistant.

The returning officers and their chief assistants, respectively, for this election: London — John Farnan, Hamilton, and John G. Bell, St. Marys, Ont.; Halifax — Walter F. Blair, Fredericton, and Andrew Maceachern, North River, P.E.I.; Ottawa — Gordon C. Miller, Toronto, and Guy Levesque, St. Laurent, Que.; Edmonton — Alex Cairns, Winnipeg, and Martin Pederson, Saskatoon.

On about March 17 the scrutineers will be able to get lists of servicemen, pooled at the four points, showing their rank, name and military establishment as well as their place of ordinary residence in Canada. This is the only opportunity for the political parties to get lists by which to make appeals through the mails.

PREVIOUS UPSETS

There have been several previous occasions when the service vote upset the verdict of civilians back home. In 1917, the first election year in which service polls operated, a total of 14 candidates who apparently had been elected by civilians were ousted by the service vote.

And in last year's election in the Yukon, Liberal Aubrey Simmons won by a narrow margin by virtue of service votes after his Conservative opponent, Erik Nielsen, got a majority of the civilian vote.

That Yukon election later was declared invalid for other reasons and Mr. Nielsen won in a new election last December. But the armed forces had shown once again that their votes can decide the outcome of a close race.

The serviceman can vote only for candidates in the constituency where his ordinary residence is located — not where he may be based at the time.

Overseas service wives can apply their vote only in their husband's home riding. In Canada, however, wives living at military bases can vote only in the civilian poll where they have established the necessary residence requirements.

PARTY DESIGNATION

Because the troops are away from home, they will be shown a list of candidates with the political affiliation of each — the only official federal election document anywhere to show party affiliations.

The service ballot, with the name of the candidate written in, then goes through a complex procedure designed to ensure secrecy.

Although the actual vote is administered by armed service members at the various bases, the counting is done by civilians at the four headquarters of servicing voting territories.

The ballot goes into a small, plain envelope which then is enclosed in a larger envelope bearing the sodier's name, home address and constituency.

At the four voting headquarters, these outer envelopes are used for the purpose of sorting the plain envelopes by constituency. When this sorting is done, the outer envelopes are destroyed and the inner ones are opened for counting. Thus the ballots no longer are connected with the voter's name.

The four headquarters message the results of riding to chief electoral officer Nelson Castonguay in Ottawa who, in turn, passes them on to the returning officers in each constituency.

Hip-Wiggling Girls Annoy Moscow Radio

LONDON (AP) — Moscow radio said today Russian girls must stop wiggling their hips. There are other ways they can let men know they are female.

"A woman's dress should suit the shape of her figure, stressing her contours and grace," the broadcast noted. But it added: "It is not very attractive to pose as some women do with the express purpose of displaying quite unnecessarily the mobility of their hips while walking."

DUEL SETTLES NOTHING

LIMA, Peru (AP)—The minister of government bested a senator in a brief sabre duel near Lima Sunday. The duel was stopped after the minister, Jorge Fernandez Stoll, slashed Senator rotacna Wilson Sologuren on the right wrist, the forearms and the face. Fernandez was slightly cut. They left the field unrecognized.

Queen Mother Cancels Stop At Nairobi on Way Home

The government has officially denied uncovering any such plot.

The colonial office announced, that the Queen Mother's plane would fly over Kenya and come down instead at Entebbe in Uganda.

Outspoken opposition to the Queen Mother's stop in Kenya had come from the People's Convention party, biggest African political group in Kenya which called for a boycott of her proposed visit.

The Queen Mother has sent a special message to the people of Kenya expressing her regret at the inconvenience caused by her inability to attend the airport dedication ceremonies set for Sunday.

The colonial office's announcement that the Queen Mother would now skip her Nairobi visit came at a time British newspapers were carrying a report a former Mau Mau terrorist had been picked up in Kenya on suspicion of being concerned in an assassination plot.

Meanwhile, from Mauritius officials reported a second delay in the Queen Mother's departure from that little Indian Ocean island because of aircraft trouble.

A faulty engine in a Super Constellation already has delayed her departure from here two days. Today a second plane carrying a spare part for the first aircraft was forced to turn back to the Cocos Islands because of bad weather conditions.

If the Queen Mother's plane departs Tuesday night she is expected to arrive at Entebbe, Uganda, with a further stop at Malta before returning home to London.

Two Eskimo Women Rescued From Isolated Igloo in North

CHURCHILL, Man. (CP)—Two Eskimo women have been rescued after spending 10 days with little food in an isolated igloo on frozen barrens near the Arctic Circle in the Northwest Territories.

The two, alone and near starvation, had only a ptarmigan to eat in below-zero weather.

An RCAF ski-equipped Otter, piloted by Flt. Lt. D. McNeill of Yorkton, Sask., rescued a 53-year-old mother and her 14-year-old daughter Saturday and flew them to a government outpost hospital at Baker Lake, N.W.T., 350 miles north of here. They were reported in good condition.

An RCAF spokesman at Winnipeg, said first news of the women's plight was given by an Eskimo to an RCMP corporal at Baker Lake. He called in the RCAF for assistance.

Names of the Eskimos were not known.

The women and a 30-year-old deaf mute son became separated from their band some time ago during a hunt. An igloo was built and the trio waited for another Eskimo band to reach the district.

They ate eight of their 10 dogs as food before the son decided to attempt to reach Baker Lake, taking the remaining dogs. The women were left in the igloo with only the small northern grouse as food.

The son met another Eskimo hunting party and told them the plight of his mother and sister. A member of the band relayed the information to the RCMP at the small northern weather station.

Bodies of Two Men Found in Craft's Wreckage

NORTH BAY (CP) — The bodies of two men killed in the crash of a private plane were found Sunday in the craft's wreckage on Lake Nipissing, 12 miles west of here.

The aircraft had been reported missing Thursday on a flight here from Emerald Lake, 60 miles northwest. The wreckage was sighted by a private plane.

A provincial police ground party went to the scene and the bodies were flown here later.

Mr. Hurst, who chartered the plane for a spring inspection of his Emerald Lake tourist camp, is survived by his wife, Jessie, and two sons, Lyle of North Bay and William of the RCAF.

Inco Metals at work in Canada

Inco Copper helps you enjoy modern electrical living

...but three Canadian homes out of five need up-to-date wiring

SUPPOSE the house you're living in is ten years old or more. The original wiring system did its job well in those days. But can this same wiring system handle the many new appliances you have in 1958? Or in five or ten years from now?

Probably not. Even some new houses are not properly wired to carry the electrical load you need in your home. In fact, more than 3 out of every 5 Canadian homes have inadequate or out-of-date wiring.

If your home is one of these, it means that you're not getting good service from your appliances. They're operating too slowly . . . using more electricity than they should . . . and costing you more money. Lights are not as bright as they ought to be. Electric motors operate slowly. Fuses may be blowing. These are sure signs of inadequate wiring. And it could mean that you're playing with fire . . . because overloaded wiring can help create a fire hazard.

Make sure your home has a safe and up-to-date wiring system. If you spot any of the tell-tale signs, call in an electrical contractor and have him inspect the wiring. He can show you how to enjoy the safety and convenience of modern electrical living.

Inco supplies copper to Canadian companies for the manufacture of heavy duty power cable and the wiring that goes into your home. And you use many other products made from Inco ORC* Brand Copper every day. For more than half of all the copper produced by Inco is used right here in Canada. Another example of the way Inco metals serve the Canadian industries that serve you.

Foxes' Winter Diet Mainly Rodents

Year after year the boys in "the hot-stove league" decide among themselves that foxes catch too many birds — quail, pheasants, grouse or what have you. Now and then you will find a few dissenters, men who know the true facts, but the rank and file of the hunters hold Reynard as the outstanding criminal among predators.

In the first place, these anti-fox boys seem to forget that foxes and birds have been living together in the same areas ever since time began. They forget, also that it has been conclusively proven by the biologists that the diet of the average fox during the winter months consists of field mice, meadow rats, cotton rats, etc. Year after year there is more predation done by house cats among birds than by foxes.

Now comes a report from Wisconsin about research done by Mr. David Arnold of the Wisconsin Conservation Department. He and his co-workers, over a period of five winters, followed fox trails through the snow for more than one thousand miles. There in the tell-tale snow the story was written for all to see.

Briefly, the findings of these men showed that foxes, in the country open to shooting, took about two per cent of the birds remaining after the hunting season. In the game refuges, where there was a heavy concentration of birds, foxes accounted for about seven per cent. The rest of the time they fed on mice and rats.

All right — remove the foxes. It has been done and always with the same results. Field mice and rats have the capacity to multiply in geometric proportions. Without the foxes to hold their numbers under control the damage they do far outweighs any inroads the foxes might make into the bird supply. Experience has shown that it pays to let foxes alone. Nature has a way of balancing things out to the best interests of all.

SUPER INSECTICIDES

During and since World War II a whole new family of insecticides was developed by the chemists of our Nation. Some of these are familiar to us, notably DDT. We know now that DDT is only partially effective and that insects, particularly mosquitoes, soon breed families that are immune to the effects of this drug.

Also, we know that intensive use of this poison has resulted in some deplorable catastrophies in nature. Consider, for example, the repeated devastation of salmon and salmon foods by spraying DDT (for spruce budworm control) on the Miramichi River watershed in New Brunswick in 1954-56. Another example was the slaughter of trout and trout foods in Yellowstone National Park in 1955.

Now comes the report from The Sport Fishing Institute in Washington, D.C., of an even more serious threat to our wildlife. The Department of Agriculture, operating on its own and without benefit of advice from the biologists of Fish and Wildlife Service, is setting out on an active campaign against the fire ant, a fairly new import.

To be used in this campaign are two poisons called Dieldrin and Heptachlor. Dieldrin is perhaps twenty times more toxic to fish and wildlife than DDT. Heptachlor is just about as active. It doesn't take much imagination to envision what may possibly happen.

All right, this is what has happened. An article appeared in the January issue of The Journal of Wildlife Management. It describes the findings of ichthologist, Robert W. Harrington, Jr., and entomologist, William L. Bidlingmayer, of the Florida State Board of Health's Entomological Research Center at Vero Beach, Florida.

NOT GUESS WORK

This report is by no means guess work. It is a careful and methodical recounting of the effects of a spraying of Dieldrin on the fish and invertibrates in the ditches of salt marshes along the Indian River, St. Lucie County, Fla. This poison was spread at the rate of one pound per acre over some 2,000 acres the purpose being to kill sand-fly larvae. One pound to the acre, of course, is about the equivalent of 20 pounds to the acre of DDT.

The biologists' findings, in part, were these —

The fish kill was substantially complete. That's another way of saying that every doggone thing that swam in those ditches, all the little fish that spent their lives gobbling mosquito larvae, and this includes thousands of baby tarpon (smaller than any heretofore seen) went to meet their maker. In all, a conservative count throughout the marshes turned up from 20 to 30 tons — about 1,175,000 dead fish of 30 different species — killed almost immediately.

For some reason the large game and food fishes were the first to die. As might be expected, the crabs in the area had a feast beyond their wildest dreams, but it was a fatal banquet — the next day all of the crabs were dead. In short, that one spraying of 2,000 acres of marsh made a biological desert of the area in the space of 48 hours.

How you feel about this sort of thing we have no way of knowing. To us it seems that an improvement of methods certainly is indicated. Of course, it is desirable to eliminate sand flies and fire ants. That is, it is desirable if it can be done safely.

Now, when you consider that the plan of the Department of Agriculture proposes to spray something over 20 million acres of land to eliminate the fire ants in the infested areas of Alabama, Florida, Georgia, Louisiana and Mississippi, it makes you stop and wonder. What do you suppose will happen to the fish and wildlife of those areas? It will be interesting to await developments.

Dunlops Always Out to Win Wren Blair's Hockey Creed

By ED SIMON

Canadian Press Staff Writer

OSLO, Norway (CP)—Canadian teams can still win the world hockey title, but they have to work to do it.

The myth of Canada's automatic supremacy on the ice lanes probably was dashed for the last time Sunday as Canada's Whitby representatives had to go flat out to defeat a battling Russian team 4-2 in the climactic final game of the 1958 championships.

The Whitby team was hailed as the greatest club ever to represent Canada in the world tournament, and veteran observers of world competition felt it fully deserved the high rating.

TWO OBJECTIVES

The players were goaded on by the memory of the shock which followed when Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen, who preceded Whitby into the Olympic meet two years ago as Allan Cup champions, lost the final game to Russia.

Blair never let his team forget that defeat. He threw it in their faces whenever they had an off-color practice, demanding perfection every time his players laced up their skates.

When this year's tournament started, Blair's high-pitched voice could be heard clearly on the far side of the large outdoor rink, always urging the team on to greater efforts.

WON CONVINCINGLY

Day after day the Canadians brushed aside the opposition by convincing margins, while the Russians moved in fits and starts. They were held to a tie by Czechoslovakia and were barely able to eke out a 4-3 win over Sweden, 1957 champions.

He justified his hard-driving direction of practices and early tournament games by saying he felt that Russia was not going full out, and was saving an extra push for meeting Canada.

But not even Blair was prepared for the strenuous battle Russia gave Canada through 56 minutes of taut, nerve-grinding hockey before two goals within 25 seconds by Bob Attersley and Bus Gagnon put the game and the championship away.

Blair said afterwards that the game was the most thrilling he had ever seen. Few Canadian eye witnesses were inclined to argue.

"We always go out to win and win well," he said. "I don't think it's fair to hockey and the fans to play any other way."

CHINA CLIPER SIGNS

EDMONTON (CP) — Fullback Normie Kwong has signed his 1958 contract with Edmonton Eskimos of the Western Football Conference, the club announced Saturday.

Finland Takes Ski Team Prize

LAHTI, Finland (AP) — Finland's Johani Kaerkinen and Enzio Hyytiae took the first two places in the climactic special jump in the world Nordic ski competition Sunday and gave Finland the unofficial team championship.

The 23-year-old Kaerkinen jumped 242 feet 9 inches the first time and 218 feet inches the second, outclassing his teammate on both jumps.

Finland compiled an unofficial team score of 68 points to 46 for Russia and 25 for Sweden. Points were awarded on the basis of seven for first place, and 5-4-3-2-1 for the next five.

Rocky Refuses Huge Offer to Fight Champion

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Rocky Marciano Sunday turned down a reported $1,250,000 offered him by Jack Kearns to fight Floyd Patterson.

Kearns said he talked to Marciano, who was master of ceremonies at a sports show here.

"I don't have any desire to return to boxing," the former world heavyweight champ said. "I'm very fond of Jack Kearns . . . I'm grateful for his offer. But I turned down one of $3,000,000 not so long ago."

HAIL THE CHAMPIONS!

In April, 1956, after the Whitby Dunlops had won the Ontario OHA senior "B" provincial title, had someone told Wren Blair he would win a world hockey title two years later, he would have stuck tongue in cheek and cracked "Could be." He's that kind of a guy.

But even at that time, the blonde dynamo with the starboard-side cowlick, had ideas. Since the Eastern Ontario league had "gone senior 'B'," a few years previous, its champions had won the provincial title with ridiculous ease. Kingston and Whitby had swept through Western Ontario opposition scarcely "raising a hair."

Blair felt that with a little adjustment, the Eastern Ontario league was ready for senior "A". The loop at a meeting first demurred, then concurred with the exception of Belleville, which later entered the fold.

At this meeting Blair made the dramatic but truthful, if facetious prediction, "This league will not only go senior 'A' but will win the Allan Cup." The lump in his cheek was not "chawin'."

The rest is history. In two short years hockey's "Prince Charming," an obscure Oshawa pilot, transformed his "Cinderella" Dunlops into not only Allan Cup winners but world champions, and himself into a world hockey figure. That section of the hockey universe which has not heard Wren Blair, has heard about him.

Yesterday he reached the peak of his ambition, the piloting of his beloved Dunnies to the world hockey championship for Canada.

And he won it the hard way.

He laughed in the teeth of a storm of criticism from alleged senior "A" and other experts. He pitted his senior "B" upstarts against western and northern Ontario champions, whipped them on the ice, then took out the Western Canada Allan Cup threat in four straight games.

But his troubles were not over.

He had the utmost faith in the ability of his national champions. He believed that with certain additional strength they could win back Canada's lost prestige overseas. He applied for and received CAHA permission to represent Canada in the 1958 world hockey tournament.

Again the critics came out from hiding. Green-eyed they chorused the Dunnies were not the team to send overseas. Even if they had beaten the tourists from Russia 7-2, wasn't it the first game of the tour when the Reds were travel-weary and unaccustomed to Canadian arenas.

"Why send those guys over there," yakked a Hogtown hockey "expert." He said later he had been joking—after the Russians whipped a composite junior "A" team 10-1.

Meanwhile Blair went merrily on his way. He knew the weak spots of his club—and went all-out to put the finger in the dyke. He tried several players. He acquired Sid Smith, former Maple Leaf, as playing coach. He obtained Jack McKenzie, a veteran of world tournaments; Connie Broden, Jean Paul Lamirande, George Gosselin and Roy Edwards, a goalkeeper. That was it.

The Dunlops' pre-tournament and tournament record prior to the big game with Russia yesterday gave evidence of the terrific scoring power of the forwards. Their goals-against record speaks volumes for the efficiency of their defence.

Canada in general and Whitby in particular will pay homage to the champions. There will be parades, speeches, presentations and all the colorful whoop-de-do that is part and parcel of homage to world champions.

But the proudest man of the entire country will be the diminutive manager Wren Blair, who outlaughed those who laughed at his "nerve," whose tenacity of purpose, work, and ingenuity overcame obstacles never before encountered by an official in the amateur hockey history of the country.

Sir, this department pays homage and tribute to your world champions. To you the accolade for personal courage, ability and the guts to see things through to a glorious climax.

Hockey's Big Seven

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Weekend play in the National Hockey League came off as a stalemate for the top trio in the race for individual scoring honors as each collected two points.

Montreal's Dickie Moore bagged his 33rd and 34th goals of the season to boost his production to 75 points and keep four in front of teammate Henri (Pocket Rocket) Richard and Andy Bathgate, the New York Rangers star.

Bathgate fired one goal — his 29th — and assisted another tally while Henri picked up assists on both of Moore's counters.

Hold Bruins to 3-All Draw Then Bow to 7-0 Onslaught; Blues, Habs, Red Wings Split

By GERRY MARTIN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

National Hockey League action this weekend:

Boston Bruins all but ended Toronto's playoff hopes. Leafs settled for a 3-3 tie Saturday but Sunday Boston wasn't to be denied and Simmons shone as Leafs bowed 7-0.

Chicago broke a seven-game losing streak with a 4-3 win over Detroit. Sunday they lost 4-1 to Montreal Canadiens, but that's really no disgrace, considering Habs are 21 points ahead of second-place New York.

EDGE CANADIENS

Rangers edged Canadiens 3-2 Saturday but Sunday Detroit Red Wings took Rangers 4-2, ending New York's streak of seven wins and two ties.

The only position change in the standings saw Boston climb one point above Detroit into third place, five behind Rangers.

Simmons, who suffered a shoulder injury Dec. 29, returned to action Saturday. Schmidt called upon Simmons after Harry Lumley injured his leg Thursday.

Saturday Simmons turned aside 25 shots, giving up two goals to Dick Duff and a single to Marc Reaume. Jerry Toppazzini, Norm Johnson and Fleming Mackell scored for Boston.

Don McKenney scored two to lead the Boston attack and singles went to Mackell, Toppazzini, Leo Labine, Buddy Boone and Johnny Bucyk.

FIRST PENALTY SHOT

Canadiens, at home to Rangers Saturday, were victims of the first penalty shot this season. It was called when Camille Henry was hauled down from behind after breaking into the clear.

Henry took his time and Jacques Plante didn't have a chance on a close in shot. Lou Fontinato and Guy Gendron were the other Ranger scorers. Andre Pronovost and Jean Beliveau scored for Montreal.

Goals by Henry and Andy Bathgate tied the score early in the third.

Chicago entertained twice over the weekend. Saturday, Chicago won 4-3 on Ed Litzenberger's goal with 62 seconds remaining. It was his second of the game and 28th of the season.

Litzenberger and Lorne Ferguchio started Red Wings off. Eric Nesterenko sent Chicago ahead but Howe and Normie Ullman tied the score early in the third.

Litzenberger took advantage of a slight lapse on the part of Detroit's Terry Sawchuk to score the winner. Sawchuk failed to smother the puck and Litzenberger poked it under him.

Sunday Dickie Moore and Jean Beliveau each scored twice as Montreal downed Hawks 4-1.

This game was rough and rugged all the way with several players being injured. Cam McKenna of Don's suffered a badly bruised foot from a stick slash while Rob Burrows of Hillcrest received a cut over the eye during the heat of battle.

Three Tie in Orleans Open

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Ken Venturi faced a threat from two unexpected contenders today as he entered the second round of the $20,000 Greater New Orleans Open tournament tied with two golfers seeking their first titles of the winter tour.

Venturi, who has won three times this winter, knocked four strokes off par with his 34-34—68 over the soggy par 37-35—72 course Sunday. But the 26-year-old San Francisco stroker could do no better than tie Billy Maxwell of Odessa, Tex., and Gene Littler of Singing Hills, Calif.

Opening round play over the 6,700-yard City Park course was delayed for three days by rains.

Bill Ezinicki, Winnipeg - born former National Hockey League player now living in Stoneham, Mass., turned in a par-72 card.

Three Canadians made it in 73, Torontonians Al Balding and Murray Tucker and Calgary's Bob Wylie. Jerry Magee of Toronto had 77 and one stroke behind him were Rudy Horvath of Windsor and Bob Dean of Cornwall. John Henrick of Ottawa had a 79.

After today's 18 holes, the field will be cut to the low 60 for the final two rounds, both scheduled for Tuesday. The tournament was scheduled originally to begin last Thursday and end Sunday after one round daily.

Pembroke Edges Chevies 2-1 Play to 2-2 Tie on Sunday

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Injury-riddled Sault Ste. Marie Greyhounds, long-time league-leaders and second-place finishers, had their hopes of collecting the OHA-NOHA Senior A championship demolished Sunday — five days after entering the playoffs.

Greyhounds, holding first-place in the standings until overtaken midway through the season by Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen, lost their fourth game in a row in the best-of-seven series to Windsor Bulldogs 7-0.

Dutchmen are also finding the playoffs tougn going. They could only manage a 1-1 tie with Sudbury Wolves Saturday and now trail the series 2-1, with one game tied.

TAKE LEAD

Pembroke Lumber Kings went into a 3-2 lead in the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A eastern division semi-finals during the weekend, beating Cornwall Chevies 2-1 Saturday and tying the Chevies 2-1 Sunday. Next game will be at Pembroke Tuesday.

Greyhounds coach Bucko McDonald could dress only 12 men for the game against Windsor. In addition to star players John Lumley, Don McLean and Ron Rubic, the Soo squad was minus injured Gary Vena, Ivan Tennant and Jerry Odrowski.

Wally Pawlyshyn and Andy Milne gave the Bulldogs a 2-0 first-period lead. Wally Maxwell pushed it to 4-0 in the second, netting twice. Irwin Grosse and Reg Abbott with two, rounded off the scoring in the third.

Dutchmen piled on the pressure against Wolves, and bombarded goalie Bob Mitchell with 45 shots. Boat Hurley in the Kitchener net handled only 26.

Left winger Don Rope, with his fourth goal of the series, scored for Dutchmen in the first period. Centre Jim Logan replied for Wolves in the second.

Bruce Giesebrecht scored at 15:50 of the third period to give Pembroke victory Saturday after Jim Maxwell's first-period goal was tied by Chevies' Carman Marshall.

Another member of the Giesebrecht trio—Jack—dampened the Chevies hopes Sunday. He scored a third-period goal which tied the scores after Cornwall had been 2-0 ahead.

Dunnies Pay Tribute To Worthy Foemen; Whitby Town 'Blows It's Top'

Backslaps, Guffaws, Cheers Mark Dressing Room Scene; Blair Performs Victory Hop

By ED SIMON

OSLO, Norway, (CP) — Alf Treen, huskiest of Canada's defencement, looked across the crowded reception room and his face lit up.

"Hey," he yelled, "there's Solly."

His teammates, relaxing barely an hour after they had beaten Russia for the world hockey championships, took up the cry. A moment later, they were exchanging backslaps and guffaws with a wiry blue-suited Russian whose only oral communications with them came in monosyllables.

It was Nikolai Sologubov, captain of the Russian team and senior partner, with Nikolai Tregubov, of their formidable defence pair known with respect to the Canadians as Solly and Treg.

A few minutes later, with Sologubov still in their midst, the Canadians led the roar of approval that greeted the announcement that Tregubov had been named the tournament's outstanding defenceman.

Admiration for the losers was the keynote of the champions' reactions from the final buzzer.

Manager Wren Blair was all over the rink, embracing his players, leading them in a cheer for the Canadian servicemen and hometown fans who had rooted them home and jumping over the boards to the Russian bench in order to exchange congratulations with Pavel Korotkov, his opposite number.

It was Sinden who best summed up the team's attitude toward their long and successful adventure. He made his point at the reception, replying to a welcoming speech by the mayor of Oslo.

"We hope we have done a bit to further hockey in Europe," he said. "Also, we have learned a bit about hockey in Europe."

The assembled dignitaries, officials and hockey players, including Solly, Treg and the boys, gave him one of the biggest hands of the evening.

WHITBY (CP) — Hundreds of cars packed with wildly cheering occupants rolled through town for nearly three hours Sunday following the news that Whitby had captured the world hockey crown by defeating Russia 4-2.

An effigy of a Russian hockey player was burned at a main intersection. The dummy was made of slacks and doused with gasoline. Firecrackers exploded through the streets.

Five minutes after the end of the game, fans who heard the result by radio, posted signs at the four main highway entrances to the town informing motorists Whitby was the home of the world champions.

The town fire siren blasted moments after the result was known. Traffic piled up on the main streets. Amid the cheering and blaring car horns, paper streamers shot high in the air.

The fire department was kept on the hope by false alarms, but police regarded the outburst generally as orderly.

Finn Wins At Vancouver

REVELSTOKE, B. C. (CP)—Finland's Risto Vorenin pushed ahead of more favored contestants Sunday with consistently good jumping to win British Columbia's ski tournament of champions.

Sixth at the close of Saturday's competition, Vorenin had jumps of 258, 261 and 257 feet Sunday to win by four points from favorite Odd Brevik of Norway.

Japan's Horoshi Yoshizawa bettered Brevik's figure on his first jump Sunday with 273 feet, but the long jump upset his balance and he fell. Yoshizama finished in third place, 1.9 points behind Brevik.

Minor Hockey

Bruins, Rangers, Maple Leafs and Canadiens qualified for the bantam semi-finals at Memorial Arena Saturday morning.

Bruins took twenty minutes of overtime to win their series with the Browns. The clubs tied Saturday 3-3 to give the Bruins a 4-3 series victory. Browns were ahead 3-2 at the end of regulation, thus forcing a series tie at 3-3. The clubs battled through one scoreless ten-minute overtime heat and then ten minutes of sudden-death play before Rob Burr scored from Wayne Gilroy and Dennis Hull for the Bruin victory. Burr also had an earlier goal, as did John Tooth, while Thompson had one assist. Rod Turner, Dennis Ray and Dave Fisher fired the Browns' goals with Hull and Turner getting assists.

Canadiens defeated the Barons 4-2 and won their round by a 7-2 total. Gary Duvall, Fred Spafford, Cliff McGrimmon and Jim Rutherford scored for Canadiens with Jones getting the only assist. Ted Rowland and Bob Jeffery were the Baron scorers with Morgan and Jeffery claiming assists.

Maple Leafs blanked the Black Hawks 3-0 to capture their quarter-final set 5-2. Kerry Soden with a goal and assist led the winning attack. Jim Sherry and Pete Armstrong had the other goals with Alyea and Bowes getting assists.

Rangers squeezed out a 2-1 win over the Red Wings for a 4-3 series victory. Brian McBride bagged the winning goal and assisted on the first for the Rangers. Jim Muir also scored while Jimmy Woodcock had an assist. Don Goodfellow was the Wing marksman.

The semi-finals will get under way next Saturday morning.

Patrick Picks World Hockey All-Star Team

OSLO (AP) — Lynn Patrick, general manager of Boston Bruin of the National Hockey League, here for the world hockey championships, turned selector today and picked an all-star team dominated by the champion Canadians and runner-up Russians. 3

Patrick, who saw all eight squads in action, picked this aggregation:

Quebec Hockey

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The Quebec Hockey League playoff lineup, tinged with uncerainty all season by the erratic performances of the leagues five teams, remained as much in doubt as ever after Sunday's action.

Montreal Royals and Quebec Aces, struggling for third spot, both came un with victories to maintain their deadlock with 53 points, seven in front of the idle Trois-Rivieres Lions.

Aces took a 2-1 decision over Chicoutimi - Sagueneens on two first-period goals while Royals downed Shawinigan Cataracts 6-4.

Saguenens lead the league with 69 points after 59 games of the 64-game schedule. Shawinigan, four points back, has played one more game. The top four teams win playoff berths.

BCI and Quinte Lose to Oshawa In Hoop Playoffs

By DONN MARTINSON

Both the Quinte juniors and the B.C.I.V.S. seniors were eliminated in the semi-finals in their bid for a C.O.S.S.A. championship in Peterborough on Saturday by respective teams from Oshawa.

In the junior game, Quinte kept very close to their opponents but were completely outplayed in the final quarter. Oshawa outscored Quinte 12-6 in the first quarter and at half time Quinte was still five points in arrears when the score read 25-20. Quinte outscored Oshawa 9-8 in the third quarter but in the last quarter Oshawa ran rings around the Quinte squad and outscored Quinte 19-2 to take the game 52-31.

Bill Green hooped 10 points for the losers while Ron Denyes and Paul Campbell each scored seven points. Meck was top scorer for Oshawa with 16 points.

The first half of the senior game was very close but in the last half Oshawa gradually crept away from the BCI squad. BCI got off to an early lead in the first quarter by an 11-5 count but Oshawa came back to outscore BCI 12-7 in the second quarter with the losers holding a slim 18-17 lead at the half. At the beginning of the second half Oshawa broke out and scored 10 points without an answer and went on to outscore BCI 17-10 in the quarter to take a 34-28 lead. In a sloppy last quarter Oshawa held a slight edge and outscored the BCI squad 8-7. BCI played unusually poor ball throughout the entire game. The final score was 42-35 in favor of Oshawa.

Don Audrey was the "big" gun for Oshawa with 13 points. Gary Stephanson swished in 12 points for the losers, followed by Gord "Pork" Irwin with 10 points.

Points for BCIVS:

Irwin 10, Martinson 2, Stark 3, Stephanson 12, Walters 8, Deacon, Boomhower, MacKenzie, Mowers and Parkhurst.

Delany Wins Mile No. 22

NEW YORK (AP)—Ron Delany won his 22nd straight mile race in 4:08.4 in the Knights of Columbus Games Saturday night. But this one was different because he had to survive a bumping session with Burr Grim of Maryland.

Delany, the Olympic 1,500 - metre champion from Villanova, now has won 27 straight indoor races.

With a lap and a half to go and Delany, Grim and Phil Coleman of Chicago loping along, Grim suddenly veered toward Delany and bounced into Ron. Coleman had just moved into the lead and Grim and Delany were a couple of feet behind.

Delany merely glowered at Grim and went about his business. Delany was in front at the end by some eight yards. Coleman was second and Grim third.

Junior Players Show Promise In Badminton Championships

By PETER BUCKLEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

VICTORIA (CP) — The shadow of Canada's shellacking at the hands of an American team in Thomas Cup competition the previous weekend stretched wide over the Canadian badminton championships.

"We won't soon forget what happened to Canada in Long Beach," said Hillis Pickens of Montreal, president of the Canadian Badminton Association and head of a committee which selected Canada's team in the international competition. The Canadians lost all nine of their games in the California competition.

Observers felt most of the Thomas Cup players turned in sound performances here. And there was promise of a better showing for Canada in the play of several juniors.

Defending champion Dave McTaggart of Vancouver looked better than he had in any of the preliminary competitions when he defeated Jim Carnwath of Woodstock in the men's singles final. Both competed in California.

GRNDING BATTLE

The score of 15-4, 6-15, 15-8 gave little indication of the grinding battle between 26-year-old McTaggart, winner of his third consecutive singles title, and Carnwath, 23, Ontario champion and a first-year law student at the University of Toronto.

Carnwath gave him a stiff battle in each of the sets, dropping the first when his defensive work failed to stop McTaggart and winning the second on athletic retrieves and sharp placements.

The final set saw McTaggart leading 4-1 early in the play and holding the lead in a gruelling fight until Carnwath sent a return across the side foul line for match point.

Don Smythe and Budd Porter of Toronto picked up their fifth doubles crown in six years with a 15-10, 15-11 victory over another Toronto team, Bev Westcott and Bill Purcell.

ALL-MONTREAL FINAL

In an all - Montreal women's singles final the title went to Mrs. Jean Miller by a 6-11, 11-8, 12-10 score over Mrs. Kae Grant.

The two women's singles finalists fell in the doubles final to Marj Shedd and Joan Hennessy of Toronto, previously three-time winners. The eastern sweep was completed when Miss Shedd and Purcell beat Mrs. Joyce MacDonald of Victoria and Bert Fergus of Vancouver 11-15, 15-10, 15-2 in the mixed doubles final.

The junior play, which finished Friday night, turned up three promising youngsters for men's play. Ed Hreljac, 18, of Creighton Mines, Ont., won the final with a display of lithe footwork and a variety of shots. Two opponents he eliminated also looked good—John MacDougall, 17, of Saint John, N.B., and 15-year-old Lane Bickle of Calgary.

Russ Not Ready For Top Hockey Says Patrick

OSLO, Norway (AP) — Lynn Patrick, manager of Boston Bruins, said Saturday night he would like to sign four members of Russia's hockey team to National Hockey League contracts.

"Defenceman Nikolai Sologubov and Ivan Tregubov and forwards Veniamin Alexandrov and Yuri Kopylov are the Russians who have impresstd me the most," Patrick said.

"I would like to take those four Rusians back with me — but that's just a dream," Parick said. "I've seen lots of other good players but I don't think any of them are ready for major league hockey in the states."

Teepees Whip Marlboros 2-1; Petes Edge Cubs

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Sharpshooting Johnny McKenzie, scoring champion in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series, scored his 50th goal of the season Sunday and took St. Catharines Teepees another step in their bid for the loop's two top honors.

Teepees finished first in the standings. Sunday's 2-1 victory over Toronto Marlboros gave them a 2-0 edge in their best-of-seven semi-final.

In the league's quarter-finals, Peterborough Petes edged Hamilton Cubs 3-2 Sunday to cut Cubs' lead in the best-of-five series to 2-1. Saturday, Toronto St. Michael's took a 2-1 lead in their series, walloping Barrie Flyers 12-3.

McKenzie's goal No. 50 came at 9.35 of the second period after Matt Ravlich had taken advantage of a slow-covering Marlboro defence to give St. Catharines a first-period lead. Jack McMaster spoiled goaltender Dennis Dejordy's shutout bid, notching Marlboro's lone goal at 18.46 of the third.

LAST-MINUTE GOAL

A goal by Irving Spencer with the clock registering 19.42 of the third period gave Peterborough victory.

Cubs took a 1-0 first-period lead with a goal by Lloyd Haddon. Peterborough went ahead in the second through Guy Black and Tom Thurlby, but Cubs' Jerry Sullivan evened the score.

Henry Marczak and Gino Ubriaco each laid on a three - goal performance for St. Mike's against Barrie. The Majors led 3-0 after the first period, 8-2 after the second.

Lou Angotti, Bob McKnight, Dave Keon, Jack Costello, Jim Sonoski and Tom Micallef counted singles for St. Mike's. Bernie Cote, Murray Davison and Billy Forhan tallied for Flyers, who took 13 of the 20 penalties handed out.

Marlboros are at St. Catharines Saturday. St. Mike's are at Barrie Wednesday and Hamilton at Peterborough tonight.

Cardinal Pitchers Hog-Tie Yankees Famed Plate Power

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Are he New York Yankees turning into a bunch of hitless wonders?

The Yanks wound up their 1957 business by going 11 scoreless innings against Milwauoee Braves in the final two games of the world series.

They opened their exhibition season Saturday by being shut out by the St. Louis Cardinals. Sunday, they finally scored a run but it wasn't enough and the Cards won the ball game at St. Petersburg, Fla., 2-1.

Yank manager Casey Stengel is on record as saying, among other things, that more power is needed in his lineup.

Stengel can take a measure of solace in the performance of 19-year - old Deron Johnson who could wind up making a serious pitch for a regular job. The lad was with Binghamton of the Eastern League last year, and was held over from Stengel's rookie school.

The Yanks managed to collect only seven hits and two were long doubles by Johnson. The Cards also produced a slick-looking rookie in Jim Frey, who is getting ready to pull some mile-.336 at Tulsa last year.

Frey not only snatched a bid for extra bases from Elston Howard in the fifth with a fine catch, but also scored the winning run after leading off with a double in the ninth.

Milwaukee Braves also may be getting ready to pull sooe mileage out of bonus baby Johnny Demerit, whom they signed when he was graduated from college last year.

Demierit got in only 33 games and hit a paltry .147 for his summer's lodging. But Sunday he bashed in ttree runs to lead the Braves to a 4-3 victory over Detroit Tigers.

In other games, Cincinnati Redlegs defeated the Chicago White Sox, 5-4, San Francisco Giants whipped Cleveland Indians, 5-1; Cticago Cubs licked Baltimore Orioles, 5-4, and Los Angeles Dodgers edged Philadelphia Phillies, 5-4.

Anita Ekberg Given Pelting By Local Stripper

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Curvaceous Anita Ekberg was pelted with tomatoes Saturday night by a local stripper who jumped up from the front rows of a theatre where Miss Ekberg was appearing with comedian Bob Hope.

Amid an audience uproar, Evelyn (Treasure Chest) West, 30, was led to police station and booked on disorderly conduct and investigation of assault and battery.

Just as Miss Ekberg told Hope, in a stage sketch, "I'm just an ordinary girl," Miss West yelled, "You sure are," and let fly with two tomatoes she produced from her handbag. They hit Anita halfway down the front of her black strapless gown.

Pheasants Wear Plastic Shields Over Their Eyes

PRINCE ALBERT, Sask. (CP) — Pheasants being kept under a breeding program here wear glasses — red-tinted plastic shields on a three-inch aluminum frame, fastened to the beak by a link through the nostrils. The idea is to reduce cannibalism.

"We used to clip their beaks," said one of the inmates of the Saskatchewan penitentiary who maintain the flock of birds belonging to the Saskatchewan fish and game league.

A pecked pheasant, if bleeding, would be torn to pieces by the others, he said. "And they even eat the feathers."

"The birds are very sensitive," this keeper said, "and will die with a few feathers gone. The shields are the only things to stop them."

The shields are put on the birds when about eight weeks old. Last year the project turned 120 hen pheasants loose, and possibly 300 will be released this spring — with the "spectacles" removed. The penitentiary project hatched 1,000 chicks last year, and the goal this year is 10,000 chicks. They are distributed to farmers, youth clubs and others interested in raising them.

Warden T. W. Hall said the project is undertaken by the game league, and the idea is encouraged by his department because it provides inmates with a useful occupation in addition to normal work.

Two Escape Injury

PETERBOROUGH (CP)—Two men escaped injury Sunday when their single-engined Auster Mark 6 airplane flipped over onto its roof when landing at the Skyway airport, three miles north of here.

Toots Holway Jrs. Mark Reunion With Hockey 'Battle', Get-Together

It doesn't seem like anywhere from twelve years that "Toots" Holway's Belleville juniors, Bears or any other name, were cavorting on Memorial Arena ice.

Most of them have other worries such as wives, kiddies, and the usual problematical tidbits, but they took time out Sunday to relive and rehash the roaring days of between 1941 and 1946.

They held their seventh annual re-union at Memorial Arena and the Queen's Hotel. They gallivanted on the ice for an hour showing flashes of the form of their voteless days. Some were in fair shape, others not so good, with "Nobber" Day tops, since he is still actively engaged in the sport.

But most of them turned out for the hockey fun, and the reminiscent get-to-gether afterwards.

Coach "Toots" was on hand, a bit wobbly on unaccustomed skates, but still able to tell his former proteges what to do. From the "front office" of the old days were Tom Flurey, and Jack Doran.

Don Lee, ex-referee, while unable to get beyond ten feet from the boards managed to wheeze a couple of blasts on his whistle, one to start, the other to stop the game.

A slight accident marred the ice calisthenics. With a few seconds to go "Huck" Reeves tried to stop a flying puck with his teeth, and broke one molar while loosening two.

Most of the old crew of former youngsters were on hand including, Reeves, Bill Greatrix, Allan Meagher, Bruce Bishop, Jackie and Harry Wardhaugh. The one and only "Nobber", Maurice Rollins, Don Barrett, Doug and Bobby Green, Porky Yorke, Johnny Semark, Gerry Moher, Bill Holway. Claude Carr, a more recent edition, held down the fort between one set of goal posts.

Tales of the old days flew thick and fast when the ex-juniors got together for reminiscenses and refreshments in the hotel. Many incidents of former glory were recalled losing nothing in the re-telling.

In more serious vein the boys generously dug into their wallets and donated the sum of $17.90 to the Ab Wright Fund.

Doug Green who arranged the game and get-to-gether is to be complimented on the success of another reunion of "Holway's Hellcats" who carried the junior hockey banner here from 12 to 18 years ago.

Hershey Bears Again Lead American League

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Hershey Bears, refusing to crack under pressure, are back atop the American Hockey League standings today after sharing the lead with Cleveland Barons.

Hershey turned in two weekend victories — a 6-3 decision over Buffalo Bisons Sunday night and 2-1 win over Providence Reds Saturday — while Cleveland managed only an even break in two games.

The Barons edged Springfield Indians 4-3 in overtime Saturday but bowed 1-0 to Providence Sunday night, losing all-star goalie Johnny Bower in the process.

Centre Willie Marshall, the AHL's leading scorer, garnered two goals and a couple of assists Sunday as Cleveland downed Buffalo, eliminating the last-place Bisons from playoff contention. Dunc Fisher, Len Haley, Bob Solinger and Ed Panagabko got the other Cleveland tallies and Dick Gamble, Larry Wilson and Lou Jankowski scored for Buffalo.

Austrian Wins Kandahar Race

Austria's brilliant 19-year-old Karl

ST. ANTON, Austria (AP) — Schranz darted through the slalom gates of the famed Kandahar ski race Sunday to win in two minutes, 7.7 seconds.

He won the Kandahar combined title with a perfect score, as he had taken the downhill race Saturday. Only the combined counts for the Kandahar title, which Schranz won at Chamonix, France last year.

Austria made a clean sweep of the Kandahar titles, as Putzi Frandl won the women's crown Saturday.

Ottawa's Anne Heggtveit was sixth in the women's combined competition. She tied for seventh in the slalom with Sally Deaver of the U.S. and was sixth in the downhill.

Little Benny's Notebook

This morning pop was drinking his 2nd cup of coffee slow to make it last longer on account of ma thinking 2 is all that's good for him, and she said, I had a spirited discussion with Maud Hews over the meening of a werd. It might of ended in strained relations if I hadn't realized that I would be foolish to let ignorance pull me down to its own level. In other werds I was quite sattisfied in the moral nollege that I was right, she said.

What was the werd? pop said, and ma said, It was protocol. Maud insisted and persisted that protocol is the name of one of the new so-called miracle drugs that cure practically everything even if they leeve you with an incurable allergy. I couldn't talk her out of it, ma said.

Just what did you try to talk her into? pop said, and ma said, Why, the correct definition of protocol, naturelly. Everybody that follows the martch of science knows that the protocol is one of the layers of space that protect the erth from the other planets. It's either higher or lower than the stratosphere, it doesn't mutch matter, she said.

It doesn't matter in the leest, my dear, pop said. Protocol is the werd that stands for social procedure in high functions, he said, and ma said, Good, then I w a s right, because what function could be higher than exploring the air half way to the moon?

Only one function, my dear, the function of preserving t h i s women's werld from the logic of interfeering men, pop said.

And he folded his paper and kissed her goodbye and left f o r his office.

NATURAL GAS SERVICE

CORNWALL (AP) — Natural gas arrived here Thursday for the first time in the city's history. Mayor L. G. Lavigne lit a symbolic flame also taking part in the ceremonies were officials of Lakeland Natural Gas Company Limited, civic, government and industrial officials.

WHIP RUSSIA

It was the first time in seven matches the Canadians had been behind and for a few minutes the experience appeared to unnerve them. Three more penalties to centre Connie Broden, right winger Jack McKenzie and defenceman Jean-Paul Lamirande did nothing to help matters.

The Canadians killed off the penalties, but not with their accustomed ease. The Russians appeared able to outskate them at will and won more than their share of the corner scrimmages for the puck.

Gradually Whitby recovered composure and began claiming a territorial edge in play. But they ran into solid defensive work and some near-miraculous sleight-of-hand by goalie Nikolai Puchkov.

CASHES REBOUND

It was late in the second period before they tied the score as Attersley cashed a rebound for the first of his two goals, with Russian winger Nikolai Khlystov off for tripping.

But the Russians weren't through, even when Whitby took the lead on Broden's flashing 30-footer halfway through the third period. Two minutes later, little Konstantin Loktev whipped the puck past Edwards in a goal-mouth scramble and the tension was on again.

Then, suddenly, the Russians cracked. Lamirande's shot from the blue line found Attersley waiting at the edge of the crease to flick it past Puchkov. Seconds later Gagnon took a perfect pass from Attersley and beat the Soviet goalkeeper easily.

It was Gagnon's goal that broke the spell and the 30-year-old veteran of five years' professional hockey greeted it like a junior. He banged his stick on the ice repeatedly and capered all over the rink, pounding the back of every teammate within reach.

His performance was repeated en masse by the whole team when the final buzzer sounded.

The Soviet players, dutifully lining up on the blueline to await the playing of "O Canada" and the raising of the Canadian Ensign in token of victory, finally gave up and skated over to join the melee of handshaking.

It took the officials more than 10 minutes to calm down the victors enough to proceed with the closing ceremony.

The Whitby boys were too busy chairing Edwards and whooping and cheering. When they finally took their places they sang a rousing accompaniment to the national anthem.

Captain Harry Sinden accepted Canada's gold medal grinning widely and teetering precariously on his skates. He didn't bother to take them off as he leaped joyfully to the dias.

Russia took the silver medal for second place and Sweden the bronze for third.

WIN THEIR FIRST

Before the thrill-packed finale, Norway defeated Poland 8-3 for its first win, the U.S. outplayed Finland 4-2 and Sweden crushed Czechoslovakia 7-1.

It was Burns who helped kill Canada's four first-period penalties, a performance that Blair credited with enabling Whitby to come from behind for its victory.

The 21-year-old cenre was with Whitby last year and helped win the Allan Cup. He tried out with Toronto Maple Leafs of the International Baseball League as a catcher in 1957. And was with Toronto Marlboros Junior A hockey team in 1953.

On top was Broden, the 27-year-old sharpshooter from Montreal who played for the National League Canadiens there in all their 1957 Stanley Cup playoff games. He fired 11 of Canada's 82 goals and also picked up seven assists.

McKenzie, the school teacher from Preston, was close behind with 12 goals and five assists.

Attersley, who led Whitby's devastating exhibition tour across Europe, was third with 10 goals and seven assists.

Russia's Alexandrov was fourth in the over-all individual standings with nine goals and seven assists.

There were some trying moments for the Canadians as they played in near-freezing temperatures.

Sinden hit the post during the first period and McKenzie claimed the puck went over the line. Swedish referees Gosta Ahlin and Olle Wiking disagreed.

Blair said the refereeing in the first period was bad and the Canadians hadn't settled down because of the intense pressure.

"But then Kurt Hauser of Switzerland, one of Europe's top referees, spoke to them. After that the referees let the teams play hockey."

The Russian team was substantially the same as the one that toured Ontario and Quebec last November and December. At that time Whitby defeated the Russians 7-2. Puchkov and Tregubov also were members of the 1956 world team that beat Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen for the 1956 title.

The International Ice Hockey Federation voted this year's "fair play cup" to Czechoslovakia. The Czechs had 34 minutes in penalty time against them — the smallest total among the eight teams. The Canadians had the most — 68.

With the celebrating over, the hockey players moved out of the Norwegian capital today. The Canadians flew to Switzerland for two exhibition games there. Later they will play once in Paris and three times in the United Kingdom before sailing from Liverpool for St. John, N.B., where they are due March 27.

Broden scored four goals as Canada crushed the injured-wracked United States 12-1 Saturday. The Russians tripped the Swedes 4-8 on a disputed third-period goal to set the stage for Sunday's final.

YOUR NEWSPAPER SERVES

The story behind the headlines and the copy in a newspaper is spelled S-E-R-V-I-C-E! This newspaper, and every other paper in the country is a "public service" — it is informative, educational, humanitarian and civic-minded. Dad turns first to the news and editorials; Mom likes fashion stories and recipes; the kids like the comics.

There's something for everybody in every phase of everyday life! Fundamentally, your newspaper serves you with information — whether in the news columns, or in the ads! Truly your paper is a "service centre" . . . the meeting place and the marketplace of the community.

Tweed

TWEED — We have been notified of an error in the Tweed news column in March 7 issue where it stated Miss Eva Blackburn was employed for Mrs. Mae Snare of Spring Street. It should have read Miss Eva Blackburn is operating in the shop of Mrs. Snare under her own supervision. Mrs. Snare is still operating in the shop at the same location as well; both under their own management, and both as hairdressers. The apologies of this correspondent are extended.

There was a good attendance at the last meeting of St. James' W.A. which was held at the home of Mrs. J. J. Luffman, of Victoria Street. Several matters of interest were discussed. The study book on Japan was continued with the second chapter being taken by Mrs. Ormond Rice. Closing petitions by Mrs. George Owens brought the meeting to a close.

Mr. and Mrs. Stan Trudeau motored to Toronto on Saturday to see their son, Lynn, who is critically ill in St. Michael's Hospital.

The Town and Country Beauty Salon has taken on the "new look" for spring with an entire new decorating job in the pleasant hues of soft grey and delicate pink.

The sympathy of the community is extended to Mrs. Dennis Fleming in the recent passing of her half-brother, James Mulrooney, who died at her home on March 3. He was buried March 6 from the Cassidy Funeral Home to St. Edmund's R. C. Church at Stoco. The bearers were Messers. Hubert Johnston, Leo Fleming, John Cassidy, Jack Murphy, Fred Healey and Gerald Johnston.

The dancing lessons at the Bol-O-Way are terminated for this season because of decreasing interest, the instructress informed.

Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Huffman of Cloyne visited Mrs. Ethel McCullough, the former's sister, in Belleville, on Sunday, and called on Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Spencer, in Tweed, on their return trip to their home.

CCF House Leader Asks Inquiry Into N.O. Pipeline Deal

Says Former Mines Minister Got 'Share'

TORONTO (CP) — CCF Leader MacDonald of Ontario has called for a judicial inquiry into his allegations that a former cabinet minister shared in "profiteering" in a Northern Ontario pipeline deal.

Mr. MacDonald drew a storm of protest from government benches in the legislature Monday as he said "a former mines minister" and municipal officials in the Lakehead area received valuable gas company stocks at cut-rate prices.

Premier Frost described the CCF leader as "a master of insinuation and innuendo" and said he obviously was referring to former mines minister Philip T. Kelly, who resigned last August.

The premier emphasized he had instructed his cabinet a year ago not to invest in any gas companies. He was sure none had.

"This government doesn't deal in bribes," said the premier.

ASKS SUBSTANTIATE

Attorney - General Roberts repeatedly demanded that Mr. MacDonald either substantiate his charges or withdraw them.

"It is the duty of a member of this House to make a specific charge instead of resorting to innuendo," he said.

Countered Mr. MacDonald: "Let him wave his finger at me all he wants, I am challenging the government to let a judicial inquiry learn the facts."

An inquiry was needed to determine "how many members of this government were involved."

The CCF leader said he was referring to "behind-the - scenes financial deals" which made Twin City Gas Company a subsidiary of Northern Ontario Natural Gas after communities in the Lakehead area "gave the franchise to Twin City because it offered itself as an independent company."

No protests were made by municipalities concerned — from Dryden through the Lakehead to Nipigon and Geraldton—because "those who might have made the protests got in on the bonanza."

Questioned about Mayor Hubert Badanai of FFort William, Mr. MacDonald said he was not including him in his accusation.

The deal between the two gas companies, the CCF leader said, had resulted in profits of $16,000,000 to promoters although the total investment had been about $20,000,000.

Burglars Took No Notice of Sign Displayed

Burglars disregarded the sign Sunday night, left the cash untouched and hauled away the safe. The company declined to specify the amount of cash in the cabinet.

Decision Will Be Given by Justice Locke

OTTAWA (CP) — Decision may be issued next week on whether the railways will be allowed to appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada against the size of the latest general freight rate increase.

Mr. Justice C. H. Locke told disputants in the case Monday that he hopes to deal with it early in the week.

The proposed appeal is being fought by eight provincial governments—all except Ontario and Quebec—which argued before Mr. Justice Locke in a one-day hearing that the railways have no case to take to the Supreme Court.

The board of transport commissioners in December awarded the carriers an increase of 3.6 per cent, worth about $15,000,000 a year. The railways had been asking 10 per cent.

In an appeal separate from that of the railways, the provinces contended before the federal cabinet that no increase should have been granted, and the cabinet has suspended the hoist until May 1 pending hearing of this appeal.

Rebels Waiting For Landings on Sumatra Coast

BUKITTINGGI, Sumatra (AP) Indonesian rebel troops waited today in camouflaged positions along Sumatra's west coast to meet an expected landing of central government troops near Padang.

Rebel government leaders said the Jakarta government would probably follow up Monday's minor naval and air swipes at Padang with landings 35 miles on either side of the Indian Ocean port 50 miles from Bukittinggi, the rebel mountain capital.

Another 4,000 central government troops were reported ready to join in with a landing at the nearby oil port of Domai.

ISLANDS CAPTURED

In Jakarta, the central government announced capture of the east coast islands of Bengkalia and Tebingtinggi and of Pakning, the American oil terminal facing them near the mouth of the Siak River. The government claimed they were taken without a fight and that army and police personnel there pledged their allegiance to the Jakarta regime.

NIXON SAYS HE PREFERS TAX CUT TO PUBLIC WORKS

Is Seen as Answer To Democrats' Pleas

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower apparently is poised to propose a down-the-line tax cut if the United States economy fails to respond soon to other stimulants.

Vice-President Nixon obviously supplied the administration's answer to Democratic demands for a huge increase in public works when he told reporters Monday he would prefer a "substantial" tax cut to any "massive" spending program.

While Nixon left up in the air the timing of a possible across-the-board reduction in individual, business and excise levies, Republican congressional leaders expected to learn more details at a White House conference with Eisenhower later today.

MORE JOBLESS SEEN

About that time, the government was expected to announce new employment figures, with total U.S. unemployment of 5,100,000 or more in February, about 600,000 more than in January.

Nearly 1,000 AFLF-CIO leaders, assembled here for a special conference, called for action to relieve the situation.

In a prepared address, AFL-CIO President George Meany estimated the February unemployment total at 5,250,000. He said 3,000,000 other Americans are working only part time, and called this the equivasent of another 1,300,000 unemployed.

He said that both the Republican administration and the Democratic controlled congress have waited too long to act.

QUICK TAX CUTS

Calling for fast action to avoid economic chaos, he demanded a quick tax cut, increased jobless benefits, more defence spending, and more money for such public works construction as schools, roads, hospitals and airports.

Nixon said he still believes the economy will respond to a speed-up in spending on public works for which Congress already has provided funds, as Eisenhower outlined in a statement Saturday.

But he said that if employment, retail sales, steel production and other indices fail to show an upturn in the next few weeks "the next big step' ought to be a tax cut that would spur consumer purchasing power and put more money in the hands of corporations and investors to stimulate job-producing projects.

Dr. Gabriel Hauge, President Eisenhower's economic adviser, also endorsed the idea for a tax cut if it is needed.

Woman Dead Only Few Hours Before Found

ELLIOT LAKE, Ont. (CP) — Mrs. Alice McFadden, 37, may have been dead only a few hours when her body was found in a bushland gravel pit, police said Monday.

An autopsy performed Saturday showed the former Timmins woman died a short time before her snow-covered body was found Friday by a seven-year-old girl playing in the pit. The girl saw a hand protruding from the snow.

Police said the woman, missing February 26, was badly beaten on the face and may have been strangled. The autopsy indicated death was due to asphyxiation caused either by throtling or a blood clot from the head wounds.

The lack of snowfall during the previous week led earlier to a belief she had lain in the gravel pit for some time. Monday's police report of the autopsy indicated she may have been buried by someone.

Snow Blankets Western Europe

LONDON (Reuters) — Snow fell as far south as Naples Monday in a cold wave that pinched western Europe.

Traffic and communications were snarled in the snow blanket, which spread from Scotland to Yugoslavia. Nineteen passengers were injured Monday night when two double-decker buses collided at Eston, England, on an icy road.

The fall in the Naples area left an eight-inch snowcap on Mount Vesuvius. Near Rome, there was a fall of six inches in the Alban Hills. The snow covered the hills on the Italian Riviera and put a mantle over flowering fruit trees on the French Riviera.

Heavy snowfalls covered Scotland and northern and southwest England, with many villages isolated. In Cornwall, on the southwest coast, drifts blocked roads ad the English Channel island of Jersey, known for its winter sunshine, had a freak blizzard.

Broken Water Main Washes Family Out of Quebec Home Onto Street

QUEBEC (CP)—A torrent of water, snow, earth and rocks smashed down upon a two-storey house today and flooded a street in suburban Sillery with four feet of water.

The deluge was ripped loose from a 100-foot cliff overhanging the house of Joseph Laliberte when Sillery's central water main, at the top of the cliff, burst. A bank of snow, accumulated during recent heavy snowfalls, was torn from the cliff along with chunks of earth and rocks.

Mrs. Laliberte and her children, Louise, 6, and Jean, 3, were carried out into the street with the rushing water. They were not seriously hurt. Mr. Laliberte was not home at the time.

Four cars parked nearby were carried down the street by the flood.

The back wall of Mr. Laliberte's house tottered as the deluge crashed down over the roof. The windows were smashed. Slushy snow covered the floors. No estimate of damages has been made.

BABY THRIVES WITHOUT MOTHER

Brookfield zoo caretaker Glen Bushar takes over the job of bottle feeding Zipper, a 3½-month-old kangaroo, who was evicted by his mother from her parental pouch. Since the eviction, Zipper had been thriving on his formula of goat's milk and pablum feed every three hours. According to zoo director Robert Bean, Zipper has already grown two inches.

Political Leaders Weave Into Campaign Theme of Freedom

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

From opposite ends of the country, opposing political leaders have woven into the campaign for the March 31 federal election a harmonious theme of freedom.

But Prime Minister Diefenbaker and Liberal Leader Lester B Pearson also worked hard Monday at spinning allure for voters on other issues. The prime minister toiled in British Columbia while the Liberal leader plied Newfoundland.

From Manitoba, meantime, Social Credit Leader Solon Low raised a charge that the Progressive Conservatives started anti-American propaganda that has "created a bad climate of relationship between our two countries."

In neighboring Saskatchewan, CCF Leader M. J. Coldwell said the Conservative government has sabotaged the publicly - owned Trans-Canada Air Lines.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker whistle-stopped by train through the Okanagan Valley in B.C. with a main stop at Kelowna where he discussed freedom briefly with some 750 students in a high school gymnasium.

"We haven't given you the best Canada that could be made," he said. "But we have given you the right to live in freedom."

Freedom was the right to be wrong, not the right to do wrong. He urged the youthful audience to hold to the right of every Canadian to carry out his own ambition.

Mr. Pearson, arriving at St. John's after crossing the province by train with many pauses along the way to meet those gathered at the stations, spoke to a service club luncheon in the Newfoundland capital.

The former external affairs minister predicted that eventually the people behind the Iron Curtain will begin a revolution towards freedom.

Russia was trying to destroy the germs of freedom. The West should seize the diplomatic initiative and work to negotiate an easing of tensions so that the enslaved might find it easier to get free.

Anglo-American Conciliators Carry French Plan to Tunis

TUNIS (Reuters)—Two Anglo-American "good offices" envoys arrived here today from Paris to continue talks to settle the Franco-Tunisian dispute. They were said to be hearing a concrete French proposal to end the bitter quarrel.

Conciliators Robert Murphy of the United States and Harold Beeley of Britain Monday received the French proposals at a conference in Paris with Premier Felix Gaillard and other high officials.

After the talks, which lasted almost two hours, an official of the premier's office assured reporters that Murphy and Beeley "are not going to Tunis with empty hands."

Official government spokesmen maintained complete silence on the plan, designed to renew contacts broken off Feb. 8 after the French bombed a Tunisian village in a raid aimed at wiping out an Algerian nationalist rebel unit.

The raid produced an angry Tunisian demand for withdrawal of all French forces, whose movements now are closely restricted by a Tunisian blockade.

REPORT ON TERMS

Unofficial reports have said the French settlement terms include:

1. Concentration of all French troops at the Mediterranean naval base of Bizerte in Tunisia.
2. Partial or token evacuation of some of these troops.
3. Neutral control of Tunisian airfields to ensure that they are not used by Algerian rebels for attacks on the French Army in Algeria.
4. Possible control by neutral frontier.
5. Withdrawal of discriminatory measures against French citizens living in Tunisia.

ASK END BLOCKADE

These reports also said Tunisia will be asked to end the blockade of the big French naval establishment at Bizerte. The blockade was imposed after the French attacked the Tunisian village.

The official attached to Gaillard's office emphasized that the problem in Algeria, where France has been fighting a nationalist insurrection for 3½ years, must remain excluded from any Franco-Tunisian settlement.

Earlier Monday the cabinet approved Gaillard's proposals for a western Mediterranean defence pact and a Franco-North African economic community for joint exploitation of the oil-rich Sahara Desert.

Gaillard's pact plan, sketchily outlined by the premier to the National Assembly Friday, is believed here to be likely to facilitate the discussions between the Anglo-American envoys and Tunisian authorities.

The defence pact would link France, Algeria, Tunisia, Morocco and Libya in a western Mediterranean alliance backed by the United States and Britain. But Algeria would—as the French have maintained all along—remain an integral part of France.

Saud Orders Dinner Service For 6,000

NEWCASTLE, England (Reuters) — Fried ants, silkworms, bees, grasshoppers and roasted caterpillars were served to guests attending a cocktail party Monday.

The host firm was showing pieces from a $117,600 dinner service for 6,000 persons ordered by King Saud of Saudi Arabia. The entomological tidbits were examples of Middle Eastern fare.

RESCUE BOY ON RAFT

HAMILTON (CP—A 15-year-old boy was plucked from a raft in Hamilton harbor Saturday by police using an ice-water skoot. Harbor police used the skoot, a flat-bottom boat equipped with an aircraft engine and propeller, to travel across ice and open water to reach Eric Tschieschewski.

PAKISTAN ROCKS SEATO MEETING DEMANDING AID

Requests More Help To Offset Red Offer

MANILA (AP) — Pakistan rocked the opening session of the SEATO foreign ministers' conference today with a sharp demand for more economic aid to counter tantalizing Communist offers.

State Secretary Dulles announced that the United States has set aside two million dollars to train skilled technicians in the SEATO area. Australia's foreign minister, R. G. Casey, offered £1,000,000 Australian ($2,236,000) in aid for the alliance's three Asian members.

Bids for more aid to Asia were also made by France and the Philippines, but proposals for any major expansion of present programs faced a cool U.S. reception, with Dulles reported feeling that this isn't the time to expand the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization.

INFORMATION EXCHANGE

Dulles also introduced a resolution—quickly approved by the members — providing for exchange of information among SEATO, NATO and the Baghdad Pact. Such an exchange is a pet project of the Philippines, which has been urging a link of the three anti-Communist alliances.

Foreign Minister Felixberto Serrano of the Philippines, chairman of the conference, also proposed that SEATO members (1) explore specific economic projects that could be developed multi-laterally by member states and (2) investigate the feasibility of a meeting of SEATO finance ministers to develop greater economic collaboration.

The aid demands took the spotlight from other issues being talked over by the ministers from the U.S., Britain, France, Australia, New Zealand, Thailand, Pakistan and the Philippines.

TALKS ABOUT SUMMIT

These include private talks on the Kremlin call for a summit conference, and the crisis in Indonesia, where rival governments are engaged in civil war.

At the opening session Dulles warned that stepped-up Red propaganda blasts against SEATO in the last few days indicates "there may be new aggressive Communist plans for this area." He said the Communist word attacks on the alliance were seven times as heavy as those that preceded the meeting last yar.

The ministers will meet in closed sessions until Thursday morning, then wind up with an open meeting. Dulles then will go on to Formosa for a meeting with U.S. diplomats in Southeast Asia and talks with Nationalist China's President Chiang Kai-Shek.

Garment Workers Settle Strike

NEW YORK (AP)—Negotiators for dress manufacturers and 105,000 striking garment workers reached agreement today on a new three-year contract.

Subject to ratification by both sides, the pact restores peace to the industry — New York city's largest — after the first major walkout in 25 years. The strike started last Wednesday in seven eastern states.

David Dubinsky, president of the International Ladies Garment Workers Union, said no one would return to work before Wednesday morning, and that picketing would continue until the union received word of employer ratification, expected tonight.

Apt. Tenants Flee In Panic, 2 Suffer Injuries

Three-Alarm Toronto Fire Soon Controlled

Firemen said the three-alarm blaze was confined to two suites and was quickly brought under control.

Deputy Chief C. Rigby of the North York fire department estimated damage at about $10,000.

He said several persons were rescued from the four - storey building by firemen using ladders. Smoke was "heavy but we got them all out—nobody was seriously injured."

Police said more than 100 persons live in the apartment building.

Firemen said they believed the fire started in a basement apartment.

Mrs. Margaret Patterson, who escaped by a fire ladder, said: "It seemed there were people at every window crying for help."

Many tenants were in night clothes. They were brought out with overcoats over them.

Asks CCF Leader To Make Charge In Public

TORONTO (CP) — Philip Kelly, former Ontario mines minister, has challenged Ontario CCF leader Donald C. MacDonald to give up the protection of the legislature and make a public charge of corruption in Northern Ontario pipeline deals.

"If he does, he'll face an immediate libel suit," Mr. Kelly said in a telephone interview from his home in Smooth Rock Falls Monday night.

Mr. MacDonald said in the legislature Monday that it is an "open secret" around Queen's Park that a former cabinet minister shared in "profiteering" in Northern Ontario pipeline deals.

Premier Frost said Mr. MacDonald was obviously referring to Mr. Kelly, who resigned last July, and denied his ministers had invested in any gas company.

NO GAS INTERESTS

Mr. Kelly said he has "no shares in either Twin City Gas Company or Northern Ontario Natural Gas (gas distributing companies) and I have never

Kidnapping, Rape Charges Laid Against Youths

TORONTO (CP) — Police filed kidnapping and rape charges against two men Monday as the sequel to the abduction of a 16-year-old girl who said she was criminally assaulted on a lonely road.

Alvin Hibbitt, 22, was charged with kidnapping. ohn Ward, 23, was charged of rape. Both are from Whitby.

Police said two girls were returning from a dance when they were attacked by three men. One girl fled but the other said she was forced into a car and driven to the isolated road where she said the attack took place.

Gold-Plated Garbage Cans Way To Make Gold Mining Pay Again

TORONTO (CP) — The gold industry—caught in the squeeze of a fixed price and high costs—has been given two pieces of advice by Franc R. Joubin, Canadian geologist famed for his part in the discovery of uranium in Northern Ontario.

To prospectors, he says: "Go out and find it."

He gave the advice Monday in an address to the Prospectors and Developers Association.

In his advice to producers, Mr. Joubin opened up a wide new world of possible uses for the precious metal. He said: ". . . Let's make gold useful."

The problem of developing uses and markets had applied to every metal-with nickel, aluminum, titanium and magnesium relatively recent examples. Nickel, for instance, was long regarded simply as an impurity of copper until research had found uses for it.

"When we look at gold, however," said Mr. Joubin, "we see a strange anomaly. It has been available, in highly purified form, for several thousand years, and yet has scarcely been elevated above its first use as barbaric ornaments and coinage.

Girl Has Right To Exercise Her Defence

"I work hard six days a week," she told the judge Monday. "I think a girl has a right to relaxation and exercise on her day off. That's all I was doing."

Licensing of All Boats Suggested By Policeman

OTTAWA (CP) — An Ontario Provincial Police sergeant today told a national conference on boating regulations that even outboard-powered canoes should be required to have a licence.

Sgt. Everett Hicks of Bracebridge, Ont., said all boats should be licensed to allow for easy identification in case of accident or if a boat is stolen.

Newly-drafted federal vessel regulations being studied here by experts from across Canada call only for the licensing of boats of 10 horsepower or more.

Boating manufacturers, heads of fish and game associations, provincial and federal experts and members of the OPP and the RCMP are meeting here for two days to help draft regulations controlling the operation of small pleasure craft in Canada. The meeting was called by the federal transport department.

Cheese, Butter Production Up

TORONTO (CP) — Production of creamery butter and cheddar cheese in Ontario increased in January compared with January, 1957, the department of agriculture said Monday in its monthly report.

Buter production increased 34.4 per cent with production at 4,487,000 pounds. Cheddar cheese increased 17 per cent with production at 1,542,100 pounds.

The wholesale price of butter in Toronto Feb. 1 was 63 cents a pound compared with 58.5 cents in January, 1957. Cheddar cheese exchange quotations declined slightly to 33.5 cents a pound in January from 34 cents in January, 1957.

An increase in volume was reported by processing plants and commercial dairies with prices paid for for fluid milk at $4.96 a hundredweight compared with $4.78 in December, 1957.

HAVOC IN THEATRES

MELBOURNE, Australia (Reuters)—Police were called to quell brawling teenagers early today at nine suburban Melbourne movie houses screening midnight horror films. Police said that at one theatre mobs wrecked doors and toilets, broke all windows, turned on fire hoses and sprayed patrons with fire extinguishers until the show was stopped.

Rude Awakening For Man When Told of Damages

A Belleville district man who apparently did more than gaze at the wine when it was red had a rude awakening this morning when he was told by the city police desk sergeant that he had been responsible for considerable damage at a local restaurant last night.

Police said that a glass counter top and two glass shelves had been broken when the man picked up the cash register from the counter. Following the incident police were called and the man was taken into custody.

This morning the man could not remember anything about the incident and showed surprise when charges of drunkenness and of having illegal possession of intoxicants were laid against him. And to top matters off he was informed he may be faced with a further charge of damage to restaurant property.

Unemployment Situation Is Levelling Off

A levelling off in the amount of unemployment in Belleville and Hastings county has been noted during the past two weeks with the number of persons seeking work changing but little in that period, it was noted today by Mr. Cecil Hiuser, manager of the National Employment Office here.

MR. CECIL HIUSER

"There appears to be a levelling off in the number of unemployed and this month should show our peak load for claimants," Mr. Hiuser stated.

The number of unemployed in Belleville and area now totals slightly over 3,000, made up of 2,356 males and 701 females. Of this number about 60 per cent are postal claimants, it was stated.

One bright feature of the unemployment situation, according to Mr. Hiuser, is that several local companies are starting to recall workers who had previously been laid off.

In one instance about 30 workers were re-called, while another firm recently took back about 10 workers.

"The total is not great, but at least it is a sign of improvement," it was noted.

Hope to Form Association for Children

Parents of Retarded Children and other persons interested in the forming of an Association for Retarded Children in the Quinte area are requested to attend the pre-organizational meeting to be held in the Public School Board Room at 208 Bridge St., E. at 8 p.m. on Thursday of this week.

This meeting is being held in order to ascertain the number of retarded children in need of educational facilities.

If the need and interest proves sufficient an Association for Retarded Children will be organized in this area.

The primary object of this association would be to establish classes for children of school age by September of this year.

It would give parents and friends the opportunity to meet regularly in order to develop the knowledge and skill necessary to meet the needs of the retarded child.

It would help the citizens of the community to understand the extent of their responsibilities to the retarded.

There are now 44 associations operating classes throughout Ontario each of which resulted from enthusiastic local effort.

QUAKE KILLS TWO

NAHA, Okinawa (AP) — An earthquake rocked the Ryukyu Islands today, killing two Okinawans and injuring another. The quake was felt distinctly for two minutes throughout Okinawa and its surrounding islands. The weather bureau put its forces in Naha at five on a seven-maximum scale.

There are 21 treatment centres in Ontario working in co-operation with the Ontario Society for Crippled Children to provide theraphy treatment of a special nature so very necessary for helping handicapped children. Easter Seal contirbutions are going to make it possible for the maintenance of these centres and for the establishent of new centres so badly needed. The Easter Seal Campaign will continue until Easter Sunday, April 6th, and the provincial objective is $750,000.

Cerebral Palsy Training Centre Helps Many Crippled Children

Until recent years, little more was known about cerebral palsy than in the Middle Ages when its unfortunate victims were regarded as persons possessed by demons. Yet so swift has been progress in the treatment of this affliction that many children today are given a chance to lead more normal lives.

One of the major causes of crippling in children, cerebral palsy is a condition in which brain injury before or during birth causes a failure of muscle control. Yet many children affected by the condition are of normal or above normal intelligence. A few years ago pioneers in treatment of nerve abnormalities discovered that children could be taught to a considerable extent to overcome their affliction by, in effect, training their minds to develop muscular control.

Canada's first cerebral palsy training centre was established by the Ontario Society for Crippled Children late in 1949. The Woodeden Treatment Centre near London has all the newest orthopaedic equipment available and combined with the skill and know-how of trained physiotherapists, occupational therapists, speech therapists and nursery school teachers, provides the most up-to-date treatment known. The courses arranged individually for each child are slow, expensive, and not very dramatic, but they do the work.

Quite often, it will take doctors and nurses months on end to teach a young lad just to relax a certain muscle or to move other muscles at will . . . accomplishments which parents could never achieve at home. Sometimes it takes two or three years just to take a few halting steps unaided, but everyone concerned thinks it's worth it. Each and every day, because the sale of Easter Seals helps to keep Woodeden "open for business" summer and winter, young children whose parents were struck down by their doctor's diagnosis of cerebral palsy, are coming out of a world of fear and ignorance. Not a day goes by but one child does not learn something new — to ride a tricycle, to eat his own breakfast, to say a new word.

Many of the children with speech difficulties at Woodeden are trying desperately to say "Happy Easter" these days so that they might surprise their parents over the Easter vacation. Won't you think of them when you are asked to purchase Easter Seals between March 6th and April 6th? The Ontario Society for Crippled Children needs $750,000 — an all-time high objective — to fight cerebral palsy . . . just one of its dozen different services for the handicapped child.

Nomination Day Next Monday

Official nomination day for candidates in Hastings South who will contest the March 31st election, is on Monday, March 17th. It was noted today by William VanTassel, returning officer for the riding. Mr. Van Tassel noted he would sit at the city hall council chambers from twelve noon until two o'clock to receive nominations.

So far none of the three candidates in the riding has filed his official qualification papers with Mr. VanTassel. They can do so at any time at his office or they may wait until the date of the official nomination.

Candidates so far named to contest the riding are Progressive Conservative Lee Grills; Liberal Dr. D. C. McVicker and C.C.F. Howard Weese.

Mental Health Subject of Talk To Rotary Club

When you are emotionally upset after having just undergone a frightening experience, such as narrowly missing getting involved in an automobile accident, don't reach for that bottle of tranquilizers. Go out and chop a cord of wood, play a few rounds of golf, or work in your garden.

By working off this excess energy generated by mental stimuli for emergency purposes, you will actually be prolonging your life.

This is the advice given members of Belleville Rotary club at their weekly meeting yesterday by Dr. Clayton Moorhouse, superintendent of the Ontario Hospital at Cobourg.

Dr. Moorhouse, speaking on "Mental Health," explained our physical organs respond to emotional disturbances such as fear, and anxiety, to prepare us to meet emergencies.

This self-preservation system was developed by our ancestors who frequently found themselves face to face with bears and other ferocious animals, Dr. Moorhouse said. "Otherwise, this country would be populated by bears instead of by Rotarians," he added.

"This same system works just as well in us today, although we don't need it. Because we have the complete machinery but no use for it, we simply stew in our own juices," he said.

WORK OFF ENERGY

The speaker explained that continual stimulation of this type on bodily organs causes many of our physical ailments, such as skin disorders, high blood pressure, and coronary heart conditions. The only way to control this machinery is to work off the resulting excess energy, he concluded.

Dr. Moorhouse was introduced by Rube Freeman and thanked by Alec Wilson. A token of the club's appreciation was presented by president Joe Demeza.

Prior to the address, three little guests were introduced to club members, by Rotary Crippled Children's Committee chairman, Fred Adsett.

The "three good reasons why people should buy Easter Seals," were: Sharon Ellis, 7; Barbara Black, 9, a grade 3 pupil at Queen Victoria School; and Charlie Minnie, 10, who attends school in Cannifton. The children were accompanied by Miss Helen Coulter district nurse for the Ontario Society for Crippled Children.

To kick off the annual Easter Seal Campaign, the first block of seals was purchased by Rotarian Lee Grills, Progressive Conservative candidate for South Hastings riding in the March 31 election.

The former MP paid tribute to committee chairman Fred Adsett, the Crippled Children's Committee, and the Rotary Club for the fine work they have accomplished.

Boxes of seals and envelopes were distributed to Rotarians by Easter Seal committee chairman Len Gilchrist and members of his committee.

IN MEMORIAM

HART. — In loving memory of a dear husband and father, Joseph Hart, who passed away March 11, 1954.

Gone, dear father, gone forever,
How we miss your smiling face;
But you left us to remember,
None on earth can take your place.
For the weary hours and days of pain
His troubled nights are past;
And in our aching hearts we know,
He has found sweet rest at last.

—Lovingly remembered by wife Louise, sons John, Charlie, Stanley, Harold and families.

WAITE. — In loving memory of our dear son, Earl, who was killed in car accident March 11th, 1957.

We little knew when we awoke that morn
The sorrow that day would bring;
The call was sudden, the shock sever,
To part with one we loved so dear.
It's lonesome here without you, son,
We miss you more each day.
Life just doesn't seem to be the same
Since you were called away.
Our hearts still ache with sadness,
As we shed many a bitter tear;
God only knows how much we miss you,
As this ends our first year.

—Sadly missed and ever remembered by Mom and Dad.

WAITE. — In loving memory of our dear brother, Earl, who was taken so suddenly, March 11th, 1957.

A beautiful memory dearer than gold,
Of a brother whose worth can never be told;
No more to see his smiling face,
Or hear him say hello,
It came a shock we didn't expect,
A hard and bitter blow.
Happy and smiling, always content,
Loved and respected wherever he went;
Always thoughtful, willing and kind,
These are the memories he left behind.

SEELEY. — In loving memory of a dear husband, Wilson Seeley, who passed away March 11th, 1942, also a son, James Seeley, on February 12th, 1950.

'Tis sweet to know we'll meet again,
Where troubles are no more:
And that the ones we loved so well
Have just gone on before.

—Ever remembered by wife and mother, Mrs. W. Seeley.

I would like to express my sincere thanks to all my friends and relatives for the cards, gifts and personal calls while in hospital and since my return home. Special thanks to Mr. and Mrs. Mick Malloy for all their kindness and to all those who remembered me in prayer.

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP)—Prices edged lower in most sections on the stock market today but morning trading was slow and uninteresting.

The 11 a.m. volume of 469,000 shares was a bit heavier than Monday's 426,000 but below the average for many sessions in the last month.

Changes were generally narrow with losses holding a slim majority over gains. Industrials, golds and base metals had losses on index ranging to one-half point.

Powell River, on a few sales, jumped 1½ points to a new high of 35 but other utilities tended to be slightly lower.

Hudson Bay added ¼ at 42¾ among senior base metals. International Nickel lost ¼ at 75¾. Golds were featured by a ¼-point rise to 22¼ by Hollinger and a 25-cent dip to $5.45 by Preston East Dome.

'Portrait of London' Will Complete Kiwanis Travelogues for Season

On Thursday, March 13th., the Kiwanis Club will present the last travelogue in the current 1957-58 "World Travel and Adventure series," featuring Curtis Nagel, a 1956 Oscar winner and his latest film, "Portrait of London."

Not only the largest city in the world, but one of the most fascinating, and Curtis Nagel, with his associate, William Moore, has created a masterpiece in its filming. The film is a unique blend of the Old London, and the new, and it captures the mood that is unlike that of any other city. It is chock full of the life of the Londoners — their parks, their theatres, their work and their homes. Yet the traditions and backgrounds of centuries past is always apparent in the costumes, pageantry and ceremonies in which this unusual city abounds. One of the most beautiful and exciting is the "Trooping of the Color" with Queen Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh. And, of course, there is a good coverage of the famous old buildings and scenes, palaces and gardens. Music recorded on the spot helps to increase the realism of this "Colorlogue," which the team of Nagel and Moore claim to surpass all of their other beautiful travelogues.

Tickets for the sixth annual 1958-59 Travelogue Series will be available at the Collegiate on Thursday evening.

Parents Must Give Children Basic Religious Instruction

Young people today are becoming increasingly more spiritual-minded, and they are acquiring the courage to voice their Christain beliefs,

This is the optimistic viewpoint of Brig. Frank Moulton, national Salvation Army Youth Secretary, who addressed the regional S.A. Youth conference held in the city over the weekend.

"I have absolute faith and confidence in today's youth," he said in an interview yesterday afternoon. He felt that if all youngsters were given good home training, the problem of juvenile delinquency would disappear.

In stressing this fact Brig. Moulton said parents have "a tremendous responsibility of giving their children basic religious instruction".

"The home is a vital institution in combating juvenile delinquency", he said. "The church and the school can help increase the desire to lead a Christian life, but the basis of this desire must be instilled in the home by the parents."

A native of St. John's, Newfoundland, Brig. Moulton has spent 32 years in young people's work. He received his training as a Salvation Army officer in St. John's and was transferred to S.A. national headquarters in Toronto about 25 years ago.

He was a school teacher for nine years prior to becoming a Salvation Army officer. He taught both public and high school, in Newfoundland, and it was this that stimulated his desire to work with young people on a religious level.

"I find working with young people a unique and rewarding experience", he said.

More young people should be encouraged to publicly express their religious convictions, he stated.

"If the bobby-sox crowd can publicly declare their enthusiasm for rock and roll music, why shouldn't Christian youths declare their enthusiasm for a Christian way of life?" he queried.

Brig Moulton suggested communities could and should do more to encourage this attitude by establishing more Christian clubs featuring "fun, fellowship, and faith," — basic needs of young people today.

In an annual appraisal of youth work in this mid-Ontario area the Salvation Army youth leader found an all-time high in Sunday School attendance had been reached during the past year.

"There is increasing evidence that young people today are thinking in terms of life service in the Church Universal, of which the Salvation Army is a militant branch," he stated.

One evidence of this desire to "answer the call" was shown in the fact there was a total evidence of some 1,300 at the three sessions of the Youth Rally held at Quinte Secondary School Sunday, Brig. Moulton stated.

The conference, which dealt with problems pertaining to a Christian life, was one of 22 being held across Canada during March.

Main reasons for this increasing interest in Christianity among the country's youth are the increasing awareness among parents of their children's need for spiritual aid, particularly since World War II and the Korean War, and the stepped-up program of leadership training for Salvation Army officers, he explained.

One of the main problems the Salvation Army has in common with other religions is the problem of assimilating new Canadians "into the fold", he said. Ethnic and language barriers are the main factors, he added.

Brig. Moulton leaves for Western Canada on Wednesday to conduct a youth conference in Regina.

6 Danes Die After Blood Transfusions

COPENHAGEN (Reuters)—The deaths of six patients following blood transfusions in Copenhagen hospitals last week may have been caused by bacteria which can live only in bottled blood, health authorities said Monday. Three men and three women died in a state of shock following transfusions with blood from the municipal hospital blood bank.

A total of nine deaths and seven cases of illness following transfusions in Copenhagen hospitals will be examined by medical investigators, who want to know how the bacteria entered the sterilized blood containers.

Takes to Ditch Trying to Avoid Hitting Child

TRENTON — Charlie Reddom, driver for Parkdale Caterers, of Trenton, was credited yesterday with risking his own life to save that of a five-year-old girl who ran out into the path of the truck he was driving.

Mr. Reddom's truck turned over on its top when he "hit the ditch" in a desperate try to miss the girl. He suffered shock and a few bruises.

The girl, Mary Palmer, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Palmer, R.R. 2, Trenton, was taken to the Trenton Memorial Hospital by Weaver's Ambulance where she was treated for shock and is being detained for examination. It is not believed she is suffering any serious injuries. Dr. McDonald examined the child on her arrival at hospital.

It was reported the child had darted across the road through the line of traffic near her home in Bayside, on her way to the mail box. Mr. Reddom had only seconds to act when he saw the girl in the path of his truck and swung for the ditch in trying to miss her. His truck apparently brushed the girl but the quick action by the driver saved the tot from possible death or serious injury.

Mr. Reddom drives one of the Catering Services trucks which visit the various plants and offices in Trenton and district. He was on his way to service workers at Bayside when the mishap occurred.

Ontario Provincial Police from Belleville investigated the accident.

Rockets Enter League Finals, Ousting Comets

TRENTON — The Rockets "zipped" to a 5-1 victory over the Comets last night to take the best-of-three games 2-1 in the semi-finals of the RCAF league. They will now advance into the finals and will play F.I.S. in the first game Thursday night.

The Comets played their poorest game of the series as their lines failed to click in any of the three periods of rough, fast hockey. Both teams, however, suffered some tough breaks around the nets and both goaltenders balked desperate attempts to get markers.

Sgt. Gord Crowder, star centre for the Rockets and high scorer for the RCAF league, "went to town" last night and accounted for three of the winner's five goals. Singletons went to Ethier and Loignan. Woody Reid was again high man in the assist division with two. J. W. Kaulback got the only goal for the Comets, unassisted.

FIS Defeats No. 6 RD 7-4 To Enter Finals

TRENTON— The F.I.S. showing much better form than their last game walloped the No. 6 Repair Depot squad with a 7-4 defeat last night at the Community Centre. They now advance against the Rockets in the RCAF league finals, with the first game slated for Thursday night.

In last night's game the F.I.S. combined good hockey and determination, plus a lot of drive, to keep the 6 RD team off balance all through the three periods. But the losers began to show form in the last four minutes of the game when they connected for two of their goals.

Stevenson was the high scorer for the losers, getting two goals and setting up two others. Provencher combined one goal and two assists and Fortin slammed in a single.

Given Eight Years

TORONTO (CP) — Ralph Cochrane, 31, alias Ralph Cox, captured Frday and charged with armed robbery of two banks, attempted bank robbery and carrying an offensive weapon, was sentenced Saturday to eight years in penitentiary.

Cochrane pleaded guilty to the $2,150 holdup of a Bank of Montreal branch Dec. 16, the $1,100 robbery of a Toronto-Dominion Bank Jan. 23, and the attempted robbery of a Bank of Commerce branch last Thursday.

When arrested he had 10 cents in his pocket.

Town Briefs

TRENTON — Councillor Vagn Lange urges committee members who will be selecting the aerial ladder truck for the fire department to consider the possibilities of getting a good second-hand machine. Mr. Lange said he felt that perhaps some of the cities in Ontario had outgrown their ladders and that these trucks would be serviceable for a good many years. He said a second-hand machine would serve Trenton for some time because it would only be used very little. He also said that as much as 50 per cent of the money allotted for this purchase could be saved in the purchase of a used vehicle.

NO EXTENSION

Motorists who own their own cars are reminded tomorrow will be the last day for the purchase of vehicle licence plates and that it has been stated there will be no extension of time by the Department of Highways. The officials at House and House Hardware store in Trenton where the plates are sold for this area, stated recently that motorists have been very slow in getting their plates this year. They also stated there is about an eight per cent increase in the number of vehicles in Trenton with about 6,500 cars, 400 trucks and 50 motorcycles to be registered this year.

TENDERS CALLED

Tenders have been called for the proposed additional rooms at the new Trenton High School which has rapidly become too small for the number of pupils. The decision to add the rooms was finalized at the last meeting of the Trenton Board of Education and the secretary was instructed to issue the call for tenders. The board also decided their meeting, which is normally held on the first Monday in the month, will be held on the second Monday to allow the teachers a longer period to complete their monthly reports.

MAKES PRESENTATION

"We are presented them to you in the hopes there will never be a need to use them," stated Fire Chief Clarence Orser as he presented three new fire extinguishers to the members of Branch 110 of the Canadian Legion. The extinguishers are to be placed in the new building of the Legion and are a donation from the local firemen. They are of the two-and-one-half-gallon size and two are composed of soda and acid and one is foamite.

BRING IN SHACKS

The fishing shacks on the mouth of the Trent River have been disappearing at top speed in the last two days. With the ice getting soft and the run of fish practically nil, local sportsmen have been bringing them in to the docks. It is expected the small shanties still left out will be lost with the slush on the ice making it almost impossible to bring them in by hand.

ATTEND MEETING

Five local garagemen attended the meeting of the Hastings and Prince Edward County Garage Operators' Association, held in the Knights of Columbus hall on Front Street in Belleville last night. The group met to elect new officers for the coming year and the directors will meet at a later date to select a president. Marty Halloran of Trenton, is immediate past president and was named to the Board of Directors for this year. Others from Trenton attending the meeting were Carl Reese, Les Platt, Art Wright and Jack Embleton.

RIGHT ACTION FOR WRONG REASONS

We may soon see the Ontario Legislature taking the right action for all the wrong reasons.

The Legislature's committee on travel and publicity has asked the government to initiate a full inquiry into the province's tourist industry, which is described as ailing.

This action came after the committee had heard seven briefs from organizations representing the tourist business. Amongst other points, all of the briefs criticized the province's liquor laws.

"These laws are making every operator into a bootlegger," said W. H. Green of Parry Sound Chamber of Commerce. U.S. tourists and urban vacationers, he said, demand liquor facilities and are surprised to find many resorts governed by what one report describes as "horse-and-buggy" regulations.

It would not be surprising if these representations finally result in a wholesale overhaul of the Ontario Liquor Control Act. The Frost Government appears firmly enough entrenched in the esteem of the voters to be able to risk the displeasure it would incur in some quarters by such action.

Thus, as we said earlier, we may well see the right action for the wrong reason. That the liquor laws need revision few sensible persons will deny. That they should be revised just because U.S. tourists, or even vacationers from urban centres in Ontario itself, do not like the existing code is, however, a very questionable argument. The laws ought to be revised because the majority of Ontario residents want them revised, and because they find the existing laws unsatisfactory not merely during the two weeks of their annual vacation but throughout the full fifty-two weeks of the year.

While the laws are on the books, though, they should be enforced. At present they are not, in many instances. Some of those who are dissatisfied with the present laws rather approve of the manner in which authorities sometimes wink at infractions. They think this is the best way to deal with the situation. It is not. The way to get a bad law altered is not to permit it to be broken, but to enforce it.

ALGERIA - - A FACTUAL REPORT

France's troubles in Algeria have been the subject of numerous editorials. Opinions differ. Sometimes, though, facts seem to speak for themselves.

One of the newspapers with a high reputation for factual reporting is the New York Times. Early this month it printed a report from its correspondent, Thomas F .Brady, in Kasserine, Tunisia.

Following are some brief excerpts from this report: "The war in Algeria has spilled over into Tunisia again, this time in the form of human wreckage. Seventeen hundred refugees have crossed the border in the last week in the wake of what is called a 'ratissage' by French troops in the region of Bekkaria. A ratissage (literally a raking) is an operation against a community suspected of complicity in the Algerian revolt. To be effective a ratissage must be brutal. This one was, according to refugees.

"The hate the refugees expressed for the French Army frequently verged on the hysterical. Accounts of what happened by the relatively calm refugees reflect the general tenor of the stories.

"Ali Arribia was in his mud-and-thatch home at Bekkaria on Feb. 25 when a contingent of French soldiers arrived.

"They raped his wife before his eyes, he said.

"A contingent of Sengalese soldiers practised indignities on him, he added. Accusations of rape were numerous and, in some cases at least, appeared to be hysterical.

"Hadda Bent Ahmed, the wife of Amor Ben Tayed lived in El Feyja, a little community of about a hundred persons just southeast of Bekkaria. There was a raid by French soldiers and tanks last Tuesday. The soldiers beat her husband, he fell down and a tank ran over him, she related. They raped her, she said. Later in the day she escaped with a child in her arms and made her way across the border. Another child is missing, she said."

Just seventeen factual sentences. But seventeen million words could not give a clearer picture of the prospects for an amicable settlement in this dispute.

WHO SEEKS SUCCESS

Who seeks success
Must look for it not under sunny skies
Within his easy reach. Life holds no prize,
Worth getting, out to him
Who wants to pluck it from the lowest limb.
Who seeks it where the road is fair,
On level ground, with no obstruction there,
Where lights burn brightly or men take their ease,
Shirking their toll to woo the summer breeze,
Will fail to find it; all in vain his quest.
Success hangs higher than the eagle's nest.

Who seeks success
Must look for it in paths untrod before,
Must journey on, though weary and footsore,
Striving to climb, though steep the mountain seems,
Having the courage to make real his dreams;
Enduring pain and heartache, bitter sorrow,
Looking always for better things tomorrow.
Life's prizes are hung high and out of view,
And some reached only by our failures, too.
Who seeks success, must falter not nor shirk;
The only road that leads to it is work.

Cheeses of Old England

By Ernest Chisholm Thomson of United Kingdom Information Service

Wine in its countless variations and vintages has been the son of poets down the ages. But cheese? I know of no ode to Stilton, king of all cheese, nor even to English Cheddar, though it was first made in that age of minstrelsy, the reign of England's first Queen Elizabeth 400 years ago.

In the Salon Culinaire International de Londres, celebrating the 73rd anniversary of its founding by the gastronomes of London's Convent Garden, the Table d'Honneur was one vast plateau of edibles glorified in aspic, sugar and chocolate. Decorated hams consorted with shrimp — garnished lobsters, saddles of lamb with turbot steaks and enormous gateaux.

As if this were not mouthwatering enough, there were meals actually being served as a spectacle. The waiters were students whose courses in hotel management and catering extend over 4 yrs. Hotels all over Britain are now being staffed by these highly-trained young people and their curriculum has included everything from preparing a souffle to studying the cross-section of an interior-spring mattress, from waiting at table, to making incoming guests feel instantly at home the moment they arrive at the friendly reception desk.

I saw infra-red grills for two-minute steaks as big as flagstones, and one of the largest chicken-spits in the world with 60 birds all cooking at once. There were steam injection soup heaters, rotating sausage grills and iced-drink dispensers — everything, in fact, calculated to hearten the traveller with the food he wants at the time he wants it.

And then, stepping as it were from the market place into a quiet cloister I found myself in the precinct dedicated to the Cheeses of England.

• • •

Like the wines of France and Germany, Britain's cheese derive each from their highly individual territories. For instance, Cheshire cheese, with its clean tang of salt, is as far apart from Cheddar, nutty but not too sweet, as a burgandy wine from a hock.

The connoisseur could spend hours of delight searching England and Wales for each cheese in its native habitant, though it is now scarcely necessary. Since 750 hotels all over the land are now pledged to serve a full choice of English cheeses one need not stir from the dining-room of one's particular hostelry in order to taste them all.

It was the same, too, in this Cheese Temple at the Hotel and Catering Exhibition. In half an hour I plumbed the mysteries of years — why, for example, Cheshire cheeses in red, white and even blue, all taste of the sea. It is because as far back as the 12th century the salty meadows of the county of Cheshire gave their flavor to this famous and oldest of English cheeses.

Stilton — King of cheese and exported nowadays to Canada and the United States — gets its name from the village in the county of Huntingdonshire where it was first sold at the ancient Bell Inn. Creamy white with blue veins, it began as a Christmas cheese, but can now bring joy to the connoisseur all the year round.

• • •

Wensleydale owes its lovely honey after-taste partly to the limestone soil of the lush Yorkshire dales where the milk-giving cattle graze, partly to a secret recipe handed down by the monks of Jervaulx Abbey. Yes, cheese lore is romantic. Go to the southlands and you will meet Dorset Blue Vinny cheese, strong and pungent, made in Dorset and nowhere else, from low fat-skimmed milk giving it the "kick" which warrants its reputation as a man's cheese.

For contrast, slip over the wild Welsh border to Glamorgan, where, paradoxically enough in these rugged hills, they make the mildest but subtlest of all cheeses. Caerphilly. Flaky as a snowdrift, and nearly as white, Caerphilly is gentle on the tongue at any time of day.

• • •

For good looks the gourmets choose Leicester, a rich reddish-brown cheese from the very heart of England; the ripeness — it takes three months to mature — there is full-flavored Double Gloucester, the color of straw, but concealing a delicious after-kick more powerful, say Gloucester folk, than even the far-renowned Cheddar. Double Gloucester, incidentally is splendid for export. Maturing late it can travel far and be in its delightful prime at the other side of the globe.

Lancashire cheese, moist as an angel's kiss, spreads like butter and is grand for toasting. Just as creamy, too, is Derby cheese from the Midland Dale country, so smooth in texture that sometimes the people of those parts break it up with layers of sage leaves, and so "Sage Derby" makes a second lovely cheese from the one county.

A Defence Against War

Montreal Gazette

In winning a propaganda victory with the first Sputniks, the Soviet Union also alerted the Western world to Russian scientific advances. There is confidence, now, that the United States can, in the next two or three years, catch up with Russian rocketry and possibly overtake it.

From there on, both sides, in the rocket field, will likely find themselves in a neck-and-neck race. One will have a temporary advantage, then the other, as bigger and faster and more reliable missiles are developed by both sides.

This is a race which can never be finally and conclusively won. In a period of such stalemate, it will be the side which will have the most efficient defences which will be in the stronger position.

The development of superior defences has already begun. The U.S. Army has announced it has made major advances in the development of an anti-missile missile, of short range, which would be used to protect, among other things, the missiles bases which are to be set up in Western Europe.

Two systems are already under development. The Plato project would be for use against the medium-range missiles which are believed to have been distributed to Soviet combat troops in Europe. The Nike-Zeus system is intended to counter long-range missiles which might be used to attack the U.S. itself.

Counter missiles are not the only field in which defence solutions are being sought. Systems of decoys, methods of diverting the course of attacking missiles while in flight are also being studied.

When both sides can attack with equal power, the side with the best defence is in the stronger position. Adequate defences, which assume that a country can survive and retaliate, can prove as strong a deterrent to aggression as powerful offensive weapons.

TODAY'S TALK

NEYSA McMEIN

Many years ago I used to admire the clever drawings and art work of a popular artist — Neysa McMein. I never met her but read much about her. She was a member of that famous Round Table at the Algonquin Hotel in New York. I reread that interesting book by Margaret Case Harriman, and read something about this artist that warmed me! Of Neysa McMein she said: "She was the fire at which they could warm their hands." This artist died in 1949, but I am of the opinion that she still warms the hands of all those who once knew and loved her.

Without the Neysa McMeins what a cold world this would be! Where otherwise could we warm our hands? Or our hearts?

I like that famous phrase, "Kind hearts are more than coronets, and simple faith than Norman blood." When we invest in others we invest in ourselves. The very greatest security is that which protects our friends. To give of ourselves is the greatest contribution to happiness and long life that we know anything about.

How great is the faith that we need to carry us over the tough spots in our experience We must be resolute about it, however. Worrying will do no good. We must have faith all the way God will warm our hands, as that kindly girl, Neysa McMein, did those of her friends. How comforting is the touch of a warm hand, fresh from the heart! Often it is the Mother touch that makes all the difference.

Who is that one who will dispute the fact that Neysa McMein does not still live? "She was the fire at which they could warm their hands."

MARCH 11, 1908

Some of Canada's newly arrived settlers may have occasion in the future to look back to the winter which is now almost over as an exceedingly unpleasant time of trials and tribulations. Their experience serves to recall among the older inhabitants the traditions of the "hunger years" in this district which have been handed down from past generations. In 1788, only a few years after a number of United Empire Loyalists families had settled in the Bay of Quinte district, the crops failed entirely around Bath, Adolphustown and Prince Edward and the winter which followed was most severe. The snow was unusually deep and the deer, upon which the settlers depended for meat, became an easy prey to their rapacious enemies, the wolves, while families were perishing with hunger. The late Henry Ruttan, who for years was prominently known throughout the Bay of Quinte district, in an address delivered at Kingston in 1849 referred as follows to that trying time: "A great scarcity of provisions prevailed for two or three years consecutively owing to failure of crops and what brought on the famine or scarce years was the almost entire destruction of the deer by the wolves. The snow laid upon the ground from December to April at a depth of from four to five feet. In the month of February in the last of these years men went to Albany, N.Y., a distance of more than 200 miles to get four bushels of Indian Corn. They travelled on snowshoes. It took considerable time to make the trip by the men Upon arrival back from the journey the corn was pounded into meal in the hollow stump of a tree and formed a staple article of food for the family. Many Bay of Quinte people are of United Empire descent and they readily recall stories handed down through the generations of the great privations suffered in the Bay of Quinte district when people went to bed hungry.

THE LIVING GOD

Our eyes are very deceiving. We look at a table and regard it as a solid piece of matter, but scientists tell us that there is hardly any solidarity to it. It is mostly open spaces, for matter is electrons whirling about orbits. What looks solid to us is a seething mass of energy.

It is hard to see how anyone can fail to catch the teaching of both religion and science, that we live in a vital, living universe. Everything about us is living — even the inanimate objects, although the word itself gives the impression of no life. But even the inanimate things are part of a teeming, vital, significant, and purposeful universe. Look in the microscope, and you see God working amid the cells. Look through the telescope, and you see Him guiding the stars in their incredible rush through the universe, and controlling the planets as they spin about their axes and orbits.

Whether we want it that way or not, we are in a living universe, and in that universe we must continue ever to live. The way we live now will determine the conditions under which we live hereafter. But that we will continue eternally to live — either happily or unhappily — about that there is not the slightest doubt.

Death is but the passage from one form of life to another. But life there always will be. God in the microscope: God in the telescope — on earth, in heaven. For God is a living God.

To Your Good Health

By Joseph G. Molner, M.D.

GELATIN, A PROTEIN MAY HELP STRENGTHEN FINGERNAILS

"Dear Dr. Molner: "What can I do for my fingernails? They are like tissue, and break off. — M. H."

There is a particular defect of the nails which leaves them thin and poorly developed. However, the most usual cause is lack of protein in the diet. Since gelatin is mainly protein, taking a daily portion often is the answer. Remember, however, that the quality of a nail is governed by its condition when it first starts to grow, back in the nail bed, under the skin. After it has grown out where you can see it, the quality already has been established.

Don't expect a few days or even a few weeks of taking gelatin to do any visible good. Several months may be required for the new part of the nail to grow out to the tip of the finger where it can break off. In the meantime, keep hands away from caustic, or polishes and polish remover, since these substances will affect the nails after they have grown. Diet will affect the nails before they grow — or rather, at the time they are beginning to grow.

"Dear Dr. Molner: A friend tells me that two people with the same blood type should not marry as it would reflect in at least something being wrong with their children. Also that this is the reason why so many states insist on a blood test of both parties before a marriage. My logical reason tells me this is erroneous. I contend that the blood test laws are for eradication of venereal disease, and typing of blood is for transfusion purposes. — Mrs. C. C."

You are right, all along the line. There is no danger at all when two people of the same blood type marry. Nor, for that matter, if they have different blood types. There may or may not be trouble if the Rh negative marries RH positive. But the ordinary types — O, A, B, or AB, don't matter at all. In short, your friend is completely all wet.

"Dear Dr. Molner: I would like your honest opinion on face lifting . . . — E. Z."

I can't help saying that any opinion you get from me will be honest. I don't advise face lifting for trivial reasons, and I don't contend that it will make an old or middle-aged person look young.

However, entertainers or others who depend on appearance for their living sometimes have a legitimate reason for a skillful job of "lifting", to minimize wrinkles and restore the skin contours.

This will not make old skin young. If carried to extremes, it will be only too obvious to others. So don't ask too much of it. Ask only what it can reasonably do for you. Go to a qualified plastic surgeon, preferably chosing him after consulting with your personal physician.

"Dear Dr. Molner: What can you do for the fidgets, or nervous feet? I can't say cramps or pains, but my feet won't let me sleep after I lie down at night. If I keep my feet on the floor they don't jump so much, but I am an old woman and do need some sleep. If you can give me some relief I will be grateful. — J.B."

"Fidgets" is as good a name as any, and I know what you mean. Anybody else with the fidgets knows, too. This type of jitter, or restless feet, is most annoying. Wearing wool socks to bed often helps. Drinking less coffee has been known to help. Aquinine or quinidine preparation, taken before retiring, has been successful. Your doctor may have other suggestions, too.

Mrs. J.E.C.: Certainly a drainage (as from sinus trouble or some other cause) can create irritation in the throat. But since you've had your throat thoroughly examined, you'll just have to remember that a "peculiar feeling in the throat" is a rather common manifestation of nerves. If there was any swelling, or anything wrong, it would be readily apparent.

Measles can be fatal to young children! For an explanation of the seriousness of this disease, write me in care of this newspaper, requesting my pamphlet, "Measles, the 'Harmless' Killer", and enclose a large, self-addressed, stamped evelope and 5c in coin to cover handling.

Arrest Texas Alligator

Cleveland Plain Dealer

Anyone caught in the complexities of the modern world may be forgiven if he finds himself intrigued by such minor occurrences as the arrest of George, the alligator, in Fort Worth, Tex., and the strange diet of a five-year-old Portland, Ore., rabbit named Hoppy, who thinks he is a dog.

George, the alligator, really is a two-foot long alligator. He was picked up in a tavern with four tipsy human companions, and he was booked at the police station on a charge of disturbing the peace. Seems a little rough on George who, according to International News Service, did nothing more than "waddle about the tavern, nuzzling and greeting patrons and having the time of his life." Once in jail George "took the situation in stride and enjoyed the jail rations he was fed."

Hoppy, the rabbit, does not stick to carrots. He eats ice cream, cookies, candy, cake and bananas, and he washes them down with almost any kind of soft drink. His mistress explains his liking for these un-rabbit-like foods in this was: Hoppy, who has associated with neighborhood pups for years thinks he is a dog!

Well now, we better get back to serious matters, but we enjoyed the moment we spent with George, the alligator, and Hoppy, the rabbit. A life filled with nothing but serious thoughts would be intolerable!

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

Here we all are joining vociferously in the demand that our brightest children shall be scientists.

Yet never in the entire history of mankind has there been a more desperate need for the study of the humanities than now. The most forceful and brilliant minds we can breed up amongst our children should be saturated right now with the flammable material to be found in literature, history, philosophy and the languages of other peoples, so that not only may a great mind, a leader, emerge from them to tell us where we are going; but also that sufficient people may be prepared as an audience for him to understand him and follow him.

If we concentrate on producing a whole nation of shallow-eyed scientists, mathematicians, physicists, engineers and intellectualized mechanics, who will understand him when a prophet does rise amongst us?

The trouble with science is that the very word comes from the Latin verb "to know". The beauty of the humanities is that they do not presume to know. They only seek.

And what is sought now by probably ninety-nine per cent of the human race is something far homelier than what science appears bent upon giving us.

Poor Provinces Pledged More Aid If Liberals Win

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP)—Lester B. Pearson says a Liberal government would give the poor provinces the kind of federal aid the rich provinces don't need.

There would be "equalization" of opportunity across the country with its special application to Newfoundland and the Atlantic area.

Federal aid would be provided to equalize tax-sharing, communications and transportation facilities.

"All provinces must share in Canada's wealth, else we will be in trouble,' the Liberal leader told more than 2,000 persons attending two evening rallies Monday.

It was another exhausting day in Mr. Pearson's hard-driving campaign. He had to change clothes when he became drenched by rain during a huge motorcade tour of the city. That motorcade, estimated variously at about 200 cars and trucks, was "the most spectacular thing that has happened to me in the campaign so far," Mr. Pearson commented later.

SPEAKS FROM BALCONY

He waved to hundreds of persons from an open convertible; later spoke from a hotel balcony to some 300 persons in the streets below; shook hands with another 300 or so in an afternoon reception; was interviewed by Premier Joseph Smallwood on a local television program; gave a luncheon address and two evening speeches.

Today he and his party rose at 6 a.m. to fly to Summerside to begin a tour of Prince Edward Island.

Mr. Smallwood and J. W. Pickersgill, former Liberal citizenship minister, were almost constantly at the side of Mr. Pearson during the day.

During the evening rallies, Mr. Smallwood kept urging voters to take advantage of the Liberals' proposed $400,000,000 tax cuts and thus "spend your way back into prosperity."

"IS A BIG SHOT"

He said Mr. Pearson was a man "of the common people. He doesn't look like or act like a big shot. He is a big shot."

Mr. Pickersgill contrasted Mr. Pearson with Prime Minister Diefenbaker. Mr. Diefenbaker, he said, had no policy with which to deal with unemployment, except perhaps to build a $100,000,000 highway "along the shores of the Arctic Ocean."

Mr. Smallwood said he would fill three halls to hear Mr. Pearson but the actual turnout was smaller than that. The first gathering was filled to capacity with some 1,600 persons. Another 200 stood outside listening on loudspeakers. A second meeting drew some 500 persons but some of these came over from the first gathering.

Mr. Smallwood predicted the Liberals would get all of Newfoundland's seven seats on March 31. They got five out of seven last June.

No Moral Reason To Call Election Speaker Claims

By BOB TRIMBEE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

STEINBACH, Man. (CP)—Social Credit Leader Solon Low declared Monday night that Prime Minister Diefenbaker deserted his post when he called an election and that the Progressive Conservatives started anti-American propaganda "which has created a bad climate of relationship between our two countries."

Speaking to about 400 persons who filled the collegiate institute auditorium for an election meeting, Mr. Low said there was no moral reason for calling an election now.

The Conservatives had started the anti-American propaganda although in 1945 they supported Canada's entry into the Bretton Woods agreement which required payment for Canadian exports in gold or American dollars.

"IN A CLUMSY WAY"

At the prime ministers' conference in London last summer, Prime Minister Diefenbaker "in a clumsy way tried to undo some of the damage he and his party helped the Liberals do" in supporting the agreement.

Mr. Diefenbaker announced the government would transfer 15 per cent of Canadian purchases from the U.S. to Great Britain and the Commonwealth.

Mr. Low said that this created a "climate of reprisal" and the Americans called for a 15-per-cent cut on oil imports.

When Canada entered the Bretton Woods agreement in 1946 the Social Credit party warned the government it would ruin traditional markets with the Commonwealth and European countries; within 10 years completely tie Canadian trade to the "apron strings of the United States"; create a "terrible deficit of trade between Canada and the United States", and result in the selling of Canadian resources to settle trade deficits.

Mr. Low urged acceptance of sterling currency in payment or part payment for Canadian exports and a two-price system for disposal of farm products.

The two-price system called for selling farm products at parity prices in Canada and "selling for the best price obtainable on export markets but supported at levels sufficient to guarantee farmers on the aggregate of internal and external income, their fair share of the national income."

Social Security Program Creeps Into Campaign

By ALAN DONNELLY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

KELOWNA, B.C. (CP)—Prime Minister Diefenbaker has made the first major appeal in his election campaign to attract votes from the CCF and Social Credit parties.

"A vote for any of the other third-party candidates is a vote for the Liberal party," he said here Monday night to more than 3,200 persons.

The Progressive Conservative leader argued that a re-elected Conservative government could apply the new farm price supports legislation more favorably than the Liberals would.

REMEMBERING SPLIT

His appeal to third-party voters obviously had in mind the four-way split of British Columbia's 22 constituencies in the last election: seven each to the Conservatives and CCF, six to the Social Credit and two to the Liberals.

His standing-room - only audience in the arena here, which spread on to half the boarded-over ice surface, was more than three times the size of his audience in last year's campaign at an evening meeting in Penticton, 33 miles south. The two cities are of about equal size.

"Never in my time have I seen such interest on the part of the people as a whole," said Mr. Diefenbaker, who began his speech with overcoat on in the cool arena and doffed it as he warmed up.

A major part of his speech was devoted to replying to issues raised at a civic luncheon earlier by Arthur Garrish, president of the B.C. Fruit Growers Association.

SURVIVAL QUESTION

Mr. Garrish said the fruit industry's survival is in question. It was hopeful of government action on price supports, tariff protection against the influx of U.S. crops at distress prices, freight rates and farm loans.

Mr. Diefenbaker said the new farm price supports measure "unequivocally and definitely" includes supports for fruits. It included every farm product.

He said recent freight rate increases had increased discrimination against producers in both Western Canada and the Maritimes.

His cabinet had postponed, for the first time in history, a rate increase by the board of transport commissioners — the recent 3.6-per-cent increase — pending cabinet hearing of the case.

On imports of U.S. fruit and vegetables, he reiterated his former promise not to allow Canadian farmers to be "sacrificed" by dumping from any other country

Trans-Canada Air Lines Being Sabotaged Claim

MAPLE CREEK, Sask. (CP)—CCF Leader M. J. Coldwell Monday night accused the Progressive Conservative government of sabotaging publicly-owned Trans-Canada Air Lines.

He said "this is the meaning of the announcement by Transport Minister George Hees that the Conservative government is in favor of granting trans-continental franchises to private airlines."

"The private airlines and particularly Canadian Pacific Airlines are rubbing their hands with glee at the prospects of undermining and eventually acquiring Trans-Canada Air Lines."

The statements were included in extracts of a speech issued to the press before delivery.

Speaking at a public meeting, he said:

"This is the old familiar story in Canada. The record in the past has told us that when the job is unprofitable or risky, it's left to public enterprise to do.

"That is the case with the airlines. The people through the department of transport have built the airports and the buildings and so on. The people built up in Trans-Canada Air Lines one of the best and most efficient airlines in the world.

"But now it is to be sabotaged. Now that the route is paying its way and the market has been developed, the private companies want to get in.

"It won't happen all at once but unless the people elect a strong contingent of CCF members to protect the interests of the people in these important public utilities, this will happen as surely as night follows day."

Segregation Big Issue in S.A. General Election

JOHANNESBURG (Reuters) — Campaigning for South Africa's general election April 16 — with racial segregation a big issue—went into full swing Monday with the formal dissolution of Parliament.

Parliamentary circles here said the election — the first in five years—is not expected to produce any signs of a swing away from the present government, headed by ailing Prime Minister Johannes Strijdom.

Strijdom, 64, suffering from a minor heart complaint, has been resting to conserve his strength for the campaign.

"Firm believers in South African racial separateness — apartheid —he and his Nationalist party are confident not only of retaining pow r but also of increasing their majority in the House of Assembly.

Already in office a record 10 years, they now command 96 of 159 seats in the assembly.

DANGEROUS POLICY

Sir De Villiers Graaff, United Party leader, has said recently that the government's apartheid policy has "proved impracticable and dangerous."

A United party motion defeated in the last session of Parliament said the government's racial policy has led to deteriorating race relations and is consolidating non-Europeans into an anti-white bloc.

Graaff said apartheid offers Africans no hope for the future and that it is no wonder Africans are listening to "champions of black nationalism with its anti-white inspiration."

Acting Prime Minister Charles S art upheld the government's racial laws. He said he would stake his political reputation on the National party's being returned to office with an increased majority.

A likely result of the election will be the elimination from Parliament of the Labor party, which holds five seats. The newly formed Liberal party is considered unlikely to win any seats.

The Quartas were married before a civil magistrate in 1952. Subsequently, Quarta, who was once Communist party secretary of Lecce province in Southern Italy, renounced Communism following the Hungarian revolt. The conviction of Bishop Pietro Fiordelli of Prato on charges brought by a parishioner and her atheist husband prompted the Quartas to remarry in a religious ceremony.

POLITICAL

Mr. Low, speaking at Steinbach, Man., said Mr. Diefenbaker's proposal to shift 15 per cent of Canada's import buying to Britain from the United States created a "climate of reprisal" and the Americans put a 15 per cent cut on oil imports.

Mr. Coldwell at Maple Creek, Sask., referred to Transport Minister George Hees' announcement that the Conservative government favors granting transcontinental franchises to private airlines.

"The private airlines and particularly Canadian Pacific Airlines are rubbing their hands with glee at the prospects of undermining and eventually acquiring Trans-Canada Air Lines," he said.

In his night speech at Kelowna, Mr. Diefenbaker urged an audience of more than 3,200 in the fruit-growing area to return his government so that its farm prices stabilization legislation can be favorably implemented and interpreted. The Liberals would not do this, he said.

At St. John's, Mr. Pearson said a Liberal government would pay for 90 per cent of Newfoundland's section of a trans-Canada highway.

Deputy CCF Leader Stanley Knowles said at Timmins that Liberals could be wiped out completely in the four western provinces in the March 31 election. The Liberals had become a splinter party in the West.

Mr. Knowles said the CCF members in the Ontario ridings of Timmins, (Murdo Martin), Timiskaming (C. C. Ames) and Port Arthur (Douglas Fisher) had given the party an Ontario bridgehead and it will go on to replace the Liberals as one of Canada's two major parties.

He said he is confident a realignment is taking place in Canadian politics, with the Liberals due "to be put out to grass" while the CCF take their place.

Justice Minister Davie Fulton said at Kingston the Liberal slogan "Pearson, peace and prosperity" should be changed to "Let Lester Learn." Mr. Pearson was "sowing discord and doubt."

Former Liberal immigration minister J. W. Pickersgill said at St. John's that Mr. Diefenbaker, unlike Mr. Pearson, shows "contempt" for his opponents, puts only one side of the case to the people and obscures the other side. He questioned whether Canadians want a prime minister who tells only one side of a story.

At Granby, Que., former Liberal health minister Paul Martin said the unemployment situation is due to the Conservative government's incompetence and its lack of a platform.

George Marler, former Liberal transport minister, said at Montreal the public works program announced by Mr. Diefenbaker is not really calculated to relieve unemployment.

In a French-language free-time political broadcast over the CBCs French network, Mr. Marler said the list of projects contains no new large-scale undertaking.

At Halifax, a Progressive Conservative manifesto was made public here pledging the party's Atlantic representation to continue pressing for improvements in transportation facilities and attainment of "fair and just freight rates."

R. C. HOMEMAKERS

At the regular meeting of the Red Cross Homemakers Service, which was held at the Red Cross work-rooms, on Thursday, the members were privileged to hear Mr. John O'Flynn Jr., speak on the "Laws of Ontario pertaining to Women and Children."

Refreshments were served.

H-S Council To Consider Future Plans

The bi-monthly meeting of the Belleville and district Home and School council, was held last Thursday at the Corby Public Library.

Mrs. Charles Powell opened the meeting in the usual manner. Mrs. R. Knowlton read the minutes of the previous meeting. A letter from the Traffic Safety Committee was read.

The decision of the council was to have Mr. K. Parks represent the Belleville Home and School Council on this Committee to study and report on any future plans that may be considered.

The "Home and School" team in the minor hockey league, was mentioned and gratification on reaching the semi-finals in the playoffs was expressed.

The "spelling bee" finals was a highlight of Education week for the pupils who contested for the shields, donated by the Board of Education.

WINNERS

Nancy Knowlton and Alan Slavin were the winners, bringing this honor to the Queen Alexander School. The prize of a leather book binder to each was given by the Belleville Home and School Council and was presented by Mrs. C. Powell.

A nominations committee with Mrs. N. O'Neil, Mrs. W. Ironside, and Mrs. W. Soule will prepare the forms for the election to be held in June.

The annual convention will be held in Hamilton this year. Each association is to send one or more delegates. It was voted to send the council president to this two-day meeting.

At the close of the business period Mr. D. Maddocks, director of the community programs, was introduced by Mrs. N. O'Neil. Mr. Madocks outlined the part that community programs, a branch of the department of Education, plays in planning for hobbies and handicrafts throughout the province. This district is large and takes a great deal of his time to organize these liesure time pursuits. The community program is also instrumental in giving assistance to Home and School councils to plan work shops and for leadership training.

Mrs. E. Risto thanked Mr. Maddocks for this interesting information.

Ministers Enjoy Luncheon, View Film

At the ministerial luncheon held on Friday afternoon under the sponsorship of the Ministerial Association at the Y.M.C.A., the Reverend R. W. T. Middleton gave the invocation.

Following the luncheon, and preceding the showing of the film, "Centreville Awakening", the district director, Mr. Jim Blackwood gave an impressive talk on the work of the Youth for Christ movement, the chief concern of which is the drawing of the teen-agers to Jesus Christ, and the methods used in this work of rescuing the multitude of young people who bypass the church, are devoid of religious training.

"Juvenile crime is a major problem today," stated Mr. Blackwood. Believing that the church is God's chosen way, and that the Y.F.C. implements the ministry of the church in reaching teen-agers the Y. F. C. is not a church or a denomination and does not attempt to duplicate the ministry of the local church, but seeks to supplement the program of the church by using different techniques to enlist the unchurched young people, by meeting them on their own grounds, and by every legitimate means possible to win them to Christ."

The speaker urged every minister to consider a city-wide crusade geared to teen-agers in the future.

WHAT IS Y.F.C.?

Briefly answering the question, "What is Youth for Christ Today?" Mr. Blackwood gave a resume from its inception in 1945 by Dr. Torrey Johnson as president, and Dr. Billy Graham, its first-full time field representative, which began in 1946 with the high school Bible clubs, numbering 16 in 1947, to 2,000 in the United States and Canada, today.

The program is not underwritten by individual or organization, locally or internationally, but is backed by the prayers and gifts of people interested in the salvation of the youth of today. It has no jurisdicion overseer, but each group functions individually, staffed by those in the will of God whose suggestions and counsel implement the local work. Each chartered local organization has the privilege of voting at the annual Y.F.C. convention, which helps to determine the international program.

CENTREVILLE AWAKENING

The viewing of the film was carefully considered, and told the story of two valiant soldiers of the cross, Ed and Laurie Damon, who, because of ill health, were forced to leave the mission field.

Returning home, Laurie became pastor of the Centreville Church, with a congregation, whose spiritual lives had been molded by the materialistic philosophies of this modern world. He saw the tremendous need of reaching the young people and with the theory that any individual or group of individuals, who are willing to meet God's conditions, could, given a chance, have the Holy Spirit work mightily in hearts and lives today. Hence, "Centreville Awakening" was produced.

25th Birthday Marked by Many Gifts

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Elliott were honored guests at a delightfully arranged dinner given by the latter's sister, Mrs. W. H. Chisholm, which was held at the Tweedsmuir Hotel, Tweed, and attended by 40 relatives and friends.

The tables were tastefully arranged with bowls of lovely cut flowers of 'mums and snapdragons accentuated with a beautifully decorated anniversary cake.

The Rev. R. W. T. Middleton proposed the toast to the bride and bridegroom of 25 years, to which Net and Fred responded.

Mrs. Middleton also spoke briefly and recited a poem, which she had composed for the occasion. All joined in singing "For They are Jolly Good Fellows" and "Auld Lang Syne."

The guests drove to the spacious home of Mrs. W. H. Chisholm, of Roslin, which was prettily decorated with pink and white streamers and baskets of 'mums and carnations, where the honored guests were presented with many beautiful gifts for which they expressed their sincere thanks.

The remainder of the evening was spent in progressive euchre. The prize winners were Mr. Murray Reid, Miss Phyllis Sills, Mrs. Norman Alexander and Mr. William Gillespie.

Refreshments were served by the hostess and all departed wishing Net and Fred many more years of happiness.

Poultry, Egg Business Topic At Lions Club

Mrs. Don MacKinnon, better known as "Dot Batcheller" to her readers and radio audience, spoke to the Lions Club of Belleville, at their regular Thursday night meeting, on the importance of the poultry and eggs business to each and every citizen in Canada. Mrs. MacKinnon is home economics director of the Poultry Products Institute of Canada, formed about seven years ago to promote the industry on a Dominion wide scale. Mrs. MacKinnon pointed out that the poultry industry has become highly specialized, concentrating separately on fowl as meat producers, and fowl as egg producers. Hens in the old days used to lay about 120 eggs per year. They are now laying over 200 eggs per year. Three pound broilers are now raised in about eight weeks. Mrs. MacKinnon said it was now possible to have fried chicken on the table ten weeks after the egg was laid.

BLOOD DONOR CLINIC

Dr. Stobie also addressed the meeting on the importance of helping the Red Cross secure enough blood for the blood bank. Dr. Stobie mentioned that 1,500 volunteers are needed to supply Belleville Hospital with the required blood.

Third vice-president, John Ross, reported on the Lions Public Speaking Contest held at the Quinte Secondary School on the evening of February 26, 1958. Carolyn Dougharty, and Richard Fuke won the local competition with the Zone contest to take place at the Quinte St. Lawrence Hall in Kingston, on March 17, 1958. Successful contestants will compete in the regional contest to be held in Brighton sometime in April.

President, Tom Colden, chaired the meeting.

Pr. Edward Belleville Club Marks Birthday

The Prince Edward - Belleville Club celebrated its 15th anniversary with a banquet held at the Y.M.C.A. to which the families, and friends were invited.

With the green of St. Patrick, and the Irish Shamrock much in evidence, around 85 enjoyed a bounteous menu, amid a kindly and happy fellowship. While each group was responsible for a part in the program the table arrangement was left to Mrs. Moxam's and Mrs. Sager's group.

The president, Mrs. L. Sharpe, presided for the opening, and extended a warm welcome, and expressed regrets that so many were absent. She read a poem, "A Wife's Responsibility".

Mrs. A. Sager presided for the program.

Mrs. Insley led in community singing with Mrs. K. Wensley as pianist.

Mr. Robert Burke, a favorite with the club, sang two solos with Miss K. McCullough as pianist.

Two fine readings were given by Mrs. W. Baird and Mrs. Lee. Mrs. Wensley and Miss McCullough each contributed piano solos.

The club is proud of the rising popularity of Miss June Bowerman, as a radio and concert soloist, whose home is at Albury, Prince Edward County and who sang two lovely solos with Mrs. Reilly of Shannonville, teacher of music in schools, as pianist Three fine selections, given by the Belleville Choraleers, under the direction of Mr. J. B. Herdman, organist of Christ Church, were given a great ovation.

The speaker of the evening, The Rev. W. E. G. Dovey, of Belleville, and recently a minister of Ameliasburg, was warmly welcomed.

He expressed regrets that his wife, daughter and son were unable to attend.

Mr. Dovey brought a humorous description of his varied experiences in travelling through the west, especially during his stay at Yellowstone Park in British Columbia.

Mrs. Sharpe thanked all taking part in the program and Mr. Joseph Shortt extended thanks, on behalf of the guests, for a most enjoyable evening.

Mr. Dovey closed with prayer

Mention was made of the beauty of the country and artistic nature of the people and their ancient customs, among them the tea ceremony.

Mrs. D. Domosly closed with prayer and refreshments were served by Mrs. W. Edwards and Miss Frances Reid.

Belleville Guiders Hold Dinner Meet

A dinner was held last week for all the Guiders of Belleville division of the Girl Guide Association. The Belleville Local Association for Girl Guides gave the dinner as a token of appreciation to the leaders and the members of the First Belleville Land Ranger Company who prepared and served the delicious dinner as a service project for their company. Forty-five Guiders enjoyed this dinner meeting and it is hoped that this will be an annual event.

Mrs. T. Spear of Trenton, Area Commissioner for Quinte Area, was the guest speaker and was introduced by Mrs. R. Settle, District Commissioner for Belleville West, the chairman of the meeting.

Mrs. Spear, in her remarks, asked each of the Brownie, Guide and Ranger Guiders to take stock of themselves. Each Guider was to ask herself if she was doing all she could for the individual members of her pack or company, and for the group as a whole. Mrs. Spear suggested that long range planning of meetings was a good way to ensure the greatest possible progress. The speaker reminded the Guiders of the Quinte Area annual meeting which will be held in Madoc on April 30th., at 7 p.m.

WARRANTS PRESENTED

Mrs. Spear presented Mrs. D. Diamantides with her warrant as Division Commissioner for Belleville Division, who said how pleased she was to be back in the Girl Guide movement. She told all the Guiders that she hopes to visit their packs and companies soon, and that with the Guiders' co-operation, together they would do their best for Belleville division.

Mrs. Diamantides presented Mrs. J. Kuntze with her District Commissioner's warrant for Belleville North East. Mrs. Kuntze thanked Mrs. Spear for her remarks and hoped that all the Guiders would benefit by her suggestions.

Mrs. H. Floyd, District Commissioner, Bellevile South East, welcomed Mrs. Diamantides to Guiding in Belleville She hoped that the Guiders and District Commissioners might work together to fulfill the aims and plans that Mrs. Diamantides would have for Belleville Division.

The meeting closed with a rousing sing-song and the viewing of the film, "Guides All Guides," which was taken last year at Canada's Centenary Camp held at Doe Lake, Ontario.

GOOD MANNERS

By Mrs. Beeckman

HAS MIXED-UP PLAN CONCERNING WEDDING RECEPTION

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. I am to be married in the Spring, and we have a big problem about the reception. Since my fiance and I have too many relatives to have a large reception, I am wondering if we could have a reception for the members of the two families only with a dance for our relatives and friends, at which time we could serve our wedding cake and coffee.

2. Would it be proper to have invitations printed for only the wedding and the dance? If so, could a tiny inscription in the corner of the invitation indicate that the reception is for the immediate families only? — Bride-to-be.

1. I really don't see the reason for your strange plan . . . and I doubt very much that your relatives will understand it either. First you say that you and your fiance have "too many relatives to have a large reception" and then you say you are planning to have a dance "for our relatives and friends." Why not follow the traditional procedure and, immediately following the ceremony, have a reception for the members of the families, relatives, and friends? If you have the ceremony at, say, 4 o'clock, the reception immediately following could be simple and inexpensive if you serve only the wedding cake and coffee, with a fruit punch for the drinking of the toasts. Also there may of course be dancing at this reception.

2. The invitations should be to the ceremony and by enclosed cards, to the reception. It would not be correct to add any inscription.

WRITING TO HER HUSBAND'S COUSIN AND HIS BRIDE

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My husband's cousin, a young man, was recently married, and he and his wife are now on their wedding trip. We would like to send them a letter of good wishes and congratulations, to be received when they return. I know the young man very well, but we have never met his wife. Shall I begin my letter "Dear George and Edith," calling her by her first name even though I have never even seen her? — H.

Yes, use the bride's first name in your salutation. Since she is now your husband's cousin-by-marriage, he would call her "Edith," and therefore you should too. Using her first name would also indicate in this important and graciously-planned letter of yours, that you are welcoming her into a "cousinly" relationship with you and your family. You should, however, write her name first in the salutation: Dear Edith and George."

FIANCE'S MOTHER SHOULD ACCEPT FIANCEE'S DECISION

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My son has just become engaged. The young lady to whom he is engaged doesn't want an engagement ring, but I say that my son should giver her an engagement ring. What do you think? — Mother

You have no right whatever to take it upon yourself to give any advice to your son about this so-personal decision of his fiancee. Why she has decided she doesn't want an engagement ring is her business, and rightly is the concern of only herself and her fiance. You will be a wise woman, now as prospective mother-in-law and later as mother-in-law, if you let these young people make their own decisions about things that affect them only, such as an engagement ring.

New Shade

By TRACY ADRIAN

This newest version of the attache case-handbag was imported from Italy. Made of beautiful leather, it is enhanced by perforated details with pinked edges.

Another new note is the pleated leather gussets. The leather-covered frame has a wide opening; a gold-plated lock on an overflap of leather closes it.

Meringues and Macaroons For Parties

By Mary Moore

This is frivolous, for meringues and macaroons are the subject. I am always searching for the perfect lemon pie and the perfect Yorkshire pudding, the foolproof meringue and many other elusive recipes. When I was in Halifax, Marjorie Major invited me to Sunday night's supper and for dessert served meringues which were delectable. She was generous enough to mail the detailed recipe to me this week remarking "Since they have never gone tough as some do, I'm giving you all the details of procedure since it may well be here, rather than ingredients or proportions, that the secret lines."

Dinner Menus

by Mary Moore

Twenty of the visitors in attendance were from Stirling, Frankford and Rawdon.

There were 12 tables in play and the awards were: ladies', Mrs. Morley Richardson and Miss Florence Hearns; each tied with a score of 80 points. Men's high, Bert Bedford, 2nd, Lloyd Dafoe.

Refreshments were served at the conclusion of the euchre.

It was announced that a St. Patrick's euchre is planned for next week. The prize list will be in charge of Mrs. Roy Tucker and Mrs. Glenn Bush and they will provide the gifts.

RIVER VALLEY W.I.

At the River Valley W. I. meeting held Thursday, Mrs. Percy MacMullen was appointed to collect, pack and ship the clothing to the Unitarian Committee of Canada under the direction of Mrs. James Haggerty, Napanee provincial Institute president.

Twelve parcels of new and used articles were handed in at the meeting. The first box will be packed on March 17th and anyone wishing to donate articles can bring them to the school house or leave their parcel in town and telephone Mrs. MacMullen where it can be picked up.

The United Nations are asking for layettes for Arab refugee babies. They are not asking for new baby things, although they are acceptable, as they feel garments can be made from material available around the house and U. S. C. will be grateful for even the tiniest article. They would also appreciate children's clothing in sizes 3 to 15 years. Long-sleeved sweaters, in any color, would be appreciated as F.W.I.O. hope to send 25,000 this year.

The Unitarian Service Committee are anxious to send a large quantity of clothing to these needy little ones abroad and thus give comfort, warmth and happiness.

Ocean and overseas inland transportation are granted free and the U.S.C. gifts are distributed regardless of creed or nationality, and only according to the greatest human need and they are given in the name of Canada.

Mrs. Ralph Utman is president of River Valley W. I. and her year closes March 31. It is hoped to ship one box of clothing next week and another at the end of May.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, a newspaper editor, a women's editor and two writers. Each article is a summary of an actual case history. The Council reports on problems that have been dealt with by responsible agencies and counsellors.

Mrs. L. R. — People say Daisy ought to be spanked.

Daisy R. — I didn't get the courage until the last minute.

• • •

Mrs. L. R. — My husband and I are so upset about our daughter, Daisy. She was engaged for a whole year to a very nice young man. Then, four days before the wedding, she called the whole thing off.

Everything had been set — the church, the reception, photographers, honeymoon plans, an apartment, furnishings. Everything had to be called off, gifts returned, everyone thrown into a turmoil. Her ex-fiance and his parents were furious and have been besieging us with angry calls. All our friends and relatives demand to know what it's all about.

And what can I say? Only that my 24-year-old daughter doesn't seem to know her mind. People tell me she is just spoiled and ought to be spanked. We don't know what to do with her.

• • •

Daisy R. — Everyone has been so rotten about this whole thing. Did they think it was easy for me to do what I did? Shouldn't I expect a little understanding from my own parents?

The fact is that I had been having very strong doubts about this marriage for a long time, but I didn't want to say anything because I didn't want to bust up everyone's plans. When I was first engaged to Dick, we kept racing around, going out with other couples and, in general, having a lively time.

Gradually I noticed that when we were alone we really didn't have anything to say to each other. It got awfully boring. I used to stay awake crying and wondering what to do. I didn't get the courage to do anything about it until the last minute.

• • •

The Council: When the L. R.'s catch their breath and the rumpus dies down a bit, they may be able to see that they and their daughter have probably been spared a great deal of agony. For this, they owe no explanation to anyone, except perhaps the disappointed bridegroom and his family. Daisy's statement of her feelings should be enough for them.

The L. R.'s are all wrong to scold their daughter, but Daisy should realize that she is somewhat to blame for their severe upset. Her fault lies, not in breaking the engagement when she felt it was necessary, but in refusing to discuss her doubts with her parents when they first arose. She might have spared herself many tears and sleepless nights if she had talked things out gradually.

The parents lack of sympathetic understanding and Daisy's reluctance to talk things over with them earlier suggest that there has not been enough open discussion of important matters in this family. Perhaps the L. R.'s have placed too much emphasis upon what "people" think and too little upon helping their daughter understand the needs of her own heart and mind. She seems afraid to reveal this to herself, as well as to them, because she anticipates criticism.

It is possible that there were more and other reasons for Daisy's last-minute withdrawal from marriage. She can only discover them if she feels she has the right to her emotions and her independent mind. When she has the courage to understand her own heart, she may be able to form more satisfactory relationships or to cope with her fears or confusions.

Seven Girls Enrolled in Girl Guides

POINT ANNE — The regular meeting of the 1st Point Anne Guide Company was held at the club house on Wednesday evening. At this meeting seven girls were enrolled as Guides, and this was the first time in nearly 20 years that the ceremony has been held in Point Anne.

The seven girls who had passed all the necessary tests were: Peggy Jane Finlin, Mary Jane Weese; Peggy and Judy Hull, Sharon Murphy, Nancy Fraser and Dorothy Jacob. The enrollment ceremony was conducted by the captain, Mrs. W. L. Horwood, assisted by acting lieutenant Miss Esther Juby.

The Guides were escorted to the front of the horseshoe by acting lieutenants Mrs. James Juby and Mrs. Esmond Ellis.

Mrs. H. T. Floyd, district commissioner, of Belleville, was the guest of honor, and in a short speech she warmly congratulated the newly-enrolled Guides and mentioned her pleasure in the enthusiasm shown by the Point Anne Company as a whole.

After the ceremony the new Guides served coffee and cookies to the parents and friends who were present.

During the campfire, the captain expressed the thanks of the whole company to three Belleville Guides, Bonnie Gousell, Sherrill Stables, Sally MacKenzie, of the 5th Belleville Company, who gave up their own meeting to come to Point Anne to act as a color party for the enrollment ceremony. The Belleville Guides also taught the girls several new Guide songs.

The meeting closed with evensong and taps.

CLINTON, Ont. (CP) — A court martial Monday sentenced AC2 George A. Morrice, 18, to two years imprisonment and dismissal with disgrace from Her Majesty's service when he was found guilty of setting a $50,000 barrack fire at Clinton Royal Canadian Air Force station Feb. 3.

Dismissal is subject to approval of the minister of national defence.

The mother of the accused took the stand on her son's behalf before sentence was handed down. She gave evidence of past illnesses. The defence pleaded for just dismissal.

Th young airman from Medicine Hat, Alta., had pleaded innocent, and, in defence, had claimed loss of memory on events about the time the fire gutted a barrack block.

Prince Edward Legislature Opens Session

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The number of provincial legislatures in session was increased to six today as the Prince Edward Island house opened its 1958 sitting.

The others still active are Ontario, Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Columbia. Quebec and Newfoundland have prorogued their sessions and New Brunswick and Nova Scotia recessed Friday until April 8 to allow members to stump for candidates in the March 31 federal election.

Apparently neither Premier Alex Matheson nor R. R. Bell, House leader of the Progressive Conservative party, felt such a move was necessary in P.E.I. The Liberals hold 26 of the province's 30 provincial seats, but the PCs won all four federal ridings in last June's election.

The biggest item of business during the P.E.I. session is expected to be the provision of increased revenue needed to met the province's $1,000,000 bill for its part in the federal-provincial hospital insurance plan.

UNIVERSAL THREE WEEKS

In Saskatchewan Monday, Labor Minister C. C. Williams announced plans for legislation to give three weeks paid holidays a year to employees with more than five years service with the same employer.

He said it will affect only 12 per cent of the employees in the province. At present two weeks paid holiday is required after a full year's service.

Alberta's Highways Minister Gordon Taylor accused the country's railways of trying to eliminate all competition from the independent trucking companies.

Mr. Taylor said many companies throughout Canada have been bought by the Canadian Pacific Railway and the Canadian National Railways may follow suit.

"PIGGY-BACK"

He said the railways plan to "piggy -back" all laden truck trailers to their destinations on flatcars, eliminating all need for long-haul truckers.

The federal government, Mr. Taylor said, could protect the truckers by amending the Transport Act to rule out "agreed charges" whereby a railway carries a fixed percentage of goods for a special rate. These charges, he said, were being used to squeeze out truckers.

A bill to give naturopaths complete control of their own profession was introduced Monday in the British Columbia legislature by Health Minister Eric Martin. The bill would eliminate the board of supervisors, all non-naturopaths, which was set up in 1948 to observe the profession and rule on applications for naturopathy certificates.

Pearson More Forthright In Campaign Talks, Crowds Now Larger, More Attentive

As the final half of the election campaign opens, a CP reporter covering Liberal Leader Pearson's tour reviews the issues emphasized by Mr. Pearson through the campaign's first three weeks.

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Lester B. (Mike) Pearson appears to be coming off the ropes in his gruelling struggle for the political championship.

Less apologetic and more forthright in his speeches, he appears also to have gained a better feeling of crowd reactions as he carries his peace - and - prosperity message across the country.

His audiences have become larger and more attentive. His own political organization appears to have gained in strength and cohesion. And among his own handlers, the spirit has definitely brightened.

"Well, what would you expect?' he replied when asked to comment on indications that he appeared a bit groggy and slow in the campaign opening.

TWO WEEKS' TRAINING

"It was like putting a man into a championship fight with only two weeks' training. That's all the time I had between the time I became Liberal leader and the date the election was called.

"And you couldn't even call it training. I had to spend that time in the House of Commons. I had no time to reorganize the party. I had to go in almost raw.

"It's getting easier for me now. I feel a lot more confident of the future than when I started."

It appears that with half the campaign over, the shy, rather quiet-spoken former diplomat—given more to reflective conversation than dazzling oratory—has gradually found his political footing.

He talks less of the mistakes of the Liberal party's past and more of the bright new future he sees ahead. He has given his team a clearer shape and personality — "the new party, the party of reform, the party of the left."

He drives himself with a relentless fury. There is no day of rest; no time for leisure. Yet the 60-year-old Mr. Pearson appears in good physical shape.

NEW PARTY SPIRIT

At the end of the first three weeks of campaigning, after he had covered parts of Ontario and toured the four western provinces, Mr. Pearson told Liberal supporters in Quebec to take heart. He had found a "great spirit of life, hope, energy, enthusiasm and optimism in our party."

He carried the same message to every province: Return the Liberals to power to restore prosperity. Everywhere he argued the advantage of his proposed $400,000,000 tax cuts over Prime Minister Diefenbaker's $1,100,000,000 works program.

He criticized the Conservatives for calling a winter election when Parliament should be meeting to deal with critical unemployment. He hammered away at Mr. Diefenbaker's proposed 15 - per - cent switch in Canada's imports from the United States to Britain, arguing this kind of proposal makes food for tariff protectionists at Washington.

He emphasized the need for peace and asked voters to compare his own qualifications to find peace with those of the Conservatives. And he warned of the horrors of atomic war if peace is not secured.

NO MONOPOLY

The Conservatives reacted by saying that Mr. Pearson, 1957 Nobel Peace Prize winner, had not been the first to suggest a United Nations force for the Middle East, claiming that this proposal first was made by Mr. Diefenbaker in January, 1956. Mr. Pearson replied that no country had a monopoly on such a proposal.

But he added that if he became prime minister, he would press ahead for a permanent UN police force and for the development of free trade among the Atlantic powers.

At Vancouver he promised also to send a ministerial trade mission to Communist China and to review the question of granting that country diplomatic recognition.

And at Cudworth, Sask., in the heart of Canada's wheat belt, he drove 70 miles through a snowstorm to promise new financial aid for farmers, including federal payments to cover the cost of storing wheat on farms, more extensive loans, moves to build up a NATO food bank and a strategic reserve of wheat on the European continent.

He drew large crowds at most gatherings, except perhaps at Regina where enthusiasm for the Liberals appeared somewhat low.

STUDENTS INTERESTED

At universities, students kept asking him about details of his pledge of $40,000 worth of scholarships and bursaries as well as a student loans fund, running perhaps to $40,000,000 or $50,000,000.

A smooth conversationalist, he seemed more at home speaking to small groups than mammoth audiences. At the outset his words appeared better phrased for a United Nations meeting than a political rally.

"He's such a nice guy," one high - placed provincial Liberal said of him, "but he's talking way over their heads!"

His rather high - pitched voice didn't add to audience appeal. But the likeable Mike has a charm of his own. He has a boyish sincerity about him which his supporters say will work its way into the nation's heart.

CCF HOUSE

R. K. Harris, president of Northern Ontario Natural Gas, had made a profit of "a cool $1,000,000" on a $300 investment.

"This makes profiteering on the Trans-Canada pipe line look like chickenfeed."

Mr. MacDonald said the former mines minister left the cabinet because of a "showdown" with the premier over the issue.

"The fact of the matter is the premier hasn't cleaned up—he has covered up."

Premier Frost replied that Mr. Kelly's resignation had "had nothing whatever to do" with the matter. He had resigned because he "intended to take part in businesses that weren't consonant with being a member of this government."

TOLD CABINET

Mr. Frost said that early in 1957 he told his cabinet not to have any financial interest in gas companies.

"I asked my colleagues not to invest in any company that might participate in the distribution of natural gas. I am satisfied they have carried out the directive I made."

As for municipalities in the Lakehead area, "if any municipality feels it isn't receiving justice or an agreement is not being lived up to, then the matter will be reviewed by the fuel board if there's an application."

But Mr. MacDonald was saying municipal officials were bribed, that "they didn't make any representations because they got something under the table."

This was a slur on officials such as Mayor Eunice Wishart of Port Arthur, "an unseemly thing to do, a cowardly thing to do."

Mr. Frost added: "I haven't heard of one single municipal official who is in this category—nor of any suspicions."

CITES SAFEFGUARDS

The premier said the government's policy protected consumers through the Ontario fuel board and investors through the Ontario Securities Commission.

High profits in stock deals did not affect gas rates—the fuel board permitted rates based on investment in plant and equipment. ....

"The securities commission protected investors by requiring that all distributions of stock to promotors be listed in a company's prospectus—"the policy is one of full disclosure."

Mr. Frost said he was not agreeing or disagreeing with stock concessions to promoters. Years ago it was decided that "the government of Ontario should not set itself up as an arbiter of what shares should be distributed and who should get them."

The premier waved a copy of the prospectus of Northern Ontario Natural Gas, which he said listed the names of all those who received stock. Mr. MacDonald asked to see it and after looking at it said some of the stocks distributed no longer are in the same hands—where had they gone?

KNOWS OF NONE

Mines Minister Spooner joined the debate with an assurance he knew of no municipal official receiving stocks, nor had he personally held any.

G. C. Wardrope (PC — Port Arthur) described Mr. MacDonald as one who "deals continually in chicanery and circumlocution."

Mayor Badanai and other Port Arthur officials had wanted assurances that Canadians and local residents would be part of the company that distributed natural gas in the area, and 400,000 shares had been purchased by local people.

"Of course there was controversy but now people are happy and they'll stay happy as long as the member for South York stays out and stops fanning the flames of dissension."

Coldwell Plans To Inquire Into Use of Mounties

SWIFT CURRENT, Sask. (CP) National CCF Leader M. J. Coldwell said Monday he will inquire into the use of Royal Canadian Mounted Police personnel at a campaign meeting addressed by Prime Minister Diefenbaker in Edmonton Saturday night.

Mr. Coldwell said in an interview he thinks such use of the RCMP is unprecedented and he objects to it. Any inquiry would be made after the March 31 election, he said, as he will have no opportunity to look into the matter during a brief stop over in Ottawa next Sunday.

"I can't see why anyone—even a prime minister—addressing a partisan public meeting, should have the advantage of the color and prestige of the RCMP," Mr. Coldwell said.

He had been told, he said, that 10 or 12 RCMP had formed a throughway for Mr. Diefenbaker when he arrived at the meeting. This was despite the fact that Alberta cities were policed by local forces.

"I think it is unprecedented," he said. "I have never seen it in all my years of political campaigning."

NOT FOR COLOR

EDMONTON (CP) — Assistant Commissioner G. P. McLellan of the RCMP detachment here said Monday his men were on hand at a campaign meeting held by Prime Minister Diefenbaker to control the crowd of some 5,000 persons, not for color or prestige.

CCF Leader M. J. Coldwell said he would inquire into use of RCMP personnel at the meeting, in Edmonton Saturday night.

Commissioner McLellan said the Northern Alberta Auditorium, where Mr. Diefenbaker spoke, is a provincially owned building and falls under RCMP jurisdiction.

Red-Hot Stretch-Run Looms In Race For NHL Scoring Championship

Sport Slices

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By Geo. H. Carver, Sports Editor

THIS IS IT!

Tonight it is sudden death, do-or-die and the winner take all. Last night in Kingston, the CKLC's had their backs to the elimination wall. Two hours later, they moved over to make room for the McFarlands.

We do not know if they make special keys to the city for outstanding services down in Roddenville, but if they do, they should cast a special brand for Master Lynn Davis, the keeper of the gate for the CKLC's.

With everything to lose, and the same to win, young Davis rose to some sort of hockey heights behind an inspired Kingston defence and in a flaming third period was the main reason why the CKLC's hurled back the desperation drives of the goal-hungry McFarlands. He kicked out everything they had to offer, especially when Gordie Bell was taken out of the nets twice in the dying seconds and the Macs swarmed all over and around his citadel.

The Kingston defence was "up" for this one. It clustered in front of Davis with telling effect except on one occasion when with a man short it opened a chink and Russ Kowalchuk powered a drive into the net for the only McFarland goal of the game. The McFarland shooting could have been better at times for on not a few occasions they missed the net or blasted the puck off Davis' pads.

Eddie Marineau was missing from the lineup due to an ankle sprain suffered during last Friday's game. It is doubtful if he will be in harness tonight. Coach Ike Hildebrand sent Russ Kowalchuk back into the fray after a two-game rest and the big fella came up with a fine performance which included the only goal of the game. Joe Lepine was sidelined for the game with Moe Benoit taking his familiar spot behind the McFarland blueline.

Tonight's "in-or-out" game should be a thriller. Either the Macs or the CKLC's will hang up the gear after it is over—unless it ends in a tie—and neither club has any intentions of doing just that. The Macs will have the advantage of home ice, but they will have to go all out to pull this one out of the bag. The same goes for the Bun Cook crew and after last night's victory they are fully confident they can take the McFarlands in their own backyard and advance into the finals.

But if they do they will know they have been in a ball game. The Macs aren't feeling any too happy about letting last night's tilt slip through their fingers. They have beaten Kingston here before—and they feel they can do it again. It should be a honey of a battle with both clubs keyed for the all-important struggle that sees one club or the other go into seasonal oblivion.

Coach Ike Hildebrand may shake up his troops tonight but that will not be known until game time. The absence of Eddie Marineau makes quite a difference to the offensive strength of the Macs and Hildebrand may adjust his shock troops to fit into his attack scheme. The game will get under way at 8.30.

PLAYOFF JAMS

OHA president Lorne Cook scratched a puzzled head in the Kingston Community Centre after the game last night. "These playoffs are developing all the earmarks of a traffic jam," he said.

Unexpected developments are causing a cluttering of dates. It seems the Pembroke-Cornwall game played in Cornwall Sunday has been ruled "No Contest" and that series reverts back to Pembroke 3, Cornwall 2. The two-all tie played on Sunday was tossed out because it was not finished. It seems the game was delayed because the Cornwall faithful wanted to hear the Whitby-Russian game and the management stalled the start of the local hassle to coincide. Result: - - the game was not completed by the local six o'clock curfew.

The sixth game will be played in Pembroke tonight and if the Kings win, they are in. If not, the teams go back at it again in Cornwall tomorrow night. If the game results in a tie, it will toss another monkey wrench into the playoff machinery since the Eastern League finals have been ordered to start on Thursday night.

The Kingston-Belleville series should be concluded here tonight, but, as President Cook said, there is possibility of a tie here and the deciding game being played either on the toss of a coin or on neutral ice. The same applies to the Cornwall-Pembroke series.

In any event Cook said the Eastern league finals will resolve into a game-a-night affair in order to coincide with the playoffs of the Porcupine Mines league. A winner in this group must be declared by March 20. If the finals series goes to seven games it will mean rapid-fire hockey packaged into one-night doses.

Stops Bout for 'Not Trying'

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Referee Francis Kercheval called a halt in the scheduled 10-rounder between welterweights Tony Dupas of New Orleans and Clarence Cook of Bastrop, La., in the seventh round Monday night and disqualified Cook for "not trying."

Dupas, younger brother of lightweight contender Ralph Dupas, concentrated on a body attack and the taller Cook was unable to solve the perpetual attack. Cook's only effort was to grab and hold as often as possible.

Kercheval said he warned Cook several times to "try harder."

Dupas, a slim favorite at fight time, weighed 158, Cook 154.

'Pocket', Moore, Bathgate Peek Over Shoulders at Howe Who Trails by Nine Points

MONTREAL (CP) — While the National Hockey League's top three point-getters fought to a standoff last week, Gordie Howe of Detroit Red Wings doubled the output of each of the closely bunched trio.

The big Detroit right winger, still in fourth place, scored three goals and one assist and now trails top-man Dickie Moore of Montreal Canadiens by only nine points.

Moore leads with 75 points, followed by Andy Bathgate of New York Rangers and Henri (Pocket Rocket) Richard of Montreal, each with 71. Making a bid to retain his NHL scoring title, Howe's output last week sent his total to 66 points.

None of the three leaders, each playing in two games compared with three for Howe, could do better than two points and each scored them in one of their two games.

ANDY SLOWS DOWN

Moore bagged two goals, the little Rocket getting assists on both, and Bathgate, who ran wild with points the previous two weeks, counted one goal and one assist.

The scramble for the title now appears to be among these four players, with indications of a red hot stretch run to the March 23 finish.

To date Moore has piled up 34 goals and 41 assists. Bathgate has a 29-42 count, Richard 25-46 and Howe 30-36.

Moore's 34 goals are tops in that department. Closest is Camille Henry of New York with 31, then Howe with 30. Henri Richard sets the assists pace with 46, four more than Bathgate.

Bronco Horvath of Boston fell behind the leaders last week with only a single assist but remains in fifth place with 59 points.

MOVES UP FIVE PLACES

Eddie Litzenberger of the last-place Chicago Black Hawks came up with a seven-point production on three goals and four assists, bouncing into sixth place from 11th with his 54 points. Camille Henry, who counted two goals and one assist, is next with 52.

Invalid Bernie Geoffrion of Montreal, out since Jan. 28, slipped back into a four-way tie for eighth place at 50 points.

Don McKenney of Boston matched Litzenberger's three goals and four assists to join the 50 bracket, moving up from a 14th - place tie. With him are teammate Vic Stasiuk, with two assists last week, and Alex Delvecchio of Detroit whose production was one goal and one assist.

The only shakeup in the team standings last week was Boston's move into third place, Detroit dropping back a notch. Bruins were the only club to escape defeat, playing four games and racking up two wins and two ties. They have a one-point margin now over the Red Wings.

Two Biltmores Purchased by Junior Habs

GUELPH (CP) — Goaltender Bruce Gamble and defenceman Wally Chevrier, formerly of Guelph Biltmores of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series, Monday joined Ottawa-Hull Canadiens in return for an undisclosed amount of cash.

The move, which has caused considerable controversy in the Junior A council and the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, gives Canadiens replacements for netminder Eric Reid, declared "medically unfit," and defenceman Claude Ruel, who lost the sight of an eye through a hockey injury.

Gamble and Chevrier will be used in Canadiens' quest for the Canadian junior championship and their first series will be against the winner of the OHA Junior A title.

The other OHA Junior A clubs have objected to the transfer, permitted by the CAHA, because the deadline for replacements was passd before the deal was made.

George Dudley, CAHA secretary-manager, said the deadline was extended because of the uncertain condition of Ruel's eye and because Claude Cyr, used as a replacement for Reid in nets, was not used in any games the CAHA considers were regular scheduled games.

Tony Anthony Meets Durelle On Friday

NEW YORK (AP) — If confidence can turn the trick, Tony Anthony is all set for a return shot at Archie Moore's world light heavyweight championship.

Who's Anthony?

A good question. He is the bloke who has been on the sidelines for the last five months after being belted out by ol' Archie in Los Angeles last summer. It took Moore just seven rounds.

But youth never gets discouraged, and at 23, Anthony is hoping for another try. First, of course, he must get past Yvon Durelle, the fishing fleet owner from Baie Ste. Anne, N.B., when he isn't fighting.

That one is scheduled for Friday in Madison Square Garden and the International Boxing Club has its fingers crossed. The fight already has been called off twice.

But Anthony now has the floor.

"I made several mistakes against Moore," he said. "The worst was my failure to grab and hold when he hurt me. I might have gotten by if I had.

"Now I've learned to tie a guy up when he hits me. It's not natural for me to clinch, so I found it hard to learn.

"As for Durelle, he's a heavy, bruising puncher who throws them from all angles. But he's not a sharp puncher. That kind can be dangerous. He's also awkwardly clever in slipping in punches."

Venturi, Casper, Burkemo Lead Orleans Open

NEW ORLEANS (CP) — The final 36 holes of the $20,000 New Orleans Open got under way today with Ken Venturi, Bill Casper and Walter Burkemo the men to beat for the title.

Venturi, from San Francisco, scrambled for a 71 Monday after carding an opening round 68 to fall into the tie with Burkemo, from Franklin Hills, Mich., and Casper, Apple Valley, Calif.

Burkemo came in with a four-under-par 68 after posting 71 in the first round and Casper tacked a 70 on to his first round 69 as they shared the lead with Venturi at 139.

Those with scores over 147 were eliminated, cutting the eight-man Canadian contingent to four for today's play.

The 36 - hole finals today was necessitated because of the heavy rains that postponed the tournament's opening until Sunday. The Professional Golfers Association ruled the event had to be completed today to allow the touring pros to move on to Pensacola, Fla., where a $15,000 tournament opens Thursday.

Gene Littler of Singing Hills, Calif., tied with Venturi and Billy Maxwell of Odessa, Tex., for the first-round lead, took a 78 to drop out of the top 20. Maxwell came in with 72 to tie Bill Nary, Wayne, Mich., Mike Krak, Morgantown, W. Va., and Arnold Palmer of Latrobe, Pa., for a spot behind the three leaders.

The fairways on the 6,700-yard course were still soggy from the weekend rains and winter rules, whereby a player could improve his lie, were still in effect.

Meet Dean Lane

Illustrious Faculty Heads Cleveland Baseball College

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Frank Lane, Cleveland Indians general manager, has never been one to run out of ideas and he seems at his best when promulating a few.

Anyone hanging around the Indians training camp at Tucson, Ariz., these days will tell you that Lane has probably out-Barnumed Mr. Bailey of the circus duo with his present spring training camp setup and some ideas for the coming 1958 baseball season.

Lane has provided manager Bobby Bragan with three full time coaches, five former major league stars as "instructors" and a former Olympic track star to round out his illustrious faculty.

Lane, as dean of this curious college, is Overseer Extraordinary, telling his professors what to do after they have told the players what to do.

FINE INSTRUCTORS

It's hard to see where a team can go wrong with men like Mel Harder handling pitchers and Eddie Stanky and Red Kress handling general instructional duties. These are the full-time aides.

Visiting profs include Tris Speaker, with courses in hitting and fielding, Clyde McCullough on catching, Jo-Jo White on bunting and Hoot Evers and Bob Kennedy on hitting.

In between these classes Lane offers a few suggestions for general consumption.

The latest is the planting of microphones behind home plate and the first and third base coaching lines so the fans can listen in on confabs, rhubarbs and general banter.

NEEDS LEAGUE APPROVAL

All of this would be with the league's approval and would be controlled in the press box.

Elsewhere around the training camps, New York Yankees, lost their third straight exhibition game as Boston Red Sox defeated them 8-5. The Red Sox played without Ted Williams, who took about eight swings in batting practice, then complained of a pulled thigh muscle. It was not considered serious.

Los Angeles Dodgers broke out with five runs in the seventh inning to knock over the Milwaukee Braves, 7-5, while Philadelphia Phillies scored 11 runs in the sixth inning to rout St. Louis Cards, 18-8.

Other games found Cincinnati beating Kansas City 5-3 on home runs by Smoky Burgess and rookie Valdo Pison, Albie Pearson batting in four runs to lead Washington Senators to a 7-4 victory over Pittsburgh and Chicago White Sox edging Detroit 5-4 in 10 innings.

Kingston Edges McFarlands 2-1 To Force Series Into Seventh Game

Goalie Davis Thriller Hero Youngberg Scoring Winner; Do-Or-Die Here Tonight

By GEORGE H. CARVER
Sports Editor

Fired by the superlative work of youthful Lynn Davis in their nets, the Kingston CKLC's bounced back from two decisive defeats last night to edge the McFarlands 2-1 and square the Eastern Senior League semi-finals at three victories each.

The seventh and deciding game of the series will be played here tonight, the winners meeting the victors of the Pembroke-Cornwall series starting probably on Thursday night.

While Davis hurled back everything the Macs threw at him but once in two periods, he rose to heights in a dazzling third period when the league leaders surged around his citadel and did everything but dent his armor. They threw six attackers at him on two occasions in the last minute of the game when Gordie Bell was taken out of the net, but the youngster and a clustered defence successfully defended their slim goal-margin.

Whitey Youngberg was the other hero of the hard-fought tussle scoring the winning goal midway through the third period when he flipped a loose puck over the prostrate body of Gordie Bell during a wild scramble around the Belleville goal.

COLVIN STARTED IT

Billy Colvin the league's leading points-getter finally got into the scoring column putting the CKLC's one up midway through the second frame after the teams had battled to a first - frame scoreless tie.

Russ Kowalchuk, back in harness after a two-game rest played an outstanding game throughout and scored the only McFarlands' goal whipping the puck behind Davis to tie the count in the second frame with Bellringer cooling off in the hoosegow.

Referee Bill Balmer, of Toronto was not overworked handing out nine minors, five to the Macs and strangely enough, eight of the sentences went to defencemen.

Coach Ike Hildebrand benched Lepine using Moe Benoit back in his familiar spot. Eddie Marineau was sidelined with an ankle injury and the Macs coach was forced to juggle his lines.

Both teams used organized attacks in a close-checking first period with both goalies having narrow escapes.

Thomson drew the first penalty but the Macs power play failed to produce. Levandoski went off at mid-period but again the Kingston defence held, although Kowalchuk and Guidolin rolled shots by a post.

Jones went off for tripping at 13.10 but Bell and his penalty-killers took care of the Kingston power plays. Just before period end Benoit was chased for boarding. Kingston outshot the Macs 10-7 in the period.

The Macs survived a rash of sentences early in the second period with superb penalty-killing work. Benoit had four seconds to serve when Botley was chased. He was still in when Benoit was waved off again. The Macs defence held and no damage was done.

Gauthier slammed Kowalchuk heavily in the boards and the crowd roared when the big defenceman was chased.

Billy Colvin opened the game up when he scored the first goal, stealing the puck at the Macs blueline and racing in to beat Bell with a low backhand drive. Youngberg almost duplicated the feat seconds later, then Bellringer was chased for slashing.

The Macs poured on the power play and it paid off a minute later when Russ Kowalchuk tied the score with a drive from the left of the net. Botley was given the heave-ho for holding at [illegible]0 but the CKLCs failed to do anything about it.

The Macs roared to the attack opening the third frame, and Benoit's slapshot from fifteen feet out was wide. Anderson slipped through to the Belleville blueline and missed, then Johnny Muretich's close-in shot was outside the mark. Then Menard and Guidolin got through with a neat passing play but Davis kicked out the latter's drive.

The fortunes of victory changed at 11.14 on a CKLC power drive when Youngberg flipped the loose puck over Gordie Bell's prostrate body.

The McFarlands roared back to the attack but brilliant work by Davis and his defence thwarted their every effort. Bell was taken out of the net at 18.45 and the Macs surged around Davis with no luck. The CKLCs got the puck out of danger and Bell went back to the pipes. He was out again at 19.34 and again the Macs applied the pressure. Partridge was slipped the puck by Levandoski, skated out into the clear, but his shot missed the yawning Belleville net by ten feet. Then it was over. The Macs outshot the winners 26-24 on the night's play. The crowd was announced as 2,482.

Minor Hockey

The Rangers scored a sudden-death 2-1 victory over the Browns at Memorial Arena yesterday evening to earn their way into the city squirt semi-finals.

The two clubs were tied 4-4 after both games of their two-game, goals-to-count series, forcing the sudden-death fixture. Rangers now meet the Red Wings in one-half of the semi-finals while Barons and Maple Leafs meet in the other half. This series too is a goals-to-count affair and gets under way on Wednesday evening at 6 p.m.

Doug Olsen fired the deciding goal for the Rangers in last night's encounter while Jim Clark got the club's other goal. Rickey Williamson was the lone Browns marksman.

Wednesday night's minor hockey schedule now shows the Barons and Leafs and the Wings and Rangers meeting at 6 p.m. The all-stars will practice at 7.00 and the midget playoff between Home and School and the T.P.T.s will get under way at 8.00 p.m.

Machen, Folley Bout Postponed

Matchmaker Benny Ford said Monday the fight will be nationally televised with the same 300-mile blackout radius around San Francisco as planned for the original date.

Mario Spampinato, Machen's trainer, said the Redding, Calif., Negro, rated No. 1 contender for Floyd Patterson's crown, pulled the shoulder muscle sparring 10 days ago.

Spampinato said Machen laid off workouts in hopes the muscle injury would come around. But he said Dr. Sam Sherman was consulted and the physician recommended another week's rest.

'Ole Archie' Wins by TKO In Seventh

VANCOUVER (CP) — Chubby Archie Moore of San Diego, Calif light heavyweight champion of the world, won by a technical knockout at one minute and 45 seconds of the seventh round Monday night over blood - spattered Bob Albright of Los Angeles in a scheduled 10-round non-title bout. Moore weighed 201½, Albright 227.

Moore's precision punching and neat beard were the only trim things about him. The 41-year-old champ was fat and slow afoot but was unmarked at the fight's end.

Albright was cut above the left eye, lip and nose. His face, upper arms and chest were covered with a slick of blood.

The crowd of about 2,600 warmed to Albright as the rounds went by. Expected to be a sitting duck for ancient Archie, he forced the fight for the first two or three rounds but then the table turned.

Push Probe Into Shooting Of Jockey

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Investigation continued today into the shooting of veteran jockey Jack Skelly, in hospital in critical condition with a head wound.

Skelly was shot in a Fort Lauderdale motel where he was staying, and underwent brain surgery at Miami.

Police sought to determine whether Skelly's wound was a suicide attempt, an accident or from some other cause. The bullet, from a German - made automatic, entered the 35-year-old jockey's right temple, came out through his forehead and struck his left arm.

Skelly won the $100,000 Arlington Park Futurity last summer on Leather Button, his most outstanding mount, when the first horse under the wire was disqualified.

The shooting was discovered Monday and police learned he had weight difficulties in recent weeks and was on a strict reducing diet. Skelly also failed to attend the christening Sunday of his five-day-old son.

Petes, Cubs Battle to Tie

PETERBOROUGH (CP) — Hamilton Cubs and Peterborough Petes battled to a 3-3 tie Monday night, leaving Hamilton ahead 2-1 in their best - of - five Ontario Hockey, Association Junior A quarter-final.

The game may have been costly for the Cubs. Star forward Murray Oliver, voted the league's most valuable player recently, slammed into the goal-post after scoring early in the third period and was taken from the game. It was believed he suffered a broken arm.

Play was hard but clean after one fight in the first period that cost Jim Mikol of Peterborough and Brian Smith of Cubs major penalties. Cubs drew five of the eight penalties.

Cubs led 1-0 in the first period but trailed 3-1 going into the third. The teams meet again Thursday at Hamilton.

Marmora Upsets Madoc Blues 5-3 In 1st Game Intermediate C Finals

MADOC — (Special) — Marmora Millionaires scored the only two goals of the second period here last night and went on from there to defeat Madoc Blue-and-Whites 5-3 in the first game of their OHA intermediate "C" group finals.

The second game in the four-of-seven series is slated for Marmora on Wednesday night with the remaining games in Madoc on Friday, Marmora on Monday, Madoc on Wednesday, Marmora on Friday and Madoc on Monday, March 24 if the series goes that far.

The ice in Madoc was soft last night and Madoc manager Ken Holmes reported this morning that his club would play their home games in Marmora unless their ice was greatly improved. Madoc has natural ice while Marmora has artificial ice in Dr. Crawford Memorial Arena.

Madoc took a 1-0 lead in the opening heat last night before approximately 700 fans but Marmora came back strong with the only two goals of the second period.

The clubs traded markers twice early in the third period to give Marmora a 4-3 lead near the end of the game. Madoc lifted the goalie in favor of an extra attacker in the dying minutes but the move backfired as Ken Trumble scored for Marmora into the open net at 19.59.

Referees Art Casterton and Ken Partis, both of Kingston, handled the game with ease and doled out 11 penalties. Madoc drew seven with Marmora scoring twice while the home club was shorthanded.

Jones and Trumble with a goal and assist paced the Marmora point getters while Brooks and Gus Leonard each had two assists. Bob Maynes, Mantle and Earl Cousins had a goal apiece.

Malta Has Too Many Mouths To Feed Without Outside Help

By ALAN HARVEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Premier Dom Mintoff, whose volatile temperament may partly account for some of the more melodramatic moments in recent relations between Britain and Malta, has arrived in London for new talks on the island's future.

Malta's problem is that her only asset is her strategic importance as a military base, and that this is being devalued by developments in the nuclear age. Malta no longer is indispensable.

Meanwhile, as somebody has said, "you can't eat a George Cross," and the island that won a decoration for wartime bravery simply has too many mouths to feed without outside help.

TAXLESS SECURITY

Britain has provided generous financial help and the two countries have pronounced themselves broadly in favor of "integration." Under this proposal, Malta would in effect become virtually a British county, sending members of Parliament to Westminster.

Negotiations, conducted over a two-year period, broke down because, British sources contend, Mintoff wants the "welfare state without taxes"—a social security system comparable to that of taxation.

Last December Mintoff, a likable but sometimes excitable personality, made headlines by threatening that Malta would secede from the Commonwealth unless Britain guaranteed Malta against unemployment. It is widely accepted, however, that some way or other the island must find a way out in conjunction with Britain.

CANADA CHOOSY

A strictly Roman Catholic country, with a fecund population, Malta has about 320,000 persons living in an area of 96 square miles.

She has tried to shift some of the surplus population to Canada, the United States and Australia. But the McCarran Act has dried up emigration to the U.S. and Maltese officials in London say Canada seems "rather choosy" about accepting Maltese. Some have settled happily, usually as fruit growers in Ontario, but Canada's cold climate is not ideal.

5000 ATTEND ONTARIO WINTERAMA

After a two-week postponement because of bad weather, the annual winter carnival at Penelanguishene, Ont., attracted a record crowd of 5,000 persons to watch snowshoe, dog and scoot races. The scoots, propeller-equipped sleds, travelled over the ice at over 100 mph for the world championship. Queen of the carnival, Karen Robinson, sits on a husky-drawn sled while back of her are Loraine La Croix, last year's queen, and Mary O'Leiry and Barbara Labatte, runner-up for the title.

By BOB THOMAS

This is Elsa Lanchester's attitude to her nomination for an academy award as the best supporting actress in Witness for the Prosecution. Although hailed as one of the screen's most surefire performers, she has never won the big prize.

This year she could do it. But Elsa isn't waiting around to see. As soon as she finishes her role as a witch in Bell, Book and Candle, she and husband, Charles Laughton, take off to do a play in England. They will leave a few days before the Oscar event March 26.

"It can't be helped," she says airily.

The Laughtons both won Oscar nominations for Witness for the Prosecution."

APPEAR TOGETHER

They will appear together in London in a new play, The Party, which they'll take to New York if it's a success. This will be their first stage appearance together in over 20 years. In the mid-thirties, he played Captain Hook for her Peter Pan in England.

"We're doing the play together because if just one of us did it, we would be apart for a year or so," she explained. "There's no sense in that; you might as well be divorced. Still, I don't think we'd want to appear together all the time. That would get pretty dull.

"Charles and I haven't done more together for the reason that it is hard to find a vehicle with two good character parts. It was different with a pair like Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontanne, who were very good looking sex-stars and could take a bit of froth and whip it up into a success."

One of the things that annoys them is that the public expects them to live up to their screen characters.

"Everyone expects Charles to be a bully," she observed, "but he isn't at all. He's very gentle."

Elsa is also expected to be a wacky eccentric, which she isn't.

"It's acting," she said. "If I had to play myself, it would be a very dull character indeed."

THROWS TOMATOES AT SCREEN STAR

Evelyn West, a night club performer, is led to a police station after she tossed ripe tomatoes at Anita Ekberg, screen star, in a Miami, Fla., theatre. Miss West says she tossed the tomatoes because Miss Ekberg walked out of the night club in which Miss West was performing when the act was half over.

OSD Girls Win Second Consecutive COSSA Senior 'B' Basketball Title

The OSD senior girls' basketball team brought the Quinte district its only championship in the COSSA tournaments held in Barrie and Peterborough on Saturday. Representing Quinte district in the senior "B" playoffs in Barrie, the OSD girls eliminated Bracebridge High School in the first round by a score of 41 to 33, and went on to the finals to defeat Port Perry, who had eliminated Lakefield in the other first round game by a decisive margin, 42 to 24. This is the second successive year that the OSD girls have brought the senior "B" COSSA honors to this district.

The OSD junior girls also represented the Quinte district but lost their first round game in a hard-fought game against Gravenhurst High School by the slim margin of one point, the final score being 25 to 24. The Gravenhurst girls lost out in the final against Brock District High School by one point, 41 to 40, so that only 2 points separated the first three teams in junior competition.

In the afternoon game against Bracebridge, the OSD seniors got off to a rather slow start, but once beyond the first quarter they never looked back. Scores were, at quarter time, 5-10 for Bracebridge, half time 17-15 for OSD, three-quarter time, 30-25 for OSD, and at full time, 41-33 for OSD.

High scorer for OSD was Marlene Caldwell, with 29 points. Other team members were Evelyn Caldwell 7 points, Barbara Beaumont 3 points, Patsy Bishop, Bernice Spence, Diane Lew, Betty Williams, Marilyn Bishop, Nancy Moon, Margaret Schneller, Lillian Kluba and Donna Roult.

TAKE TWO OSD GIRLS

In the evening final against Port Perry, the play was again see-saw through the first half. Quarter time score was 11-5 for OSD, half-time 17-15 for Port Perry, third quarter time 27-18 for OSD, and the final score 42-24 for OSD.

Marlene Caldwell again paced the winners with 34 points. Sister Evelyn Caldwell followed with 5 points, Barbara Beaumont got 3 and Diane Lew 1. The spectacular shooting of foul shots by Marlene and Evelyn Caldwell was an outstanding feature of the game. The OSD team gained 16 points through free shots, largely due to their unerring accuracy.

The junior game against Gravenhurst was a real battle throughout. Although OSD had the edge by two or three points throughout most of the game they lost in the final minutes by 25-24. High scorer for OSD was Donna Mosher with 11 points. Other team members were: Geraldine O'Dell, Elaine Bennett, Beverley Clayton, Ruth Massicotte 4 pts., Margaret Munsie 9, Jean Shaw, Elizabeth Spark, Lee Hunter, Carol Palmer, Beth Wright and Lorna Gilders.

Harvard Purchases TV Hour To Present Case of College

By CHARLES MERCER

NEW YORK (AP)—Some people probably were a little surprised to learn that Harvard College had purchased an hour of time on the CBS radio network to present a program March 28 entitled "the case for the college."

We are accustomed to thinking of both radio and television as a kind of market place.

We're so advertising-sponsor conscious these days that the first question in many minds after learning that a college was sponsoring an hour of radio time for the first time in the history of broadcasting probably was: what's in this for Harvard?

NO SELF INTEREST

The answer is that for Harvard College itself it does not expect to gain anything in particular.

As far as can be learned here it appears that with this effort Harvard basically is doing as much for dear old Siwash as it is for Harvard. It's true that the moderator of the program will be President Nathan M. Pusey of Harvard and that those participating will be Harvard alumni and undergraduates.

But a principal purpose is to try to help rid some people of the notion that a college—not just Harvard, but any liberal college—is an ivory tower isolated from the rest of the world.

A glance at the plans for the program indicates that it seeks to make another point especially important in these times.

Many people seem to visualize the educational process as a kind of assembly line on which bright youths will be turned, tooled and sprayed to emerge as shining weapons against a potential enemy.

But it's not that simple.

In expending the effort and money to bring these facts to the attention of a national audience Harvard is performing a genuine public service that shows the modern American college definitely is not an ivory tower.

RELEASED BY KOREANS

Pilot Willis P. Hobbs, of Vallejo, Calif., is greeted by his wife at Panmunjom, Korea. Hobbs, co-pilot Lt.-Col. Howard McLellan (right), of Buchanan, Mich., and 24 others were released by the Korean Reds after the plane on which they had travelled had been hijacked. The two Americans were elated to be back but they declined to say anything about the abduction of the plane. The South Korean passengers confirmed what Republic of Korea police investigations already had uncovered—that seven Communist agents took the commercial aircraft over at gunpoint and forced the pilots to fly to a field near Pyongyang, North Korean capital.

Calls on Hees To Deny Seaway Offices to Move

CORNWALL (CP) — Lionel Chevrier, former chairman of the St. Lawrence Seaway Authority, called Monday night on Transport Minister Hees to deny reports Cornwall will not be the site of the Seaway Authority headquarters.

Mr. Chevrier, former transport minister in the Liberal government, told an audience of 2,000 in this seaway-conscious city the reports are that only a portion of the headquarters will be situated in the $1,500,000 headquarters building near completion here.

The Liberals had promised to locate the headquarters in Cornwall, he told a rally supporting her for Stormont, Mr. Chevrier's old riding. If the Conservative government does not honor that pledge "they will be doing a grave injustice to Cornwall and this whole area."

He said the Conservatives are "ashamed of the seaway because it is a Liberal accomplishment—the greatest project of international relationships that United States and Canada have."

Mr. Chevrier resigned his seat to become chairman of the Seaway Authority, but re-entered political life last June when he won the Montreal Laurier riding for the Liberals.

CITY RENAMED

MOSCOW (AP)—Both the region and the city of Voroshilovgrad in the Ukraine, named for Russia's President Klementi Voroshilov, have been renamed Lugansk, the Soviet press reports. The change results from a new policy of not naming cities, villages and districts after living persons.

Rents, H-Bomb And Home Rule Election Issues

GLASGOW (Reuters) — House rents, the H-bomb and home rule for Scotland are key issues in a political battle here for a vacant seat in the London House of Commons.

Voters in the Kelvingrove district of this industrial of this industrial city decide Thursday whether the Conservative government retains the seat or suffers another blow to its apparently dwindling prestige.

Byelections for more than a year have shown diminishing Conservative support. from the death of Walter Elliot, an "elder stateman" of the Conservative party. He retained the seat at the last general election in 1955 by a majority of only 2,888 votes in a straight fight with Labor.

This time the battle is mainly between two women, with two male candidates intervening to befog the issues for both Conservatives and socialists. Elliot's widow, Katherine, has been chosen to defend the seat for the government party.

But local Liberals and Scottish nationalists, seeking self-government for Scotland rather than being administered from London, are backing newspaper man David Murray, who labels his candidature "Liberal — Home Rule."

Present standing in the 630-seat House of Commons is: Conservatives and allies 335, Labor 279, Liberals 5, Independent 9, vacant 2.

GOLD-PLATED

"Yet gold, as a metal, has many physical and chemical properties that are unique and useful, particularly in this age of high-temperature and pressure-corrosive chemistry."

Platinum sells at two to three times the price of gold, and yet 90 per cent of it goes into industry.

"There is the increasing use by the Germans of gold in glass manufacture for glare reduction; the development, by American reactor-design groups, of gold-lined atomic reactor cores; research on gold as a glare- and heat-reflecting skin for space vehicles; the exciting experimental work with radioactive gold in increasing fuel-burning efficiencies by as much as 50 per cent; the use of radio-active gold as a fume or smoke eliminator; its use as an ideal metal for acid-corrosion resistance in the moderate-temperature range, where there is no scour, as in pipes, valves and tanks. In certain applications an effective gold lining will actually cost less than rubber.

AS A CATALYST

"There is some suggestion that radioactive gold may be as effective as the much-costlier platinum as a catalyst in the oil and other industries.

"Use of gold in metal alloys is little understood, but already certain gold-palladium alloys have produced very encouraging results in electronic devices that must operate in corrosive atmospheres or liquids.

"Some recent work in America is developing gold-pigment paints suitable for application to wood, metal or ceramic. I am not being entirely facetious when I say that this last use alone may offer fantastic promise. Today's way of life is simply waiting for everything to be gold-plated, from the bathtub to the garbage can."

Mr. Joubin suggested that gold producers form an industrial gold research board, which they might finance either through a membership levy or through agreement that a small portion of assistance received under the emergency gold mining act be diverted for this purpose.

ADENAUER HONORED

COLOGNE (Reuters) — Chancellor Adenauer Monday was invested with the insignia of an Honorary Knight of the Teutonic Order for his "services to the Christian occident." Austrian Chancellor Julius Raab, who attended the colorful West German ceremony at the 12th century St. Andrea's Church here, is expected to confer with Adenauer during his stay.

Railways Begin Outlining Reasons For Rejection

MONTREAL (CP) — Canada's two major railways today were to begin outlining the reasons why they rejected a series of demands from 15 unions representing 130,000 non-operating railway workers.

A dozen witnesses were to explain the case for the railways to a three-man federal conciliation board seeking a settlement of the multi-million-dollar railway contract dispute.

The unions, representing employees who do not actually run trains, originally sought an hourly wage hike of 35 cents, plus fringe benefits. The railways rejected all demands, saying they would cost $128,000,000 if granted.

In outlining the employees' case last week, union spokesmen indicated willingness to make a number of concessions—including a drop in their wage demands—and estimated the cost at $96,000,080 a year if granted in a two-year contract.

"LESS CHEERFUL"

J. C. Weldon, the unions' economic advisor, was cross-examinated by railway counsel Monday and said he was "less cheerful" about the national economic outlook now than he was last January when he prepared an economic forecast for the union's brief.

After the cross - questioning, aimed at clarifying the union position on points of the brief, the railways opened their case before the board by presenting memoranda supporting contentions that their financial plight is serious because of growing competition and falling revenues.

The CNR estimated 1958 freight traffic revenue at about $475,000,000, down $40,000,000 from 1958. The CPR estimated 1958 gross revenues from all sources at about $480,00,000, roughly the same as for 1957.

Claim American Arms Supplied Indonesia Rebels

Say Weapons Dropped By Foreign Airplanes

JAKARTA (Reuters) — Prime Minister Djuanda said today American arms had been air-dropped to rebels fighting Indonesian government forces in Central Sumatra.

He said the arms could have been purchased by private persons who "have become stooges of the rebels."

An army spokesman said Thursday foreign planes had dropped arms and ammunition to rebel forces over Pakanbahru, the Central Sumatran town near the American-owned Caltex oilfield, captured by government forces Wednesday.

REBELS SAID FLEEING

Meanwhile, reports from the fighting front reached here today claiming many rebels were fleeing or surrendering to government forces operating in Central Sumatra.

So far there has been no real test of strength between the opposing forces. During the past week's clashes the rebels have either skirmished briefly or headed for the jungle before government troops arrived.

In Jakarta, a nine-man parliamentary ommission reported it had made no progress at working out an agreement between President Sukarno and former vice-president Mohammed Hatta, whom the rebels want installed as premier to give the outer islands a better economic deal and purge the government of Communists.

Princess Grace Has Second Baby Son This Time

MONTE CARLO (AP) — Princess Grace of Monaco today gave birth to her first son—the new heir to the throne of the principality of Monaco.

The royal palace said the baby weighed 8½ pounds. He will be christened Albert Alexandre Louis Pierre.

The boom of the 101-gun salute—it would have been only 21 for a girl—set off wild rejoicing in the 367 - acre principality on the French Riviera.

The little prince was born at 10:50 a.m. in the royal apartments where Caroline had arrived on Jan. 23, 1957. The Parisian baby specialist here for the birth, Dr. Emile Hervet, had been called to the bedside of the former movie queen at 8 a.m.

The new baby had light brown hair and was reported in bouncing health. He measured 20 inches long as he lay on the baby scales.

As the news spread around tiny Monaco, happy Monagesques quickly hung out red-and-white national flags in celebration. Flowers began arriving at the palace on Monaco Rock.

The births of Caroline and Albert provided Monaco's 2,500 citizens with amble cause for rejoicing. Barring tragedy, they ensure the survival of the advantages of living in an independent, income-tax-free state that has no compulsory military service.

If Rainier had died without a successor, the pocket principality, rolling in wealth from its gambling casino, would have been annexed by FFrance under a 1919 treaty.

Policeman Kills Girl, 16, Who Wields Pistol

TOPPENISH, Wash. (AP) — A rookie patrolman shot and killed a 16-year-old girl in a crowded bus station Thursday as she fumbled with the safety catch on an automatic pistol aimed at him.

Witnesses said Sandra Lingscheit, only child of a farm couple living on a Columbia basin irrigation project at Eltopia, Wash., ignored three warnings to throw down her gun.

The girl and a companion, Janice Teel, also 16, of Pasco, Wash., had been stopped as runaways as they alighted from a bus.

Patrolman Richard Stevens, 23, told Police Chief Earl Phillips he had no recourse but to shoot the girl, whose gun posed a threat to the some 50 persons crowded into the small bus depot in this south-central Washington city.

Phillips said Stevens was "carrying out my orders and acting in defence of his own life."

Falls Fifty Feet

TORONTO (CP) — Five-year-old Larry McLellan is sitting up in hospital and smiling at his nurses after falling 35 feet from a building Wednesday.

Police said Larry climbed the fire escape of a building and walked along the ledge. He suffered only a mild concussion, hospital authorities said.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO (CP) Synopsis: — There is little change in Ontario's weather picture today, with cloudy skies and scattered snowflurries reported from all parts of the province. Intermittent snow is expected in the Niagara, Lake Ontario and Haliburton regions today. Elsewhere cloudy skies and a few flurries are forecast for today and Saturday.

Dislikes Getting American O.K. To Visit North

TORONTO (CP) — Northern Affairs Minister Alvin Hamilton says it is "a matter of national chagrin" that Canadian cabinet ministers must get permission from Washington before they can visit certain parts of the Canadian north.

He said he was not preaching anti-Americanism but added it was a matter of humiliation that Canada is not doing some of the things which are being carried out in her own homeland in the interests of continental defence.

"It is a matter of national chagrin that a minister of the Crown who wants to look at parts of Canada has to go to Washington to do it," he said. He would not go into the details.

Think Children Took Dynamite

TORONTO (CP) — Police report children may have taken 55 sticks of dynamite Thursday from the construction site of a new sewage disposal plant in suburban Etobicoke.

School principals have been informed and a warning issued that the missing dynamite will explode if heated sufficiently. No detonator caps were taken.

Cave-Brown-Cave Is Simple Name But Canadians Didn't Believe Her

LONDON (AP) — Catherine Priscilla Cave-Browne-Cave returned to Britain from Canada the other day and said people in the new world refused to believe her very old name.

"They said 'Mine's Home-Sweet Home,'" she reported.

"I began to get annoyed. The name's a very old one. Originally, it was just Cave, but someone married a Browne and it became Cave-Brown."

She took a deep breath.

"Later, the Caves thought their name more important, so it became Cave-Browne-Cave."

Double-barrelled names weigh down the pages of Who's Who and Debrett's Peerage. There are triple-barrelled and even double-champion jaw-breaker of all, perhaps, is:

Admiral Hon. Sir Reginald Aylmer Ranfurly Plunkett - Ernle-Erle-Drax.

But there's also: Sir John Home - Purves - Hume-Campbell (Pronounced: Hume - Purves-Home-Campbell).

The man whose name and address probably take up more space on an envelope than any other man in the United Kingdom is:

Sir Charles Michael Dillwyn-Venables - Llewelyn of Penllergaev, Llangy Felach and Yniy Gerwyn, Cadoxton Juxta Neath, Glamorganshire.

Up in Scotland is Sir Robert Aigernon Forbes - leith-Of-Fyvie, and you better put in all the hyphens.

COYNE SAYS BANK NEVER REDUCED SUPPLY OF MONEY

'Tight Money Policy' Never Existed, Claim

OTTAWA (CP) — The head of Parliament's non-political Bank of Canada has dropped a potentially-explosive political issue into the March 31 general election campaign.

Governor James E. Coyne of the central bank, which has a big hand in shaping Canadian monetary policy, says there has been no such thing as a "tight money" program so far as the bank is concerned.

The $50,000-a-year bank chief said this in his annual report to Progressive Conservative Finance Minister Donald Fleming, one of the government spokesmen who have stated that damage was done to the Canadian economy by Liberal "tight money" policy before the election of last June 10. The report was made public Thursday.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker also used "tight money" as a major talking point in last spring's election campaign in which the Conservatives overthrew the Liberals.

And in the current political warfare, Conservatives have been claiming that it was their easing of such a policy in late summer that staved off a more severe recession than the one now hitting Canada.

Mr. Coyne, an appointee of the previous government, does not refer directly to Conservative knocks at "tight money" in his report for 1957.

However, it is well known that the Conservative are the ones that have played most heavily on the theme politically.

"The impression seems to have arisen," Mr. Coyne said, "that the money supply was being contracted. This was not the case.

"The supply of money increased and its velocity of circulation rose very substantially.

"The phrase 'tight money policy' may sometimes be used to refer to matters other than monetary matters, such as policy with regard to government taxation, expenditure and lending.

"To the extent that the phrase might be taken to imply a contraction in the availability of money it is not applicable.

"In this sense of the phrase there has never been a 'tight money policy' in Canata since th establishment of the central bank 23 years ago."

As late as Thursday night, Labor Minister Michael Starr was saying in a previously-recorded radio speech that the Conservative government since the June 10 election last year had "largely redressed the disastrous effect of the Liberal tight money policy."

Last month, Liberal James Sinclair, former fisheries minister and now the chief financial critic for his party in Parliament, suggested in a speech that the Coyne report was being oncealed.

"Hidden," he said, "is the annual report of the Bank of Canada, which would have to be tabled if Parliament was sitting—a report which will confirm the steady decline in the national economy since the Conservative government took office."

By statute, the report has to be turned in to the finance minister by the end of February. Mr. Coyne's report is dated Feb. 28. No available officials would say Thursday just when it was received by the minister, except that he had received it within the prescribed time.

First Canadian to be offered a position on Queen Elizabeth's personal staff, Esmond Butler packs his luggage in Toronto in preparation for taking up residence in Britain. Former assistant to the secretary of Governor-General Massey, Butler will be assistant press secretary to Her Majesty, who is reported to have been impressed with the friendly relations between officialdom and press in Canada. Butler is an ex-newspaperman.

Diefenbaker, Pearson Stress Unemployment in Addresses

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Prime Minister Diefenbaker has told a Vancouver audience that he is proceeding with a bill of rights for Canadians.

His speech Thursday night was before an audience sprinkled with hecklers, one of whom mentioned unemployment as a cause of suffering. The premier has promised to cure the jobless situation with a massive works program.

Unemployment also was the subject of an address by Liberal Leader Lester B. Pearson, who said in Halifax the Conservative works program is a "hoax."

CCF Leader M. J. Coldwell, having his way in the campaigning for the March 31 federal election, said over television from Winnipeg that the Progressive Conservatives and Liberals are playing "political football" with the unemployment situation.

An estimated 10,000 people turned out to hear the prime minister in Vancouver. He arrived earlier from Vancouver Island and paraded through the streets in a cavalcade that picked up pretty girls and Indians as it went.

"As long as I am prime minister, no one is going to suffer in this country as a consequence of unemployment," said Mr. Diefenbaker.

At the other end of the country, Mr. Pearson told 1,100 people in Halifax that the Progressive Conservatives $1,185,000,000 public works program will not do the job of solving unemployment that it is supposed to do.

The Liberal plan to cut taxes by $400,000,000 was a "far better approach."

Mr. Coldwell said from Winnipeg that neither the Liberals nor the Conservatives have a solution to unemployment. To meet the present situation and maintain full employment, a CCF government would control the flow of investment through a national investment board, responsible to Parliament.

at Montreal, Solicitor-General Leon Balcer said the former Liberal government failed to modify a tight money policy "even when advised by experts before last June there was a mounting unemployment problem."

Agriculture Minister Douglas Harkness promised in a radio speech from Ottawa that a Conservative government re-elected with "a firm majority" would establish a crop insurance system. It also would establish a national soil and water conservation program and an improved credit system for farmers.

Speaking on the same program, Labor Minister Michael Starr said that in the seven months the Conservatives have been in power the government has largely "redressed the disastrous effects of the Liberal tight money policy."

The policy, he said, had aggravated the seasonal winter unemployment and whittled down job opportunities in housing, lumbering, logging and the building and construction trades.

GLASGOW (Reuters) — The latest successful assault on the Conservative party's ruling position was made Thursday night when a middle - aged Glasgow housewife, campaigning for the Labor party, captured the traditionally Conservative parliamentary seat of Kelvingrove in a by-election here.

Mrs. Mary McAlister, 54, now goes to the House of Commons on the strength of a 1,360-vote margin over her nearest rival. She received 10,210 votes to 8,850 gained by Mrs. Katherine Elliot, widow of Conservative "elder statesman" Walter Elliot, who hold the Kelvingrove seat when he died in January.

This government reverse followed its crushing byelection defeat last month in the northern England textile town of Rochdale, where the party not only lost its seat to Labor but dropped to the bottom of a three-candidate poll.

Main cause of the government's rout—both in Kelvingrove and Rochdale—was seen as stemming from a new rent decontrol act, which allows landlords to boost rents and ends security for thousands of people.

Voters in Kelvingrove, in the heart of this industrial city, range from dockland residents to well-to-do business families and many feared eviction as a result of the new rent act.

Kelvingrove was the government's third by-election defeat since it took office in 1955. Last year it lost the London borough of North Lewisham.

Two other candidates in Thursday's balloting—both men—fell far below the two women leaders.

The "home rule for Scotland" candidate, David Murray, got 1,622 votes and Independent Socialist William Park got 587. They will lose their £150 deposits.

The Labor party edge of 1,360 votes Thursday night compares with a Conservative majority of 2,888 votes in a straight fight between the two big parties in 1955.

Mrs. McAlister, who is also a local town council member, hailed the result as a "direct hit at the government policy on rents, lackadaisical policy on unemployment, treatment of old-age pensioners and general economic situation."

Labor Leader Hugh Gaitskell called the victory a "clear call to the government to amend the rent act without delay."

State of parties in the House of Commons now becomes: Conservatives and Allies 334 Labor 280; Liberals fivt; Independents nine and two vacant seats.

CAN DRINK NOW ON BOAT, IN YARD, TRAILER, MOTEL

New Amendments Given to House

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario residents soon will be allowed to drink beer in their own backyards.

Amendments to the Liquor Control Act introduced in the legislature Thursday by Provincial Secretary Dunbar would allow drinking on porches and lawns, trailer, tent or boat.

Under present law, one may consume alcoholic beverages in his own house but not in his yard. The amendment redefines residences to permit the householder or tenant to consume where he wants on his property.

A Kitchener man last year was convicted of drinking beer in a public place—his back yard. But under the new provision, said Mr. Dunbar, "You can be out on your verandah or your lawn drinking beer and not be breaking the law."

Beer containing less than 2½ per cent alcohol would be brought under jurisdiction of the liquor control board under another provision, thus blocking the sale of "near" beer in grocery stores.

ALL BEVERAGES

"The board will have control of all beverages containing alcohol in order that it will include all beers," said Mr. Dunbar. "It will do away with this light beer."

Wine made from honey could be produced and sold under another amendment.

The redefinition of a "residence" also entitles the owner or tenant of a trailer, tent or boat to drink in it or on it.

Hitherto, while it was legal for the host to have a drink in his own home, the guest who accepted his host's hospitality could be subject to prosecution.

Beer was redefined as "any liquor obtained by the alcoholic fermentation of an infusion or decoction of barley, malt and hops or any similar products in drinkable water."

Previously beer was defined as brew with a strength of 2½ per cent alcohol.

SOLD LAST YEAR

Beer of less than this strength was sold first in an Ottawa delicatessen store last year and its sale was pushed elsewhere by the Ontario Retail Grocers Association.

The liquor control board then banned it. The association disputed the ban and Premier Frost said legislation would be introduced regulating its sale.

Health Minister Phillips introduced an amendment to the Embalmers and Funeral Directors Act which he said is designed to provide greater protection to the public.

Licensed funeral directors would have to display permits on their premises, include the name of the licencee in all advertisements and stationery and keep a qualified director in every branch office of an undertaking business.

Bank Robbery

ST. CATHARINES (CP) — A bandit today robbed a downtown branch of the Toronto-Dominion Bank of between $4,000 and $5,000. He fled in a car.

Roadblocks were set up in the St. Catharines and Niagara Falls area.

Macmillan, Ike To Meet To Plan Summit Parley

Washington Sees Meet With Russians Assured

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower and Prime Minister Macmillan will meet here in June to co-ordinate Western planning for a summit conference with Russia.

The White House announced Thursday that the meeting will be held June 9-10. By that time the issue of whether to hold a summit conference will likely be settled, officials believe, and most of them privately say they are sure there will be a conference.

Other subjects expected to come up in the Eisenhower-Macmillan sessions include co-operation between the United States and Britain in atomic energy developments, U.S. supplies of nuclear missiles for British bases, Middle Eastern problems, East-West trade and a review of conditions in the Far East.

Macmillan will deliver a commencement address June 8 at Depauw University at Greencastle, Ind.

GENERAL DISCUSSION

"The president," the White House announcement said, "has taken advantage of the occasion of the prime minister's visit to this country to invite him to stop briefly in Washington for a general discussion with the president and the secretary of state."

Eisenhower and Macmillan met twice last year—in Bermuda last March and in Washington last October. Both also attended a meeting of the heads of government of the NATO countries in Paris in December.

James C. Hagerty, White House press secretary, was asked whether the new talks would include discussion of the possibility of a summit conference with Soviet leaders if there was no decision on holding a meeting by early June. He said that under such circumstances he would assume the talks would deal with that matter among others.

State Secretary Dulles, who has been attending a meeting of the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization, told a press conference in Manila Thursday that a way must be found to end the U.S.-Russian "impasse" over a heads-of-government conference. He said the deadlock arises because the Soviet Union is interested in a meeting whether or not it produces agreements while the West was primarily intrested in getting agreements.

Licence Plates Cost Government Just 15 Cents

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario motorists: Your 1958 licence plates are worth 15 cents.

Reforms Minister Dymond disclosed Thursday in the legislature that this is the price paid for a pair of plates by the highways department. Ross Whicher (L — Bruce) wanted to know whether the plates, made by prisoners in the province's penal institutions, are sold at a profit. "It's the best bargain in Ontario."

British Press in Glowing Tribute Says Queen Mother 'Is Wonderful'

LONDON (Reuters)—Two London newspapers describe Queen Mother Elizabeth as a "wonderful woman" in welcoming her back after a delay-plagued return journey from Australia and New Zealand.

The Daily Mail and Daily Sketch speak in glowing terms of the mother of Queen Elizabeth after her return here Thursday from her 25,800-mile round-the-world trip, during which she stopped at Montreal and Vancouver.

She arrived here 2½ days late on the last stage of her journey from Perth, Western Australia. She flew from Malta in a British Overseas Airways Britannia after her Australian Qantas Super-Constellation broke down for the third time.

Qantas announced here that it will hold a private inquiry into the "chapter of unfortunate and unforciable mishap" to the American-built plane which delayed the Queen Mother's return home.

The Queen Mother left Britain Jan. 28 for New Zealand, travelling via Canada, Honolulu and Fiji. After a 14-day program in New Zealand she completed a strenuous three-weeks coast-to-coast Australian tour.

"The Queen Mother is a wonderful and plucky woman.

"How many of us, travelling across the world in an airplane which had suffered two mishaps, would not gladly hop into the fine modern machine sent specially to bring us home?

"The Queen Mother refused. She stuck to her Australian aircraft.

"Anyone who knows the disturbing effect of anything wrong in the air knows also that it takes courage to carry on as she did.

"The decision rose naturally from her innate kindness and consideration for others. She would not upset the Australian crew by leaving them because they had run into trouble. . . .

The Daily Sketch declares

"We are glad to have her back. Proud of her stoic endurance in the face of plane delays and breakdowns. Proud of a wonderful woman."

Police Took Six From School For Questioning

TORONTO (CP)—Police and education officials today investigated a parent's complaint that officers invaded a public school, interrogated six students and removed one of them to a police station. The student was reported threatened during three hours of questioning.

The boy's parents said he was threatened Thursday concerning a malicious damage case on a suburban North York farm.

Police denied the boy was threatened. They said he had a bicycle chain and quoted him as saying he carried it for protection against other boys.

Robert Land, executive assistant to the director of education of the North York board of education, said today it was the board's policy to let police enter its schools and question pupils.

Parents, however, must be present or give their permission before the questioning may take place, he said.

The boy was not charged.

Bank of Canada Interest Rate Declines Again

OTTAWA (CP) — The Bank of Canada interest rate fell this week to 2.67 per cent, indicating a plentiful supply of money in the country for short-term investment.

This week's rate, reported today by the central bank, represents a drop of almost one-quarter of one per cent from last week's 2.91. It is the rate's lowest point since Nov. 17, 1955 when it was 2 1-4 per cent.

The rate is the central bank's lending charge to chartered banks and other lending institutions.

JUMPED ON KITTEN

TORONTO (CP) — John McCormick, 36, of Toronto Thursday was sentenced to three months in jail on a charge of cruelty to animals. Evidence was that he killed a kitten by throwing it against a wall and jumping on it after the animal scratched him. McCormick pleaded not guilty.

SENTENCE YOUTH FOR PETTY THEFTS

Raymond Beaudrie, 18, of Plainfield was sentenced to one month in jail yesterday after being convicted of a number of petty thefts.

Crown Attorney John A. Pringle recommended to Magistrate R. C. Jackson that a suspended sentence should not be considered since a jail term might discourage other youths planning similar thefts.

Beaudrie's thefts of auto accessories occurred over a period of six months in and around Belleville.

A further charge of driving a car while his licence was suspended netted the young man a $50 fine or 15 days in jail in case of default of payment.

Home Treatment For Arthritis Is Discussed

Possible new legislation which would permit increased home treatment of arthritic and rheumatic patients, with resultant lowering of costs to the local units, was discussed at the regular monthly meeting of the Belleville branch of the Arthritis and Rheumatism Society held last night at the YMCA.

Addressing the meeting was Mr. John Pearson, executive secretary for the Ontario division of the Society. Mr. Pearson discussed the proposed new legislation now being taken up with the Ontario government and also told of the possible establishment of regional offices which would give service to four or five local branches.

To assist in raising funds for the local branch the Ladies Auxiliary of the Society will hold a rummage sale April 25th at the Belleville Armouries.

Board members paid tribute to Miss H. Williams, physiotherapist, for her work in publicizing the Society through speaking engagements at public functions in Belleville and in the Bay of Quinte district.

Mr. Enos David, president of the Belleville branch, presided over the meeting.

Community Concert Assoc. At New Milestone in City

By ROBERT TANNER

A new milestone in Belleville's musical history will be reached next week when the Community Concert Association opens the twenty-fifth campaign for membership of an organized concert series to be held in this city. To mark this special occasion, the Association is planning to make both the campaign and the concert series itself the most outstanding and successful in its history.

The original group consisted of some 200 music lovers who, as a branch of the Canadian Concert Association, arranged a series of three concerts during the 1934-35 season. The first president was Mr. P. C. MacLaurin who was at that time Principal of B.C.I.V.S., and who started a long history of co-operation between the school and the Association. It is of particular interest to both new and old members alike that the original membership chairman, on whom the greatest load of the campaigning fell, was none other than this year's president, Miss Leona Riggs. Other presidents have been Mr. (later Justice) C. A. Cameron, Mr. W. J. Morrison, Mr. R. Hachborn, Mr. J. Deacon, Mrs. W. Finkle and Mr. C. Templer.

The original membership fee was only $2.00, yet in spite of the resulting small budget, excellent concerts were presented, many of them by Canadian artists. The success was partly due to the assistance provided by the Massey Foundation, and is a tribute to the organizing ability of Mr. Milton Blackstone, who was Director of the Canadian Concert Association, and who also achieved an international reputation as the viola player in the Hart House String Quartet.

In the early days, it was a common occurrence for the artists to arrive in town early enough to give a short free concert to the High School students. Later on, as the scarcity of Canadian talent made it necessary to engage artists from farther afield, the exigencies of travel put an end to these informal afternoon affairs. However, the Association has always maintained a very low "student" rate of membership to encourage an interest in music among the young people in the district.

WAITING LIST SET UP

It was in 1942 that the Community Concert Association, with headquarters in New York, and an almost unlimited supply of first rate artists, came into the picture. By this time the membership fee had risen to $5.00 per season. Somewhat naturally, the rise in subscription was followed by a drop in membership, but the excellence of the concerts and the enthusiastic efforts of the workers were such that, only five years later, the Association had reached the stage where the subscription list was "sold-out" and a waiting list had been set up.

Since that date, the Association has been successful in meeting the competition of television and the many other attractions which Belleville now enjoys, and is looking forward with confidence to celebrating this Silver Jubilee with another "sold-out" list and a series of concerts equalling or bettering any of the past twenty-four years.

And what wonderful concerts they have been, eighty-seven of them in all, bringing live music of the highest calibre right to our doorstep. A glance through the list reveals a host of world famous names and brings back many happy memories to the regular concert goer. In the early series, John Goss and the London Singers, with their charming renditions of sea shanties, Malcolm and Godden, Canadian duo-pianists and Efrem Zimbalist are perhaps worthy of special note, and it was pleasant to welcome Reginald Godden back to Belleville last year as solo pianist with the National Ballet Company. Then Mischa Levitsky, Thomas L. Thomas, Ania Dorfman, Ruth Draper, James Melton, Leonard Warren — but the list of outstanding names is too long to publish here. But with a record of accomplishment of this calibre, there would seem to be every reason for predicting that the next twenty-five years of service of the Belleville Community Concert Association will be as successful and rewarding as the last.

Hobby Show Held by Bell And Northern

Wednesday marked the first hobby show of the combined Bell Telephone and Northern Electric Employees and Pioneers.

Some 87 exhibits involving 200 articles were on display in the plant cafeteria at Sidney Street, which opened with the introduction of Mr. J. C. R. Punchard, works manager, by Bill Gander, the region president.

After some expert judging by local high school teachers, the prizes were distributed by Mr. Punchard to A. J. Austin, A. F. Miller, E. R. Valcamp, W. Stephenson, P. Allcorn, B. Waters, P. C. Gelsthorpe, M. Bakey, E. Gilmour and G. Wright.

Mr. Smykaluk, spokesman for the judges, said their's was a difficult task due to the high standard of craftsmanship throughout, but very enjoyable from an aesthetic point of view.

Coffee and doughnuts were served to 110 people by the Northern Electric cafeteria staff.

Chassis Awaits Thief Who Took Motor

The thief who Wednesday night stole a motor for a 1954 English model Hillman car from outside Gene's Imperial Oil station, 391 Front Street, has an even better bargain in store for him if he minds calling around at the service station.

The service station owner has the car chassis ready for installation of the motor which he says the thief can have if he returns for it.

"The chassis is no good to me without the motor," he says.

The car motor had been left overnight outside the service station ready for installation the following day. The next morning it was found the motor had disappeared.

New Sports Store Opens On Saturday

What's so "big" about tomorrow? Why that's when the Sportsman celebrates its grand opening.

A brother and sister have teamed up to bring to Belleville another sporting goods store. The proprietors are Gaila and Gary Cranston, natives of Halloway and graduates of BCIVS. They have a large number of friends in the city who, no doubt, wish them well on their new venture in the world of free enterprise.

By the way, Gaila and Gary are both single.

The Sportsman is located in the Mayer Building, north of Victoria Ave. Their shop is decorated in the latest style and the walls are dotted with sporting equipment of many kinds.

The Cranstons have an agency for Elto outboard motors. Fishing tackle and firearms are two of their main interests, but the shop has a fine assortment of games and sporting equipment to satisfy every member of any family.

Spring is, officially, just around the corner. The Sportsman has an up-to-date stock of camping equipment and out-of-doors clothing. Modern camping trips are not complete without a radio, so the Cranstons have stocked Emerson and Hallicrafters portable radios.

A week from today and a draw for some free merchandise will be held, but go into the store tomorrow and you will be rewarded with a free cup of coffee.

The Cranstons have a motto:— "This store is for you — we only manage it."

Plan Northern Electric Strike But Not Here

TORONTO (CP) — Albert Harris, international representative of the Communications Workers of America CLC, said Thursday 1,000 members are to strike March 21 in five provinces.

The union is asking Northern Electric Company Limited for a 15-cent-an-hour pay increase, improvements in vacations, union security and over time pay for office workers, Mr. Harris said.

Basic hourly wage is $1.73. The union includes installation employees in Ontario, Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Columbia and repair, warehouse and office workers in Ontario.

Before 92 per cent of the union's members voted in favor of a strike, the union was demanding a 10-cent-an-hour increase retroactive to Nov. 1, improved vacations and union security. The company offered a seven-cent-an-hour increase retroactive to Nov. 1.

Mr. J. C. R. Punchard, manager of the Northern Electric plant here said the threatened strike had nothing to do with the Belleville plant.

He noted that the union concerned was international and "had nothing whatsoever to do with the Belleville plant."

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP) — The stock market edged lower today in quiet morning trading.

The industrial index was down a half point and base metals were off a bit more than one-quarter. Golds and western oils had smaller index losses.

Trading was dull and the first-hour volume of 384,000 shares was made up largely by a few low-priced mining stocks. A few industrials turned over moderate volumes but none of the key issues were active. Thursday's sales at 11 a.m. totalled 362,000 shares.

General Dynamics had the biggest industrial loss, down 1½ points to 56½ on a few sales. Dominion Stores lost a point at 55 to lead the losers among index stocks.

ECDYSIAST'S LIFE IS LONELY ONE

From Edmonton comes Ricki Covette whose six feet eight inches makes her the world's tallest ecdysiast, or, as they say in some circles, a strip-tease dancer. She attributes her ample proportions to the prairie air, western winters and sunshine. And the reason she took to the strip-tease circuit is now, after six years, a bit vague. It's profitable, but it is also lonely. She may gross $45,000 in a year but she still doesn't know if it is worth the struggle.

DIEFENBAKER

He spoke shortly after Governor James E. Coyne of the Bank of Canada said in his annual report a tight money policy had never existed through the central bank.

FIVE AGREE

Resources Minister Alvin Hamilton said at Toronto that five provinces so far have agreed to a plan to build roads to the North.

The provinces are Ontario, Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Columbia. Federal and provincial governments will each spend $1,500,000 a year for five years on the roads.

The plan is one of the 10 points listed by the Progressive Conservative government for the development of Canada. As stated by Prime Minister Diefenbaker, the government will spend $75,000,000 and perhaps double that amount if all provinces join for access roads tying in with the territories roads where geographically possible.

At Sherbrooke, Que., Finance Minister Donald Fleming said a 10-per-cent shift of votes from the Liberals to Conservatives would give his party a majority of Quebec members. He asked for that shift "and more."

Deputy CCF Leader Stanley Knowles said at Sudbury that the Liberal and Social Credit parties "will go down" in the election.

He said his party's representation will go up and be in "a position of strength, with representation from coast to coast." The Conservatives "may go up; that depends on the extent of the deal between (Prime Minister) Diefenbaker and (Quebec Premier) Duplessis."

CULTURAL CHIEF FIRED

PEIPING (Reuters)—The Peiping Peoples Daily, organ of the Chinese Communist party, announces the dismissal of Chen Yi, chief of the cultural division of the army's political departmenta. Chen—not to be confused with the newly appointed foreign minister, Marshal Chen Yi—was denounced by the newspaper in February as a "rightist."

To Present Irish Play at Hall At Marysville

"You Can't Beat the Irish", a comedy in three acts, will be presented in Marysville on Mar. 17, St. Patrick's Day.

The play will be performed by local talent. It is said that "You Can't Beat the Irish" depicts the sort of people usually met in everyday life, whether or not you are Irish.

Mary Malone, the typical mother, who lives only for and in her children. No sacrifice is too great for her to make as long as it will bring happiness to her little family. Tommy, her oldest boy, Danny, the youngest and Peggy, her beautiful daughter. Tommy is a motorman and the main support of the family; Danny spend most of his time losing jobs, dodging work and borrowing his brother's neckties. Comes the time when Tommy faces his mother and demands to know what Danny is doing nights. Mrs. Malone assures him that her Danny is studying. Tommy demands to know what he is studying. Mrs. Malone is so vague about all this that a family conference is held and after badgering, Danny is forced to confess that he is writing poetry! Mrs. Malone is horrified! Tommy evils with righteous indignation. Peggy is thrilled to think that a potential celebrity dwells in the very midst of her family. Just as it is agreed that Danny must start looking for a job on the morrow, Captain Dennis Dooley, head of the plain clothes squad, carries in a young and beautiful girl. She has been badly hurt in an automobile wreck just outside of the Malone flat. Danny and Tommy proceed to fall in love with the mysterious stranger who evades all questions as to her real identity. The outcome of all this produces a good play.

Trenton Airman Awarded Medal For Gallantry

OTTAWA (CP) — The RCAF announced today that two Air Force members have been given awards for gallantry in the rescue of two fishermen from a sinking vessel off the west coast on June 28, 1956.

The Air Force Cross has been awarded to Flt.-Lt. Andrew G. Carswell, 34, of Toronto. Sgt. Ian J. McPherson, 35, of Vancouver, has received the British Empire Medal.

Flt.-Lt. Carswell was the pilot and Sgt. McPherson a member of the crew of an amphibian plane that went to the rescue of seamen on a fishing vessel sinking near Galiano Island in the Straits of Georgia.

Flt.-Lt. Carswell now is at the RCAF recruiting unit in Toronto. Sgt. McPherson is at the air force station in Trenton, Ont.

Calls Election 'A Real Bingo'

MONTREAL (CP) — President Claude Jodoin of the Canadian Labor Congress said Thursday night the current election campaign has produced "the greatest promises ever experienced in Canada."

"It's a real bingo. One leader promises something and directly the other tries to cap it," he said in an address before the inaugural meeting of the newly-formed Montreal Labor Council.

The new group, comprising the Montreal Trades and Labor Council and the old Montreal Labor Council, discussed the unemployment situation.

FIRST TO FEEL HAND OF THE LAW

Art Facto can consider himself a man of distinction but he would just as soon give the honor to someone else. He was arrected by Toronto police for showing 1937 license plates two minutes after the deadline. And, he says, he had his 1958 plates in clear view behind his windshield. His wife, along with thousands of others waited for hours in a line-up to obtain the license plates and he didn't have time to put on the new plates.

Russia Insists Space Control Linked to Arms

LONDON (Reuters) — Nikita Khrushchev says President Eisenhower's proposal to prohibit the use of outer space for military purposes would deprive Russia of its chief retaliatory weapon — the intercontinental ballistic missile.

For this reason, he said Thursday Russia must insist on linking the American proposal with liquidation of U.S. military bases surrounding the Soviet Union and a ban on nuclear weapons.

The Soviet Communist party chief aired his views in a 9,000-word letter to the British weekly New Statesman—his second reply since Earl Bertrand Russell initiated the correspondence in the magazine last November. Russell had appealed for East-West agreement in an open letter to Eisenhower and Khrushchev.

Deputies Brawl, Seven Injured

ROME (CP) — Fascist and Communist deputies turned Italy's Chamber of Deputies into a battleground today with a riotous free-for-all fist fight that left seven persons injured.

Communist-allied Socialists and some Centrists deputies also joined in the battle, which erupted as the chamber considered a bill to give legal recognition to the Italian partisans who fought against Fascism during the war. Such recognition would allow the partisans to claim pensions and other veterans' benefits paid the axis army.

When order was restored after 15 minutes, Premier Adone Leone told the chamber that Fascist deputy Domenico Leccisi had led the "it's profane" shout that started the free-for-all. Leone proposed that Leccesi be suspended for two days, and the chamber agreed.

Unhappy Shah Of Iran Divorces Childless Queen

TEHRAN (AP) — The Shah of Iran today announced his divorce from beautiful young Queen Soraya because she failed to give him a son and heir to his throne.

The divorce followed weeks of negotiations with the childless 26-year-old queen, deliberations within the royal council and long hours of soul-searching by Shah Mohammed Reza Phlevi, 38.

Officials said the shah was downcast over the divorce and probably will not marry in the near future. He and Soyara had been a devoted, almost inseparable couple.

In a statement distributed by the West German press office the ex-queen said she had agreed to the divorce "in the interests of the future of the nation and for the welfare of the people."

Soraya was reported to have refused to remain the shah's wife if he took another spouse in an effort to get an heir. Moslem men are permitted four wives at one time, but Soraya is the daughter of a German woman, was educated in Europe and has many Western ideas.

The shah has one daughter by his first wife, Princess Fawzia of Egypt, but women cannot succeed to Moslem thrones. The monarch divorced Fawzia in 1948 because she, too, apparently could not give him a son.

Defend Budgies Against Charge They Carry Polio

LONDON (Reuters) — Two doctors have defended the budgerigar, the colorful pet of many a British home, against the charge of being a frequent polio-carrier.

Last week a nine-year-old boy's death from polio was blamed on a bite he got from a budgerigar. Three doctors writing in The Lancet, a medical journal, said there was little doubt the bird was responsible and called for "careful investigation."

In Thursday's issue of The Lancet, Dr. G. W. A. Dick and Dr. D. S. Dane of the department of microbiology at Queen's University, Belfast, wrote that they had tried in vain to infect budgerigars with the disease.

"Our failure to infect them with a virulent polio virus gives hope that the natural infection of these birds may prove to be a rare event," they said.

Settles Suit Against RCMP

WINDSOR (CP) — A cash settlement ha sended the suit brought against two RCMP officers by a man who claimed he was unjustly assaulted by them May 8 last year.

Carl Valev, solicitor for Victor Garcia, said he was not at liberty to announce the exact amount of the settlement, but said "it just reached four figures."

The suit was filed against Cpl. Lloyd Munro and Const. Calvin Hill who Garcia claimed assaulted him when they mistakenly entered his apartment during a narcotics raid.

In the raid, the RCMP arrested seven persons in an adjoining apartment. They later were convicted and sentenced under the Narcotics Act.

Heavy Smoke, Water Damage In Local Fire

TRENTON — Heavy smoke and water damage was caused at the home of Mrs. Marion Kidd, 160 Queen Street here this morning when fire of undetermined origin broke out in an upstairs bedroom shortly before 11 o'clock.

Flames in the eaves of the house proved both stubborn and difficult for the Trenton firemen to get at but the fire was extinguished by 11.45.

Smoke and heat in the upstairs made fire fighting almost unbearable until firemen wearing masks were able to cool the walls and attic with water from two small hoses. A third hose played water on the roof outside. Water was dripping from the downstairs cellings while the amount of damage to a basement apartment in the one and a half storey dwelling was unknown.

Volunteers carried clothing and some furniture from the house while firemen protected other household effects from water damage by covering them with tarpaulins.

Trent River Ice Is Still Intact

TRENTON — It was one year ago yesterday that the ice on the Trent River broke up and headed for deep waters. Those who remember claim the river ice began breaking up about 11 a.m. and before dark had all but vanished from the fast flowing river.

It was sudden but it was noiseless, they said, and not like some years when heaving water under great cakes of ice broke through with sharp booming cracks which could be heard for a considerable distance.

This year the ice is still covering most of the river with only a sluice of water down the east side where sewage and water drainage runs into the river.

And as yet there is no sign of the ice breaking, although it is covered with slush and beginning to rot. It is, however, expected to go almost any day and with it will go the few fishing shanties which remain out.

Freeze-over of the river was also late this season, coming during the first weeks of January instead of in December, which is more common for this area.

But Trentonians consider themselves very fortunate this year in having one of the mildest winters in years, cutting down on fuel consumption for most home-owners. One claims his fuel bill is just slightly over half of what it was last year.

Rockets Defeat FIS Team 8-6 As Finals Open

TRENTON — Tension was high last night, both among the players and the fans as the Rockets defeated the F.I.S. 8-6 in the first game of the finals of Series "A" play.

Many penalties were handed out during the game, with the teams sharing 23. One was a 10-minute misconduct, two five-minute ones for fighting and one a game misconduct which came at 19.20 of the third period.

"Buz" Haugh was the big goal getter for the Rockets as he slammed in three of the markers. Gord Crowder and Ethier grabbed two goals and one assist each. Loignan accounted for a single to round out the scoring for the winners.

Last night was also a big one for F/O McNaughton as he performed the hat trick for the losers. He was followed by teammate Henderson who accounted for two goals. J. Miller singled to end the F.I.S. scoring.

It was a rugged game all the way with neither team giving or asking for quarter. Both teams were out to win and played fast and hard.

SEATO AND NUCLEAR WEAPONS

Russia has proposed a nuclear-free zone in Asia. Foreign ministers of the countries comprising the South-East Asia Treaty Organization have brushed the suggestion aside, according to an Associated Press despatch.

As statements of fact, there is nothing wrong with those two sentences. There is, however, grave danger that many will misinterpret these facts. It would almost certainly be a grave error to believe that the majority of the countries in Southeast Asia would not welcome the establishment of a nuclear-free zone in that area.

The sad truth is that SEATO does not speak for South-East Asia. Only three of the five countries which comprise it are Asian nations. Two, Britain and France, are European, the United States, is North American, and two, Australia and New Zealand, are in the Antipodes. This leaves the Philippines, Pakistan and Thailand as the Asiatic represcntatives. The Philippines, first under Spanish and then under U.S. rule, has been under western influence for decades, under circumstances which have proseltyized, rather than antagonized, the inhabitants. Pakistan, besides having been under Britsh rule, has a doubtful geographical claim to being part of South East Asia and certainly, as a Moslem country, has little in common with the Buddhist masses in Burma, Thailand, Indo-China and parts of Indonesia. If we consider India and China as parts of South East Asia, and their geographic claims are at least as strong as that of Pakistan, the assumption that SEATO speaks for South East Asia is evidently preposterous.

The plain truth is that the Russian proposal will almost certainly have considerable propaganda value in this section of the world. The fact that the SEATO nations, for various reasons, oppose it is more likely to further limit the appeal of SEATO to nations which are not now members than it is to persuade such countries as India, Burma and Indonesia that the Russian proposal is just another propaganda trick. That it may well be such a trick does not alter this fact.

THE BIG VS. THE SMALL

The United States auto industry is at a big turn in the road, says Damon Stetson of the New York Times Service.

Quite true. But the strange part of it is that as far back as 1946, when American-built cars started becoming longer and wider, many buyers were of the opinion that the industry would eventually run into stiff competition from smaller, foreign-built autos.

Since the end of World War II competition from Europe, and since 1953 especially from Germany, has increased to such an extent that many foreign automobile firms are represented now in North America. Of course, prior to the war Great Britain was a major supplier of small cars, but since the beginning of this decade, Germany has stepped to the front. Last year, according to Time magazine, a German auto manufacturer sold three times more cars in North America than the combined total of three British firms. That German industry hopes to increase its sales percentage from something like 13 per cent of the small car market in America to 33 per cent within a few years.

It may only be coincidence but in February U.S. auto retailers sold about 320,000 units, their lowest total since a German car made its North American debut in 1953. What's more, better than 13 per cent of Detroit's labor force in the car industry is unemployed.

The "Big Three" are beginning to sit up and take notice of foreign, small-car manufacturers. No longer is the "puddle jumper" an oddity on the highway. In fact, some American manufacturers have indicated that once foreign sales in the U.S. reach 400,000 they will take steps to build smaller cars to compete with the invasion.

Perhaps in a few years consumers will be able to buy low-priced American cars with a lot of the useless high-cost trimmings removed and with more emphasis placed on mechanical money-savers.

THE SIMPLE MAN

He never won a prize
And he never rose to fame.
He never heard men cheering
At the mention of his name.
Men never heard him boasting
Of the things that he could do,
But he always did his duty
In the best way that he knew.

He never ran for office,
He never tried to be
A bigger man than others
Or have more authority.
He never broke a promise
And he never failed a friend.
And he did the work he found to do,
Contented to the end.

He never wore a halo
And he never wore a crown;
But what is more, he never turned
A needy brother down.
He never let his grouches
Spoil some other fellow's fun,
And he left a lot of mourners
When his day on earth was done.

Great Men May Be Small

Montreal Gazette

Andrew Carnegie had made an appointment to see Lord Rosebery, the Prime Minister of the United Kingdom. As he entered the Prime Minister's room he noticed that an envelope had been carefully laid on the desk.

Carnegie had no sooner sat down than Lord Rosebery handed him the envelope.

"I wish you to dismiss your secretary," he said.

Astonished at so sudden a request, Carengie said: "That is a big order, Your Lordship. He is indispensable, and a Scotsman. What is the matter with him?"

"This isn't your handwriting; it is his. What do you think of a man who spells Rosebery with two R's?"

Carnegie could scarcely bring himself to take the complaint seriously. He said that he often found his name misspelled. The variations ranged from "Karnaghie" to "Carnagay."

Lord Rosebery, however, refused to make light of the matter. "But he was in earnest," Carnegie found with surprise. "Just such little matters gave him great annoyance."

Carnegie had found that a great man may be very small. But it is a discovery that everyone makes, sooner or later.

No man seemed to reign more supreme over the British theatre than Sir Henry Irving. But having attained such revered eminence, he resented the thought that another great actor would one day rise. When Beerbohm Tree began to make his mark, Sir Henry Irving, for all his greatness of reputation, could not prevent himself from sinking into littleness of spirit.

In 1890 Beerbohm Tree was acting at the Haymarket theatre in the play "A Village Priest." Among the very minor actors in this play was Charles Allan. He made a single appearance as a gendarme, and had nothing to say but the two words, "Allons Marche!"

Sir Henry came to see the play. Beerbohm Tree achieved a resounding success. After the performance, Sir Henry went on to the stage for a chat with the actors. Tree was longing for a word of praise. But after talking for a few minutes, Irving shook hands with Tree, and said: "Good-night . . . hm . . . Allan excellent . . . hm . . ." And with that he left.

But Sir Henry Irving was by no means alone in his spitefulness before competitive greatness. It is likely to be found among the leaders in any profession.

One day, about the year 1909, Lord Kitchener was being given a great banquet in London. At the head table was Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia University. Next to him sat Field Marshal Sir Evelyn Wood, a great soldier also. He had been the commander in the Boer War of 1881, and had raised and commanded the Egyptian Army.

Dr. Butler did not know Sir Evelyn, but he made the first move towards conversation. "I suppose," he said, "that Lord Kitchener is a very great soldier."

"Kitchener a great soldier!" exclaimed Sir Evelyn. "Not at all!"

Taken aback at this reply, Dr. Butler shifted his ground. "I have always understood", he went on, "that Lord Kitchener was very able as an organizer of everything that relates to an army's transportation and supplies."

"Kitchener an able organizer!" was the response. "Not at all!"

Finding all his suggestions about Kitchener totally denied, Dr. Butler could not help remarking: "Well, then one wonders why he is receiving this distinguished honor, at this most notable banquet."

Not even this remark could change Sir Evelyn's attitude. "God only knows," he muttered grimly.

Littleness among the great takes many forms. One of the most common is vanity over the formalities of office, an excessive insistence upon every particle of rank.

Such vanity may appear even in unlikely persons. It was found in Lord Morley, though no man looked more the ascetic, with his lofty forehead, commanding nose, lined face and stern expression. Yet the trappings and forms of his cabinet offices became for him matters of exaggerated importance. Bitter was his anger if these were in any way overlooked or disturbed.

Lord Asquith, as prime minister, had to deal with Lord Morley's offical vanities. In exasperation, he exclaimed to Sir Austen Chamberlain: "I have a drawerful of his resignations!"

This littleness in the great often comes as a surprise, even a disillusionment. And yet there should be no surprise that the great are not always great nor should there be undue disappointment. When the great are small, it is not because they are not great, but only because they are human. If the littleness were taken away from them, they would be great no longer.

Oliver Cromwell commanded his portrait painter to depict him warts and all. And, of course, he was right.

TELLING AND LISTENING

As I sit at my typewriter, I am surrounded by shelves of books.

What is a book? It is the wisdom, the calculations, the fantasies and imaginative creations of some human mind, pressed together and passed on to others. Some books are awe inspiring, others are good, most are mediocre, a few are positively bad. But they are what someone thought, discovered, marveled at or grew angry over. They are men and women leaving part of their brains behind them that we may use and make out of them something that will be helpful to us or others — or perhaps pleasant to somebody.

Books are a marvelous invention — or should they be called a discovery? For centuries the information now found in books was inscribed on rolls of papyrus, or on stone. But the roll was awkward to handle. It took centuries for men to catch on, but at last someone saw that it would be handier to cut these rolls into pages and stack them together. They called this stack a codex; we call it a book. It is a man or woman, or a collection of human beings waving to us and saying, "Pull over to the side of the road (or the edge of the table, or into that comfortable chair), for I have something to tell you."

Of the making of books there is no end — and there never will be. For some men like to tell, and we all like to listen.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

My grandson, age six, can sit beside me in our car and name every make of car that passes. Sometimes, he can throw in the model and year. I am told almost any six year old can do the same, or better. This is astonishing to me. I can tell a Model T Ford when I see one, and I can tell a foreign car from the native, by its size, only. All large cars are Cadillacs to me, though a particularly shiny car might get into the Cadillac classification now and then. If it has a lot of port holes along the side, I might venture a guess that it is a Buick, because I have always suspected Buicks of things like portholes ever since, back in the thirties, they brought out a fat Buick, which I declined to buy after owning a long series of that make of car.

It is true, also, that I could not identify a car of the same make and model as the one we've had now for two years. Somewhere along about ten or twenty years ago, I lost interest in what cars looked like, or perhaps I became sated with change in their appearance. For some years now, they have all looked so much alike that it doesn't matter what differences there are.

However, what all this leads up to is this. Did you ever try to find out what make a car is, by attempting to decipher the name inscribed on it in a script devoted to the latest in modern design?

In gleamy metal, there it is, the name.

But you can't make head or tail of it.

If you could, it would be poor design.

The true test of modern design is unintelligibility.

Trains Soon 2 Miles Long?

St. Thomas Times-Journal

Not many years back it was quite common for an impatient pedestrian or motorist to exclaim at a railway crossing that the freight train that delayed him "must have been a mile long."

He was quite right because trains of 100 cars, or 110 which used to be the limit, if figured at 40 to 50 feet, per car, and the distance in between each car added, the total length would be 5,000 to 6,000 feet or more. And, of course, 5,280 feet is a mile.

But just think of the change over the years; the cars are longer and the number per train has been increased. Now trains of 125 to 165 can be counted quite often so that the length has increased to a mile and a half in some cases. Before we know it it may be correct to say "I'll bet that train was two miles long."

Some of the older boxcars are only 35 and 45 feet long but the new big ones are at least 50 feet long. Some specially-built flat cars are even longer.

It is not easy to estimate the probable length of one of those trains which are hardly visible from one end to the other unless the weather is 100 percent clear.

TODAY'S TALK

DIRT FARMERS

I don't know where I selected the two words — Dirt Farmer, but they are very expressive. There are several kinds of people who live and work on a farm, but real ones are those who dig in the dirt, clear fields, and plant seeds. Who does not love the fields of grain waving in the wind? And how eventful is that life of a Dirt Farmer!

I can speak appreciatively, for I spent much time on a farm in Michigan, when a youth. It was an experience that has enriched my entire life. I love everything connected with the farm — except one thing. I hated the days when I was asked to get the big tool in the barn that we used to cut in the fields of thistles! I did not feel the noble part of a Dirt Farmer then.

I loved the horses, the cows, the lambs, and other animals of the farm, and hardly a day passed that something interesting did not turn up. I learned the name of every bird and beast that inhabited the farm lands. Especially fascinating were the thick trees of the forest bordering the cultivated acres.

During my days upon the farm we had to work hard, and we did not have a soft seat for any of the cultivators, or wonderful improvements as of today. But we then got nearer to the dirt than today. Its rich smell stirred our dreams of later harvests and thrilling days during threshing times.

Another task I recall that I had no love for, and this was churning with that old antique of a churn with the handle in the centre. But the sight of that creamy white butter was something to behold! I am thankful for having been born in a small town — with many a farm near at hand. That Dirt Farmer is a great American institution to this

To Your Good Health

By Joseph G. Molner, M.D.

IN MOST INSTANCES, ASTHMA IS CAUSED BY ALLERGY

"Dear Dr. Molner: My 15-month-old son has had recurrent attacks of bronchial asthma since he was three months old. At the age of six months he started getting monthly cold shots. Last winter he was hospitalized for a month wth croup. Two weeks ago he was hospitalized again. My questions are:

"Are these two illnesses related?

"Since these attacks come suddenly and are severe, are there any first aid treatments, other than steam, that you can suggest?

"Is there a definite cure?

"Can these cold shots bring on an attack? I ask this last question because my son had a cold the week before his cold shot, and that same evening went to the hospital with croup. — Mrs. A. B."

"Croup" can be anything that causes coughing, constriction of the larynx, inflamed throat, and so on. It's a general term, not a specific disease.

But let's get to asthma. Only in recent years have we known enough about it to begin to make some serious, useful advances against it.

The No. 1 fact for parents to remember is this: Nearly always asthma will prove to be caused by allergy.

Oh, a child can have an isolated case of wheezes and asthma without it meaning any permanent problem. But true asthma, which repeats itself and repeats itself, is a chronic condition. It means that the victim is allergic to one, or to many things, which cause inflammation and swelling of the breathing passages, and hence difficulty in breathing. Continued bouts of asthma restrict the breath of life, and put a strain on the heart.

FIND THE CAUSE

There is no "definite cure." There is, however, often a possibility of finding out what is causing the allergy, and either (1) learning to avoid these things, whether food, dust or something else; (2) taking the slow but good way of having treatments to desensitize the child to these things; (3) and having your doctor prescribe some of the few but useful drugs which can be given when an attack of the "wheezes" is starting.

Asthma is not a germ-incited thing as a rule — although it can be incited by a germ in one way: a bacterial allergy. The infection sets up a chain of events featured by spasm of the bronchial tubes, and hence asthma.

Depending on the person's constitution, and physical peculiarities, asthma may be apparent early in life or may not develop until later. But when it starts early in life, parents should recognize that it is a condition, a perosnal trait, and not a "disease" in the usual sense. Learn to minimize the attacks, and learn to avoid them. Don't, I beg you, look for a ready cure. There is none. Long, slow cures? Ah, sometimes yes Quick ones? Almost never.

A great deal can be done for asthma, but only if you understand it. Looking for the pill, or operation, or treatment that will solve everything at one whack is the wrong way to go about it, because that won't work.

"Dear Dr. Molner: Would vitamin and mineral capsules have anything to do with blurred vision? I always had good clear vision. I have been taking the capsules for a year and a half. — A.B."

Even though you haven't told me what kind of capsules, I'll still venture this: The capsules are completely unrelated to your burred vision. It's time for you to have an eye check.

Note to Mrs. M.G.: A cyst on an ovary could, and a tipped uterus very likely would tend to prevent pregnancy. My advice is to go to a gynecologist to see whether surgery is likely to help, provided lesser treatments don't bring results.

Are you considering the removal of your child's tonsils? If so, remember that nature provided them for a purpose, and this is explained in my pamphlet, "Don't Trifle With Tonsils." To receive your copy, write to me for it in care of this newspaper, enclosing a large, self addressed, stamped envelope and 5 cents in coin to cover handling.

Scientists Explain Art

Brantford Expositor

A great many people have had their doubts about a lot of stuff that is represented by its creators as "modern art." Modern it undoubtedly is; whether it is art is open to question.

Such a statement, of course, will be sneered at as ignorant heresy by the modern "artist" and those who, knowing little about art, are nevertheless most vigorous in their praise of the weird productions that appear on so many present-day canvases..

Even when, as has happened repeatedly, a "modern" painting is exposed as an artful jest on the part of some practical joker of a painter, or when an alleged "masterpiece" turns out to have been hung wrong-side up or even sideways, without the so-called critics realizing their error, the folk who must, above all, be fashionable in their artyness are neither abashed nor impressed.

So the wrangling and name-calling as between those who like their pictures to have some form and meaning and those who consider any sensible or recognizable works to be hopelessly old-fashioned goes merrily on. For the most part the general public couldn't care less, which is perhaps just as well.

Still, for those who are interested, whether professionally or as perplexed spectators, good old Science is throwing a glimmer of light on the subject and showing up certain ultra-modern pictures for what they really are.

Of late, eminent neurophysiologists — people who are finding out how the human brain works have made some important discoveries about this marvellous mechanism. As it chances, some of these findings help to explain certain kinds of "art."

As reported to the Royal Society of Medicine, in England, by its president, Dr. W. Ritchie Russell, much has been learned about what we call memory, as a result of the study of hallucinations as an example of disordered memory mechanism. Individuals who suffer from hallucinations are vulgarly described as "seeing things." Dr. Russell explained to his learned confreres that hallucinations are generally of objects which are recognized by the sufferer because he or she has seen such things somewhere in actuality and not just in the mind's eye. Then the doctor made his illuminating reference to certain forms of "art." Some of these, he said, seemed to depend on "a cultivated capacity for hallucinatory phenomena to occur in relation to certain feelings."

However, he added, "the idea that these haphazard visual images are worth reproducing as works of art" was based on "a misconception of their physiological significance." The artist, Dr. Russell elaborated, "seems to think that these phenomena are emerging from some unique storehouse of his personal genius, but, on the contrary, the available evidence suggests more that they represent a confused glimpse of fragmentary repetitions of previous thought or reactions."

Reduced to everyday language, some of these pseudo-mystic, incomprehensible daubs and doodles are bunk.

Pledges Action For Canadian Bill of Rights

By ALAN DONNELLY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

VANCOUVER (CP) — A pledge of action towards a Canadian bill of rights has been made by Prime Minister Diefenbaker before the largest audience of his campaign so far—more than 10,000 persons.

The Progressive Conservative leader, emphasizing that it would be limited to matters within federal powers, said Thursday night his government is working on "a bill of fundamental freedoms for Canadians."

It was the first time in his month-old campaign that Mr. Diefenbaker, a long-time advocate of such a move, had raised the subject.

He gave few details of his intentions but spoke of federal jurisdiction in the field being "decided by the Supreme Court of Canada."

He also said the justice department is studying the constitutional aspects "so that when we put the bill before Parliament it will be within the constitutional powers of Parliament."

HUGE TURNOUT

This city, where an intensive campaign has been conducted on the slogan "Follow John," turned out a crowd at the east-side Exhibition Forum—a hockey arena—that more than doubled the audiences of close to 5,000 at Winnipeg and Edmonton earlier in his campaign.

Twenty minutes before the scheduled start the arena doors were closed by the fire marshal, who estimated 8,000 were inside. He said that "2,000 or 3,000" were outside, listening to loudspeakers.

The audience, however, was sprinkled with hecklers who interrupted the prime minister sporadically throughout his 70-minute speech and brought a few rejoinders from him. The heckling contrasted with the almost complete lack of interruptions in previous campaign meetings.

The meeting capped a four-day swing through British Columbia by the Conservative leader, who flies today to Calgary.

His speech dealt at length on two topics: Unemployment and his party's national development program. It was an elaboration of an address earlier in the evening on the CBC's national television network in the corporation's free-time election series of broadcasts.

In his broadcast he said there are "good reasons for believing that the clouds are beginning to disappear, that we are on the verge of a turn in the tide of gloom and fear which was the legacy which we inherited when we took office last June."

At his meeting, he said latest unemployment statistics show "we now can see light through this problem." The rate of increase in unemployment was tapering off.

"As long as I am prime minister," he promised, "no one is going to suffer in this country as a consequence of unemployment."

One heckler called out: "We're suffering right now."

Mr. Diefenbaker said the extent of unemployment is the result of inactivity by the previous Liberal government a year ago when unemployment was rising, and the extent to which Canada's trade had been tied in with the United States where unemployment was more than 5,000,000.

Claims Tax-Cut Better Cure for Unemployment

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

HALIFAFXF (CP) — Lester B. Pearson says his proposal to cut taxes by $400,000,000 if elected is a far better cure for unemployment than the billion-dollar works program of Prime Minister Diefenbaker's Conservative government.

The Liberal leader, winding up his two-day Nova Scotia campaign, told an audience of 1,100 here Thursday night that as a means of curing unemployment, Mr. Diefenbaker's $1,185,000,000 works program is a "hoax."

Far better, he said, would be the Liberals' $400,000,000 tax-cut proposal. It would immediately increase consumer purchasing power. The Liberals could not introduce such tax cuts last year because of inflation. If they had tried, Mr. Diefenbaker would have been the first to accuse them of attempting to "bribe" the voters.

But now the situation had changed. Canada was in economic trouble. Tax cuts were essential as an "emergency" measure.

FLEW INTO TOWN

Mr. Pearson spoke to a capacity crowd in a high school auditorium after flying in from Yarmouth where he told a mid-afternoon audience of more than 1,000 that the Liberals would boost federal aid for fishermen.

He favored deficiency payments to make sure fishermen got "fair returns" for their products; the redesigning of deep-sea patrol vessels to increase protection for fishermen; better navigation aid and protection of markets.

At both Yarmouth and Halifax he emphasized the Liberals would seek a free-trade pact with the new West Indies Federation, a market for Atlantic goods. The Liberals would try to build up that new federation by capital aid on the basis that this would create a larger market for Canadian exports.

But Canada's main market, he said, was the United States. Canada may have trouble there because of Mr. Diefenbaker's proposal to divert $600,000,000 worth of imports from the U.S. to Britain.

Canada wanted to help Britain but not in a way that would give protectionists in the U.S. more ammunition.

"If we lose the markets for fish in the U.S., all Canadian prices will collapse."

In the last election, the Liberals captured five of New Brunswick's 10 seats. In Nova Scotia, the Conservatives won 10 while the Liberals held only two.

Neither Party Has Answer to Unemployment

WINNIPEG (CP)—CCF Leader Coldwell charged Thursday night that the Progressive Conservatives and Liberals are playing "political football" with the unemployment situation.

". . . It makes no difference which of these parties is in power, because neither has any solution to this problem." Mr. Coldwell said on a live national CBC television broadcast from here.

The statements were included in a text of his speech issued to the press before delivery.

Mr. Coldwell said that last October the CCF in Parliament had put forward a motion calling on the government to take the necessary steps to deal with rising unemployment. The Liberals had joined the Conservatives to vote down the motion.

The number of applications on file at National Employment Service offices by those looking for work had shot up to 16,982 or nearly 14 per cent of the total labor force in January from 278,69e last October, Mr. Coldwell said.

The government had proved its inability to solve unemployment by its "failure" to halt the rapid rise in jobless since last fall.

Mr. Coldwell listed several measures a CCF government would undertake to meet the present situation and maintain full employment. Flow of investment would be controlled through a national investment board. This board, responsible to Parliament would ensure that there was always sufficient investment to maintain full employment.

Investment would be channeled into projects badly lacking in Canada: Construction of at least 200,000 homes a year, a massive school-building program, building of new hospitals and a national highway program.

Film Presentation of Old London Captivates Audience of Thousand

An audience of 1,000 people sat on the hard seats in the auditorium of the collegiate last night for nearly three hours watching — and waiting to see — the last episode in the Kiwanis Club's world travel and adventure series for this season.

Curtis Nagel painted on film what was perhaps the most outstanding portrait of London ever seen on the motion picture screen. His audience of young and old sat spellbound during the first half of his nostalgic scenes of London, its pomp and ceremony and its decadence and normality."

After a 10-minute intermission the lights dimmed, the audience hushed, Mr. Nagel took his place on stage, the projector started operating and then technical difficulties started. For an hour the audience sat patiently as their hosts tried valiantly to repair the school's projector. Apparently the shutter-life fire wall failed to function properly. It would not rise out of the way of the light beam when the machine was operating and so a prominent dullness was cast on the screen. A relief projector was secured and the travelogue continued to an unqualified success.

Last night's was not the first encounter with projector difficulties. During several other travelogues the machine broke down briefly, but was quickly put back into operation.

Curtis Nagel is a former Hollywood producer, having produced a few well known pictures. More than a decade ago he and an associate, William Moore (who was not present last night), elected to go into the production of travelogues on a full-time basis. Their world-wide jaunts have not been without incident. The Nagel-Moore team was in Hong Kong when a revolt broke out; they were on board an airliner to Honolulu when an engine failed, even after it was repaired at Wake Island; Mr. Nagel cancelled a San Francisco reservation from Honolulu in favor of taking the Los Angeles flight. The San Francisco clipper ditched in mid-Pacific with the loss of all on board.

"Portrait of London" was a unique blend of the old and new London, and it captured the mood that is unlike that of any other city in the world. It abounded in wonderful scenes of London's night and day activities. The city's parks, theatres and palaces were filmed, as were its people and their work.

Mr. Nagel was proud of the fact that he has been credited with producing the finest film of the Trooping of the Color before Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip. He claimed that the day he photographed the two-hour and 24-minute ceremony was the first day in many years that the sun shone. Mr. Nagel recorded on-the-scene music and sounds caused by the massed royal bands and the throngs of spectators.

Visits to the wax museum, Westminster Abbey, Buckingham Palace, Windsor Castle, Shakespeare's home at Stratford-upon-Avon, the White Tower and other famous buildings were made, much to the pleasure of the audience.

Mr. Nagel is scheduled to return to Belleville next year on April 16 to present his "Portrait of Germany."

The showing of a Blue Army of Mary film called "Zero 1960" was the highlight of the Catholic Women's League meeting held Monday evening in St. Michael's Academy.

Mrs. R. Ackerman was responsible for bringing this wonderful film to the C.W.L. The theme was to get enough people the world over saying the rosary to convert Russia and make for world peace.

The Guide and Brownie reports read by Mrs. Walsh and submitted by Mrs. Young and Mrs. Cleary were most interesting. The girls have had a busy time this month — in connection with their "thinking day" they received holy communion together at the 8.30 mass. Fifteen entries were made in the hobby show held in Christ Church parish hall. The Guides won four firsts and four seconds. A motion was made and carried that the C.W.L. form a new Girl Guide group in the fall. Motions were also made to send eight leaders to Madoc area dinner and to get C.W.L. badges for Guides, Brownies and leaders. Mrs. Walsh will present badges to Brownies and Guides when they arrive.

Dean Garvin opened the meeting with prayer. Many motions giving to charity were passed at the executive meeting and carried unanimously at the regular meeting.

Mrs. Wilkinson and Mrs. Trepanier will look after canvass for Red Cross for Baldwin Ward on April 14th.

REPORTS READ

Reports were read by Mrs. Boyd, Mrs. Bell, Mrs. Young, Mrs. Rorabeck and Mrs. Gallagher, to whom thanks were extended for the capable handling of the Valentine dance.

Election of officers will take place at the April meeting.

Election committee chairman is Mrs. B. J. Flagler, her committee is Mrs. A. J. Wilkinson, Mrs. J. Boyle and Mrs. J. Trudeau. Nomination forms are available at the back of the church These should be filled in and sent to Mrs. B. J. Flagler, 344 Bleecker Ave., before March 31st.

Those wishing to join the study club and social action group, contact Mrs. Paul Cleary. Meetings are held every second week.

Communion Sunday is next Sunday. All members are urged to sit in the front at the 8.30 mass and receive together.

After the meeting adjourned, coffee was served by Mrs. Bell and Mrs. Rorabeck.

College Hill W.A. Welcomes Evening Group

The members of College Hill W.A. met for their regular meeting on Wednesday. Mrs. Jean Thomson opened the meeting and introduced the theme, "Love Is of God, and God Is Love."

Contributions were made to the birthday box; sick calls were reported and thank-you notes read from the sick and bereaved.

Mrs. Eva Jenkinson presented the financial report. The W.A. is pleased to welcome an Evening Group. Mrs. Leona Bailey, Mrs. Nellie Greenwood, assisted by Mrs. Davidson of Tabernacle Church, helped organize the following group: convener, E. McIlquham; co-convener, Jane Gray; secretary, Mrs. McDonald; treasurer, Mrs. B. Reid; devotions, M. Dafoe; program, Mrs. Verda Bennett; social, Emma Armstrong. There will be a joint meeting the third Wednesday evening in April, at the church.

Mrs. Helen Hunter and Mrs. Leona Bailey prepared a splendid devotional program. Mrs. Bailey read the Scripture lesson from 1st Kings, 19, dealing with the story of Elijah hearing the still, small voice of the Lord and the Lord answering Elijah He would watch over him.

Mrs. Helen Hunter gave a reading on prayer: "If we are still we will hear, He will speak to comfort you, if you but listen."

After Mrs. Thomson closed the meeting, a cup of tea and social half hour followed.

Cannifton WMS Plans Joint Easter Meeting

Mrs. Arthur Holgate was hostess to Cannifton Women's Missionary Society on Thursday and after extending a welcome to visitors and members, Mrs. Douglas Brenton, the president, opened the meeting.

Plans were made to combine W.M.S. and Mission Band for the Easter meeting which will be held April 4th at the church.

Mrs. Gerald Brenton was in charge of the worship service, the theme being, "Everything by Prayer."

The Scripture, taken from Paul's letter to the Philippians, was read by Mrs. W. Chamberlain. Mrs. McCrea stewardship secretary, gave a reading, "Use Even Me", having many worthwhile thoughts in it.

Mrs. Ralph Plumpton rendered a lovely solo "I Believe".

A story, read by Mrs. Clarence Bird on the sacrifice of giving and how much one is blessed in return by God, should inspire each one to a greater desire to give to those less fortunate than one's self.

After expressing thanks to Mrs. Holgate for her hospitality, the meeting closed with prayer and a social half-hour followed.

Nonagenarian Has Favorite Party Leader

TORONTO (CP) — Mrs. Annie Sarah Pearson paused midway through her 90th birthday observance Thursday and wished rival Canadian political leaders the best of luck in the March 31 general election.

She admitted, in a telep [illegible] interview, to having a favori [illegible] son Lester, fighting his first campaign as national Liberal leader. But she repeated her now-familiar observation that he's probably "overworked."

Mr. Pearson, speaking Thursday night at Yarmouth, N.S., in the maritime phase of his national campaign, said he planned to phone his mother at her home in suburban North York to wish her a happy birthday.

KEEP FEET DRY

He told his audience

"I know she will ask me if I am keeping my feet dry and not getting cold. She takes the election very seriously. She thinks I'm working too hard."

Mrs. Pearson, a widow, said she and some friends had dinner out. She said she had no special message to give him unless it could be an admonition to [illegible] up.

"Politics must be terribly hard work," she remarked. "I don't know how he finds the time but I keep getting letters and postcards from here and there regularly.

"He tells me in his letters that he is trying to do what is best and he is not going to let things worry him. He is a very devoted son."

Mrs. Pearson says she has been following all aspects of the campaign with great interest although an eye disability prevents her from reading or watching television too extensively.

GOOD MANNERS

WANTS NAME OF CHURCH INCLUDED IN MARRIAGE ANNOUNCEMENTS

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am a widow in my late forties, and I am planning to re-[illegible] soon after Easter. I have [illegible] close relatives. The marriage will take place in another province, with only our attendants to witness the ceremony. What type of announcement would be proper for us to use to inform my present "in-laws" and our friends of our marriage. I would like to have it noted on the announcement that our marriage was solemnized in my church (Roman Catholic). — S. M.

The correct form for the marriage announcement would be:

Mrs. John Paul Martin and
Mr. Peter Davidson announce their marriage on Tuesday, the sixth of May Nineteen hundred and fifty-eight
(name of church here)
Toronto, Ontario

(If possible . . . and I hope it is . . . you should inform your present-in-laws of your plans, beforehand either by telling them personally, or by letter or telephone (if they live at a distance.)

YEARLY WEDDING ANNIVERSARY PRESENT

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Every year I have been sending flowers to our family doctor and his wife on their Wedding Anniversary. Do you think I'm overdoing it? What do you advise? Do you think they appreciate anything like this, or do you think something else would be more appropriate? — E.

Your gracious gesture to your doctor and his wife is most thoughtful, and I'm sure they deeply appreciate it, welcome it particularly on this occasion. Unless they are intimate friends of yours, flowers are really the most appropriate gift for you to send . . . or a variation, such as a flowering plant; or several branches of the wonderfully-long-lasting Chinese lilies, with their shining leaves; or a box of [illegible]ches of different kinds of leaves, effective and decorative. Or if you know them fairly well, and have a way of finding out about a food-or-beverage enthusiasm of theirs, you might send an interesting choice in this field.

ABOUT HAVING REPEATING-OF-VOWS FOR GOLDEN WEDDING

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Our parents are to celebrate their Fiftieth Wedding Anniversary soon, and we, their children, are making all the plans. Should we make the plan to have the marriage ceremony take place again? Some say this is necessary, and some say it is optional. — Dorothy W.

It is optional . . . definitely not necessary, not customary. Consult with your mother and father about their wishes, and if they should like to have this, talk it over with the minister of your denomination.

NOT NECESSARY TO WEAR A HAT

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

To celebrate our twenty-fifth wedding anniversary my husband and I are inviting ten couples to come to our house for cocktails, and then to dine with us in a private dining room of a hotel here. I am wearing a street-length dinner dress of a pastel shade. Is it necessary for me to wear a hat? — Kate L.

No. (But if you decide not to wear a hat, you should inform your women guests of your plan . . . also the plan about the type of dress you are to wear.)

IS RETURN-INVITATION AN OBLIGATION?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Recently I was invited to a luncheon-followed-by-bridge, by a woman whom I don't know very well. I appreciated her invitation, but because of illness I was not able to accept. Now, even though I couldn't accept her invitation, am I obligated to invite her to something? Must it be to a luncheon-and-bridge? This last would certainly be a hardship for me. — E.S.

Even though you were not able to accept such a gracious invitation is more or less supposed to suggest a return-hospitality, if you are able to do this. Certainly you need not invite your hostess to the same kind of party to which she invited you . . . you may just as properly invite her to a most simple party, just tea-for-two, if you wish.

Answer: I can give you some help but am far from an authority. I think a subscription to the magazine "Restaurant & Caterer," published in Vancouver, would help you. Also the following 4 books: "Establishing & Operating a Year Round Motor Court" by Harry Barclay Love, published by U.S. Dept. of Commerce, Washington. Old but excellent. "Motor Courts from Planning to Profits" by C. Vernon Kane, published by Ahrens Publishing Co., Inc., New York, with chapters on cooking, restaurant facilities and housekeeping. "Sandwich Shops, Drive-Ins and Diners — How to Start and Operate Successfully" by Louis X. Garfunkel, pub. by Greenberg, New York. "Food Service for Restaurants, Coffee Shops, Hotel, Cafeteria and Home" by Helen Livingstone, pub. by McKnight & McKnight, Bloomington, Illinois.

Specialize in something, for instance Chicken Maryland, or superbly roasted beef and Yorkshire pudding. I know a restaurant owner who became famous, without planning it, for Cocoanut Honey Cakes because they looked so attractive on the cake serving counter. For fun I will give the quantity recipe:

COCOANUT HONEY CAKES

(Equivalent of 5 ordinary-sized layer cakes; braketed figures are for one-cake amount). Mix together in electric mixer 2 lbs. 8 oz. cake flour (8 oz.) and 1 lb. 4 oz. emulsifying type shortening (4 oz.) for about 4 minutes. Add 1 lb. 4 oz. brown sugar (4 oz.), 1 lb. 2 oz. white sugar (3 3-5 oz.), 1 1-2 oz. salt (1 1-2 teaspoons), 1 lb. honey (3 1-3 oz.), 1 lb. liquid milk (4 oz.), 2 1-2 oz. baking powder (3 teaspoons) and beat in electric mixer for 3 minutes. Mix together and add in 2 stagger 1 lb. 8 oz. whole eggs (4 4-5 oz.), 1 lb. 8 oz. liquid milk (4 4-5 oz.), 1 oz. vanilla (1 1-2 teaspoons). Add and mix until smooth 1 lb. fine cocoanut (3 1-3 oz.) Turn into pans which have been coated with a mixture of half and half saltless shortening and flour and bake at 370 deg. F. When cold ice with

HONEY ICING

Boil to 240 deg. F. 5 lbs. granulated sugar (1 lb.), 1 lb. honey (3 1-3 oz.), 3-4 pint water (3 oz.). Pour it slowly into 20 oz. egg whites (4 oz.), 1-8 oz. salt (1-16th teaspoon), 1-8 oz. cream of tartar (1-16th teaspoon) these having been beaten together until very stiff. Continue beating until icing is stiff and then add juice and grate rind of 3 lemons (1-2 large lemon), then stir in 8 oz. sifted icing sugar (1 3-5 oz.). Ice cakes at once and sprinkle with toasted cocoanut. Patrons lined up for it. Good luck.

Women's Activities

ST. ANDREWS W. M. S.

The March meeting of St. Andrew's W. M. S. was held in the auditorium of the church Tuesday afternoon.

The president opened with prayer, followed by the the minutes of last meeting by Mrs. Fleming and the treasurer's report by Mrs. Diamond.

Mrs. Kane and Mrs. Yorke reported visits to the sick and shutins.

Mrs. Dumont sang a solo, entitled, "When I Survey the Wondrous Cross," with Mrs. Boyce at the piano, which was much enjoyed by all.

Mrs. Mantle and her group of Miss M. MacIntosh, Mrs. R. D. MacLean, Mrs. Mills and Mrs. Powell had charge of the worship period.

"Korean Christians in Japan," was the title of the topic for study and was taken in cases by the group.

The cases considered showed a few basic problems faced by the Korean Christians, and pastors, in Japan. One might well ask the question, "What is being done to overcome these problems?"

POOLING RESOURCES

In Japan, 34 denominations are pooling their spiritual and material resources in an effort to bring the redemptive impact of the gospel to bear upon the nation. This United Church comprises a union of church groups including the former Methodist, Presbyterian, along with several others — the coming together of these communions to form a unified thrust into the unparalleled opportunity that post-war Japan offers to the Christian church is one of the most outstanding events in the history of modern missions.

The National Christian Council of Japan presents an even stronger united Christian impact on the nation. In this organization, not only the denominations working within the united church of Christ, but also the Japanese, Anglican, the Japanese Lutheran, the Japanese Baptist churches, and the related missions of these churches are co-operating.

PROTESTANT WORK

The year 1959 will herald the Centenary of Protestant work in Japan. The Council is making elaborate plans to commemorate that event. It has launched an evangelistic movement that aims to make that historic milestone a time of great in-gathering.

It has been said, that, "God Has Creative Hours." Japan stands in such an hour — one of God's creative hours, for a great Christian Crusade centered in Him who, with such pathos and passion, prayed that all may be one, and that the whole world may believe in Him who died that all might be saved.

Missionary for Prayer is Miss Dorothy Bulmer who is completing her studies at the Deaconess Training School and is expected to proceed to her field of work in Nigeria sometime this year. The society is asked to pray for Miss Bulmer.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Mantle and her group.

IKE'S PORTRAIT SLASHED

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—A portrait of President Eisenhower was found slashed in the exclusive Houston Club Sunday and a note found on the picture said "We don't like Ike in Texas." Henry O. Barbour, club manager, valued the painting at more than $1,000.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, a newspaper editor, a women's editor and two writers. Each article is a summary of an actual case history. The Council reports on problems that have been dealt with by responsible agencies and counsellors.

Cynthia F. — I'm old enough to run my own life.

Mrs. T. F. — . . . but not to ruin it.

• • •

Cynthia F. — Do parents have any right to impose rules on a woman of 25?

When my mother was my age she had three children. She did exactly as she pleased. Certainly she would resent being bossed by her mother.

Just because I am single my parents think they still have the right to run my life as if I were a child. When I go out they want to know where I am going, with whom and when I'll be back. Often I don't know when I'll be back. I don't want them to sit up waiting for me as they did when I was 16.

My parents have an idea that I shouldn't stay out later than 2 A. M. They have no right to impose a curfew on me.

• • •

Mrs. T. F.: Is it being unreasonable for us to worry when our daughter goes out several nights a week and returns home as late as three in the morning? We are worried about her health, if nothing else. She goes to work and holds a responsible job. You can't burn the candle at both ends like that.

A very important aspect of all this is that Cynthia doesn't introduce her friends to us. We not only don't know where she is, but with whom she is spending her time.

It is true Cynthia is old enough to run her own life, but not ruin it. We are afraid of goading her into leaving home, but we feel it is really necessary to lay down the law.

• • •

The Council: As the T. F's undoubtedly know, it is useless to "lay down the law" when there is no means to enforce it.

Unfortunately, Cynthia is quite old enough to ruin as well as run her own life and her parents' efforts to control the situation are useless if this financially independent young woman does not recognize their authority, or even their friendly supervision. The "curfew" won't do at all.

Cynthia may, however, be able to profit from an objective look at her own behavior. It is true that she should not be "bossed," but the mere fact that she sees her parents' concern in this light indicates some childishness on her part.

Adults living together usually give one another some basic information about their activities, associations and whereabouts. If they don't, it is assumed that they are trying to hide something. If they hide, it means they have some sense of guilt.

As an adult, completely responsible for her own actions, Cynthia should not be feeling guilty toward her parents. There should be no need to hide her whereabouts or her friends. We have a notion that the T. F.'s would be much less concerned about the hours Cynthia keeps if she were less furtive in her movements

No, Cynthia can't be expected to knuckle under to rules, but she should expect responsible, reasonable behaviour from herself.

ST. ANDREW'S GUILD

FOXBORO — Mrs. Earl Ketcheson opened her home for the March meeting of St. Andrew's Guild and W.M.S., with a good attendance. Miss Watt, the Guild president, opened the meeting by reading the 19th Psalm.

Mrs. Johnson gave the commentary and it was called "House Cleaning."

A reading, "A Tramp's Soliloquy," composed by Gladstone Wood, was given by Mrs. Lyons. A duet by Mrs. Wannamaker and Mrs. Lyons was much enjoyed. A reading, in four parts, was given by Mesdames Bartlett, Juby, Ketcheson and Chappelle and based on the "Shepherd's Psalm." This was interesting.

Mrs. Ketcheson served refreshments and a social half hour followed.

HONOR U.S. POET

LONDON (AP)—Russia has issued a new stamp bearing a portrait of American poet Henry Wadsworth Longfellow. Moscow radio made the announcement Wednesday.

SPRINGBROOK W.A.

A successful potluck dinner was held in the basement of Springbrook United Church last Thursday, sponsored by the Woman's Association, with Mrs. George Thompson and Mrs. Edward Bateman as hostesses.

Proceeds from the dinner, $38.

Following the dinner 30 members and three visitors assembled for their regular meeting at 2 o'clock. Words of welcome were extended to all by the president, Mrs. Carman Sine who opened the meeting.

The devotional period was conducted by Mrs. Ralph Thompson, the theme being "Prayer, God Talking." The Scripture from 1 Kings 19: 1-18 was read by Mrs. Joe Thompson, after which Psalm 24 was read in unison.

Mrs. Percy Smith read the theme thoughts. A prayer for the missionary, Miss Gould, was given by Mrs. Kenneth Thompson.

The members reported 103 cards sent and 19 calls made. The correspondence consisted of two "Thank You"s". The report for the February visiting committee was given.

Mother's Helper

NOVICES at eating hot dogs may have trouble keeping the meat in the roll. You can help by scooping out the inside of the bun in a sort of trough for the frankfurter. This is especially good at the beach where the picnic hot dogs may be dropping in the clinging sand.

Volunteers for this committee for March are: Mrs. Fred McKeown and Mrs. John McKeown. The flower and fruit committee reported cards sent to the sick, while a letter of sympathy was sent by the secretary to a bereaved member.

Mrs. Beare told of attending a WMS meeting at Napanee, recently, and explained briefly the highlights of the day.

It was agreed the association would cater to the Progressive Conservative rally on March 26 to be held in the Orange hall, Springbrook, with Mrs. Gordon Bailey (convener), Mrs. Gerald Broadworth and Mrs. J. Thompson named as a committee.

Mrs. Delbert Fleming reporting for the cupboard committee, told of contacts made re stove estimates. A discussion followed which will be given further consideration.

Other items of business were discussed, these, too, will be dealt with at a later date. This concluded the business.

An interesting topic on 'Youth' was given by Mrs. George Thompson. Readings were given by Mrs. Charles Gordanier and Mrs. Bert McCoy.

A contest was put on by Mrs. Reg McKeown with everyone sharing the prize.

The hostesses for the April meeting will be the executive when the association entertains the Mission Band and their mothers.

Build Now? Yes If You Measure Up

Should you build your own new house instead of buying a ready-made one?

Here are four factors by which to grade yourself as a prospect for a specially-designed home:

1. Build, if you own or can acquire a plot of ground in a neighborhood you like.

2. Build, if you've toured the housing developments and inspected individual new homes for sale without finding anything that satisfies you.

3. Build, if your desires are highly individual and you have the plan you want, or if you know an architect who can design these desires into a house.

4. Build, if your budget is flexible enough to meet the cost. Usually it costs more to build a house than it does to buy a ready-built one.

ANY STYLE CAN BE YOURS

What are the principal advantages of building new as opposed to buying new?

Location — You can put the house where you want it.

Style—Any style can be yours if you're willing and able to pay

Space—If you've owned or rented a house previously, you have a good idea of your minimum space requirements and can provide for them.

Traffic pattern—You know the habits of your family best and can work out the house's traffic pattern accordingly with the architect.

Building materials—You can make your own selection of materials which will give the best service and will look best.

CAREFUL PLANNING A MUST

Other advantages of custom construtcion include rooms in sizes you like, work and play areas where you want them, and less waste space generally. Careful planning is the most important factor in getting started.

Do keep your financial status in mind so that you will not go overboard in size and style of the house and its equipment.

Do investigate both the architect and/or the builder before you commit yourself.

Do follow the advice of the architect after you have selected him.

Don't change design and the equipment after construction actually has started. It will cost you money.

Anti-Freeze Fire Buckets

The addition of calcium chloride to water in fire buckets can prevent freezing at 59 degrees below zero. Such a solution resists evaporation and prevents stagnation with its attendant breeding of mosquitoes. One pound of calcium chloride to one gallon of water lowers the freezing point from 32 to 24 degrees. Three pounds brings it down to 2 below zero. Five pounds per gallon defies freezing at 52 below zero. Always add the flakes to the water — never pour the water on the flakes. Mixing causes heat, so prepare solutions in separate tanks to cool before filling galvanized containers.

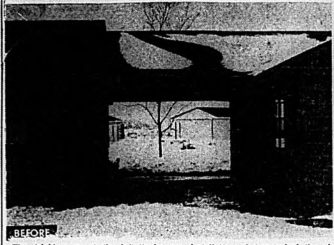
Chilly Breezeway Converts Into Cozy Family Room



BEFORE

AFTER

The frigid scene at the left is an example of valuable space being wasted in a home. The breezeway between the house proper and the living quarters has a roof, ceiling and concrete foundation — but it is useless in all but the warmer months of the year. The picture at the right shows the same breezeway today. It now has become a family room with the relatively easy installation of two walls of windows, front and back doors, recessed lighting in the ceiling and a tile floor. The owner, who lives in the midwest, did the job himself, using casement windows of ponderosa pine which came in a unit with prefabricated frames and sash. With the windows opened fully the breezeway still retains its airy characteristics in summer. Closed and with storm sash attached, the windows give plenty of light and view in the winter, but help keep out the cold and make the breezeway comfortable. Thick mineral wool insulation was installed in the garage wall, the walls under the windows, and in the ceiling to make the new living space even more comfortable on winter days.

Colorful New Roofing for Modern Homes Is Available

If you own a modern house with a nearly flat roof you have an opportunity when it comes time to reroof.

A recently developed roofing application method now permits the use of colorful shingles on low-slope roof decks. It is suitable for new construction as well as for new roofs on old houses.

The method makes possible the use of three-tab, square-butt asphalt strip shingles on roofs with slopes as low as two inches per foot. Previously, a four-inch-per-foot pitch was the lowest for which asphalt shingles were recommended.

Unlike the materials that had to be used for low-slope roofing before, asphalt shingles offer a wide selection of solid and blended colors, ranging from subtle shades of green, blue, and red to blue-black and black.

The light colors are often chosen for one-storey houses because a light roof tends to make a low house look larger. Asphalt shingles usually can be applied directly over old roofings, saving the expense or removing the old material.

Low-slope application calls for two layers of asphalt-saturated felt to be laid on the roof deck before the shingles are applied. These two layers are cemented togther along the eaves, in areas where the temperature averages below 25 degrees in January. As a final step, each shingle tab is cemented to the one beneath it.

Special Features

By JOAN O'SULLIVAN

The Highland's a split-level home with special features. They're found on the lowest level of the house, where the architect has put space to work in a way homemakers will like.

RECREATION ROOM

This basement floor, under the bedroom level, boasts a recreation room, more than 26 feet long, that's bound to be the scene of family entertaining or, if the children are small, would make a wonderful playroom. Close by, there's a bathroom.

The floor also has a nice-sized laundry room.

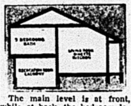
Up a short flight of stairs and you're in the dining room on the main floor. It's a small area but since it opens on the living room, it seems larger than it is. Walls don't hem it in.

The living room's lovely, has a vaulting ceiling that's quite dramatic and a pretty picture window looking out on the front yard.

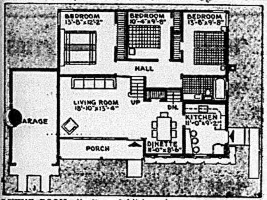
The kitchen's at far right of the main floor, adjacent to the dining room. It's a cheerful work centre, with a window at front and a service door at the side.

Up a few short steps from the living room is the bedroom floor. Rooms open off a balcony hall visible from the lower level. Closet space in the largest bedroom is quite generous — an entire wall-long wardrobe. Both corner rooms are cross-ventilated.

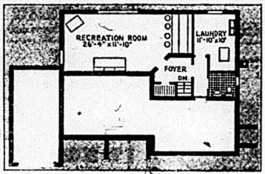
The Highland comprises 19,610 cubic feet.



The main level is at front, while at back, the bedroom level is placed over the recreation room.



LIVING ROOM, dinette and kitchen share space on the main floor. On the top level, there are three comfortable bedrooms and a bath.



A LARGE RECREATION room occupies most of the lowest level. Adjacent to it is a laundry room and, close by, a small bathroom.

Even a Warm Room Can Be Chilly If Walls Are Cold

Ever have the puzzling experience of feeling chilly in a room you knew was warm? You weren't imagining things.

Heating experts say cold walls are one of the biggest barriers to winter comfort, even when the room temperature is up around 80.

The walls cause the body to lose heat so quickly that a person begins to shiver.

Insulation is a remedy. A wall adequately insulated will be up to 10 degrees warmer than without insulation.

There are two main ways insulation keeps walls from robbing the body of its heat. The first is the prevention of drafts. When a wall is cold, it refrigerates the air near it. Cold air is heavier than warm air and so it sinks, sending drafts of chilly air along the floor. The cold walls keep sending new supplies of cold air, which keep the drafts going.

With insulated walls, no discernible amount of cold air comes off the walls and objectionable drafts disappear.

Warm walls also reduce body heat loss through radiation. Did you ever sit before a roaring fire and feel warm even though the air in the room was cold? What happened was that the warmth of the fire was radiated to your body in the form of heat waves. You were warmed even though the air around you was not.

When the walls are cold, the warmth of your body escapes to the walls by the same heat waves. The colder the walls, the faster the heat loss. When the walls are warm, the radiation, for all practical purposes, is stopped.

LOCK YOUR WINDOWS

Weatherstripping around windows is most efficient when windows are firmly locked. The Weatherstrip Research Institute says locked windows not only deter prowlers, but also keep dust, dirt and street noises out.

STORING CHEMICALS

Calcium chloride often is used to absorb moisture from the air, such as eliminating dampness in closets. It must be stored and handled with care. Keep bags on wood supports away from floor dampness, but not in an attic, where accidental breakage may cause seepage into wood floors and plastered ceilings. When this chemical is liquified by exposure to air, dispose of it where it cannot damage concrete or vegetation. It corrodes iron, so flush well if you empty it down a drain.

Home Improvement Days Here Again

To Remodel First Check All Angles

Remodeling may be the answer for families who can't or don't want to buy or build a brand-new dream house. With luck, a lot of searching and careful planning, it's possible to get the bargain of a lifetime.

The first step on such a project is to determine the condition of the house and the extent of remodeling needed. A ramshackle home's lack of beauty may be only skin deep.

GET EXPERT ADVICE

If the basic structure is sound, and if the room layout is such that a minimum of structural changes are needed, prospects may be good.

But before going ahead, get expert advice from an architect, a contractor or a lending institution. Obtain estimates on all work. Perhaps you can do some yourself. Then find out if you can finance the work.

For extensive remodelling, be prepared to spend several thousand dollars. A. B. Campen, remodelling editor of Practical Builder, found that on more than 100 houses, the average remodeling cost was about $8,000. In every case, Campen said, the owner saved money. Campen found these 10 major remodeling needs:

1. All of the houses needed better wiring for modern electrical appliances.

REVAMPED KITCHENS NEEDED

2. All needed new kitchens. Today's housewife, unable to find or afford domestic help, wants such appliances as a dishwasher, garbage disposal unit, clothes washer and dryer, large refrigerator and deep freezer—and ample work surfaces and cabinet space.

3. All needed more storage space. In any remodelling job, try to include a storage wall.

4. All needed painting and decorating.

5. Nine out of 10 of the houses needed new roofs.

FULL INSTALLATION REQUIRED

6. Seven out of 10 houses needed heating systems. A new heating unit is a major expense but not prohibitive.

7. Eight out of 10 houses needed complete insulation. Thirty years ago, home insulation was virtually unknown. A fully insulated house means at least a four to six-inch thickness of mineral wool in the ceilings, at least three inches in the walls and two inches over a crawl space.

8. Seven out of 10 houses needed new bathrooms. Most families need at least one upstairs and a lavatory downstairs.

9. Seven out of 10 houses needed new windows.

10. Five out of 10 houses needed new siding. Narrow, 3½-inch clapboard dates a house.

Why Air Filters Must Be Clean

Dust clogged air filters tend to impede the flow of air through heating of air conditioning units. This makes such units operate at higher temperatures than thermostat settings. This in turn boosts operating costs and cuts comfort performance.

There are two general types of filter units. One made of oiled glass fibres compares in cost with a carton of cigarets and is thrown away and replaced. Another, made of oiled metal filings can be cleaned re-oiled and used indefinitely.

KEEP WINDOWS TIGHT

It's wise never to run radio or television antenna lead-ins over window weatherstripping. Notch the weatherstrip if you must bring wires in through a window. A tight window fit is the purpose of weatherstripping.

Sunday School Lesson

You Can Be a World Authority

By ROY L. SMITH

There is something exciting about the story of the man who had been born blind, to whom Jesus gave sight. Upon being questioned concerning his healer, the young man replied, "Whether he is a sinner or not I do not know; but one thing I do know, and that is that whereas I was blind now I see."

There were a thousand questions concerning the scriptures, concerning Jewish doctrine, and concerning Jewish hopes upon which the young man could hardly have been expected to have an intelligent opinion. And there were few subjects upon which he had a right to speak with any finality. But upon one subject he was a world authority—he had been blind, and now he could see. About that he had no doubt, and as to his ability to tell that story there could be no doubt.

RELIGION IS EXPERIENCE

Not all of us are able to speak with finality concerning some of the difficult problems with which religion has wrestled through the centuries .For some of our doctrines we may not be able to give a very logical explanation or defense. But there is one area in which we can feel secure, and that is inside our own experience.

If there has come a great peace into our lives, and if we have achieved a specific victory over temptation because of our faith in Jesus Christ, then we may feel secure behind such a stronghold.

"I cannot answer your arguments, and I cannot explain all the 'hows' of what has happened to me", said a humble man. "But I know it to be true that from the hour I believed that God through Christ had forgiven my sins, my life took on an altogether new color and satisfaction. This is not theory with me: it is fact. And I live with that indisputable fact every hour of every day."

HONEST QUESTIONS

It is true, of course, that there are those individulas who find it difficult to accept certain of the great Christian imperatives until after they have found answers to some of their intellectual questions. And such persons should be honored for their integrity, and the honesty of their purpose.

It often happens that such question can be answered only by those who are prepared, by their intellectual training, to offer logical grounds for belief.

The Uniform Sunday School Lesson for March 16: "The Church and Community Evangelism", Mark 5:18-21; Luke 8:26-39; 10:1-2; Acts 5:42; I Thessalonians 1:6-10. Within three minutes after

For the most part, however, the convincing evidence offered for the Christian gospel is the testimony that is given by the people who have made it work in their own lives—those who have succeeded in shaking themselves free from their sense of guilt and establishing a personal relationship with God through the guidance of Jesus Christ.

YOUNG MAN IN GREAT CITY

A veteran salesman of rare quality of life and character went one night with his pastor to call on a couple of country boys who had come down to the big city to get jobs and go on with their education.

the conversation began the layman had taken the conversation out of the hands of the preacher. "Let me do this talking," he had said with a smile. "You see, I know what these boys are up against. I came to this city when I was their age. I looked around for a while, then I joined a church and gave my life to Jesus Christ. For more than 30 years that experience has been the greatest thing in all my life." And with that he described to 2 bewildered lads the deep significance of a simple religious faith in the presence of a strident city.

It was, again, the question of a world authority. The older man has been through it. He knew what to expect, and on what to be warned. Every inch of the way was familiar ground to him, and he could pass on to the farmer boys the benefit of facts. He did not discuss theory; he laid bare the facts.

Good religion never fears the facts. They are its best allies.

Family Greets Queen Mother On Arrival

She was welcomed back from her six-weeks journey by Queen Elizabeth and Princess Margaret, and by her granddaughter, seven year-old Princess Anne. Her grandson, Prince Charles, Charles, nine-year-old heir to the throne, is at school and her son-in-law, Prince Philip, is on a visit to Germany.

A large crowd gathered at London airport to cheer the Queen Mother's return. She made the last lap of her flight from Malta in a British turbo-prop Britannia plane after her American-made Super-Constellation operated by Qantas Airlines had run into a series of mechanical troubles that delayed her return.

The Queen Mother's triumphant Commonwealth tour drew huge crowds in Canada, New Zealand and Australia. She left London Jan. 28 and stopped at Montreal, Vancouver, Honolulu and Fiji before spending 14 days in New Zealand. Her Australian visit lasted from Feb. 14 to March 7.

Mother's Day Said Slobbering Sentimentality

LONDON (Reuters) — A columnist in The Daily Herald has made a slashing attack on Mother's Day.

Columnist Jon Akass warns all men to take evasive action by locking themselves in a room with a book and a bottle when the British Mother's Day falls this Sunday.

He describes the event as "a recently invented American subsidy to the flower and jewelry industries . . . a great slobbering fusion of ancient and modern sentimentality, a loathsome mixture of phoney maternal gooeyness and hand-on-the-heart sales cynicism."

"It would be a bad day for the integrity of this country if we follow the example of America and put family affection on the keyboard of a cash register."

Fulton Fish Market Handles Million Pounds of Sea Food Daily With Peak at 7.00 A.M.

The Fulton Fish Market, which handles 1,000,000 pounds of sea-food a day, is a real hurly-burly at 7 a.m., at the peak of business.

"It would be much busier, except that so many housewives prefer prepared foods these days," grumbled one morose wholesaler.

A stroll along South Street, bordering the East River where trawlers come in and open-face fish sheds are concentrated, can be a risky experience as trucks large and small—some from Canada—roar on their errands.

PIRATES' LAIR

Shading the street — and holding down the fish aroma—is the elevated Franklin D. Roosevelt Drive, carrying endless traffic that sounds like pounding ocean breakers.

More than 1,000 workers add to the din with shouts in English, Spanish and Italian, looking like pirates as they stride about with longshoremen's hooks, hammers and hatchets in their belts.

It's a good-natured crowd and a colorful scene as wholesalers—ranged in narrow, deep stalls on all sides—do a pell-mell business in 130 varieties of fish.

August Strauss, president of the Fulton Market Fish Mongers' Association, said the Lenten season spurs business a "trifle" but the current recession has been a harmful factor. He has seen many changes in 45 years at the market.

CRABS AND CLAMS

"Twenty years ago, 75 per cent of our fish came over the docks," Strauss said. "Now only about 10 per cent comes in boats — the rest is trucked from Gloucester and other places. We get codfish, haddock, smelts, hake flounder, mackerel and some herring from the Maritimes."

The fish market morning pace slows at about the same time as white-collar workers begin to arrive in the nearby narrow, gloomy canyon of Wall Street.

Then dockmen cluster around wharfside fires and feast on fried crabs and clams while seagulls cry overhead.

ODD SHOP

Only a fish-throw away from the market is one of the waterfront's oddest shops, camouflaged behind a warped old sign that proclaims: The Eagle Bag and Burlap Company.

You'll find nary a bag nor a burlap in the shop, but there are plenty of Persian rugs, Indonesian carvings, Balinese figurines, African ebony statuettes, Cambodian bells and teak trinkets from the Orient.

Proprietor Louis Cohen has no trouble finding items in the cramped 125-year-old building, which once was headquarters for the New York Volunteer Fire Brigade. But to the visitor, everything is piled together in hopeless confusion.

Cohen—who keeps the names of many Canadian tourists on his visitors' book—explains that his business, like topsy, just grew after he began buying odd pieces of foreign art from hard-up seamen about 30 years ago.

He still deals with seamen, but now he also makes trips to Hong Kong and other far places in search of choice and low-priced items.

HISTORY WHIZ

An electronic brain demonstrated recently in a mid-Manhattan skyscraper rattles off history answers faster than any professor.

International Business Machines demonstrated how the computer—when queried on a keyboard somewhat similar to a typewriter — will instantly reply by typing out answers to history questions going as far back as 4 B.C.

At the Brussels World's Fair it will reply in any one of 10 languages, including Russian. Ordinarily it is used for strictly business purposes, renting at $3,500 a month. It is called RAMAC, meaning random access method of accounting and control.

Asked what happened in 30 A.D., Ramac shot back: "Salome asked for and obtained the head of John the Baptist."

But apparently RAMAC hadn't heard of Canada, or at least the year of Confederation. Asked what happened in 1867, it replied only:

"Russia sold Alaska to the United States," and "Part I of Capital, by Karl Marx, appeared."

WEE GRACE

The Manhattan visit of James Corbett Leith, a Scot who sells scotch, was the occasion for a bang-up Scottish feast, with haggis and all, and starting with scotch, naturally. It was served in stemmed goblets, like champagne — to keep sweaty or clammy hands away from the liquid. Leith said the Selkirk grace:

Some hae meat and canna eat
And some wad eat that want it,
But we hae meat and we can eat,
And sae the Lord be thanket.

Three Algerian Women Given Life Sentences

PARIS (CP) — President Rene Coty Thursday commuted to life imprisonment the death sentence imposed on Djamila Bouhired, 21-year-old Algerian girl condemned as a terrorist.

The death sentence handed down by a French military court in Algeria had stirred protests abroad and within France.

Coty also commuted the death sentences of two older Algerian women, Djemila Bouazza and Jacqueline Netter Guerroudj. They also must serve life terms.

Djamila was sentenced for complicity in two bombing in Algiers that killed one person and injured 40.

No woman has been executed on French territory since 1917 when Mata Hari was executed at Vincennes as a German spy.

Resignations Rock Hamilton Legal Dept.

HAMILTON (CP) — Mayor Jackson said tonight he will call a special meeting of the board of control today to discuss resignations from the city solicitor's office.

Two members of the solicitor's department resigned Thursday following resignations Wednesday of Mrs. Eileen McLean Yates and Kenneth Rouff.

The latest to quit are W. Murray McCulloch and law student P. A. Marshall. City solicitor Alan Stewart gave Mayor Jackson a letter Thursday night in which he said unless some action is taken to counter the resignations, he also would be forced to resign.

The resignations were precipitated by a 10-to-9 decision of city council Tuesday referring back a recommendation by the department to have Mrs. Yates appointed assistant city solicitor. The recommendation was endorsed unanimously by board of control.

Both Mr. McCulloch and Mr. Marshall said their action was a protest against the treatment given Mrs. Yates.

The solicitor's department now is reduced to assistant city solicitor J. B. Chambers, one non-lawyer assistant and clerks. More than 100 legal files requiring the attention of the department are outstanding.

Demands Ottawa Be Given Right To Fluoridate

TORONTO (CP) — G. T. Gordon (L — Brantford) has demanded that the Ontario government pass legislation permitting municipalities to fluoridate their water supplies.

Speaking Thursday during throne speech debate in the legislature he said Ottawa was deprived of its "democratic rights" when the legislature's private bills committee voted 15 to 12 last Thursday against a bill permitting the city to put fluorine in its water.

"We voted for Ottawa," said Mr. Gordon. "Ottawa city council voted 19 to 4 to do something they believed was right."

He said that last session the government passed legislation permitting eight Ontario municipalities to continue fluoridation systems in operation before a Supreme Court decision ruled the measure contravenes the duty to supply pure water.

Health Minister Phillips had supported fluoridation, so "why doesn't the government let a municipality adopt it?"

"Because this government has no policy, they had to come here with a private bill. And what happens when they get here? Fifteen government members decide against them."

Baby H-Bomb Could Be Carried By Fighter Plane

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP)—Gen. O. P. Weyland, commander of the U.S. Tactical Air Command, says a hydrogen bomb small enough to be carried by a fighter-bomber has been developed.

The commander told a meeting of the American Petroleum Institute Thursday the fighter delivery system for the H-bomb is so accurate it exceeds that of the low-altitude bombing system.

Weyland said tactical fighters are dispersed at bases around the world and a "large segment" of any potential enemy target complex lies within their range.

"At this moment at various points throughout the free world, there are squadrons of supersonic tactical aircraft, each capable of delivering an atomic bomb against an assigned target or an unexpected target of opportunity," he said.

"These aircraft are located, not thousands of miles from the scene of any future conflict but so close they will have delivered the first counter-attack sometime before our major retaliatory force arrives."

FLY SAUCERS

VIENNA (Reuters) — Soviet technicians have developed and made successful test flights with "flying saucers," according to Soviet sources quoted by a Hungarian newspaper. The saucers, called "disco - planes," were shaped like plates measuring 11 feet in diameter, and could reach an altitude of 9,600 feet.

WORKS WHILE HE TRAVELS

Prime Minister Diefenbaker dictates a letter to his secretary, Mrs. Marion Wagner, while his campaign train travels through Quebec. The Progressive Conservative leader usually has three cars hooked to the rear of regular trains. Both he and Liberal leader Lester B. Pearson are using the railways extensively during campaigning for the March 31 general election. (CP Photo).

Canada's Political Leaders Bank Heavily on Railways For Winter Election Campaign

by THE CANADIAN PRESS

During a general election campaign, especially one in winter, Canada's political leaders bank heavily on the railways.

In the case of two of them—Prime Minister Diefenbaker and Liberal Leader Lester B. Pearson—it is much more than just commuting from point to point.

They travel in special rail cars which are veritable campaign headquarters on wheels, equipped with office, sleeping and eating facilities, and staffed by political cooks.

What is life like on a campaign train? What do the special cars look like? Who travels with the leaders?

Climb aboard and let's look around.

FAMOUS NO. 100

Mr. Diefenbaker, the Progressive Conservative leader, usually has three cars hooked to the rear of regular trains, Mr. Pearson two.

Most famous of all is No. 100, the government rail car placed at the disposal of this country's prime ministers and used by them both during and in between election campaigns.

More old-fashioned in appearance than the others—it was used for some years by former Prime Minister St. Laurent—No. 100 always brings up the rear. It incorporates an observation platform, now largely out-moded on rail cars. Because this campaign is being conducted in winter, there isn't much opportunity for Mr. Diefenbaker to use the platform for whistle-stop speech-making.

Otherwise, all the campaign cars appear from the outside to be no different than most green-colored CNR executive and sleeping cars.

No. 100, its interior panelled in mahogany and walnut, has a separate dining room and drawing room, a kitchen, a portable telephone and bedrooms for the prime minister and his staff.

BUSY ENTOURAGE

The drawing room is fitted with five or six armchairs and a small two-seat sofa. Between this room and the dining room are three bedrooms — two, with adjoining bathroom, occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Marion Wagner. Ahead of the dining room is another bedroom, used by a staff member, and next to it is the kitchen.

Usually attached to this vehicle is the staff car, the Pacific, and a conventional sleeping car of bedrooms and compartments for reporters and photographers following the prime minister around the country.

The staff car usually is a hive of political activity, with typewriters churning out Mr. Diefenbaker's next speech or a special government order. This car has a small lounge, where reporters sometimes may be invited in for a drink, as well as a small kitchen and offices and bedrooms for staff workers.

Into this panelled lounge may come the prime minister late at night, after the political rally is over and the train is on its way, to chat and joke with reporters, and recount some experiences of former years.

LIBERAL HQ

Mr. Pearson has no private car of his own. His sleeping quarters and office are on a staff car, the Atlantic, similar to the prime minister's Pacific staff car.

Here also is the lounge and kitchen and the bedrooms. Space is somewhat cramped. Mr. and Mrs. Pearson have their individual bedrooms. Some staff members have to double up in the compartments.

But spirits are gay. Mr. Pearson makes a point of inviting reporters into the lounge, after the day's work is done, for a drink and a chat, the topics ranging from the latest sports scores to Canadian and world affairs.

All the while, staff members pore over schedules, ready to shift offices and baggage at a moment's notice to planes or automobiles or to hotel suites.

Life aboard a campaign train moves at a swift pace. There's little time for sleep. In the press cars, reporters' typewriters clatter into the wee hours of the morning. Stories often are dropped off at some lonely rail station to be telegraphed to home offices.

Travelling with Mr. and Mrs. Diefenbaker are a staff of seven or eight, including several who have had previous experience with election campaigns.

Mrs. Wagner, his secretary, served in the Commons opposition leader's office for years before the Conservatives came to power last June. Dr. Merrill Menzies, an economist attached to Mr. Diefenbaker's office, is along as facts-and-figures man for his second campaign. George Hogan, Toronto car dealer and prominent young Conservative, is handling travel and speaking arrangements as he did last year.

The prime minister's party also includes such persons as Press Secretary James Nelson, Toronto photographer Fred Davis and Marjorie Pound of Vancouver, who was Mr. Diefenbaker's secretary in 1952-53 when he was a private MP and who recently rejoined his office staff.

A key figure on Mr. Pearson's staff is Mary MacDonald, 38-year-old private secretary who has been with the Liberal leader for years. One of her big jobs is keeping tabs on Algoma East, Mr. Pearson's home riding.

Other persons in his party have some links with political history. There's Annette Perron, French-speaking secretary to former prime minister St. Laurent and now Mr. Pearson's assistant private secretary; Les Maiden, 43-year-old Ottawa car salesman and wartime army major who handled transport arrangements for the late Mackenzie King in the 1945 election campaign.

On Mr. Maiden's staff is Rene Desjardins of Ottawa, retired army sergeant who was one of the chauffeurs for Queen Elizabeth during her visit to Ottawa last October.

John Payne, 40, of Winnipeg and Montreal, is a new personality on the Liberals' campaign train. He is Mr. Pearson's new executive assistant, handling campaign and public relations arrangements generally.

Also aboard is Andrew Thompson, 33-year-old native of Ireland recently hired from the CBC to do research and some speech-drafting for Mr. Pearson.

Won't Interfere With Autonomy Of Hospitals

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario's hospital services commission won't displace the autonomy of hospitals with the introduction of hospital insurance, chairman Arthur Swanson said Thursday.

Mr. Swanson gave the assurance to the legislature's health committee as he and commission member David Ogilvie described the operations of the new insurance scheme.

The chairman said a special branch has been set up to assist hospitals in management but said the commission in no way will take over control of the province's hospitals.

The committee was told employers are being asked to list all their employees with the commission no later than August to provide for their participation in the insurance plan when in it goes into operation Jan. 1, 1959.

Mr. Ogilvie said private nursing homes will not come under the plan.

Dismiss Charges Against Youths, Order Inquiry

TORONTO (CP) — Armed holdup charges against three youths were dismissed Thursday and a public inquiry was ordered into their charges that detectives beat confessions out of them.

Magistrate C. O. Bick, chairman of the Metropolitan Toronto police commission, ordered "a complete and thorough" investigation into the jailing of William Feddery, 20, John Jamieson, 19, and William Pritchard, 18.

The three signed confessions to the Feb. 15 holdup of a suburban Etobicoke gas station in which $102 was taken. They charged that detectives beat them on a police pistol range to extract the confessions.

Three other Toronto youths, Ross Olsen, 17, John Kanary, 17 and Nicholas Moschitto, 23, later pleaded guilty to the same robbery.

RISING PRICES

LONDON (CP) — British shoppers spent £1, 1s, last year for every £1 they spent in 1956, but got only a half - shilling worth more goods, says the board of trade. Rising prices took care of the other sixpence.

French Defence Pact Plan Gets Wary Eye From Cabinet And North African Nations

By JOSEPH MacSWEEN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Premier Felix Gaillard's proposal for a Western Mediterranean Defence Pact is getting a wary eye not only in North Africa but also in France.

The French premier's formula would link France, Italy, Spain, Tunisia and Morocco. Backed by Britain and the United States, it would have close relationships with NATO.

It would also embrace arrangements for exploting Sahara oil and other minerals by France and Tunisia - Morocco, both of which won independence from France within the last three years. Presumably Spain and its Sahara possessions also would be involved in this.

Since Gaillard's plan omits Algeria, where Arabs are staging an increasingly desperate war against France, it is not surprising that it ran into immediate question by Arab Tunisia and Morocco.

But the proposal also appears to be stirring up suspicions in French political circles, although it has been approved by the cabinet.

Gaillard's ideas have not yet been explained in detail and initial opposition certaintly does not mean that his plan will be inevitably defeated at home.

It is clear, however, that he must be able to convince the National Assembly that the Mediterranean Pact would not be simply a wedge to allow "internationalization of the French-Algerian fight.

Powerful assembly figures, who seem to agree on little else, are stubbornly in agreement on one thing: Algeria is strictly a domestic French problem.

SPAIN APPROVES

It is probably unfortunate for Gaillard's hopes that his proposal comes as Harold Beely of Britain and Robert Murphy of the United States are hard on the job of "good offices" in France's other current dispute, with Tunisia. The French bombing of a Tunisian village caused a world-wide uproar.

The premier may hear charges that his plan was inspired by the foreign diplomats. Already in Paris, there has been some grumbling that the Beely-Murphy mission is taking too long.

Spain, incidentally, is not only in favor of the pact but says that the formula was put forward years ago—by Spain—as an obvious check on Communist influence in the Mediterranean area. Russia, not surprisingly, has denounced the idea.

On top of all this, Morocco's King Mohammed V has called for a federation of Morocco, Tunisia and Algeria into a North African union.

This would be in the nature of a counter - weight to President Nasser's United Arab Republic, linking Egypt, Syria and Yemen. But its implications for France are more immediate. It attacks the contention that Algeria is French territory and demands the return of Saharan regions. And it includes pointed reference to the presence of French troops on Moroccan soil. Tunisia has already demanded evacuation of French troops.

Dismiss Auto Smuggling Case

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Raymond Joseph Lang, 31, of London, won dismissal in county court here Thursday on charges of violating the Customs Act by illegally selling an unlawfully imported car.

Earlier Thursday Frank Zoccano of London was convicted on a charge of unlawfully selling an illegally imported 1951 car and given a minimum sentence of $200 or one year in jail. In January Zoccano was fined $300 on a similar charge involving stolen vehicle.

Lang was the fifth of seven to be charged with offenses in connection with an alleged car smuggling ring said to have been operated from a defunct East Dundas motor sales firm here.

Lang faces three more charges expected to be heard April 8 when Kenneth Toth and George Dingman will be tried. Dingman will be facing his second charge having been acquitted of one last month.

William Lamont and Pasquale Zoccano have been convicted and sentenced, respectively, to 12 and 19 months for smuggling.

Report Order for Viscounts For Use by RCAF Cancelled

TORONTO (CP) — The Globe and Mail says the Canadian government recently cancelled plans to purchase a $20,000,000 fleet of British Vickers Viscount planes in the face of vigorous opposition from the Canadian aircraft industry.

It says the order was to fill a long - standing RCAF transport command request for aircraft to replace the venerable Douglas Dakota on medium-range service.

The turbo-prop Viscount was introduced in the country by Trans-Canada Air Lines and now is used on several TCA scheduled runs.

The Globe says.

"When word of the impending order filtered into Canadian aircraft industry circles, immediate and vigorous representations were made to the government. With many major defence contracts running out, the industry was beginning to be haunted by the spectre of mass layoffs.

"Canadair Ltd., of Montreal, the largest single employer in the industry, was preparing to discharge about half of its 10,000 employees before the end of the year. The last of 1,800-odd Canadair-built Sabre jet fighters was to be delivered in October."

Further action on the Viscount order was suspended, the paper says, and Canadair offered to provide the RCAF with a fleet of medium-range, turbo-prop transports on the same delivery schedule guaranteed by Vickers-Armstrong (Aircraft) Ltd., of Britain.

Arrangements were made by Canadair to obtain from a sister company, Convair of San Diego, Calif., tools for the mass manufacture of the Convair 440, a U.S. airliner, with Eland turbo-prop engines to be supplied by the British firm of D. Napier and Son.

The hybrid plane was christened the Canadair Cosmopolitan and cabinet approval was soon given for an order of 10.

Hon. Sidney Smith Confident Summit Talks Will Be Held

WINNIPEG (CP) — External Affairs Minister Sidney Smith says he is confident a summit conference will take place soon, possibly in the autumn.

In an address Thursday to the Empire Club, Mr. Smith said there is definite hope of a successful development of understanding and good will at the conference.

"There is, however, a lot of pick and shovel work that must be carried out before the meeting can take place.

"We should not let ourselves be lulled into relaxing our arms defence, but we should be prepared to examine any proposal for complete or partial disarmament made," Mr. Smith said.

The external affairs minister said, however, he sees little chance for reaching a satisfactory arms settlement.

But "the very survival of the human race asks today that we work hard as Canadians . . . for understanding trust."

Sea TV to See Which Traps Lobsters Like

YARMOUTH, N. S. (CP)—Navy frogmen Wednesday secured a diving bell at the bottom of the Atlantic from where television cameras will record the reactions of lobsters to metal traps.

Divers were successful in anchoring the chamber at Roaring Bull Rock off the southwest coast of Nova Scotia after rough seas postponed the start of the experiment Monday.

Wooden and metal traps have been set near the diving bell and cameramen will try to find out which the lobsters prefer. Earlier tests have shown the metal traps stand up better during storms.

TV Election Program Sends Briton Hurrying to Lawyer

LONDON (CP) — Britain's new policy of televising byelection campaigns already is running into trouble.

The experiment was inaugurated at Rochdale a month ago and went off smoothly enough, with all candidates appearing together on the same program and receiving equal allotments of time to expound their views.

The same plan was followed Tuesday night in the Glasgow constituency of Kelvingrove, where a byelection was held Thursday. But this time two of the candidates left the studio on the run, headed for the offices of their solicitors.

The aggrieved party was Mrs. Katharine Elliot, the Conservative candidate, who complained that one of her opponents had made a false accusation against her after her allotted time on the program was exhausted and she was unable to reply.

David Murray, contesting the seat under the Liberal - Home Rule banner, had said Mrs. Elliot was withholding information she had received from a high-ranking official that the government has no intention of building a steel plant in Scotland.

Murray said Mrs. Elliot's solicitors had demanded a retraction and added that he has no intention of obliging unless his own lawyers insist on it.

"When the government announces its decision I will be vindicated," Murray said.

Mrs. Elliot, threatening legal action, said the remark, besides being untrue, was a gross abuse of television and "intended to discredit me."

Several newspapers, commenting on the dispute, said it pointed up the excessive rigidity of the regulations governing television coverage of byelections and urged that the allotment of time be left to the TV networks' discretion.

Albert Anastasia's Widow Pleads for Secrecy, Peace

TORONTO (CP)—The Ontario-born widow of Albert Anastasia pleaded for secrecy Thursday and defended the man once known as chief executioner for a murder ring.

In an interview, the 41-year-old woman said her chief fear was that her late husband's past would become known to her neighbors in the exclusive district where she lives with three of her four children.

She declined to discuss any of the associates of Anastasia, shot to death as he sat in a barber chair at the Park Sheraton hotel in New York last Oct. 25. He had been blamed for more than 30 killings as onetime head executioner for Murder Inc., during a 36-year crime career.

"My baby, my children—how can they live if people know who they are, who their father was?" she asked a reporter.

WANT LIVE IN PEACE

"I just wanted to come back to the city where I had lived as a girl, where my mother and sister live, and to be at peace," the 41-year-old, veiled woman said.

The two black-gloved gunmen who killed her husband still have not been caught.

She said she was born in Copper Cliff, Ont., near Sudbury, but spent much of her early life in Toronto. She still speaks of her husband's death with a shudder.

"What a shock. I still can't believe it. I try not to think of it. My husband was a good man. He should not have died like that."

DIDN'T SEEM WORRIED

"He didn't appear worried over money or threats just prior to his death, the widow said.

"He never discussed business with me. He left it at the door. He never said anything. Our home was our castle . . . he was a good provider. I was never short of anything."

Anastasia, Italian - born immigrant, rose from the docks of Brooklyn to the throne room of crime.

Mrs. Anastasia, who said she uses another name now, said she spent her early years in Toronto.

"My father was in a business here—he had a chain of meat markets . . . I was educated in Europe and spent most of my time there until I was 16 . . .

MET HIM WHEN 18

"I met my husband when I was not quite 18. I was in New York with my father on a visit to see relatives there and I met him at a party . . . he was very attractive

"We were married soon after I was 19. We were very happy. I thought he was a big business man. He never told me his business . . . I didn't know about him till years later and . . . I had to read it in the papers.

"When I asked him, he told me it wasnt true all those things they said about him and I believed him.

"He adored the children. We had four and he was always nice to them. Our oldest son is at law school in New York and the other three are here with me. The second boy wants to be a doctor. He's in his teens. There's a girl of public school age and then there's a baby girl a year old."

INTENDS TO STAY HERE

Mrs. Anastasia said she came to Toronto in November "and I intend to stay here."

"I had applied for U.S. citizenship last year but I wrote to my lawyer in Newark a few days ago and told him I didn't want it. I suppose that's how it leaked out that I was in Toronto.

"Surely nobody would be so cruel to the children as to say where we are living or go around telling the neighbors. They don't know anything about my husband and I wouldn't want them to know.

"I live very modestly. I have enough to get by on. I got the insurance, of course."

She said that in New York they lived in a Hudson River mansion behind a 10-foot floodlit fence patrolled by doberman pinschers.

Her husband "used to go to church with me every Sunday."

"The children went too. We never failed. Now he's not even buried in a consecrated cemetery.

"I've lost weight and I'm a nervous wreck with worry. I have a heart condition and I've been going to the doctor here every second day. God give me peace."

Late Backing

Drops Odds to Even Money On Durelle, Anthony Battle

By MURRAY ROSE

NEW YORK (AP) — With a possible title fight hanging in the balance, Canada's brawny Yvon Durelle and New York's lean Tony Anthony clash tonight in a return battle of light heavyweight contenders.

Late backing for the British Empire and Canadian 175-pound champion has dropped the odds from 7 to 5 in favor of Anthony all week to even money.

They will meet over the 10-round route at Madison Square Garden. The bout will be broadcast and telecast (NBC 10 p.m. EST).

LUCKY TO GET DRAW

He almost didn't get that chance because of Durelle. Tony took on the then lightly regarded fighting fisherman as a warmup for the Moore match and was lucky to escape with a 10-round draw nine months ago. Yvon had Tony rocking and reeling in the last round.

"Frankly, I didn't think much of him," said Anthony. "He looked awkward and clumsy. Sure he was awkward but he was strong, could hit pretty hard and took a good wallop. I know better now. I've got plenty of respect for him."

Since that first meeting in Detroit, Durelle has come up in the world. He now is ranked as the No. 2 contender, while Anthony is ranked third. Yvon has an unbeaten streak of 12, including the draw with Athony and eight knockouts.

If he can put Anthony out of the way and his manager can dig up $100,000, Durelle can have the Moore shot.

"Just let them get up the $100,000 guarantee and we can go in Toronto or Montreal this summer," said Moore's manager, Charlie Johnston.

OUT FOR KNOCKOUT

Durelle's manager, Chris Shaban of Moncton, N.B., said Yvon will be out to score a knockout. "I'm afraid of those decisions," Shaban said. "In a decision, anything can happen. We were robbed in Detroit, and we don't want ay mistakes here."

A pro 10 years, the 28-year-old Durelle from Baie Ste. Anne, N.B., has posted a 72-18-2 won-lost-draw record. He has scored 37 knockouts and been stopped five times. The last man to beat him was Clarence Hinnant 13 months ago. Hinnant stopped him on cuts in the eighth round. Durelle evened that score by stopping Hinnant in the Garden in seven rounds last Jan. 31.

Anthony was supposed to have been Durelles opponent that night but Tony came down with the flu to bow out. It was the second postponement. Durelle became ill from eating fish and forced the first delay.

Tony has a 30-5-1 record, including 23 knockouts. The five losses were all by kayos.

If the fight goes the limit, it will be decided by three officials who will use the round method of scoring. A supplementary point system also will be used to help break draws. The winner of each round gets from one to four points, the loser none.

Smythe Denies Maple Leafs Have Been Sold

TORONTO (CP) — President Conn Smythe of Toronto Maple Leafs said Thursday in a telephone interview from West Palm Beach, Fla., the club has not been sold.

In an interview with Jim Vipond, Globe and Mail sports editor, Smythe declared the National Hockey League team is "not for sale as long as the Silver Seven (the club's seven-man management committee) carry on."

Earlier Thursday, it was reported that John D. Fienberg, owner of Toronto's Regency Towers Hotel and head of a home-building organization, had offered to buy the club and Maple Leaf Gardens for $4,350,000.

Smythe told Vipond he didn't know anything about selling other than that Fienberg and "another man" approached his son, Stafford, and made an offer. Stafford is head of the Leafs' seven-man committee.

It was reported that one stipulation Fienberg made was that the name of the team be changed from Toronto Maple Leafs to Regency Rockets. To this, Conn Smythe said:

"In the first place the NHL wouldn't go for this sort of thing." He added: "There is not enough tradition in Canada now. Tradition means something to me and my family."

COULD BE!

Yvon Durelle, the "herring choker" fisherman, with wrists like an elephant's hock, and a punch like a kangaroo's kick figures there'll be another mackerel sloop added to his Baie Ste. Anne, N.B., flotilla come tomorrow morning.

Mr. Durelle expects to collect the amount necessary for the purchase after he disposes of one Mr. Tony Anthony in Madison Square Garden this evening.

YVONN DURELLE

Not only that but he also expects to add a couple more and possibly a herring hauling flat-top to the private fleet later on when he relegates to boxing oblivion one Archie Moore, the venerable squire of the ring who can figure out a purse far faster than his age.

And if Canada's sports luck runs in a cycle of three's, Mr. Durelle might turn the trick. The Whitby Dunlops captured the world hockey bauble, comely Lucille Wheeler annexed a couple of global ski titles, and if three is the national lucky number this year, Mr Durelle will wear the world light-heavyweight crown

All he has to do is dispose of young Mr Anthony with whom he drew (and wuz robbed), then convince Ole Arch that box-fighting is for young men only, and it's time he signed on with the rocking-chair-slipper brigade. Simple, if he can do it.

Mr. Durelle has come a long way, publicity-wise, since he was a buck-gunner, rear rank, in the Royal Canadian Artillery at Picton, not too many birthdays ago. By this time the whole country has heard of him, and not a few of the fight faithful north of the border will be pulling for the rambling, gangling, sometime awkward beak-buster from the Maritimes.

Durelle's tiff with Tony has been postponed twice—(there's that "three" again)—once because Yvon developed a tummy-ache from alleged poisonous grub, the second time when Tony was K.O.'d by Kid Flu.

And if past performances can be judged a criterion, Durelle's ability to predict the outcome of a fight borders a bit perhaps, on the uncanny.

Previous to his last fight when he took on Clarence Hinnant, the pride of the Washington, D.C., bug parade, Yvon called his shot. He said he would stop Hinnant in the seventh round. The referee stopped the fight in Chapter Seven of the unfinished symphony — and Durelle's stock as a crystal gazer soared.

Besides the New Brunswick fish extractor is no shrinking violet when it comes to talking about his ability. He forgot the bright lights of Detroit, the roars of the Olympia crowd long enough to tell the Motor City boxing writers he could lick Anthony, before he took on that ambitious youngster from Gotham.

"And I can lick Moore, too," he added. "What's more I can whip him with no rest between rounds."

When the scribes came to, Durelle added another knockout verbal punch with the statement he could lick Floyd Patterson, the heavyweight champion to whom he lost a split verdict in 1954.

The big fisherman with the uncouth style apparently is not worrying too much about tonight's fight. In fact he leaves the impression that he believes it is in the net. He isn't talking much about it, merely mentioning that he doesn't intend to let anything stand between him and his

Toppazzini Lost to Bruins For Remainder of Season; Plante Is Out Indefinitely

By MARTY GOODMAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Injuries are hitting Boston Bruins and Montreal Canadiens where the teams can ill afford them.

Boston lost forward Jerry Toppazzini for the season and Montreal will be without goalie Jacques Plante for an indefinite time as a result of injuries in Thursday night's game.

Boston defeated Montreal 7-3 to move into undisputed possession of third place two points ahead of Detroit Red Wings and six points behind New York Rangers. Montreal has clinched first place.

Boston, with several disappointments at forward this season, is losing its third-highest goal scorer and top penalty killer in Toppazzini.

MAKES THE BIG STOPS

Montreal coach Hector Toe Blake calls Plante the most underrated goalie in the league and credits him with making the big saves that have given Canadiens their 20-point lead.

Ironically, Boston has two top-flight goalies available now that Don Simmons is almost ready for action and veteran Harry Lumley, who came in after Simmons was injured, is showing his old-time style.

Montreal has the forward strength. The team took lengthy injuries to Maurice Richard and Bernie Geoffrion in stride and now, with Geoffrion out for the regular season and Marcel Bonin injured, has capable replacements.

SUFFERS EYE HEMORRHAGE

Toppazzini, 26-year-old native of Copper Cliff, Ont., suffered a hemorrhage in the eye when struck by a stick in a scramble behind the Montreal goal. Last year he missed several games when he suffered facial lacerations and returned to action a year ago Thursday night.

He has come into his own this year after going from Boston to Chicago Black Hawks to Detroit and back to Boston and has 24 goals and 24 assists.

Plante, 29, suffered a concussion and possible spinal injury when Montreal defenceman Doug Harvey hurled Boston's Vic Stasiuk into him. Plante won the Vezina Trophy the last two years as goalie with the team least scored on and is leading this year's competition.

The score was 1-0 for Boston when Plante was injured and replaced by Bruins' spare goalie, Johnny Aiken. Boston scored four goals in the next seven minutes to sew up the game.

Bronco Horvath led the way with two goals, giving him 28, and an assist. His linemates also starred with Stasiuk getting three assists and Johnny Bucyk his 20th goal.

Plante stopped 13 shots and Aiken 12. Lumley handled 24.

Russ Burning Just a Prank, Says Mayor

WHITBY (CP) — During the hoopla last Sunday over Whitby's world hockey victory somebody burned an effigy of a Russian player and Thursday Mayor Harry Jermyn took pains to explain to the Soviets that it was all a prank.

The mayor said he has received numerous complaints from persons who thought it indicated poor sportsmanship or a dislike of the Russian team that Whitby defeated 4-2 in Oslo to win the world title.

Mayor Jermyn said in a letter to the Russian embassy at Ottawa:

"Please be assured that all of us have the highest regard and admiration for your fellows whose play and behavior was truly exemplary as it also was during the time we greeted them in Canada."

The burning, he added, was "an exuberant prank by a couple of misguided youngsters."

Dutchies Take 3-2 Game Lead Over Wolves

SUDBURY (CP) — Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen took a 3-2 lead in their OHA-NOHA Senior A semi - final against Sudbury Wolves Thursday night with a 6-3 win before a standing-room only crowd of 6,600 fans.

Kitchener took a quick 3-0 lead in the first period, saw it melt to just one goal by the end of the second, and then clicked for two quick goals in the third to turn the game into a rout.

A sixth goal was added by Don Rope after Wolves had pulled goalie Bob Mitchell in the final minute of the game.

Jim Uniac connected for two goals to lead the Kitchener attack. Harry Psutka, Jerry Theberge and Wiggie Wylie scored the other goals for Dutchies. Joe Zorica with two and George Senick scored for Sudbury.

Since one game has been a tie in the best-of-seven series, all the Dutchies need is a tie in the seventh game at Kitchener Saturday to take the series.

CFL Commissioner Replies To Grey Cup Tickets Gripe

TORONTO (CP) — G. Sydney Halter of Winnipeg, Canadian Football League commissioner, has an answer to criticism of the CFL's proposal to cut the Ontario Rugby Football Unions quota of Grey Cup tickets from 1,500 to 200.

Speaking after a meeting of Big Four and Western Interprovincial Football Union officials Thursday night, the Winnipeg lawyer said "we had to have something on the record 15 days before the annual Canadian Rugby Union annual meeting. We had decided in Winnipeg that the distribution of cup tickets was wrong—that the host club should get more tickets than they were getting."

This, in part, was Halter's answer to complaints from the ORFU that they were being squeezed out of the Cup picture. The question will be dealt with at the CRU's three-day annual session which ends Saturday.

BASIS FOR DISCUSSION

"We knew there would be no trouble within our own organization in straightening out our own ticket situation but we had to have a number for the ORFU. I just picked a number out of the air and the number was 200. If I said 1,000 and the re-distribution gave them slightly less than that, they'd have a complaint.

"The figure 200 is merely the basis for discussion of the future Grey Cup ticket allotment."

In previous years the ORFU has received 10 per cent of the tickets, approximately 2,500, under a setup instituted by the CRU. The CFL an amalgamation of the Big Four and WIFU, decided at its inaugural meeting at Winnipeg in January to take over administration of the Cup classic including ticket distribution.

Another proposal by the pros which would increase their voting power to five votes each from three each was defended by Halter.

"In the first place," he said, "we don't see why we shouldn't run our own show without having some minor football group vote us down. Sure, we could just withdraw from the CRU and run our own show, but we feel we can help minor football—at the junior and intermediate level—far more by staying with the CRU."

Prior to Halter's explanations, Maurice Chilton of Sarnia, on behalf of the ORFU, had blasted the pro clubs and told them to stop "pussy-footing around" before "irreparable harm" was done to the CRU.

"If this (new voting power) goes through," said Chilton, "it will make puppets out of us. It would be better if the pros just pulled out of the CRU and left us alone."

The Big Four and WIFU now have three votes each. The ORFU has two and the Quebec and Intercollegiate unions one each.

The CRU has a day-long behind-doors meeting scheduled for today. They'll meet in open session Saturday, windup of the three-day meeting.

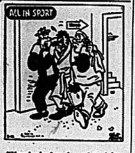
Canadian Girl Fourth in Ski Contests

OSLO (CP) — Austria's Karl Schranz and Putzi Frandl swept to downhill victories Thursday in the Holmenkollen Alpine competition.

Schranz beat out Guy Perillat of France and Mathias Leitner of Austria in two minutes, 49.1 seconds.

Miss Frandl's time over a shorter course was 1:30.8. Fourth was Ottawa's Anne Heggtveit in 1:34.5. Carla Marchelli of Italy placed second and Piea Riva of Italy, third.

The Canadian girl won this event in 1954 when she was 15. It was her first success in international skiing but the following year she suffered a badly-fractured ankle and it took her a long time to recover form.



"You looked real good tonight, Kid—all except those last 10 seconds, of course!"

Macs Play Here Tonight Pembroke Sat.

There is no truth in the rumors being circulated that the McFarlands and Pembroke will play two games here, then two in Pembroke and so on.

Manager Drury Denyes said today the first two games will go on as scheduled, the first here tonight, the second in Pembroke tomorrow night.

However, the OHA has ordered that a group winner must be declared by Friday, March 21st. Pembroke and Belleville can make their own game arrangements. These will likely be arranged tonight.

Confusion was caused by the switch in dates from Thursday to Friday. It seems that "nobody notified nobody."

In fact three members of the Pembroke team who reside in Ottawa arrived in the city last evening, ready to go on the ice. They had not been informed of the change of dates.

Guelph Bees Regard Bill Foster One of Future Bright Prospects

BILL FOSTER

A familiar face in the ranks of Belleville hockey has been missing this past winter, that of 18-year-old Bill Foster, capable young man with either a hockey stick or a baseball bat.

Bill has been playing his hockey under the watchful eye of New York Ranger officials at Guelph, Ontario. Foster is a member of the Guelph Biltmore Bees, that city's entry in the central junior "B" loop. The Bees work in close contact with the Guelph Biltmores of the OHA junior "A" series.

Son of Mr. and Mrs. Don Foster of this city, Bill has progressed through minor ranks in both baseball and hockey as well being a member of the BCIVS rugby team while attending that school.

He was first-string catcher for Belleville juveniles when they captured the provincial title two years ago and last summer was a member of the Belleville juniors.

When the catcher's equipment was stored for the winter months Bill laced on the skates and took to the ice lanes on a forward line. However with the Bees this season he was moved back to defence when injuries reduced the club roster to nine players at one time. He stayed in the rearguard spot under coach Swat Mason's approving eye and hopes to catch a spot on the "A" club in that position next year.

Bill tips the scales at 178 pounds. He likes nothing better than to toss that well distributed poundage around as his 66 minutes in penalties, second highest on the club, varifies.

Don Foster started his only offspring on the sports trail at an early age and he's never since been without a hockey stick or baseball bat in his hands. Bill made the Belleville teams all the way from peewee to junior year after year in both OMHA and OBA playdowns. And there was never two more rabid fans than Mom and Pop.

Always a high scorer in local hockey, Bill did well with Guelph this year despite the move to defence. He played all 28 of the club's games without serious injury and picked up nine goals and eight assists for 17 points. That placed him in a three-way tie for seventh place in team scoring with a club that used 27 players throughout the season.

Bill's only regret at the present time is that Guelph trails their playoff series with the strong Burlington club three games to none. He expects to come home for the summer although he has had offers to play ball in Guelph Says he will work and play ball here this summer to keep in condition. He was up in "A" company for the Biltmore's final league game and according to press clippings handled himself in fine fashion.

Young Mr. Foster has a promising future in both hockey and baseball. The natural ability is there and Belleville sportsmen in general, and the Guelph Biltmore brass in particular, hope Bill makes the most of it.

Beat Anthony And Durelle Fights Moore

MONCTON, N.B. (CP) — The Moncton Times says Yvon Durelle of Baie Ste. Anne, N.B., has been guaranteed a world light heavyweight title fight with Archie Moore if he defeats Tony Anthony in New York tonight.

Chris Shaban, manager of Durelle, British Empire champion, is quoted as saying he was given the guarantee after a two-hour conference Thursday with president Jim Norris of the International Boxing Club, and Harry Markson, IBC managing director.

"I prefer Montreal as a site but Durelle will fight anywhere they (the IBC) think the most money can be made," Shaban is quoted.

The newspaper says Shaban agreed to guarantee Moore, $100,000 for the bout. Durelle would receive 20 per cent of television and radio revenues and a cut of the gate receipts.

Aussie Ace To Compete In Canada, USA

BRISBANE, Australia (AP)—Herb Elliott, Australia's four-minute mile ace, today was granted permission by the Australian Amateur Athletic Union to compete in three meets in Canada and the United States.

Permission was granted on the condition that the amateur athletic unions of Canada and the United States would agree to pay expenses of Elliott and a manager to be appointed by the Australian group.

In New York, Dan Ferris, head of foreign arrangements for the U.S. AAU, said he thought the condition would be met. Ferris originally extended the invitation for a U.S. tour to Elliott, 19, who has broken the four-minute mile four times.

The invitation included the California relays at Modesto May 31 and the U.S. AAU championships at Bakersfield, Calif., June 20-21. Elliott also would run in the Vancouver Games June 6-7.

Belleville Midgets Defeat Oshawa Win OMHA Playdowns Round

By GARRY ALEANDER

Belleville midgets whipped home five goals in nine minutes during a third-period blitz here last night to down Oshawa 8-4 in the second game of their Ontario Minor Hockey Association playdown series.

The victory gave Belleville the two-game, goals-to-count series 11-5 and places them in the Ontario "A" semi-finals against Toronto Marlboros of the Toronto Maple Leaf organization.

The two clubs battled on fairly even terms over the first two periods last night with Belleville leading 3-2, and 6-3 on the round, entering the final twenty minutes.

Then the Oshawa club caught fire and drew within one goal of tying the series on a pair of goals by Ted Napiorkowski at 2.52 and 5.08. This gave Oshawa a 4-3 lead on the night's play.

But the Belleville club roared back fighting and would not be denied the victory. The difference between the clubs was the fight-and-check brand of hockey played by the winners. They outhustled the visitors all night, both forechecking and backchecking and it paid off when they found their scoring eyes in the third heat.

"Pug" Keller netted the goal that turned the tide when Oshawa appeared to be victory bound. He took a perfect pass from Moe Hunter with Porteous serving an Oshawa penalty at 8.34 and fired it home to restore his club's two-goal series margin. Hunter on a perfect pass from McGuire at 9.25, Muirhead with a hard blast at 10.38, Lawrence on a low corner drive at 14.39 and Hunter again at 17.03 produced the final 8-4 Belleville win.

Napiorkowski slid one home off a Belleville man and bagged the other when Hunter was serving a penalty in Oshawa's third-heat bid for victory. Muirhead and Disney traded goals in the first period while Lawrence scored both Belleville goals in the second and Haynes replied for Oshawa.

The first two periods were clean with referees Mike Rain and Charlie Marsh handing out only two minors to each club. But in the torrid third period the clubs had seven sentences, including majors to Jim Sheridan and B. Yahn for a brief fight. Overall Oshawa drew six of eleven penalties.

Pointwise D'Arcy Lawrence and Moe Hunter shared the Belleville scoring lead. Lawrence clicked for three goals while linemate Hunter had two goals and one assist. Billy McGuire, third member of that line picked up a well-earned assist. Stu Muirhead registered a pair of goals while Pug Keller had one and one. Bucky Ethier, Hubert Pointer and Paul Zakos each had an assist.

Ted Napiorkowski's two goals topped the Oshawa attackers with T. Disney and B. Haynes getting the others. Mape, Butler and Colvin split three assists.

Both Gord Parker in the Belleville cave and M. Nicholishen of Oshawa came up with some good saves. A strong Oshawa defence kept the latter's work to a minimum until the third period. Larry Mavety, D'Arcy Lawrence and Moe Hunter stood out for the victors, Mavety playing a strong game on defence to break up a number of Oshawa plays.

Lineups — Oshawa: M. Nicholishen, J. Sorochan, G. Porteous, J. Sadowski, T. Disney, R. Wright, S. Westfall, L. Mapes, T. Colvin, T. Napiorkowski, B. Haynes, G. Butler, S. Downe, B. Merritt, B. Yahn.

HAMILTON (CP) — Hamilton Cubs earned the right to meet St. Michael's College Majors in Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series semi-finals by defeating Peterborough Petes 4-1 Thursday night before a standing room crowd of 3,900. Cubs took their best-of - five quarter-finals 3-1 with one game tied.

Gerry Sullivan, Don Blackburn, Dave Amadio and Ray Preston scored for Cubs. Gerry Brisson for Petes.

The unruly crowd littered the ice with debris during the game and referee Jerry Olinski was struck on the head and felled by a missile as he tried to leave the ice after the game. He got up and walked to the official's room after sitting stunned on the ice.

Cubs start their series with the Majors here Saturday afternoon.

It made ol' Casey mad. But that's not the only reason Stengel is angry. His Yankees need some willows with base hits in them.

The American League champs took another one on the chin Thursday, dropping a 1-0 verdict to the Boston Red Sox for their fifth loss and third whitewashing in six exhibition starts.

Immediately after the game, Stengel alerted regulars Hank Bauer, Bill Skowron and Gil McDougald. "Be ready to work by the weekend," he told the tender-armed trio. "We gotta win a ball game pretty soon."

EXPENSIVE JOKE

And in commenting on the bill for $45 he received from a tree nursery in Wisconsin for "one weeping willow delivered at home), Casey said, "The guy who pulled the joke is going to find it expensive, because the willow goes right back unless the New York club wants to pay for it."

The Yankees managed only six hits off the combined efforts of Frank Sullivan, George Susce and Al Schroll. Billy Consolo got the winning hit for the unbeaten Red Sox. He drove a long single to left centre following Sammy White's double in the third inning.

Milwaukee raked Johnny Podres for six runs in the first two innings as the Braves defeated the Los Angeles Dodgers 8-2.

CLOBBER CUBS

San Francisco Giants clobbered Chicago Cubs 13-2 behind the slugging of Daryl Spencer, who had two home runs and a pair of singles.

In other games, Roy McMillan hit a three-run homer and led Cincinnati to a 7-3 triumph over Pittsburgh; rookie Bob Shaw pitched six sparkling innings as Detroit beat Kansas City 8-6; Minnie Minoso's third - inning double drove in the only runs as Cleveland blanked Baltimore 2-0; Washington clubbed Jack Sanford for eight runs in whipping Philadelphia 9-1 and Gene Green's single in the 14th enabled St. Louis to nip Chicago White Sox 3-2.

In other news, world series star Lew Burdette ended his 12-day holdout and signed with the Milwaukee Braves for a $2,500 raise—shortstop Don Buddin of the Boston Red Sox was discharged from the army as a hardship case and will report to the team by the weekend . . . and Jim Gallagher, former general manager of the Cubs joined the Phillies' farm system. He will help farm director Eugene Margin.

WELCOME FOR CHAMPS

EDMONTON (CP) — Matt Baldwin's Canadian curling championship rink received a desk-thumping welcome to the floor of the Alberta legislature Thursday. Baldwin's foursome also appeared before the assembly last year after winning the 1957 title. This year at Victoria, Baldwin became the second skip in 29 years to win three national titles.

AT THE McCARTHY — Exciting scene from "Hell's Crossroads", fast-action Naturama drama from Republic Studios, coming Saturday to the McCarthy Theatre, pictures Barton MacLane, co-star Robert Vaughn and Grant Withers. 2nd action packed feature is "Robbery Under Arms", with Peter Finch and Ronald Lewis.

A Few Famous Last Words About TV Collected by Writer

By CHARLES MERCER

NEW YORK (AP)—For a couple of years we've been collecting famous last words by persons whose fortunes are sliding or have subsequently crashed in television.

A bag of popcorn is offered anyone who can identify the sources or subjects of these remarks made "off the record."

". . . It looked like a good time spot to me. How did I know they were going to throw a Western against me?"

". . . I'm as good as I ever was. It's my audience that's no good."

". . . The typical television viewer doesn't have a 12-year-old mind. He has an eight-year-old mind."

IT'S A MONSTER

". . . Television is a monster. That little black box in the living room never tells the truth."

". . . That little black box never lies."

". . . Television critics are a bunch of idiots who got their jobs because they can't hold down a regular reporting assignment."

". . . I don't care what the critics say, it's when you have the stagehands laughing that you know you're going great."

". . . The trouble is that we're trying to do an east coast show from the west coast."

". . . The trouble is that we're trying to do a west coast show from New York."

THEY'RE ALL . . .

". . . From this hill near Hollywood you can look down on 100,000 people. They're all—*."

". . . From the top of the Empire State you can look down on 10,000 television executives. They're all —*."

". . . I get offers all the time, but I'm waiting for the right one."

". . . We're getting a new team of writers."

". . . I don't care what the agency says, I'm sticking with my writers."

". . . We need a new producer."

". . . I'm too young to die."

". . . They're trying to get me for a Broadway play."

". . . Is living in Paris expensive now?"

BRAVES' COACH QUITS

BRADENTON, Fla. (AP)—Bob Keely, only survivor of the Milwaukee Braves' big coaching shakeup last year after they won the world's series, resigned Thursday because of his health.

Hawkins Leads Pensacola Open

PENSACOLA, Fla. (AP)—Fred Hawkins, playing the best golf of his 10-year professional career, was the pace-setter in today's second round of the $15,000 Pensacola Open tournament.

The veteran from El Paso, Tex., moved out in front Thursday with a six-under-par 66, despite blowing himself to a fat seven on one hole.

Hawkins collected nine birdies over the 18-hole route, the most scored on a single round since the start of the winter pro tournaments.

Otto Griener, a club pro from Tenafly, N.J., was one stroke back at 67. Another stroke behind were Bo Wininger, Odessa, Tex., Frank Stranahan, Toledo, Ohio, and Don Whitt, Alameda, Calif.

Seven were bunched at 69 including Al Balding of Toronto. Balding toured the par-72 course in 36-33.

Par or better rounds were turned in by 42 players despite gusty winds and greens still soggy from showers the day before.

The field of 150 will be cut to the 60 low pros and ties and 10 amateurs after today's second round. Finals are scheduled for Sunday.

AT THE PARK — Relaxing while on location, Alan Ladd and Dianne Foster talk over a scene for "The Deep Six", in WarnerColor, a story about a naval officer during the days of World War II. Also co-stars William Bendix, Keenan Wynn, James Whitmore, at the Park Theatre, until Saturday.

Noel Coward Happy to Leave New York's Rude Audiences

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Noel Coward is making his first appearace in Hollywood, and he's a happy escaper from New York theatre parties, which he says "are killing the theatre."

Coward is nightly alternating in his own plays, Present Laughter and Nude with Violin. He came here from a San Francisco run following three months with Violin in New York.

The theatre parties work thus: The producers sell the entire house for a performance to a charity, which in turn sells the tickets to patrons at increased prices. The show backers are thus ensured a certain return before the show opens.

"I suppose they are considered economically necessary," Coward remarked, "but the parties are killing the theatre. People come to see plays because of charity, not to see a good show. And there is no enjoyment for actors to play before cold, rude audiences.

FEW GOOD AUDIENCES

"In three months in New York I had only six or eight audiences that I considered good. You can't play light comedy to people who resent paying $50 for a pair of tickets to see you. They defy you to be funny.

"I went to a matinee of Time Remembered and saw the magnificent Helen Hayes pulling every trick she knew to get laughs. She got nothing. I felt like wandering among the audience with a baseball bat.

"At another party matinee of Look Homeward, Angel, the audience was absolutely rude in the face of the anguished efforts of the actors. One woman came in during the second act and sat down with her paper bags and talked about shopping. I shook her as a terrier would a rat and said, 'Madam, will you please be quiet' "

West Coast audiences are greatly improved, he remarked. He played four weeks to fine business in San Francisco and should be a sellout for two here.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22)— Here is a day well spent at some delightful luncheon or supper party with associates who can assist you to progress. And whatever recreation or amusement can be combined with business is fine, too, now.

Victor Kugler, a Toronto manufacturers' agent, hasn't seen the play or read the story He lived it

Mr Kugler, a former business associate of Anne Frank's father, hid the Jewish family of four in the attic of his Amsterdam business block in Holland for 25 months until Gestapo agents raided the building in July, 1944

Quebec Druggists Plan to Open Probe Into Sale of 'Goofballs' to Teenagers

MONTREAL (CP)—Provincial druggists are to investigate mounting complaints about public use of barbiturates as "goofballs" for producing happy-go-lucky feelings.

Their big target is the goofball pedlar offering the pills to teenagers who go into a dream-like trance aftr taking them with soft drinks.

"I don't know how much it's going to cost us and I don't think we care," said Paul H. Soucy, Quebec City, president of the 1,800-member Quebec College of Pharmacists, in announcing the investigation.

He said the college is "seriously alarmed" over the situation. It plans to "reach the sources and fix responsibility."

The druggists stepped in as police and health officials expressed concern over the critical problem of pill-taking "for kicks."

In Toronto, H. M. Corbett, registrar of the Ontario College of Pharmacy, said Friday night he has no knowledge of barbiturates being used in "goofballs" in Ontario.

Said Mr. Corbett: "We have never had the problem here. We haven't even had any complaints about this sort of thing."

BANDITS SNATCH GEMS VALUED AT QUARTER MILLION

Robbery Took Place At Noon-Hour Rush

MONTREAL (CP)—Guns drawn three daring bandits slipped quietly into the offices of a Montreal diamond importing firm Friday and made off with gems estimated at $250,000 in retail value after binding the company president and two other men.

Det.-Lt. Marc Maurice of the holdup squad said an investigation in the noon-hour robbery was proceeding along several leads, "but as yet there are no suspects arrested and no developments."

Hermann Sputz, president of Sputz and Remer Company Limited, said an inventory is under way to determine the exact value of the stolen gems, believed diamonds for the most part.

Mr. Sputz, a native of Austria who came to Canada in 1941, told police the bandits took the gems from the firm's vault and placed them in a briefcase before leaving the sixth-floor offices near the intersection of Phillips Square and St. Catherine Street in downtown Montreal.

He said he and two of his friends who were in the offices at the time had to struggle for more than 10 minutes to free themselves from ropes the bandits had used as bindings.

Before leaving, the bandits cut telephone lines in the offices and took a wallet containing $800 from one of Mr. Sputz's friends. All three bandits carried pistols and two of them wore white handkerchiefs around the lower part of their faces, and sunglasses.

Mr. Sputz said he and his two friends were ordered to lie on the floor and later tied up by two of the intruders while the third took a wooden box containing the gems from the vault, throwing papers and cancelled cheques on the floor.

Frost, Reaume Clash Bitterly In Legislature

TORONTO (CP) — A bitter exchange between Premier Frost and Arthur Reaume (L — Essex South) highlighted an otherwise dull day in the legislature Friday.

Words flew as Mr. Reaume claimed the government was deserting Windsor in favor of development in the Toronto area.

Government policy in municipal taxes and school construction was also criticized, and by members of the Progressive Conservative party.

G. J. Monaghan (PC — Sudbury) suggested the government is "trying to pin the tail on the donkey" in its local taxation policies in northern mining towns.

Mr. Monaghan called for elimination of legislation enacted in 1910 which exempts mining plants from municipal taxation.

"I feel sure that the question will be settled at this meeting of the legislature," he said.

RE MINING TOWNS

Mr. Monaghan described as "a very wild stab in the dark" the government's system of compensating mining towns for the provision by making grants on the basis of miners residing within a municipality.

Speaking in throne speech debate, the Sudbury member listed 16 other Ontario cities with industrial assessments ranging from 16.8 per cent to 39.5 per cent and added that Sudbury has an industrial assessment of only 9.1 per cent of its total.

G. W. Parry (PC—Kent East) called upon the government to take steps to ensure construction of two-storey schools. Mr. Parry said sprawling one-storey schools are being built at greater expense and will have to be enlarged as school population increases.

"In some of the schools they're building now within 10 years you'll have to have motorcycles to go from one end to the other."

Peter Hanley (L — Stormont) urged the government to give top priority to extending Highway 401 to the Quebec border. He said that in 1951 the government promised to build the road from Windsor to Quebec and now it had only built 172 miles of it, 33 of which were built before 1947.

Apartheid Based On Christian Principles, Claim

JOHANNESBURG (Reuters)—The ruling National party, in an election manifesto, says its racial segregation policy has grown out of the experience of South Africa's white population and is based on Christian principles of justice and fairness.

It says its apartheid (racial segregation) policy means:

1. The maintenance and protection of the white people of South Africa and the preservation of their supremacy.

2. Separate development of whites and non-whites with justice and fairness.

Separate development is the only policy that can eliminate a clash between the two races, the manifesto, prepared for next month's general election, adds.

It says the National party works for co-operation between Afrikaans (Dutch-descent) and English-speaking people in South Africa, and demands of both groups undivided love and loyalty to the country.

PICKET LICENCE BUREAU

PORT ARTHUR (CP) — Motorists waiting in line at the automobile licence issuing office here Friday formed a picket line. They carried signs demanding better service. Hundreds of car owners were caught without 1958 licence plates after the deadline Wednesday night.

'Seawolf' Probes Atlantic Waters For Prowling Soviet Submarines

ABOARD SEAWOLF (AP) — This submarine is searching the depths for suspected Soviet undersea prowlers off the United States east coast—the first time the U.S. Navy has ordered an atomic submersible into an operation closely akin to war patrol.

The cruise started out to be another routine training operation. But a radioed order, flashed a few minutes after the Seawolf sailed from an east coast port, changed things.

Today the Seawolf is looking for an unidentified submarine — or submarines — believed to have been sighted in this area.

In itself, the presence of a Russian submarine out here, well beyond the three-mile limit, would not be an act of hostility. For half a decade, there have been reports of unidentified subs off both coasts.

What interests the navy are these factors:

What is the mission of such a submarine, what information is it gathering?

How do the Russians operate their submersibles?

And what kind of a submarine is it?

Especially the latter — what kind?

Is there probability that this situation — these two heavily-armed strangers groping in the dark—might shoot if they came together? The answer is no. But there is possibility.

A Soviet captain, on long patrol, could react nervously to a sudden contact, could launch a torpedo.

The orders under which U.S. defence forces operate is to defend themselves if attacked.

The man who would have to make the decision on whether to accept a torpedo fuel is Cmdr. Richard B. Laning, captain of the Seawolf and veteran of undersea battles of the Pacific.

The Seawolf is the flagship of a search force organized after this particular unidentified submarine report. So Laning must direct not only the operation of his own ship but of other sub-surface, surface and air searchers.

For days the Seawolf has roamed up high and down deep in the ocean, never coming nearer the surface than enough to poke up radar antenna and a periscope tip. Since the search started there have been investigation of a number of possible "contacts." Most of them were "soft," the definition of vague electronic images.

TORONTO (CP) Synopsis — Southeastern Ontario will catch the edge of the big Atlantic snow storm today.

Diefenbaker Heckled by Trio And Pearson Greeted by Pig

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Heckling has cropped up only sporadically in this election campaign. The art of the barbed interjection seems to be fading.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker ran into intermittent needling Friday night in Calgary from two or three men in bleacher seats.

Mr. Diefenbaker said at one point: "I know I'm missing a great deal of important information up there."

The attention of Liberal Leader Pearson's audience at Fredericton was diverted by someone tossing a pig into the meeting hall through a side door.

The pig, unconcerned, ambled among the crowd until it was shooed out by attendants.

"A four-legged heckler," Mr. Pearson commented and some members of the crowd called out "that was Diefenbaker."

The prime minister said his government will not hold up export of western natural gas if the royal commission on energy resources says export is justified.

The Liberal leader accused the Conservatives of discrimination in maintenance of army camps in New Brunswick. He said at St. Stephen that the government shut down Camp Utopia but kept open Camp Sussex in the home territory of Veterans Affairs Minister A. J. Brooks.

CCF Leader Coldwell cancelled a speaking engagement at Montreal so that he could rest in Ottawa for a few days. He is scheduled to undergo a physical examination today. On the result will likely depend the extent of his campaigning in the next two weeks.

Solon Low, Social Credit leader, is campaigning in his Peace River constituency. He will travel by air to Toronto Sunday for a speech there Monday night.

Stanley Knowles, deputy CCF leader, said at Brantford that the Liberals will be "virtually extinct" in Western Canada after the election.

A recurring theme Friday was unemployment.

Former Liberal resources minister Jean Lesage said in a Montreal CBC television broadcast that the government is responsible at least for making unemployment worse if not for starting it.

At Hawkesbury, Ont., Finance Minister Donald FFleming said the Liberals have tried to exaggerate unemployment figures.

Former Liberal transport minister Lionel Chevrier said at St. Vallier, Que., that the government's plans for public works to alleviate unemployment would have "local and temporary" effect while Liberal tax-cutting measures would be effective immediately and would be lasting.

At Kentville, N.S., State Secretary Mrs. Ellen Fairclough said the government bypassed obstacles erected by the opposition parties in Parliament and compiled one of the most impressive legislative records in Canadian history.

At Guelph Transport Minister George Hees said the Liberals are having difficulty finding candidates because "young men aren't willing to run for a dying party."

At Windsor, Paul Martin, former Liberal health minister, says the test of the Progressive Conservative public works program "will come if Mr. Diefenbaker will tell us how many persons can be given employment under this so-called program."

Settlement Appears Unlikely In Railways-Union Battle

MONTREAL (CP)—A conciliation settlement appears unlikely in the crucial contract battle between Canada's railways and 15 unions representing 130,000 non-operatig railway workers.

Neither side has indicated willingness to agree on the basic issue: How to compare railway wages with pay in outside industry.

This is the crux of the dispute before a federal conciliation board here. Hearings continue next week.

The same problem has been at the heart of contract negotiations since 1950 when the unions halted the transcontinental railways with a 11-day strike—finally ended by government edict.

A strike threat has hung over contract talks since then.

If the conciliation board is unable to achieve a settlement, then it likely will recommend a solution in a report not binding on either disputant. The next steps could be a strike, government intervention or compulsory arbitration—possibly all three.

The unions want a wage standard based on the pay of workers who make such things as cars, refrigerators, stoves, machinery or other durable goods. This index has been used since 1950.

The railways — the CPR and CNR, four small companies and an express agency — have proposed another yardstick.

This new standard is based on the "going rate" paid in outside industry to workers with jobs similar to those of the railways' non-operating staff—the workers in railway offices, freight sheds, shops and plants and maintenance crews.

Here's why the two standards are significant:

The unions argue their standard justifies a wage increase that works out to about 35 cents an hour. In reply, the railways say their standard shows no increase whatsoever is needed—that their employees already are earning more than comparable workrs in outside industry.

After 33 Years Escaped Convict Back in Prison

EDINBURG, Tex. (AP) — A New Orleans businessman who came to Texas to see his infant grandson was returned to state prison at Huntsville, Tex., Friday after almost 33 years of freedom.

William Porter Hutto, 51, a used car lot operator, was arrested at his daughter's home Wednesday. A minor traffic violation Tuesday led to his arrest.

Records revealed that Hutto failed to return to the prison after a leave in 1925. He was sent to prison in 1924 on a five- to 15-year sentence for rape.

Queen Elizabeth Hotel Opens

MONTREAL (CP)—The CNR's Queen Elizabeth Hotel, largest in the Commonwealth, opened for business Friday by signing in a couple on a 20th wedding anniversary trip.

Mr. and Mrs. Jean Charles Morel of Baie Comeau, Que., were on their first trip to Montreal.

"The city is too large but the hotel is just marvelous," said Mr. Morel, a newsprint mill employee. They settled down in a $41-a-day suite, provided free.

U.S. Recession Affects World But Not Badly

LONDON (Reuters) — The North American recession, with its post-war record of unemployed, has hit many countries to a greater or lesser extent but has failed so far to justify fears of a severe world "chain reaction," a Reuters survey shows.

Sterling and non-dollar countries have in fact held up far better than was expected to the recession and the commodity slump.

Many countries, including Britain, Canada, India, West Germany and Holland, record rising jobless figures. But apart from Canada which is particularly sensitive to the rise and fall of American economic tides, the recession is not the dominating cause.

Seasonal employment fluctuttion and other factors such as floods or drought have played their part.

LAUNCH MOON SOON

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The U.S. Army's missile chief said Friday that Explorer III would be launched into space "very soon." Maj.-Gen. John B. Medaris said Explorer III would be about the same size as Explorer I, now orbiting in space, and Explorer II which recently failed to go into orbit because the last stage rocket didn't fire.

FLEMING REBUKES COYNE FOR VIEWS ON 'TIGHT MONEY'

Definition Differs From Customary One

OTTAWA (CP) — Finance Minister Donald Fleming has, in effect, rebuked Governor James E. Coyne of the Bank of Canada for saying Canada has never had a "tight money policy."

In a formal statement issued Friday night, Mr. Fleming said Governor Coyne has placed "his own interpretation" on the expression "tight money policy" in the governor's 1957 annual report, issued Thursday under the finance minister's authority.

In the report, Mr. Coyne said that since the bank was founded 23 years ago Canada has never had a tight money policy "to the extent that the phrase might be taken to imply a contraction in the availability of money."

The finance minister, who is not empowered by statute to direct the bank though it reports to Parliament through him, also said Governor Coyne's definition of "tight money policy" differs from the generally understood meaning.

FIRST REBUKE

It was the first such public rebuke ever administered the central bank head by a finance minister. In the past, any policy differences that may have existed were resolved privately.

MINISTER'S STATEMENT

Mr. Fleming said:

"The governor has placed his own interpretation on the expression 'tight money policy.'

"His definition differs from the meaning commonly attached to the expression 'tight money policy' by the public.

"The public is well aware that a new policy was put into effect with the concurrence of the former government in 1955 and it quickly and for obvious reasons became known as the 'tight money policy.'"

Under this policy, Mr. Fleming added, the chartered banks — whose lending policies are influenced to some extent by the central bank—"in addition to holding eight per cent of their deposits in cash were to hold an additional seven per cent in liquid form.

"Immediately credit was thus restricted."

IN EARLIER REPORT

Governor Coyne, in his annual report issued March 1, 1956, said the chartered banks had agreed to a central bank proposal that they fix a floor of 15 per cent in the ratio of liquid assets—cash, treasury bills and day-to-day loans—to deposits. This went into effect June 1, 1956.

In his latest report, Mr. Coyne said an abnormally high demand for money far outran the supply before the supply of borrowing money began rising last August.

Mr. Coyne said:

"The supply of money increased and its velocity of circulation rose very substantially. The phrase 'tight money policy' may sometimes be used to refer to matters other than monetary matters, such as policy with regard to government taxation, expenditure and lending. To the extent that the phrase might be taken to imply a contraction in the availability of money it is not applicable. In this sense of the phrase there has never been a 'tight money policy' in Canada since the establishment of the central bank 23 years ago."

Eisenhower Plan Called 'Insult' By Khrushchev

Will Refuse to Discuss Future of East Europe

MOSCOW (AP)—Warning that Russia will block any Western attempt to tamper with eastern Europe, Nikita Khrushchev has pressed anew for a summit conference—on Soviet terms.

In a bristling speech climaxing the campaign for Russia's one-party parliamentary elections Sunday, the Communist party chief Friday night denounced as "insulting" President Eisenhower's proposal to include in a summit parley the issue of east Europe.

Khrushchev told 14,000 cheering followers in Moscow's Sports Palace that "in the event of any new attempt from abroad to change the status of the Socialist (Communist) countries by force, we will not remain ordinary onlookers and we will not leave our friends in the lurch."

Shortly before Khrushchev spoke, the foreign ministry proposed moving back the time of a summit parley from June to July. The ministry renewed proposals that a foreign ministers' meeting be held next month to decide the agenda of a top-level conference.

HAS REJECTED

Th West has rejected Soviet limitations on foreign ministers' discussions and has refused to set a date for any summit meeting until agreement can be reached on its topics.

Khrushchev said Russia will hold to its determination to keep German unification off any summit agenda. Reunification will work itself out, he said, if foreign troops are withdrawn from Europe and both German governments are given a chance to establish normal relations.

(The New York Times says in a Moscow dispatch that "active negotiations" are under way among the major powers concerning preparation of a summit conference. It quotes a Soviet spokesman as saying the talks are under way, but adds that he would not say where or who was taking part.)

A West German government spokesman indicated in Bonn that it would be willing to drop its demand that unification be placed on the summit agenda if the talks are confined to disarmament.

Russia voiced formal objections Friday against debating disarmament in the United Nations Security Council. But Western diplomats held hope that the Russians would attend such a session.

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet government said today it will consider President Eisenhower's proposal for the control of outer space only if the United States agrees to discuss the liquidation of U.S. military bases in Europe and the Middle East.

The Kremlin proposed a four-point program for consideration at an East-West summit conference, and said it would present the same program for consideration at the 13th session of the United Nations General Assembly.

The official Kremlin statement delivered at a foreign ministry press conference accused the U.S. of seeking control of outer space—and prohibition of the intercontinental ballistic missile — while refusing to discuss aboliton of nuclear weapons and foregn bases.

THREATS TO BOTH SIDES

The ICBM threatens the U.S., the Kremlin said, while American nuclear weapons and foreign bases threatened the Soviet Union.

Under these conditions, the only solution would be simultaneous prohibition of both.

It proposed these four points:

1. Prohibition of the use of outer space for military purposes and an undertaking to launch rockets into outer space only in accordance with an agreed international program.

2. Liquidation of foreign bases on territories of other countries, first of all in Europe, the Middle East and North Africa.

3. Establishment within the framework of the UN of adequate international control to supervise the commitments contained in point 1 and 2.

UN CONTROL BODY

4. Creation of a UN organ for international co-operation in outer space research which would fulfill the following functions:

North Bay Man Charged With Slaying Woman

NORTH BAY (CP) — Harold (Hal) Steeves, 42, North Bay steamfitter, was charged today with murder in the slaying of Mrs. Jack McCall whose scantily-dressed body was found in her apartment Friday night.

Police said Mrs. McCall, 42, had been beaten and kicked to death.

Papers Hail 35-Year-Old Canadian As Press Secretary to the Queen

LONDON (CP)—British newspapers Friday hailed the choice of a 35-year-old Canalian as assistant press secretary to the Queen as "imaginative" and one likely to add "much-needed zest" to palace-press relations.

The appointment of Esmond Butler, assistant to the secretary of Governor-General Vincent Massey, is greeted with approving comments by columnists and editorial writers alike. They stress his journalistic experience, his good looks and bachelor status.

The Daily Express, in an editorial headed "imaginative appointment," says:

"It is the first time an Empire man has filled this vital post and the first time that a man with experience as a reporter will deal with press relations. It is a fine gesture and a timely one. It will help to strengthen the ties between the palace and the peoples of the Commonwealth."

Several newspapers suggest that Butler, who leaves Canada Monday to take up his new appointment, came to the Queen's attention during her visit to Canada last year. They suggest the Queen was impressed by the friendly atmosphere prevailing between the press and government house.

The Daily Telegraph Columnist, Peterborough, says Butler attracted "much favorable comment from visiting American and British correspondents during the royal visit to Ottawa last November."

Peterborough says Butler will be able to "keep Buckingham Palace well informed on Canadian sentiment and affairs" and that he also will be "invaluable with advice for the Queen's visit to Canada next year when she will open the St. Lawrence Seaway jointly with President Eisenhower."

The Daily Sketch predicts the "new glamor boy will give much-needed zest" to palace press relations.

Buckingham Palace has a good word, too. Miss Anthea Fairfax-Ross, also an assistant press secretary, is quoted as saying:

"Yes, I've been looking at Mr. Butler's picture. He is very handsome."

Maple Syrup Makes '58 Debut On Market

Spring is here!

Official proof of its arrival was seen on the local farmers' market this morning as fresh maple syrup was offered in quantity with as many as four vendors displaying the spring delicacy.

One West Lake district farmer said there had been a really good sap run during the week, with cool nights and warmer days being the right combination to start the sap running.

General price quoted for the new syrup crop was $6 per gallon and furnish your own container. Quart lots were $1.75 and pints 90c.

Vegetable prices were the same as for last week with carrots and beets bringing 25c per gallon; parsnips 35c per gallon and turnips ranging from a nickel to 15c each. Potatoes sold at 55c per basket or $2.25 per bushel hamper.

Apples were also quoted at last week's figure of 75c per six-qt. basket for Talman Sweets, McIntosh and Bananas, while Spies brought 85c. Hamper lots of McIntosh sold at $3.

On the inside market eggs held at 60c for extras; 55c for firsts and 50c per dozen for mediums. Pullets were 45c.

Fowl was quoted at 45c per lb. for mature birds and 50c for chicken.

Quinte Curlers Open Big 'Spiel' Here on Tuesday

The city of Belleville will be invaded by a small army of broom wielders wearing tartan tams next week as the 1st annual Quinte Curling Club open bonspiel gets underway at the club's new curling rink at the local fair grounds.

Bonspiel dates are March 18th through to the 22nd with playoffs on Saturday, the final day. It is the first curling bonspiel to be held in the city in many years.

Sixty four rinks — 39 of them from outside the city and representing clubs all the way from Toronto to Brockville — will take part in the bonspiel commencing Tuesday morning and running through until Saturday evening. Nineteen local rinks are entered with 12 different clubs — all represented.

Curling club president Bill Gault and bonspiel chairman J. C. Houston expect stiff competition throughout the five - day event. Saturday will be play-off day with top rinks from the first four day's bonspielling competing for the H. Corby Distillery Trophy. There will be two other main events. In all four winners will be declared.

The bonspiel gets underway at nine o'clock Tuesday morning following official opening ceremonies. Sixteen rinks will play each day with four rinks to be returned each day for the Saturday playoffs.

Stiff competition is expected to be provided by local curlers and visiting bonspielers will have to fight for any laurels they carry away.

Change Children's Aid Role To Meet Widened Knowledge Of Needs States President

Close to 100 people attended the annual general meeting of the Children's Aid Society last night in Christ Church Parish Hall. Guest speaker was Arnold Edinborough, editor of The Whig-Standard, Kingston.

After a bountiful dinner and two vocal solos by Mrs. Joseph Demeza, Clare B. Morgan, who was re-elected president of the Society for 1958, gave his report. He noted that the role of the Children's Aid Society is continually changing as knowledge of human needs increases.

Ten years ago, the CAS was concerned chiefly with meeting the physical needs of children for food, shelter and clothing.

"Then came the realization that natural ties, even with the most inadequate parents, could not be broken without serious and lingering effects on a child," he said.

As a result greater emphasis began to be placed on prevention work, offering help to families before separation of children and parents became necessary.

"Also", he continued, "in the past few years there have been advances in thinking with regard to children who have been separated from their parents. It has become more and more obvious that no one plan can satisfy the emotional needs of many different children, but that each child must be assessed as an individual and planned for accordingly. Adoption is widely accepted as the most desirable plan for every child, regardless of age, who must be permanently separated from his own family."

In each of these areas of service the policies of the CAS have been developing in an effort to keep pace with needs as they become evident. This has meant expansion. Recognizing the importance and economy of preventive work the local municipalities three years ago greatly increased the voluntary grants which support this service.

"Despite increased costs," said Mr. Morgan, "it has not been necessary to ask for larger grants because the province is now bearing a greater share of the financial burden."

Services to children in care have been carried on with close attention to individual needs. The practice of pooling staff experience and insight in planning conferences, a home-finding program which opens the way to better placements through bringing to light the special capabilities of foster parents and the preparation of a receiving home and observation centre (on Highland Ave.) are steps in the direction of providing an adequate service to children who have been entrusted to the care of the local CAS.

"The senior members of our staff, with their valuable experience in the field of welfare, complement the newer members with their academic background. Together they make a working unit of which we can be justly proud.

"My sincere thanks go to Mr. Bruce Kerr, our director, for his faithfulness throughout the year in bringing to our attention those points at which policies needed to be adjusted or extended to meet changing conditions or fill newly discovered gaps . . . I consider myself fortunate in having the support of a board whose members have shown awareness of current needs and given support to enlightened policies. They have at all times given generously of their time and energies," said the president.

Mr. Morgan also welcomed the members of the incoming board, who are: vice-presidents Mrs. E. E. Follwell, Mrs. H. McCabe and H. Ramsay Park; secretary, Mrs. C. Holmes; treasurer, Charles L. Hyde; assistant treasurer, W. St. Pierre.

The directors are: Donald Burr, Mrs. Jules Ethier, Lt.-Col. E. S. Fairman, Mrs. James Forrester, C. I. Frederick, Mrs. H. J. Fuke, Mrs. A. S. McConnell, Dr. James Nelles, Warden Lloyd Price, Rev. E. P. Smith, D. C. Stirling, Miss J. Tickell, E. F. Walt, Mrs. W. A. Watson, J. Fred Wilson and Elmer Wood.

Representatives to the CAS from the city are Aldermen Effie McCabe and George Wishart, while those from Hastings County are Reeve James Sprackett of Tudor and Cashel townships and Deputy Reeve, Harold Varty of Hungerford township. Representatives from Trenton are Councillors A. R. Fox and Chas. Hilton.

Honorary presidents are: Harry W. Ackerman, Judge J. C. Anderson, Mayor Ross Burtt of Trenton, Mayor Gerald B. Hyde of Belleville, Mrs. W. C. Lockyer, Very Rev. Dean Garvin, Roscoe Robson, MLA, and Elmer Sandercock, MLA.

The treasurer's report submitted by C. L. Hyde, showed that the local CAS had a deficit of $9,548.65 at the end of 1957. Total receipts amounted to $146,332.96 as against disbursements of $155,881.61. Included in the receipts were the following grants: Province of Ontario, $5,244.96; Belleville, $2,000; Hastings County $4,999.92 and Trenton $2,476.32. The Belleville Community Chest contributed $3,510.67.

On the disbursement side of the ledger, $51,466.43 was expended on board for children under ward care, while salaries constituted $45,926.67 of the grand total. Medical and dental care and clothing amounted to another $36,253.78. More than $2,500 was spent for school supplies and sundry items.

Maintenance of wards and non-wards claimed $91,896.22 as against $63,985.39 for administrative and general expenditures.

By graphic illustration, Mr. Hyde showed that 90 cents of each dollar the CAS spent last year was dedicated to the maintenance and supervision of children found to be neglected.

Where did each dollar come from for the maintenance and supervision of children in CAS care? The per diem rate of Belleville, Hastings County and Trenton accumulated 43 cents, the Ontario government contributed another 29 cents and other municipalities and the CAS gave 24 cents.

Where did the dollar come from for the protection of children from neglect? Belleville and the Community Chest contributed 29 cents, provincial grants meant an additional 28 cents, fees and miscellaneous, four cents, Trenton 13 cents, and the county of Hastings 26 cents.

The report of Director Bruce Kerr revealed that the number of CAS wards placed in adoption in 1957 was greater than in any previous year, and a large proportion of them were past infancy. Forty-four adoptions were completed during the year and 52 are on adoption probation. There were 56 placements and only five children were withdrawn from adoption placement. At January 1, 1957, 46 children were on adoption probations as compared to 56 at Dec. 31, 1957. adoption probations as compared to 56 at Dec. 31, 1957.

Under the heading of protection of children from neglect, it was seen that 131 new cases were opened last year and 93 closed, involving a case load of 81 at Jan. 1, 1957. The number of cases still open at the end of the year was 118. These children were served in their own homes and were not wards of the society.

At the first of January, 1957, 235 children were under the care of the CAS and at the end of the year the figure had risen to 259. During the year 113 children were admitted to care and 88 were discharged.

Neglect was the chief reason for children being admitted to CAS care, while the inability of one or both parents to provide for them was the reason behind only 14 cases. Most of the children admitted to society care came from Belleville (36), Sidney township (16), Trenton (14), and Thurlow township (10).

Forty-six unmarried mothers sought society assistance during the year, and 30 babies were born out of wedlock.

Chief reason for termination of wardship was legal adoption. Only 13 children were discharged because they had reached the age of 18 years. Twenty-six children were returned to their parents.

There were 188 children in boarding homes at the end of 1957, 10 in free or wage homes and nine in institutional care.

EDITOR SPEAKS

After the reports were submitted, members and visitors relaxed to hear Arnold Edinborough, editor of the Whig-Standard, Kingston, tell them that although Canada is thinking big, it has not yet achieved greatness.

"We need more in a country than bigness. We are trembling now between bigness and greatness," he said.

Whenever Canadians speak in the U.N., other members sit up and take notice, because Canadians can look at a problem "coldly and detachedly. We have no axe to grind with anyone, yet."

Mr. Edinborough said that Canada's education system needs a "fair overhaul." But before that can be done, "we must overhaul our system of working. It's not fair to expect a school student to spend more hours at school and doing homework than we spend earning our salaries."

"All Canadian children," he said, "deserve equality of opportunity only. They do not all deserve the same privileges."

Mayor Gerald B. Hyde brought greetings from the city of Belleville.

IN MEMORIAM

KELLY. — In loving memory of a dear father and husband, Charles Kelly, who passed away March 18th, 1956.

To us the saddest of the year;
We lost a loved one good and fine,

The sorrow the day would bring;
For the call was sudden, the shock severe,
To part with the one we loved so dear.

THE MARK OF A REALLY SMART PERSON

The mark of a really smart person is not necessarily a college diploma or a Phi Beta Kappa key. It might be simply a record of carefully-considered actions.

To "know it all" would be wonderful — if we humans could absorb that much knowledge in a lifetime. Next best is to seek and accept the advice of experts, particularly your Doctor.

Visit him frequently. Follow his directions carefully. Bring your prescriptions to us to be filled, and take the medicine he prescribes regularly.

Such cooperation is the best course possible for preservation of your health, and it marks you as a really smart person.

A Lift for Living

Responsive and Responsible

By DR. RALPH W. SOCKMAN

James Boswell in his memorable biography of Doctor Samuel Johnson tells us Johnson spent all his days under the shadow of one stupendous text which hung over him like a daily judgment. This was the text: "Unto whomsoever much is given of him shall be much required."

Every thoughtful, decent person feels himself judged by that statement of our Lord. Like Doctor Johnson he feels responsive to what has been given him and he feels responsible for what is required of him. In order to make good in life, we must be both responsive and responsible.

Consider first this matter of being responsive to the much that has been given us. According to Herbert Spencer, life is correspondence with environment. Hence the more points at which we respond to what is around us, the more we are alive.

One of Jesus' most difficult problems was in dealing with unresponsive people. We can almost hear the note of exasperation in His voice as He cries, "Having eyes, see ye not? Having ears, hear ye not?" He went around pouring out the passion of His soul for His oppressed and suffering people while the well-to-do and comfortable looked on unconcerned, until finally He shouted, "Woe to them that are full."

Christ made and makes men more alive to nature. He walked through the fields with His countrymen, who were longing to see the ancient glory of Solomon revived in their land, and He said, "Consider the lilies of the field, how they grow; they toil not, neither do they spin; and yet I say unto you that even Solomon in all his glory was not arrayed like one of these."

Christ also makes His followers more alive to human nature. He sat one day by the temple treasury and watched a poor widow put in her gift of two mites, an act which the average person would have passed without notice. But Jesus saw the significance of common things and heard the overtones of seemingly humdrum existence.

Jesus helps His followers to see the meanings beyond the appearances, to see the heroic fortitude of uncomplaining sufferers, the milk of human kindness given by uncouth persons in rough places, the human appeal which a Jane Addams could find in the drabest slum, the lovableness of unlovely people.

SENSE OF WONDER

And now here we are living in the age of space travel the "sputniks" have opened for us. Are we awake to the wonder of it all? When Gilbert Chesterton was asked to write a message for the opening of the Century of Progress Exposition in Chicago in the 30's, he wrote that we will never run out of wonders but we may lose our sense of wonder. Inventions are coming so fast we may cease to feel the marvel of them. Let us not lose our sense of wonder in this marvel-producing age.

We who live in great free lands like the United States and Canada show gratitude for our blessings by assuming the responsibility which goes with strength. We shall be ingrates in these rich lands we have inherited if we take it easy, concerned mainly about longer cars and shorter hours of work.

Five years ago on a Sunday afternoon in Calcutta, I saw a crowd of 50,000 milling around some Communist speakers. They were the land-less property-less, and in large part jobless people of Calcutta — very fertile soil for the Communist seed. But build men into a community, make them feel they have a responsible part in the homes, the schools, the churches, and you have persons who are pretty immune to the Communist germ.

The spirit of community is our best defence against Communism.

MUST DANCE OR LEAVE SCHOOL

"Won't dance, you can't make me - - - -"

It was a good song, two decades ago. But it is outmoded. Not everybody can now sing it and mean it. Its statements are not applicable to students in Grades 7 and 8 of Ontario public schools. They dance - - or else.

That fact was made plain by an incident here this week, as reported in Thursday's issue of The Ontario Intelligencer. To make certain that nobody reading this editorial is under any misapprehension regarding the facts of the case, we shall summarize them briefly.

Some time ago a 14-year-old boy in one of Belleville's public schools refused to take part in a folk dance during a period in the physical education course. His parents told him he was wrong. He danced at the next class. Then, the class after that, a large group of boys did not heed the command to pick a girl as a partner. Since the other boys were "sitting out" the dance, he decided to do so too. The teacher took the names of the boys. They were sent to see the principal. Since it was this boy's' second offence he was given a letter to his parents saying he was being suspended and requesting them to discuss the matter with the principal. The parents did so the next morning. They agreed that their son would dance in future. The boy returned to his class. Because he had not missed any school, technically he was never suspended.

The letter stated, and it is a fact, that folk dancing is part of the curriculum in the physical education course. In elementary schools there are no options in courses. The only way a pupil can be excused from dancing is to produce a letter from his doctor stating he should not participate on medical grounds, or a letter from his parents saying that they object to dancing on religious grounds. Otherwise - - dance.

Thanks largely to the co-operative attitude of the parents of the boy, the incident is trivial. Its implications, we think, are not. They deserve consideration.

The parents' main objection appears to be that the threatened suspension was too severe a punishment. The mother of the boy says she asked why her son was not strapped when he first refused to dance. We are not against the use of the strap under circumstances which would warrant it, but far from suggesting that it should have been used in this case we commend school authorities for refraining from using it.

We think it would be rather difficult to justify strapping a 14-year-old boy because he refused to dance with girls.

It is a little difficult, too, to defend threatening a pupil with suspension for such an "offence," but the burden of this defence does not fall upon the principal, but on the Department of Education. It had placed the principal in what we contend was an impossible situation. The Department says that the children shall take physical education. It says part of the physical education course is folk dancing. It is part of the principal's duty to see that the curriculum is followed. He has to enforce discipline. We approve of his choice of suspension rather than the strap, in this instance, and we suggest that his only alternative was to show the Department's regulations that scorn which they so richly deserve, but which it is certainly not his duty, or even his right, to display.

Nor is it up to the students of the schools to defy these regulations. They ought to do what they are told by their teachers.

But there are others who are under no compulsion to bow to the Department of Education.

If there is anybody in Belleville to be blamed for this situation, it is those of us whose immediate reaction to this situation is "outrageous." In the final analysis it is the people of this province who decide what the school curriculum should be. If we did not know that a boy has to learn to dance before he can be admitted to high school, that is our fault. If, having learned of the situation, we wish it remedied there is something we can do about it. Adults who consider existing regulations preposterous, whether they are parents or not, should stage a little dance of their own, a war dance. There is nothing to prevent them from stating their views frankly to the men who represent them in the Ontario Legislature.

First, though, we ought not to overlook the fact that a case can be made out for dancing. It is, some will maintain, part of an effort to teach youngsters social graces. Learning to dance with girls never hurt any boy. We agree. But we do not think that school authorities ought to consider it their duty to force every boy, or every girl, to do everything which would be good for him or her.

A PRAYER

This is my prayer for the day:
Strength for the tasks that I find,
Wisdom to light up my way;
Then, though I falter behind,
Let me not envy nor hate
Him who is braver than I.
Let me not curse or berate
Any who may pass me by.

Lord, let me do what I can,
Let me not shirk any task;
Teach me to live as a man;
More I'm unwilling to ask.
Humble my lot, let me be Proud of the fact that I live,
Glad for the sky and the sea,
Glad of the mile I can give.

This is my prayer for the day:
Not for more favors I bow,
But wisdom to make on my way
The most of what's given me now.
Poor, then let poverty be Something to strengthen my soul.
Take not one burden from me;
Let me fight my own way to my goal.

Middle Age Begins at 26

Hamilton Spectator

In the U.S.A., physical fitness experts can be doctors and professors, but it doesn't seem to be improving the general health of the folks down there.

For instance, Prof. Thomas J. Cureton, Jr., of the University of Illinios physical education faculty, informed a conference recently that middle age begins at twenty-six because of "hothouse" apartment life often unvaried by outdoor activity.

"The curves of physical fitness and abilities begin to decline prematurely after twenty-six years of age," Professor Cureton said. "Middle age may be defined as the point at which these curves turn downward." To halt this deterioration, he suggested a "positive program" of adult education which would include walking, running, skating, skiing, dancing, canoeing, rowing, climbing and cross-country hiking.

Of course this is common sense. All too many people, Canadians as well as citizens of the U.S., indulge in only as much exertion as is needed to shuffle from the garage to the television set. Not for them the thrill of a slalom at Cedar Valley, a blood-tingling outdoor session of rock 'n' roll or the healthful, heady exuberance of a tramp over the moors with the wind and the rain in what remains of their hair at the degenerating age of twenty-six.

What puzzles us now, though, is the application of that philosophy publicized some years ago by Mr. Walter B. Pitkin and later immortalized in song by Miss Sophie Tucker, "Life Begins At Forty". The theory was that the true fullness of life wasn't experienced until the age of forty was reached. Must this be now amended to read, "twenty-six"?

If so, then perhaps there should be a new regulation that a citizen mustn't seek admission to the old folks' home until he or she is at least a mature twenty-nine, or ten years younger than Jack Benny.

Auto Parts Expensive

Windsor Star

It isn't only the initial cost of cars that is a deterrent to many buying new models. It also is the upkeep, which includes the obsolescence, insurance, repair bills, and running costs, etc.

An insurance company, in justifying higher automobile insurance rates, has come up with some interesting data. The number of accidents has been increasing and also the severity of them. Repairs cost much more, and this is evident in the replacement of parts.

The insurance company cites examples of this spectacular increase. A bumper for a certain type of car cost $20 in 1947 and $210 in 1957; a windshield which cost $48 in 1947 cost $127.50 in 1957; a fender cost $25 in 1947 and cost $49.75 in 1957, and a trunk lid which cost $45 in 1947 cost $73.50 in 1957. This was simply the cost of the parts, without regard for the labor that went into replacing them. There is 322.75 increase in these four parts alone.

Certainly in some instances, as in windshields, there has been a real improvement in an utilitarian sense. Though there is probably a higher labor content in the new parts, it would seem a great factor in the increased cost has been simply that of design. One has but to compare the ornate bumpers and fenders of today with the plainer ones of a decade ago.

From the above statistics for increased costs of certain parts, it is fairly easy to understand why modern cars produced on this continent cost what they do today. The autoist who recently had to replace a bumper has suggested, the price of bumpers being what it is, he should buy a cheap outer bumper to protect the bumper.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

HAPPINESS

The world's greatest search is for happiness, regardless of the fact that your happiness may have been missed and left upon your own front door steps. It's that elusive. Simple as happiness is to gain, money cannot buy it nor can fame, nor temporary applause. Happiness is something that has to be born in the heart, and then it must be eternally guarded and warmed there, in readiness to give to such as may need, for happiness lives only as it is distributed far and wide.

Taking happiness alone, there is nothing that is so potent in protecting the health and stimulating all of the organs of the body as is happiness. Note how happy a healthy child is. Note, also, how much more efficient is the worker who is happy. Think of the power of love, stimulated by a little happiness.

Doctors tell me that happy patients recover much quicker than those who are not happy. Nurses love to have such people in their charge. The average person does not realize the power that he has ever at hand, if he is continually happy, and is forever inspiring happiness in others.

Unhappy people require sympathy, understanding, and an abiding faith. There is a line from the writings of William James that has helped me. I turn it over to you. He said: "Be not afraid of life. Believe that life is worth living, and your belief will help create the fact." If we were only more heroic, more patient, and more humane! What a world we might build! What a great human being we might turn out to be!

Why Colombia Sent Troops

By W. R. Frye in the Toronto Star

The story of how Colombian troops were obtained for UNEF has recently come to light here. Hammarakjold called Urrutia, then Colombia's U.N. delegate, at 2.30 a.m. on Sunday, Nov. 4, 1956, at the height of the Suez crisis, and asked him to come to the secretary - general's private office.

"Can you get us a Colombian contingent?" Hammarkjold asked.

The Colombian said he would try. Picking up the phone, he put through a call for Bogota, his capital. When he got the prime minister on the phone, the latter was sceptical and wanted to know why the troops were needed. He doubted if any could be spared.

Thinking fast, Urrutia replied: "If there had been a U.N. in 1903, we might never have lost the Panama Canal."

"All right," said Prime Minister Jose Arboleda Valencia. "You can have the men."

(In 1903, what is now Panama was Colombian territory. A group of rebels, protected from Colombian counteraction by American gunboats standing off shore, set up an indepenedent government. They then proceeded to sign a treaty permitting the United States to build the canal — a treaty which the Colombian government previously had refused to ratify.

(The phrase "gunboat diplomacy" is often used to describe the American role in the afafir.)

Right Story, Wrong Place

Montreal Gazette

Albertans, and especially Alberta's Stony Indians, are in grave danger of lapsing into a narrow provincial outlook. There are complaints in Calgary that the Stonies have decided to give up weather forecasting.

From Rocky Mountain House in the north, the Stonies' forecasting grounds, have come the annual predictions, for generations, telling what the Alberta winter was to be like. The Stonies have continued to depend, so the story goes, on such traditional signs as the date of the first frost, the first snow and the thickness of the pelts of animals.

So far, there has been no proved evidence of the use of white man's almanacs in the process.

This year, the Stonies predicted a tough winter. Instead, Alberta has had an easier winter than Florida. So the Stonies have given up. They won't play any more.

There's no need for them to sulk. They should be proud of their prediction. It has been a tough winter.

They just had the wrong province, that's all.

Belleville in the '90s

By Harry M. Moore

SPORTS CENTRE

Article 11

Belleville from the very beginning has always been a good sports centre, sports which ranged from cricket to hockey to lacrosse to baseball, and back to hockey again.

But what about Belleville in the 90s? Well, there was cricket, and plenty of it. There were clubs in Picton, Napanee and elsewhere. And there was lacrosse, field lacrosse. And to show that they meant business the players practised both mornings and evenings on the cricket grounds.

There was a game in Belleville on June 14, 1892, that was to make the sports pages of the city papers. This was a game between Belleville Okas, dressed in new uniforms secured in Toronto and which made them look "exceedingly most tasteful," and Port Hope. And while reading the story you may see some resemblance of what goes on in modern hockey to show there is nothing new under the sun.

Anyway here are the details:

"An interesting game of lacrosse was played on Saturday between the Quinte team and a team from Port Hope which resulted in victory for the Belleville team, the score being 2 to 0. The first goal was scored in 23 minutes and the second in one hour and five minutes.

Following are the names of the Quinte players: Macloud, Hitchon, Holton, Brophey, Phillips, Twining, Thompson, Gordiner, Burwell, Collins, Overell and Moore, Referee, Parker Thomas.

"Mr. Christie, operator of the GTR, was knocked insensible during the latter part of the game. Dr. Dolan, however, was on the grounds and soon brought him around."

Apparently there was no baseball at that time, but there was hockey and games played for a cup donated by Harry Corby—a playoff with Deseronto, Belleville winning by a lop-sided score.

ASPIRIN IS USEFUL IN TREATMENT OF ARTHRITIS

Here's the letter that prompts today's column:

"My husband is 66 and I am 62, and we both have arthritis. In winter or damp weather we are almost helpless with pain and sometimes I have to walk with a cane.

"We saw (name of product deleted) advertised on TV and thought we would try it. We feel relief when we take the tablets, and have taken 14 bottles so far but we wonder whether it is habit-forming or harmful to take them so steadily. We wrote and asked the manufacturers, but they didn't reply. Would you let us know? — Mrs. W.G."

She enclosed a label, showing the active ingredients. She didn't say whether she and her husband were exceeding the number of tablets per day mentioned on the label, but I guess they are following the directions.

On reading the label, I find that the pills consist of salicylates plus a few vitamins! Salicylates — the basis of all the aspirin-type drugs.

The vitamins can't hurt, and the salicylates (or aspirin) can't hurt, either, in reasonable quantities. In fact, I've repeatedly preached the usfulness of aspirin in arthritis. I've based my remarks not only on my own observations but on the very careful studies of experts who have made searching studies of aspirin.

The biggest fault of aspirin, as a treatment for arthritis, is that it is so common that people don't believe it can really help them. They insist on hunting for something "new" or "better."

DRUGS CAN'T "CURE"

Anyway, neither aspirin nor any other drug can "cure" or put an end to arthritis. Arthritis isn't that sort of a disease. It's an ailment that we can usually make endurable, or minimal. It is, after all, like age. We can make old age happy and useful, but we never can make ourselves young again

Here's another important aspect — thousands and probably millions of people with arthritis have been literally deceived into feeling better. Their doctors (or relatives, or whoever it may have been) made them think they would feel better by going on a trip, or by taking a pill, or by eating elixir of spinach or something. And, presto, they did feel better. They became more active, and the more active the more limber the stiffened joints beam.

Believing is very important with arthritis. So if somebody buys a patent remedy that consists of aspirin and vitamins, and feels better as a result, why should I object? I don't. I'm glad.

But for the folks who can't afford the price, I'm going to say again: Ordinary aspirin, and the knowledge that it will help, will work wonders for you, and very inexpensively. I don't mean to shake the faith of people in their patent remedies. I do, deeply, hope I can assure the ones with little money that the commonest drug of all aspirin, remains as good as anything we know. Like the famous old lecture, "Acres of Diamonds." We ignore the best things that lie before us.

"Dear Dr. Molner: My blood donation was refused because of jaundice. Why? I don't seem to have any bad effects now. — A. O. K."

Because the jaundice is often a result of hepatitis, a liver disease, and even though you have recovered, it is possible that you still have traces of the virus which caused the disease. This is one of the diseases transmitted by blood transfusions, so we always play safe.

Note to M.F.T.: Yes, it is entirely practical to have an over large nose corrected by surgery. See a plastic surgeon. Ask your own doctor to refer you; or ask your county medical society to refer you, or ask for advice from the best hospital in your area.

Do you have a problem with old people? If so, write to me in care of this newspaper, requesting a copy of my pamhlet, "What To Do About Elderly Folk," enclosing a large, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 5c in coin to cover handling.

Strength for The Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

THAT MESSAGE OF HOPE

Almost the last words Jesus spoke to His disciples were these: "All power hath been given unto me in heaven and on earth; Go ye therefore. . ."

He did not say that tremendous power had been given Him or sufficient power, but all power. He has power over the physical world, over the affairs of nations, over the health of individuals, over the final outcome of world events. He has spiritual power, so that the sinner looks up from the mire through which he plodded for years and sees a vision of higher and better things — in fact of celestial things.

The word "therefore" is important in this utterance of Jesus. Because He has had power conferred upon him, a like power through Him is conferred upon us. If we are in tune with His purposes, if our wills are submitted to His will, then the torrential power which makes Him indeed the Ruler of the Universe, streams into the channels of our lives and makes us adequate for any situation.

These words come to people who are sick. They come also to people who are worrying about their loved ones. They come to sinners, fighting their weaknesses. They come to those who have failed and failed again and again.

"All power hath been given unto me . . . Go ye therefore . . ." Here is the world's great message of hope.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

What goes on in the wilds, during these months of isolation for vast areas of our northern expanse, is becoming less of a mystery, now that government biologists are being employed to find out.

In Ontario, a wolf survey is being conducted. Whenever there is a fresh snowfall, and at least once a week, air patrols do a grid count of chosen townships, looking for tracks. Out from Gogama, in the northern part of the province, the rangers spotted the heavy ploughed track of a moose doing some unseasonable travelling. Moose usually hole up in deep winter. On coming down for a clue, the rangers saw wolf tracks along with the characteristic moose furrow. They followed by air to where the chase entered a swamp.

Landing the plane, the rangers followed on snowshoes. A little way in the swamp, they found where the pack of eight wolves had given up the chase and had lain down, obviously for some time, and rested.

Then the wolf tracks quit the moose trail, and headed out of the swamp. The rangers followed up the moose track; and within 150 yards of where the wolves had given up, they jumped the moose from its bed, where it had been resting.

Eight wolves against one moose. On its long legs in the soft snow, the moose had dead-beaten the wolves that hadn't enough heart left to go 150 more yards.

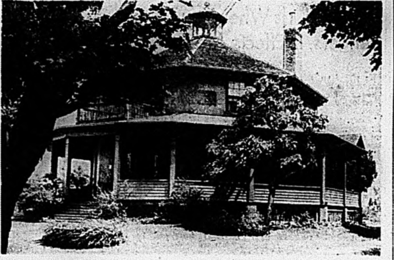
Old Houses of the Quinte Area



A pagoda dominates the roofline in this house. It rises from a small octagonal attic-room, which would otherwise be windowless. "Before we took our 'pagoda' down," says one present octagonal house owner, "I was very fond of going up there on summer days with a book; to sit and read and look at the view, where it was always cool and refreshing." Another person recalls: "The view from grandfather's pagoda made the countryside look like a page out of a fairy-tale."

By Viva Richmond Graham

THE OCTAGONAL HOUSE

Canada, it is said, has no early architecture of its own. It was all copied from foreign handbooks, a custom which stems from Europe where architectural ideas were constantly adopted and adapted.

For example, back in the early sixteenth century when the Frenchman, Thomas Bohier, returned from military campaigns in Italy, he brought back books and pictures of the latest Italian buildings and designs. He summoned his architects, stone carvers and workmen to "promptly and profuzely lavish" the Italian innovations on his famed chateau "Chenonceaux" which became, as a result, "the most modern building in France — the first French Renaissance chateau, designed for elegant living rather than for the withstanding of a siege."

"During Canada's early pioneer days, however, there was no such person as an architect," says Mr. Watson, Belleville's well known architect, "and so the houses were chosen from a handbook containing a hundred and fifty "models." A master carpenter and mason would copy the chosen model as closely as possible according to the pitch of roof and floor plan, while the doors and windows were assembled in units and built in a pleasing manner." The colonial style white house west of Grafton, is one such example, chosen from an American design and it is interesting to note it is to be made a museum under the auspices of a local historical society.

"Thanks to the "foreign handbook" method, Canada preserves many period type houses. Among these is the Octagonal House, and Prince Edward County is fortunate in possessing four of them, which collectively, contribute much to the local fund of history and legend.

MANY ANECDOTES

Time and life in all four were lived to the brim with their quota of tragedy and — comedy, too. A former owner of one, said to be a wealthy maiden lady, strongly objected to a section of a railroad laid on her property behind the house, because it prevented her cow from seeking pasture on the other side of the tracks with safety. To overcome this hazard, she suggested that the officials build a culvert under the tracks, where happened to be quite a rise in the land. When every "soft soap" method failed to grant her request by the stony-hearted officials, she applied it concretely to the very tracks whereby the engineers found it increasingly difficult to make said grade until at last — the officials complied!

One of the houses was built especially as a wedding gift to a young bridal couple by the groom's parents who lived next door. Another house was begun by two enterprising young men who dreamed of a joint medical office, until their money gave out, and left it for another owner to complete it. A sidelight of the early days reveals one of the houses was completely wired with burglar alarms in every room. Though no theft was ever reported, the wiring became so obsolete with the passing years, that the slightest breeze would send the bell system ajingle at any time. The present owner points out the numerous holes in the woodwork where the wires, now removed, had once been placed.

Though the interiors have been divided into apartments or duplexes to meet the demands of the modern times, the basic design of each is intact. Cut a circle, inscribed with a plane figure of eight sides and eight angles, into four quarters, alloting the outerside of each pie-wedge an angle and two sides with windows to allow plenty of light to flood the assigned kitchen, dining-room, parlour and hall. "The whole house always seems to be filled with sunshine on nice days," comments one present owner, "and even when the days are cloudy, the rooms are really bright." In two of the houses, the stairs in the downstairs hall rises directly opposite the entrance door, while the other two houses allow the stairs to rise in a graceful, semi-circular fashion to the second storey where the upper hall accommodates the same wedge-shaped rooms as below which have been halved, to provide six bedrooms.

MOSTLY BUILT OF LUMBER

One house only is built of red brick. The rest have groute wall surfaces, which indicates they are built of lumber, then plastered, inside and out with a composition of lime, sand and shavings.

The roofs, and one still has the original slate roof, of three houses are centred with an eight-sided glassed "pagoda" which serves the double purpose of lighting a small octagonal attic-room (which is excellent as an extra bedroom or a storeroom) as well as affording a splendid view of th surrounding countryside. "Before we took our "pagoda" down" says one present owner, "I was very fond of going up there on and read and look at the view in summer days with a book, to sit complete privacy, where it was always cool and refreshing."

"The view made the countryside look like a page out of a fairy-tale," recalls a granddaughter of an original owner and founder of another house, "and grandfather's prize black and white cattle looked like toys grazing in the green pastures that were bordered with thick green woods that seemed to touch the billowy white clouds just yonder. How I remember that!"

She also remembers that a few days before one Christmas, her grandfather died, "and we travelled many miles through the snow to attend the funeral with our parents. Though saddened, of course by this loss, being children, we didn't fully comprehend it all, and underlying our sorrow was our concern about Santa; would he ever find us away from home like this? But he did! The house is crowded with memories for me, and I still love to think how adorable my mother must have looked dressed in her brown silk wedding gown, when given away by my grandfather at her wedding held in that beautifully carpeted parlor."

CHIMNEY REPLACES PAGODA

The oldest of the octagonal houses, said to be well over a hundred years old, has an interesting feature. For it lacks a pagoda on its roof. In its place, rises a stalwart chimney, which served the original huge fireplace tucked in the apex of the pie-shaped rooms. "When my family moved here, they immediately installed a furnace after papering over the many stovepipe holes in all the rooms. We're told it kept a young lad who lived with his relatives here, busy the whole winter, to keep the stoves filled with wood," says the present owner. "These original fireplaces you see — the black marble one in the dining room and the white one in the parlor as well as the one that would be in the kitchen were just too inadequate for Canadian winters.'

Many ask the question, what is the origin of an octagonal house? Could the clue lie in this chimney?

But how could a chimney have anything to do with a design of a house? Chimneys are identified with heat. Does this indicate, perhaps, the heart of the matter lies in the problem of heat in general and in chimneys in particular? After all, the question of how to keep warm has challenged man down the ages, and to give him credit, man has triumphed admirably, in this regard. In fact, so magnificently did one American multi-millionaire scale this challenge prior to the era of oil-furnaces, he refused to admit anything so black and dirty as coal produced heat and thus concealed the coal in neat white packages which were stacked conveniently away in a white-tiled furnace-room and fed a shining white furnace by a white-gloved, white-clad, college-trained furnace man.

But for centuries, man's greatest, practical source of heat was, and still is the old-fashioned fireplace, very much in vogue in such countries as England, even now, where the present owner of Blenheim Palace, (the largest house in the country, being over two hundred yards long), pays out huge sums annually just to keep "the vast forest of chimneys in repair."

Then, too, in certain lowland countries of Europe, such as the Netherlands, 'tis said, chimneys were a measure of a man's wealth and rendered taxable by governments to relieve economical pressure on the theory the more heat a man could afford, the more wealth he possessed.

To outwit the tax-collector, is it too much to imagine a young Hollander stumbling upon the idea of one chimney serving a ten-room house as he sat eating a piece of Duch apple pie?

However great an aura of enchantment such a highly hypothetical premise as this may cast over the storied landscape of Prince Edward County and its past, has anyone a more conclusive one? Please write in!

The manor house is the subject of next Saturday's article.

Note the chimney on what is considered the oldest of the four octagonal houses found in Prince Edward County. It functioned for the several fireplaces originally used for the entire heating system. Could the single chimney be a clue to the origin of the design of the octagonal house? If so does it explain why the other three substituted a pagoda in place of the chimney?

Some Queries About Jobless Pay Answered

Just who or who may not be entitled to receive unemployment benefits and what work conditions determine eligibility for payments, are questions which Unemployment Insurance Commission are frequently called upon to answer.

Mr. Cecil Hiuser, manager of the Belleville Employment office, at any time will be pleased to have questions relating to unemployment insurance answered. Here are some questions and answer which may be of interest to readers:

Q.—If there is a strike where I work and I am willing to work but unable to enter the working area because of picketers, am I entitled to unemployment insurance after waiting the specified time?

A.—This would depend entirely on the facts established at time of claim. These matters are usually somewhat involved so that no specific answer can be given to a hypothetical situation.

Q.—Because I left my job to get married I was unable to draw unemployment insurance? Is it true that a married woman is not entitled to benefit until two years after her wedding?

A.—If a married woman has left her job voluntarily without just cause, she may be disqualified for a period up to six weeks The special regulations that applied to women who became claimants in the first two years after marriage were revoked effective November 17, 1957.

Q.—I am nearing retirement age — 67 in August — and will have completed six years' contributions in April, 1958. I would be grateful if you would inform me through your column what benefits, if any, I will have coming to me and for how long.

A.—Benefit is paid only to persons who are ready, able and willing to immediately accept suitable employment. If a person who has retired does not wish to work, then he is not entitled to benefit. The amount of benefit and the length of time for which it is payable can only be determined at the time a claim is made and the full record of contributions is available.

Q.—I paid unemployment insurance contributions steadily from 1941 to 1957. I then moved to the U.S.A. where I make my permanent home. I think I am entitled to what I put into the fund with interest. Can I get it?

A.—No. The unemployment insurance fund is not a savings account and therefore a refund of your unemployment insurance contributions cannot be made. However, under an agreement between the United States and Canada, to which nearly all the States have subscribed, you may have a claim for benefit taken by the U.S. office of Unemployment Insurance Compensation Board in your locality, should you become unemployed in the United States. You may be paid any benefit for which you qualify under the Canadian Unemployment Insurance Act.

Market Place Parking Space Would Benefit

TRENTON — "I have contemplated for years that we need more parking space in Trenton and I most certainly feel we have an ideal opportunity to put one in the Market Square which would be of untold benefit to the business economy of the town", Councillor James MacDonald said yesterday.

"By building the proposed new police station and fire hall somewhere else and leaving the Market Square area free for parking meters it would give the town 59,096 square feet for added parking", he said. "This would be the equivalent of about 150 parking spaces each one of which, would be metered.

"At present", he continued, "with the buildings now standing in the square there are 96 parking places being used. This includes those along the north side of King Street and the west side of Division Street.

"With the building removed and the whole area laid off properly there could easily be room for 150 parking meters with ample driving areas in and out of the lot.

"It is estimated that each parking space, or 200 square feet, brings from $8,000 to $12,000 worth of business to town stores each year in sales. Besides this each parking meter brings in an average of $50 per year in revenue to the town.

"Working on these facts, which have been proven in a great many areas both large and small, the 150 meters, which would engulf the present market square, could increase sales for town stores by well over $1,000,000 per year and in parking revenues would bring the town $7,500 per year.

"With this added revenue it would not take long for this parking lot to pay for itself and then pay off the cost of the new police station and in the long run even the new fire halls and the aerial ladder truck."

Councillor MacDonald said he knew all this wouldn't be done in the first year but it would be done over many years and with the car population going up in Trenton each year serious thought must be given to parking areas both for the present and future.

At present, the councillor said, the lot on Front Street may be plenty big enough during the first few days of each week but it certainly is not nearly sufficient during the weekend shopping days when business is at its highest. This is the time to plan parking space area, the time when the greatest number of persons are using it, it was argued.

Councillor MacDonald also indicated that public wash rooms could be built near the parking areas to accommodate persons who bring their children shopping with them.

"It would all go to make Trenton more prosperous by being more attractive to today's shoppers who now come to town in cars," Mr. MacDonald concluded.

Pension Bureau Report Released

TRENTON — The annual report of the Canadian Legion Service Bureau for 1957 just released from the Legion's Dominion Headquarters in Ottawa, shows a total of 473 successful pension adjustments with a total of $102,291.24 in retroactive value.

In releasing the report locally John Farrell, president of Branch 110, Trenton, observed that the Legion Service Bureau is entirely financed by the Canadian Legion and is not to be confused with the Department of Veterans' Afafirs.

Louis Knack and James Patterson are Branch 110 representatives on the board and any district veteran with a pension problem should contact either of them at the Trenton Legion Memorial Hall.

The report stated that Ontario was again the leader in pension adjustments, with 147 claims processed for a retroactive total of $26,072.35.

Besides Canada and the United States, pension adjustments were effected for veterans residing in England, Scotland, France and the British West Indies.

Plan to Help Children Who Are Retarded

The need for a local Association for Retarded Children was overwhelmingly demonstrated on Thursday evening when over forty people filled the Belleville Public School Board room to overflowing.

This meeting had been called in order to assess the local interest and need.

Those attending included parents of retarded children, both at home and in institutions, representatives from the local Home and School Council, board members of the Plainfield Home for Mentally Retarded Infants, and other persons interested in the welfare of such children.

Mr. L. A. Kells, Superintendent of Public Schools, who presided, opened proceedings by outlining the purpose of the meeting.

Mr. Arthur Ward, then explained the basic functions of a local association and continued by tracing the history of the Ontario Association for Retarded Children from its inception in 1952 with the forming of the first local association in Toronto. There are now 44 member associations, all operating classes.

Motions to form an associaton and hold an organizational meeting in md-April were carried unanimously.

The chairman then reviewed the Provincial Dept. of Education's regulations governing the operation of classes for retarded children.

Mrs. Dawson, Mrs. Powell, Mrs. Parkhurst, and Mrs. Ward were appointed nominating committee to prepare a proposed charter executive.

Before closing those parents present decided to explore all avenues of fund raising with the object of commencing at least one class in September of this year.

Most Retired People Would Like This Woman's 'Woe', $391 a Mon

By THOMAS COLLINS

"I am writing this letter at 4 A.M.," the wife said. "It's another of those nights when I can't sleep for worrying over what we should do about retirement."

Her husband, she explained, is a steel man and has been with his company 30 years. He is in a supervisory job. He is 61 and in reasonable health.

"Our assets," said the wife, "are a seven-room house worth $14,000; $1,700 in the bank; $2,325 in U.S. bonds; and $1,300 in a special savings account.

"Our taxes are $212 a year. Our gas and lights (we heat with gas) average $23 a month. Our phone is $6 a month. We have little other expense, except food and clothing, but we are always broke.

"We must remedy our living routine. How? Our retirement income at 65 will be $325 a month."

IRONIC CONTRADICTION

This wife points up one of the ironic contradictions of retirement in our times — she and her husband have too much money. Her problem is one some ten million people her age would be quite happy to have.

The assets she and her husband have total nearly $20,000, which is a small fortune. Invested at 4 per cent, it would add $66 a month to their $325. That's enough to go to Monte Carlo and play roulette.

Yet this wife stays up until 4 A.M. worrying. My mail, and interviews over the country, indicate that most other retirement-age people worry, too — if they have that much money. But people with $210 a month usually don't.

Obviously this doesn't make sense, but there's considerable evidence to support it. And there may be an explanation.

When the normal couple sees a retirement income of $300 or more, they often get the idea they can stretch and make do, without changing their mode of life. They can't because retirement income is usually a fourth or a third of what salary has been, and it's too painful a stretch. Also, home life, social life and the emotions undergo a change at retirement. The money, even if it stretches, can't drag all of the old life along.

When the normal couple goes into retirement with $10,000 or more of assets, they worry, because the more you've got, the more you've got to have it. A Pennsylvanian who retired 18 months ago with $125,000 in stocks which he figured ample to give him the $5,000 he needed to "maintain his position," is presently biting his nails. One $20,000 batch of his stock dropped to $8,000 in the stock decline last year, and another batch of $38,000 dropped to $27,000. He's worrying night and day.

But the couple going into re

'Christianity in Japan' Topic At W.M.S. Meet

The W.M.S. of Tabernacle Church met in the church at 2.30 Tuesday afternoon. Mrs. Ray Lockyer, the president, opened the meeting.

The president brought up the subject of candidates for the ministry or for any full-time work in the church. "'It is the duty of each member of the W.M.S. to use her influence to recruit candidates for full-time service in the church."

Mrs. Gerald Brickman spoke on Christian Stewardship, saying in part, "We should feel that our time is a gift from God as well as our money. When asked to take positions of responsibility in church work we should try to do our part and spend time in preparation."

Mrs. Roy Brickman gave some inspiring thoughts on Christian Citizenship, the main thought being on friendliness. A Christian should cultivate the virtue of friendliness.

ed by Mrs. Slavin. Philippians ed my Mrs. Slavin. Philippians 4:1-11 was read and a discussion on thoughts from this chapter was conducted by Mrs. Slavin. "We should be sure of our own faith so that we can compare it with great religions of the world."

Mrs. Osland and Mrs. McClelland conducted a question and answer period on Study Book, chapter 6, "Christianity in Japan."

Dr. William Axling, who is an expert on Christian work in Japan, states, "The serious question for Christian people is — 'How can a desperately divided Christian community meet the challenges of tomorrow in Japan?' If the Christian movement in Japan is to grow into responsible maturity among the World Family of Churches it must set its own house in order, and achieve a greater degree of unity within its own Christian community."

For decades the Christian movement in Japan was confronted with a closed or partially opened door, but now the door is open. The mind and the mood and the attitude of the nation as a whole toward the Christian faith has undergone a change. This does not mean that the people of Japan are all knocking at the door of the church. Neither does it mean that they are ready to accept the Christian faith. The battle for Japan's soul is only in the opening stages. Less than half of one percent of the nation's ninety million people have accepted the Christian way — less than half a million in ninety million.

Panel Outlined CAS Work to University W.C.

The University Women's Club of Belleville recently received a thorough report on one of the community's most unobtrusive, but most important, services.

Under the leadership of Miss Marlene Brant, a panel of three other members from the Children's Aid Society explained the purposes and work of their organization, Mrs. Lilian Hartley, Mrs. Max Wooley and Mr. B. Kerr, the society's director, all active in different fields of child welfare, gave most interesting accounts of their work.

The Children's Aid Society is actually a young organization, an outgrowth, surprisingly enough, of the Humane Societies. Animals have been neglected through cruelty and neglect longer than children. In Ontario the Society operates under a government law, the Child Welfare Act, but each local society has its own board of directors and is responsible to the local community.

The panel explained that the Society has two main interests, the prevention of bad situations which would cause child cruelty, or neglect, and the care of children who are victims of these situations.

At the present time, 90 per cent of the society's energy and money is spent in this second type of work. The panel felt that this 90 per cent should be spent on preventive activities, but they have rarely found support among the general public for this type of social work.

Both Mrs. Hartley and Mrs. Wooley, who have abundant experience in working with neglected children, emphasized that, nearly always, a child's own home is the best place for him.

Foster parents, however, who have given neglected or disturbed children the security and love of their homes, are the most vital part of the society's program.

One of the chief jobs of the social workers is to find good homes for their wards. To find adopting parents is comparatively easier than to find foster parents.

The University Women's Club showed its interest and appreciation for the panel's work by the numerous questions and comments from the floor.

Mrs. Robert Park thanked Miss Brant and her colleagues for an excellent evening.

TABERNACLE W.M.S.

The March meeting of the Evening Auxiliary of Tabernacle United Church was held at the home of Mrs. L. Gooch, 215 John Street.

The meeting was called to order by the president, Jean Miller, with 18 members present.

Gwen May presented the devotional taken from Phil. 3:1-16 which ended with a discussion on the Bible.

The president conducted a short business session.

The study book on "Japan" was given by Gladys Shane, assisted by Bernice Manley and Willa Eakins.

Mrs. Eastcott closed the meeting with prayer.

Refreshments were served by Leda Gooch and Myra Irwin.

This - - - and That

By HARRIET STEVENS

Canada's four maritime provinces are astir. It is apparent that the oldest part of Canada is no longer content to be the straight man in Canada's part on the world's stage. The evidence is not only confined to the realms of politics or freight rates. This week representatives of the recently formed Atlantic Council are visiting Montreal and Toronto and making their voices heard. Culturally, the maritime provinces are taking their rightful prominent place in the nation's story. An abundant wealth of heritage and history is being recreated and placed permanently on the record. Even in sport, the maritime provinces are becoming better known. The Jackie Robinson of hockey is a Fredericton boy. Willie O'Ree is the first negro boy to make the big time. He is a member of the Boston Bruins system and has played two games for the Bruins. Yvon Durelle is the pugilistic fishingman whose heart is firmly attached to his fishing fleet and his home village of Baie Ste. Anne, N.B.

There is a reason, even though a tenuous one, for bringing this matter up. Through the generous action of a native son of Nova Scotia, now a citizen of Belleville, a new magazine from the Maritimes has been coming into our home. It is a monthly magazine printed at Fredericton and called the Atlantic Advocate. It is a distinct and valuable contribution to Canadian journalism. For those of us who are unable for many reasons to travel, the reading of the Atlantic Advocate is a fine way to see the historic maritimes and travel through the pages of time and envision the new hope and future down by the sea. As its readers know, T & T is interested in the recently organized Hastings Historical Society. In the March issue of the Atlantic Advocate there is an article on Saint John, N.B.—Canada's Oldest Incorporated City. The article is copyright so we will not copy but wish to pass on an idea. A few of Saint John city's firsts are listed. We wonder if lifelong citizens of Belleville, Trenton and any town or community of our county would write T & T or Mr. Tom Wrightmeyer, Trent Road and pass on any authentic first you know of in this historic part of Canada. T & T is not positive of the details, but is it not a fact that the first Masonic lodge in Upper Canada was organized here? Such historical highlights have a local interest from a point of view of sentimentality if you wish and historical record. Maritimers now living in our district would like the new periodical and those of us who have never been there can become acquainted with a grand part of our Canadian family.

Who would believe that there are actually 75,000 educational opportunities for foreign students, but such is the case. As far back as 1956, there were 150,000 foreign students enrolled around the world in 74 countries. A survey reveals some surprising results. The figures given are those of 1956 and it is shown that up until two years ago more students were still studying the humanities. Other studies followed in order — engineering, medicine, natural sciences, social sciences and finally law. If schools have students who may be interested in study abroad they can write for "Study Abroad," one of UNESCO's best-selling publications. The seasonal custom of reporting who heard and saw the first robin is upon us again. One man told us that last Sunday he heard a robin chirping away as clearly as can be but for the life of him he couldn't see it. Down our way we have heard the crow and saw a blackbird. The sun, which is the bird's only central heater, has not been of much comfort this week but maybe the birds are philosophic and go along with the poet who wrote this weekend thought:

"The Spring comes slowly up this way.
Slowly, slowly!
A little nearer each day."

Queen Victoria School Scene Of Sparkling St. Patrick Fair

Perky Peter Rabbits with downy coats vied with sprightly little Shamrock men for attention as they cavorted along the walls and doors of Queen Victoria school last evening at the most successful St. Patrick's Fair sponsored by the Home and School Association.

Throngs of gleeful children, smiling parents, and interested friends thronged the various centres of attraction, each adorned with ropes and bows of Irish green. Outstanding among these was that of the parcel post office, the work of the kindergarten children. Here at the three wickets, mail was handed out to the callers, and nearby a truck was laden with parcels ready to be delivered. A whole street of colorful houses interspersed with tall, green trees made a pretty setting. Convening this were Mrs. Smith, Mrs. Bradley, Mrs. Rota and Mrs. Woodley.

PRETTY APRONS

On the apron booht, with its long bands of green and huge bows at each corner, a bevy of pretty aprons were in charge of Mrs. A. Lepore, and Mrs. E. Beatty. There were aprons of print with pretty floral backgrounds; some in turkey red, others in blue, and some in organdy, one of which was in blue with ruffled edge, and pocket, outlined with black metallic braid — a beauty of an apron just right for some nice get-together.

As usual the white elephant table with its multitudinous articles of jig-saw puzzles, games, silver candy dish, egg cups, animal figurines, pot holders, relish dishes, cups and saucers, fruit plaques, costume jewellery, framed pictures, tea towels, purses, books, pots African violets, and floral note paper, drew many looking for bargains. Convening these were Mrs. A. Rowbotham, Mrs. McIntosh, Mrs. Agar, Mrs. Benson, Mrs. Briscoe, Mrs. Anderson, Mrs. Andrews, Mrs. Walt, Mrs. Smith and Mrs. Clark.

The home baking room was a picture of good things where fancy cookies, delicious chocolate cakes, fancy layer cakes, jelly, relishes, apple, pumpkin and lemon pies, butterscotch squares, orange layer cakes, tea biscuits and buns, tarts of many kinds, appetizing homemade loaves of bread and nut cakes lured ready purchasers.

In charge of these delicacies were: Mesdames M. Bronson, R. Alexander, W. N. Glendenon, R. Schriver, J. Cummings, H. Overend, J. McCabe, W. Haskin, W. Hurst and D. Purdy.

LOVELY COLLEEN

Another attractive booth was that of the candles with its charming centre depicting a lovely, little Colleen in white, standing in a rose garden surrounded by a white, picket fence. For sale here were little cellophane bags of assorted creams; fudge; fondants; peanut brittle; divinity fudge; toffie; sea foam and tiny suckers, and dinner mints in white and pink. The conveners were: Mesdames E. J. Young, F. Walsh, W. McBride, J. D. Mitchell, R. Chaplin, K. Williamson, Brown and P. Scott.

A popcorn booth did a thriving business and its aroma was most alluring. Mrs. V. Smith, Mrs. R. Hamilton, Mrs. A. McCreary and Mrs. R. Morton were the busy dispensers of this.

In the basement were the various booths of soft drinks, convened by Mr. T. E. Hutton, Mr. P. G. Allan, Mr. G. Porter and Mr. W. McBride. The hot dogs, convened by Mr. and Mrs. H. Sullivan and Mr. and Mrs. W. Jones, and Mrs. D. Ridley. The ice cream booth was in charge of Mr. E. Goodfellow and Mrs. Goodfellow, Mrs. Kornblum and Mrs. Summins, all of which did "roaring" business.

OTHER ATTRACTIONS

Other attractions, which were also in the basement were the fishpond, that old standby which never grows old, and the film show which was well attended. The former was convened by Mesdames I. W. Savage, C. D. Leckie, J. Jenkinson, G. Booth, S. Mulholland, M. Morris, C. Brethour and C. K. Rodway, while the latter was in charge of Messrs. Stovell, Marner and Greene.

A tea room, decked in spots of Irish green, was a restful place with its little quartet tables, bearing out the St. Patrick motif, where weary mothers and others might enjoy a refreshing cup of tea away from "the maddening crowd." Those in charge here included: Mesdames M. Sherwood, H. Arthurs, Bateman, R. Fralick, S. Wells, Guillis, McGonigle, McCauley, G. Scott and Diamantides.

Mr. R. Stalker acted as treasurer.

A "well done" to the president of the H-S, Mrs. R. Winstanley, and to the convener, Mrs. T. E. Hutton for a sparkling and delightful "Fair."

Presbytery WA Executive Holds Meeting

On Tuesday the executive of the Hastings - Prince Edward section of the Belleville Presbytery W.A. of the United Church held a meeting in Bridge Street United Church. Nearly 60 ladies met at eleven o'clock in the ladies' parlor to hear reports of last year's work and to plan for the annual meeting to be held in May.

The meeting opened with devotions conducted by Mrs. F. Davidson, who chose as her theme, "The Work of Our Hands," taken from the 90th Psalm.

After the devotions, Mrs. J. Marsh, the president, took the chair, welcoming the ladies and expressing pleasure with the excellent attendance.

Mrs. K. Weaver, secretary, read the minutes of the executive meeting held last fall, and several items of business arising from them were discussed. The Lennox and Addington section of the Presbytery W.A. had assumed responsibility for the Hay Bay church. A collection plate had been purchased as a memorial for the late Mrs. A. Hillman, who had been a valued member of the executive for many years. This plate had been presented to Massassaga church and dedicated at a lovely ceremony during a morning service of worship.

Attention was drawn to the project of the restoration of the John Knox chapel, Geneva, Switzerland. Associations were asked to send in their contributions to the secretary, Mrs. K. Weaver, R.R. 3, Stirling.

A report on the success of the campaign for the Consecon camp was given.

After a roll call of the members of executive officers, the reports of the various committee chairmen were heard and discussed. A roll call of the member associations of Presbytery W.A. was also conducted.

At noon, a most bounteous box lunch was enjoyed by all the ladies present and a short social hour and inspection of the literature table followed.

AFTERNOON SESSION

The afternoon session started at 1.45 with Mrs. Marsh welcoming the newcomers to the meeting. Correspondence was read and suggestions and plans made for the annual meeting, with a tentative program drawn up. The meeting will be held in Picton on May 29th with registration commencing at 9.15 a.m.

Announcements were made concerning the Conference W.A. annual meeting which is to be held at Bloomfield on April 28, with Mrs. K. Rose, president of the Dominion Council W.A. as guest speaker, and also the annual meeting of Dominion Council to be in Toronto May 18 to the 23rd. Delegates to Dominion Council meeting were appointed.

A short question and answer period was conducted.

COST OF ACCIDENTS

BOSTON (AP)—Accidents cost the American people $11,800,000,000 last year, American Mutual Liability Insurance Company estimated today. The company said it reached the total by counting money estimated lost through wages not earned, medical fees and hospital expense, cost of insurance, property destroyed and manufacturing production lost.

Going Places

Take the Kids When You Travel, Dangers, Ill Effects Are Few

By SHIRLEY AND BOB SLOANE

We picked up this snatch of conversation between Claudia, our 5 ½-year-old and Jonathan, our 4-year-old, during our stay at a resort hotel:

"Jonny, if you don't start eating better, Mommy and Daddy are going to take you off the American plan."

"Ah, I don't care. I don't like the food here so much anyway. I like Chinese food."

"Well, I think the food here is marvelous, but I could go for a pizza myself once in a while."

The next morning, arising early, Claudia dressed herself and her brother, sneaked a quarter from Daddy's change on the dresser, and marched the two of them into the dining room where they ordered bacon and soft-boiled eggs for breakfast. Claudia left the quarter for a tip and block-printed her name and our room number on the check.

This is not by way of trying to show you how much smarter our kids are than yours. But it does speak something for our conviction that our having travelled with our kids since each was 3 months old has given them some grounding in self-sufficiency and the ways of the world which may come in handy in later years.

At the least it's made them sophisticated about travel itself. Most of the problems of going on the road with small children are behind us now that they are old enough to start appreciating travel. Looking back, we see no ill effects and few dangers.

Among the latter are the inevitable viruses floating around. We've been socked with them as has everyone else, at home or away. These things always seem worse far from familiar surroundings. But unless you're out in the woods someplace, bear in mind that wherever you are people live and survive.

A prescription and a shot of penicillin are as near as any physician recommended by the local medical society, which generally runs an ad in the yellow section of the telephone directory.

Sometimes laying over a day is called for, but most doctors have left it up to us, putting no bar on travel so long as the child rests comfortably in the car and the illness is uncomplicated.

Such matters, of course, should be talked out with your own doctor before you attempt to travel with the children. But if you do go with them and illness should occur, there's consolation in knowing they're in your own care instead of some one else's at home.

The biggest problems at this age revolve around the aboriginal child-transporting problem of keeping them occupied in the car.

At this age the solution seems to be in reading, 'riting, and related subjects, plus time-consuming constructive operations as the Tinkertoy-type toy, bead stringing, and the like.

Claudia is on the verge of writing words other than her name and spends long hours copying everything in sight, as well as coloring with crayons. Jonny is a little young for this sort of thing but, as in the past, the older child's enthusiasms have rubbed off on him and he gives them all a try.

There is a lot of gratuitous advice in free folders and booklets from all kinds of sources telling how to make travelling with children an angelic transport. While there are ways of making it comparatively easy and even peaceful, there are none to make it unmitigated pleasure.

Inevitably there will be the boredom and restlessness of small children, the battles of who got over on whose side and whether he stepped on her foot purposely or not. Splitting them between front and back seats helps but is not entirely safe.

We tried a couple of baskets full of favorite toys this time, but no machine gun, doll, or whining police car (a toy one, anyway) can keep children this age occupied long enough to make much difference. The writing, coloring, and building were more effective.

Sleeping is most convenient in two rooms, but most expensive too.

For what it's worth to those in the same boat, we're about halfway in the direction of producing another traveller.

What your doctor would say is your, and his, business, but ours had no objection to travelling in this condition and we could find none to pass on to him.

A stop every two hours for a few minutes was both advisable and necessary, and seemed to solve most of whatever problems cropped up at this stage.

Club Activities

AVONDALE N.A.

Mrs. Nellie Chambers was hostess to the Avondale Neighbors' Aid for the March meeting, on Wednesday afternoon. There was a good attendance with 25 members, one visitor and nine children present.

Evelyn Bird, president, opened the meeting by welcoming all.

Phyllis Hall arranged both the devotional and program in the absence of her partner, Win Cameron.

Gwen May read the Scripture taken from Psalm 40 and Phyllis read a paper on "Desolation and Comfort" and a short poem, "At the End of the Road You'll Meet God."

It was decided to give $10 to the Avondale Brownie Pack, a recently organized group in the community, to aid them in buying equipment.

A home baking sale followed with Shirley Griffith acting as the capable auctioneer.

Refreshments were served by the hostess and the lunch committee, consisting of Pat Ransomme, Marian Wallbridge, Dora Elvidge and Dorothy Brickman.

The April meeting is to be held at the home of Betty Lough on a Wednesday evening.

Readers' Saturday Column

As Conducted by Mary Moore

Question: My thanks many times over for economical ideas. I am a poor and very uninspired cook with a family of five to feed. My imagination hardly goes beyond easy, quick meat, potatoes, vegetables, eggs and cheese and milk. One trick my family love (boy 9, girl 7½, boy 4) is jellies. When I open jars or cans of fruit I always save some of the syrup. Since we have canned fruit almost once a day (sometimes it is raw of course it takes no time to save 16 ozs. Then I dissolve unflavored gelatin, possibly add sugar, dump in a handful of small marshmallows and have an almost free dessert. Part of the fun is that the family must guess all the various juices. Sometimes I color it which usually stumps them. If among the juices there are any containing Vitamin C, I never heat that portion for the dissolving of the gelatin. I seldom add water; sometimes add the last sticky spoonful of jam or jelly, often have a piece or two of fruit, sometimes add gumdrops or jelly beans for fun. Visitors (we have many for I am clergyman's wife) are served this as well. They usually enjoy it and often take seconds . . . What I wrote for is a recipe for crumpets — nice fat yeast ones . . . I love them and as we have many visitors I feel they would be an economical treat . . . I feed family and friends on $20.00 a week. This sum includes huge amounts of milk, 2 dozen eggs, 1 pound of cheese, meat (hamburg mostly, vegetables and some raw fruits, soap and cleansers. I did a lot of canning last fall so most fruit we have eaten so far since then has been from that. Most milk is skim milk; powder for puddings only. We use a lot of prunes . . . I have an electric frying pan which I would use for the crumpets; What temperature? Covered or open? . . .Mrs. M. G.

Answer I disagree. You are not a poor and uninspired cook. But do please write for the cookbook "Let's Cook It Right" to Nutrition Section, Ontario Department of Agriculture, Parliament Buildings, Toronto. No charge. It will set you off on a new scheme of menus entirely give your economical cooking a real lift. You need a heavy aluminum griddle (or frying pan — not electric) and crumpet rings (or greased jar rings) for:

ENGLISH CRUMPETS

(Fat and yeasty): ¼ cup cooked potato mashed smooth, ½ cup lukewarm water, 1½ cups boiling water, 1 or 2 packages granular yeast, 1 teaspoon each salt and sugar, 2 cups unsifted all-purpose flour. Add sugar to lukewarm water, sprinkle yeast on top. Let stand 5 minutes. Stir. Let boiling water cool to lukewarm, add potatoes and foamy yeast. (Amount of yeast required depends on how fast and hole-y you want your crumpets. Eleanor says for a minister's wife you will want them pretty holy). Stir. Add flour and salt and beat 2 minutes. Let rise 3 times for 30 minutes each. After each rising beat three minutes. This beating makes the large holes characteristic of crumpets. After the last beating they are baked at once. Have ready hot greased griddle with greased 3½" crumpet rings on it. Pour batter into ⅓-inch depth. Bake at 300 degs. Fahr. about 20 to 25 minutes. Some cooks turn them over to brown top a bit —others say "never turn crumpets". Cool. To serve, toast and serve hot with butter.

Moira Dunbar Actress Turned Geographer

By CAROLYN WILLET
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—Moira Dunbar — actress turned geographer — says she always has gone in for "switches."

The trim, attractive geographer for the Defence Research Board now plays a leading role in basic research in Canada's Arctic.

She's an ice expert and co-author of Arctic Canada From the Air, an official handbook on the Arctic.

Edinburgh-born Miss Dunbar, with her discerning blue eyes on aerial photographs of Arctic waters, also prompted a renewed—and successful — search for a more southerly Northwest Passage.

SEVEN YEARS ON STAGE

Of her seven years in professional theatre in England, 39-year-old Miss Dunbar said in an interview that she enjoyed the stage but was glad to give up a "hazardous profession."

Working in Ottawa as a geographer since 1947, her acting, with amateur groups, now is an extra-curricular activity.

From the stage, she went to Oxford to study German and then startled professors by switching to geography.

"I've always gone in for switches," she says with a chuckle.

"I didn't know anything about the Arctic until I came to Canada."

It was "just by chance" that she became an ice expert in DRB's geophysics research, section.

PLOTTED ARCTIC ICE

She has travelled into Arctic waters to plot the amount and type of ice northern navigators may encounter.

In 1955, she was the only woman aboard the department of transport icebreaker D'Iberville on a trip to Eureka, an isolated spot on northern Ellesmere Island in the eastern Arctic. Heavy sea ice prevented the ship from reaching its destination.

In the man-sized, joint Canada-United States search for the most southern large-ship route through Arctic islands, it was Miss Dunbar's study of photos that showed thick ice islands west of Bellot Strait, a key link in the Northwest Passage.

The ice islands could float only in deep-water areas. International explorers decided a new look for a passage was feasible.

NEW PASSAGE

Last August the Labrador, then the navy's northern patrol ship, proved Bellot Strait as a deep-sea ship passage and defined a new, profitable trans-Arctic waterway.

As an author, Miss Dunbar spent three "fascinating" years working on Arctic Canada From the Air. Co-author was Wing Cmdr. Keith Greenaway of Ottawa.

The book, already becoming the bible of agencies and individuals operating in the Arctic, includes photographs, technical information and Arctic history.

"History," says Miss Dunbar, "is another hobby."

Cooking isn't.

"In a mild way, I enjoy cooking—if it doesn't take too long," she says.

Stories of Famous Hymns

by HORACE B POWELL

"GOD, THE OMNIPOTENT!"

God, the Omnipotent! Thou who ordainest
Thunder Thy clarion, and lightning Thy sword:
Show forth Thy pity on high where Thou reignest:
Give to us peace in our time, O Lord.

God, the Omnipotent! mighty Avenger,
Watching invisible, judging unheard;
Save us in mercy, O save us from danger;
Give to us peace in our time, O Lord.

God, the All-Merciful earth hath forsaken
Thy ways all holy, and slighted Thy word
Let not Thy wrath in its terror awaken
Give to us pardon and peace, O Lord.

So will Thy people, with thankful devotion,
Praise Him who saved them from peril and sword,
Shouting in chorus from ocean to ocean,
Peace to the nations, and praise to the Lord.

Most always, when hymns are being written, the words come first, the music later.

But in this vigorous hymn for peace, turned out just 100 years ago by Henry Fothergill Chorley, English editor and author, it was the music that inspired the message.

Today, in most hymnals, the tune bears the title: "Russian Hymn". It was composed for the national hymn of Russia by Alexis T. Lwoff, a distinguished and talented young Russian musician who, returning home very late one night in 1833, was moved to go to work at his piano. In a very little while his composition was finished and when, a few days later, both hymn and music were offered by a choir and orchestra for the Czar and Czarina in the Court Chapel, the royal listeners were much impressed.

Nine years later, Mr. Chorley who was serving on the editorial staff of the Athenaeum in London became fascinated by Lwoff's music and turned out for it the words of the hymn which all Christendom sings today.

Days and Customs of All Faiths

Weekend of Family Reunions

By DR. HOWARD V. HARPER

Sunday, March 16 — Today, the fourth Sunday in Lent, was known in medieval times as Mothering Sunday. It was on this mid-Lent weekend that young people living away from home made a special effort to visit their parents. The observance is now being revived in England and introduced into the United States, especially in the Episcopal Church. Family reunions are never out of date.

In the Middle Ages it was customary to take home a gift to Mother at this time. Mother, in turn, was expected to provide a special delicacy known as a "simnel" cake.

This cake, according to old recipes, was a fruit pudding encased in an outer covering of hard dough. The thought of it must have kept many a young man from going home. Nevertheless it became the dietary symbol of Mothering Sunday, just as the hot cross bun stands for Good Friday.

There is a perfectly ridiculous legend about how the simnel cake originated and how it got its name. The story is that an old couple, whose names were Simon and Nellie, found themselves on the eve of Mothering Sunday with nothing in the house to feed their children, who were expected home the next day.

A diligent search turned up only two items: the remnant of their Christmas pudding and some "Lenten" dough that was being saved for the Good Friday unleavened bread. Deciding, for some unfathomable reason, to combine the two, they wrapped the dough around the pudding.

Then followed a most awful row about how to cook the thing. Simon said it was a pudding and should be boiled. Nellie replied that the meanest intelligence could see it was dough and should be baked.

After a pretty violent time they became ashamed of themselves and compromised by first boiling and then baking it. And that is what a simnel cake was and still is — a pudding inside a layer of dough, boiled and baked.

The name, of course, is a combination of the first syllables of the names of this villainous couple — Simon and Nellie.

ONE GREAT HOUR

Also Sunday — Today in thousands of American churches there will be special services and a special offering in observance of an annual event known as one great hour of sharing. The purpose is to raise, in one morning, the sum of $10,400,000. The "sharing" is a sharing of this money and the benefits it will buy with the distressed people of more than 50 countries around the world.

Church World Service, sponsor of one great hour, ministers to overseas areas in two ways. They provide emergency relief and reconstruction in places struck by natural disasters such as earthquake and flood, and they maintain continuing programs of health and education in countries unable to support such programs themselves.

A MAN OF MIRACLES

Monday, March 17 — The great Patrick of Ireland was a man of miracles. His life was full of them. Everyone knows how he miraculously drove the snakes out of Ireland, but here are some miracles not so well known.

His call to go to Ireland in the first place was a supernatural one. As Patrick slept, a man in white robes appeared to him in a dream and handed him a letter on which was written "The Voice of Ireland." At the same time many voices cried "Come, holy boy. Come over and help us." (You might like to compare this with St. Paul's dream in Acts, chapter 16, in which a man of Macedonia appeals to him to come to that country.)

In Ireland Patrick had constant trouble with the Druids (pagan priests) because his tremendous missionary work was putting them out of business. They enlisted the King's help in a plot to kill the Christian interloper. Soldiers were sent to lie in ambush at a point where Patrick and his priests were sure to come by and to kill the entire party. But they had to return to the King and report failure. "Save for a company of deer, no living thing came by," they said. The deer, of course, were Patrick and his group.

Patrick was less direct but much more efficient on his side of the contest. He did not make a frontal attack on the Druids themselves. All he did was to curse their fields, so that they turned into swamps; their rivers, so that they produced no fish; and their kettles, so that they would not boil. The only thing the Druids could do was to get out.

One of the most spectacular miracles the great man ever performed happened one snowy morning after Patrick and his men had been forced to take refuge for the night in a cave. When they wakened in the morning, their fire was out, it was bitter cold, and they could neither cook nor warm themselves.

With his customary poise Patrick ordered them to make a great snowball. When it was done, he breathed on it and it burst into flame.

GOOD MANNERS

By Mrs. Beeckman

THIS ITEM NOT THE RESPONSIBILITY OF GROOM'S FATHER

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My son, who was married yesterday afternoon, completely amazed me by saying yesterday morning that his father should have made himself responsible for the bill for the champagne and other drinks to be served at the reception following the ceremony, and that since his father hadn't done what he should have done about assuming the responsibility, he himself had taken over this responsibility. This confused us, and deeply hurt us, for my husband and I both thought we had informed ourselves completely on the subject of wedding etiquet and had carefully followed your advice in your column "Who pays what wedding expenses?" Am I wrong in believing that all costs of the reception are borne by the bride's family?
— Groom's Mother

You are indeed entirely right in believing that all costs of the wedding reception are the responsibility of the bride's family. The fundamental idea is that the bride's parents are the hosts of the wedding and reception, and as hosts they naturally should assume all expenses of the hospitality. On the other hand, you and your husband, parents of the groom, are the guests of honor, and naturally the guests of honor are not expected to pay for any items of the hospitality. Of course if you son wishes to offer to supply the champagne and other drinkables, it was his privilege . . but not his responsibility . . . to do this. However, he had absolutely no right to say that the groom's father should assume this responsibility.

Swedish People Thinking of Coming Here

By MARGARET FRANCIS

STOCKHOLM (CP) — A pretty blonde Swedish nurse apologized for her English, then asked timidly "What is Canada really like?"

"I am engaged to an engineering student at university. We think we might want to go to Canada after we're married. Would there be opportunities—for us?"

This is typical of the questions asked on phone calls and personal visits by Swedish people who talk to Canadian Ambassador Jean Chapdelaine and his staff.

Most of the inquirers don't follow through.

100 A MONTH

Immigration to Canada from Sweden in 1957 averaged about 100 a month. In 1956, 800 persons out of a population of 7,000,000 went to Canada from this country.

Canadians in Sweden agree that Swedes with their efficiency, high technical skills, their industry and excellent health would make ideal Canadian immigrants. The two countries have similar industries such as lumbering, fishing and mining as well as similar physical characterstics and climate.

The Swedish welfare state is the reason for their reluctance to emigrate. The generous family allowances, socialized medicine, security for older people, subsidized housing and state nurseries that enable wives to work, provide the average Swedish family with something they are afraid to leave.

"They have a safe future and one of the world's highest standards of living," said a representative of the Canadian immigration service. "The majority of the Swedish people won't gamble what they have here for the possibilities in Canada."

There are however, some notable exceptions: Young professional men looking for greater opportunities, executives who have reached a comparatively high income bracket, the small industrialist.

On a train between industrial Linkoping and Stockholm, the middle-aged executive of a large company had many questions.

"To live as I want," he explained, "I have to get out of Sweden before it is too late to start somewhere else. I don't know whether to choose Canada or South America."

The owner of a small, prosperous manufacturing firm joined the discussion. He said that life was good in Sweden, for the wage earner whose security is assured.

But the small industrialist frets under state regulation of industry and high income taxes. The welfare state costs money, with 25 per cent of the national budget going to social security.

The average wage-earner, it is estimated—no matter what his income—gets back from the welfare state each year in benefits, excluding family allowances and old age pensions, between 500 and 600 crowns or $100 to $120.

Living costs in Sweden are much lower than in Canada and when the earner has reached the equivalent of $200 a month — a good salary—he pays from 20 to 25 per cent in taxes. At $9,000 a year he will keep between four- and five-ninths of what he earns.

Finnish people apparently feel differently. The Canadian Embassy in Sweden maintains a mission in Helsinki. In the last 10 months of 1957 more than 7,000 Finns, including many bush workers, emigrated to Canada.

"It will increase next year," said a Canadian immigration official. "One satisfied immigrant s our best recruiter and will bring in 50 applicants."

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

Editor's Note: The Family Council consists of a judge, psychiatrist, three clergymen, a newspaper editor, a women editor and two writers. Each article is a summary of an actu case history. The Council reports on problems that have bee dealt with by responsible agencies and counsellors.

Ellen J. — I don't want to wait any longer.

Warren L. — I want to be free of debt.

• • •

Ellen J. — I am 24 and have been going with a man of 30 for the past three years. We wanted very much to marry shortly after we met, but one thing or another interfered.

There were illnesses and deaths in both our families and naturally we couldn't help putting off our plans because of that. But now I don't want to wait any longer and Warren says he isn't yet ready because of his debts.

I am perfectly willing to work as long as necessary after our marriage, but Warren says it wouldn't be fair to me. It seems more unfair this way.

• • •

Warren L. — Ellen just doesn't understand a man's feelings. At 30 years of age a man should be able to marry and support a wife and family. He doesn't want his wife working to pay off his debts.

We are very much in love and I had looked forward to giving Ellen the best of everything. Now we would be starting with less than nothing. That may be all right for a young couple, but it certainly isn't for me.

I figure I should have my debts paid off within the next two years. We would then be able to have smooth sailing ahead.

The Council: Is Warren posi that there will be "smooth ing ahead" at the end of years? How can he be when knows so well the many th that can come up to make t water choppy. If everyone wa for ideal circumstances to ma marriage would be the excep rather than the rule in o society.

Warren seems to overlook fact that Ellen will be work anyway during the two-year ied he gives himself to pay off debts. She will work and won't enjoy any of the secu or pleasure of married life. this the big favor he is doing the woman he loves so much?

Although she doesn't exp some of the things on h mind, Ellen is aware that w people are very eager to mar they do so, regardless of mo troubles, illness, death or any stacles. Postponements are so times made, but when one th after another seems to be int fering with a marriage, it is sign that the relationship is a li rocky.

Warren should try to be m honest with himself and Ell Does he really want this m riage? If so, it is time it t place. If not, he should not t up any more of this you woman's time.

Many Children Are Caught On Outer Fringes of Life

By MARY FRAN BURKE
Canadian Press Staf Writer

TORONTO (CP) — To a child, survival isn't enough. To exist on the outer fringes of life, to be hungry, to be caught in the midst of chaos, alone and afraid—this is the fate of many of the world's children.

And one that the Canadian Save the Children Fund has striven to remedy for the past 38 years, says Mrs. Kenneth Knox of Toronto, national executive secretary of the CSCF.

"We are working with field teams of dedicated men and women — doctors, nurses and administrators — in various countries to bring shelter, food, medicine, love and life itself to children," said Mrs. Knox.

Children in Korea need food, a place to sleep and medicine.

Youngsters in Greece need schools and shoes to wear. Italian mothers, she said, clamor for the rudiments of baby care while refugees in Austria need shelter and supervision.

"Children everywhere are in want of clothing," Mrs. Knox stressed in an interview. "In Korea, there are 100,000 homeless children with some 6,000 to 7,000 still sleeping in the streets. In addition, 53 per cent of them are infected with tuberculosis.

"Our aim is to help children without regard to race, creed or color, by also sending canned baby food, pablum, powdered milk, sugar and shoes."

One of CSCF's main projects to date is building a new nu ery demonstration centre in Italian town of Tricarcio to opened in uly. The building include a mothers advice cen a clinic for infants and toddl and a kindergarten. The cost $13,000 for the building and 000 for equipment. Canad school children and youth gro now are raising the money the equipment.

Mrs. Knox explained that CSCF is affiliated with the S the Children Fund, a unive organization which was foun in England.

MANY PROJECTS

Outlining some of the w CSCF has done, Mrs. Knox s 426 boxes of used clothing sent to Korea in 1957. In Gree kitchens have been set up to f children daily, as well as mo farms which function as "p terns" for the Greeks to foll

"We also have a child spons ship program," she said. Sp sors know the name of the ch they help, see his picture write to him. The plan provi extras such as food, clothi medicine and medical treatm and often it makes schooling p sible. Cost is $50 a year. From T. H.: "Except for the fact that it wastes gas, why is an overrich choke called harmful?"

(A) During engine warm-up, an verrich choke causes some raw asoline to wash down cylinder alls, taking the protective oil lm with it. Abnormal wear dur these minutes, plus dilution engine oil, results.

D. W. asks: "How would a bad tail pipe affect gasoline consumption?"

(A) In two ways: If clogged or restricted, it handicaps the engine and hurts gas mileage by causing too much back pressure. A hole in the tail pipe can direct exhaust gases against the gas tank and result in some fuel evaporation.

The Week's News

By JOSEPH MacSWEEN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The tropical peace of Sumatra was shattered by ground fighting and air attacks as Indonesian government soldiers battled rebel forces.

The ground fight finally erupted after a series of air strikes on rebel installations on Sumatra and a few other outer islands of the shaky young republic.

The central government at Java—with the volatile President Sukarno in charge—sent paratroops against the Sumatra rebels, and their first main objective was the $125,000,000 oil property of a United States-owned company.

Sukarno claimed victory in the first round and denounced the rebels, who had demanded that the president oust Communists from his government.

The capture of the big oil field —and the neighboring city of Pakanbaru, with a population of 50,000—would put Sukarno well on the way to toppling the power of the rebel government established a month ago.

MANILA TALKS

While the fight went on in Indonesia—which is spread like stepping stones between Australia and Malaya—SEATO foreign ministers met in Manila to discuss ways of combatting communism.

The ministers — representing the Philippines, Pakistan, Thailand, Australia, the United States, France, New Zealand and Britain—ended their talks with a sharp blast against "neutralist" governments.

Particular danger arises from "some non-Communist governments failing to distinguish between the aims and ideals of the Free World and the purposes of international communism," a communique said.

SEATO decided on closer association with NATO, and also on increased emphasis on economic matters.

WESTERN SUMMIT

President Eisenhower and Prime Minister Macmillan announced that they will hold a summit meeting of their own—before a possible summit meeting between East and West.

Macmillan will deliver the commencement address at DePaus University at Greencastle, Ind., June 8, then visit Washington for talks with Eisenhower and State Secretary Dulles June 9-10.

They last met in Paris in December at the NATO conference there.

BLUENOSE SUMMIT

The Christian Science Monitor came out with a copyrighted story from the United Nations saying UN sources are predicting the long-heralded summit meeting between Nikita Khrushchev and Western leaders will be held in Nova Scotia...... ....

Prime Minister Diefenbaker, taking note of this in the midst of his election campaign, reported that his invitation to the big powers to hold a summit meeting in Canada still stands.

But he had heard nothing about it being accepted, he added.

BOMB DROPPED

A United States Air Force B-47 committed the nuclear boo-boo near Florence, S.C., but the bomb wasn't fitted with the warhead that would have blown the city of 30,000 off the map.

There was no nuclear explosion but TNT—which would trigger an atom blast in a wartime attack—blasted a big hole, damaging six houses and a church.

The thret of possible radioactive contamination in the immediate area was raised, but it was announced after a check that there was no radiation danger.

QUEEN'S RETURN

Queen Mother Elizbeth flew home to London after completing the first round-the-world air tour by a member of the Royal Family, a six-week journey that took her to Canada, Australia and New Zealand.

She was welcomed at London Airport by Queen Elizabeth and Princess Margaret, and by her granddaughter, Princess Anne, 7. Prince Charles, 9, was at school and his father, Prince Philip, was visiting West Germany.

BUTLER'S JOB

Queen Elizabeth appointed a Canadian, Esmond Butler, as the first person from outside the United Kingdom to become a member of her staff.

Butler, assistant to the secretary of Governor-General Massey, becomes the Queen's assistant press secretary March 18.

It is understood the Queen considered for some time naming a Canadian to her staff and during her visit last October she asked the governor-general whether he would let Butler leave.

In his new capacity, Butler will act as liaison officer with the Canadian government on preparations for the visits of the Queen next year and Princess Margaret this coming summer.

SHOWMEN SCORE

Canadian comedians Johnny Wayne and Frank Shuster made television hstory when they won a one-year contract to appear on Ed Sullivan's CBS network show, starting May 4.

"This is the first time I've ever been so sold on the potentials of an act that I've contracted for a year," said Sullivan.

Wayne said the comedy pair will continue to live in Toronto and fly to New York for appearances.

Don't tell Carmella Pasut that dreams — terrible dreams—never come true.

The 29-year-old Italian woman arrived by train with her two children at Oakville, Ont., glowing with excitement at the thought of rejoining her husband, who came to Canada earlier to build a new life for his family.

Mrs. Pasut and the children, Lilliano, 9, and Alessandro, 7, travelled by ship via New York from Italy, taking it easy because she suffers from a weak heart.

It fell to a priest to tell her the dread news: her husband fell to his death from a bridge while his family was at sea.

BULLETINS FROM BIRDLAND

By WINIFRED E. WILSON

SYMBOL OF HAPPINESS

Bluebirds, symbol of happiness! Poets of old, entranced by the radiance of their bright blue wings, sang their praises. How shocked these poets would be to learn that there is actually no blue pigment in a bluebird's plumage If we take one of the feathers and crush it up we get not a blue, but a dark, almost black powder.

However, be that as it may, when the direct rays of the sun fall on the male bluebird's coat, the brilliance of the blue is indescribable — and that was the theme of the poets' songs. Scientists cannot spoil our pleasure in the sight. Seen in a good light though not in full sunshine, the blue is a lovely shade — not quite sky blue. Seen against the light, no blue at all is visible.

The coming of bluebirds is a sign that Old Man Winter's back has been broken. They are among the very earliest songbirds to return to Canada, and we welcome them with joy — that is, if we get a chance to welcome them at all. Sad to say, many Canadians acknowledge quite frankly that they have never seen that intense blue; others admit that they have never identified a bluebird. What a tragedy!

Civilization has hindered the spread of these gentle, soft spoken birds with the querulous call. Holes in old stumps, particularly in ancient apple trees, and cavities in old fence posts used to be favourite nesting spots. Now sick trees are healed by filling up the hollow limbs with cement, or they are cut right down. Metal fences have taken the place of the wooden ones. Then crevices about our buildings interested the bluebirds. For some years now none are available; the English sparrows and starlings, both year long residents, take over all cracks.

Fortunately, however, bluebirds are willing to accept our hospitality and use small homes made on purpose for them. It is a good thing that they begin housekeeping before house wrens arrive, because these little villains cheerfully grab any bird house they find, no matter how large, and stuff up the doorway with twigs so that nothing larger than themselves can enter. But having acquired a home, the bluebirds' difficulties are not over. They are certainly not pugilists, and are easily ousted by wrens, house sparrows, or starlings.

Like young robins, bluebird babies show their thrush ancestry by having spotted breasts. When these spots clear away the pinky bibs appear, and their coats take on that heavenly blue.

M.J. Coldwell Will Undergo Medical Check

OTTAWA (CP) — CCF Leader Coldwell is scheduled to undergo a medical examination here today.

He will be examined by Dr. T. L. Fisher, Ottawa heart specialist, an official at CCF headquarters said.

Dr. Fisher was Mr. Coldwell's physician when he suffered a mild heart attack before last June's election. The CCF leader's election campaign in 1957 was curtailed.

Mr. Coldwell, 69, returned to Ottawa by air Friday after a series of meetings in Western Canada. He said the meetings and the long hours on the road had tired him.

Results of the physical examination likely will determine extent of Mr. Coldwell's electioneering during the remainder of the campaign. Election day is March 31.

WILL SUBSTITUTE

Stanley Knowles, deputy CCF leader, will substitute for Mr. Coldwell at an election meeting Monday at Port Arthur.

A speaking engagement by Mr. Coldwell at Montreal Friday night had been cancelled previousy.

The CCF eader is scheduled tc speak at Oshawa Tuesday and at Hamilton Wednesday.

CCF headquarters here said a decision will be made after the medical examination on whether Mr Coldwell will keep the Oshawa appointment. If he did not resume his tour Tuesday, it was hoped he would return to his speaking schedule Wednesday.

URGES MOVE TO CANADA

STOCKPORT, Eng. (Reuters)—A leading British industrialist recommends emigration to Canada. Sir Roy Dobson, managing director of the A. V. Roe Aircraft Company, Monday told businessmen here: "If I were 20 years or 30 years younger I would go to Canada." He is 66.

Pearson Favors Commonwealth Economic Parley

FREDERICTON (CP) — Lester B. Pearson Friday night told a capacity audience that he is all for a Commonwealth economic conference if this will help knit the Commonwealth closer together.

The Liberal leader addressed an audience of more than 1,000 persons in a high school auditorium.

It was another rugged day for the Liberal leader. He flew into Saint John, N.B., from Halifax, moved swiftly by motorcade westward along a 90-mile stretch of the Bay of Fundy to the United States border and then back again to fill a television engagement at Saint John. Then he flew north to Fredericton for the evening rally.

The rally ended shortly after 10 p.m. AST so that, as Mr. Pearson said, his supporters could see and hear a televised and broadcast fight in New York between Yvon Durelle, New Brunswick's fighting fisherman, and Tony Anthony who scored a seventh round TKO.

Mr. Pearson listened to a broadcast of the fight after sending Durelle a telegram of encouragement.

During the day, the Liberal leader touched on Conservative defence, trade and employment policies, labelling Prime Minister Diefenbaker's $1,185,000,000 works program "boondoggling with bulldozers."

Hopes Report Will Justify Gas Export

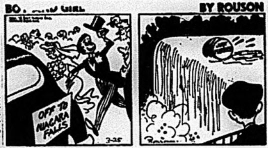
CALGARY (CP) — Prime Minister Diefenbaker says he hopes the report of the Borden commission on energy resources will justify the export of western Canadian natural gas.

The prime minister told an election meeting Friday night the Progressive Conservative government will not hold up export of gas if it is returned to power in the March 31 election—provided the commission's report justifies export of gas.

Mr. Diefenbaker spoke to an audience of about 2,300 in a 2,500-seat high school auditorium before leaving Calgary for an afternoon reception at Regina today and a public address in Moose Jaw tonight.

It is "unrealistic and false to suggest that we have in any way delayed the export of natural gas," he told the meeting at which he ran into some persistent heckling from two or three men in distant bleacher seats.

No gas pipeline company had yet reached a position where it could apply for a federal export permit, he added. The Borden commission had been asked to make an interim report as soon as possible on gas exports.



Madoc Blues Blank Marmora 3-0 In 3rd Game Intermediate Finals

MADOC (Special) — Madoc Blue-and-Whites took a 2-1 lead in their OHA Intermediate "C" group finals in Marmora last night by blanking the Millionaires 3-0.

This was Madoc's home game but was played in Marmora because of poor ice in the former village. The fourth game of the four-of-seven series was slated for Monday night but has been postponed until Wednesday in Marmora.

Reeve Fred M. Rutherford of Campbellford has donated a trophy, which will go to the group winner in annual competition. This will be known as the "Rutherford Trophy".

The winner of the Marmora-Madoc series will advance into OHA intermediate "C" playdowns and will meet the winner between Minden and Huntsville in the opening round.

Madoc scored one goal per period last night while Bobby Beare in the winner's nets played a sensational game to earn his shutout. Killian in the Marmora nets also turned in a top performance.

Playing coach Alex MacLellan netted Madoc's initial goal at the 14.03 mark of the opening heat. Glen Nickle made it 2-0 at 8.53 of the second while Jud Semark bagged his club's final goal midway through the third to subdue any Marmora hope for victory.

The game was one of the best of the season with 1,000 fans in attendance to cheer the evenly matched clubs.

Referees Stan Scrutton and Bill Reason of Kingston handed out ten minor penalties, half of these coming in the opening period. Madoc drew eight of that total but Beare's fine goalkeeping prevented Marmora from taking advantage of the extra manpower.

Palmer assisted on all three goals, scored by MacLellan, G. Nickle and Semark. "Nobber" Day had two assists and Fred Nickle one.

Madoc, MacLellan (Day, Palmer) 14.03

Would Widen Metro Powers

TORONTO (CP) — All the powers now vested in Toronto board of control should be transferred to the Metropolitan Toronto executive committee, said a report tabled Friday in the legislature.

It also said provision should be made for the possibility of amalgamation of two or more of the Toronto suburbs or for redivision of Toronto's wards.

The recommendations were part of an interim report by a five-man committee studying the Metropolitan form of government. The committee, appointed in January, 1957, is headed by Lorne Cumming, chairman of the Ontario municipal board.

The Kremlin charged that President Eisenhower, by proposing control of outer space, was seeking to "deflect Soviet nuclear retaliation from U.S. territory to U.S. bases on foreign territory."

The statement followed Friday night's speech by Nikita Khrushchev warning that Russia would block anew any Western attempt to tamper with Eastern Europe.

THIS EASTER SHOP IN THE "Friendly City" BELLEVILLE

There are many reasons why it's smart to shop in Belleville . . .
Most important, of course, are the "DIVIDENDS" you earn when you patronize your local merchants . . . .
By shopping at home you are saving in dollars and time and helping to establish a better community . . . .

1 Yes, you are actually doing your part in building and bettering your own home community . . . BECAUSE . . . a part of every dollar you spend with your local merchants goes toward the improvements necessary in any community. The taxes your local merchant must pay go into the building of better parks, schools, employment and enjoyment centres . . . so do your civic duty . . . and do yourself a favor . . . by buying in Belleville . . .

2 "A ROLLING STONE GATHERS NO MOSS" . . . and a travelling shopper actually takes a loss . . . when counting up the money spent on gas or bus fare . . . the time lost in looking in a strange and far-away shopping place . . . and the inconveniences when shopping away from home. The stores in your own community are devoting their time and effort toward making your buying more beneficial. Shopping with your local merchants is "visiting with your neighbors" . . . DON'T ROAM! SHOP AT HOME!"

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By Geo. H. Carver, Sports Editor

We have sat on the spacious lawn and in the well-appointed cottage of Larry Eggert at Rossmore many times. Larry, who gets his mail in Detroit or Florida, depending on which time of year you write him, will be seen with son-in-law Truman Cullen near the Detroit Red Wings' players bench each and every night they play in Olympia.

On not a few occasions we have "black-snaked" in warm spring air across the bay talking with Larry, watching pretty grand-daughter Pamela water-ski, or dance, Mike Phillips feeding "dat damma kitty" and assorted Red Wings enjoying the balmy breezes of the Bay of Quinte.

"Red" Kelly, Gordie Howe, Marty Pavolich, Johnny Wilson and others of the Jolly Jawn Adams faithful have enjoyed the Eggert hospitality. Larry loves to have the boys around, so does his family. The late Carson Cooper dropped in whenever he was down this way.

A short cut to oblivion, or nearly that, is to utter "treason" against the Red Wings on the Eggert lawn. The family while admitting other National League clubs have a right to existence, but little more, are Red Wings to the core. Nobody is going to say or do anything detrimental to their beloved Detroiters while the Eggerts, et al. are in earshot. No sirree!

So it did not come as too much of a surprise when we learned that the fans who said Referee Red Storey warned Canadiens Doug Harvey that Forbes Kennedy was about to hit him from behind in that Wings-Habs game, were none other than Larry, Truman and a friend Jack Kozma.

Said Truman: "Harvey had the puck at the boards and wasn't aware of Kennedy coming at him from behind the net. Storey shouted 'Careful Doug, look out,' and Harvey immediately shot the puck forward over the blue line and Kennedy swerved away."

"I'm a little surprised to hear Clarence Campbell, the National Hockey League president, dismiss as 'stupid' and 'a typical fan story' any suggestion that Referee Red Storey warned Doug Harvey in Sunday's game. In the first place I haven't heard from Campbell, nor has Larry Eggert or Jack Kozma. Nor have we given any affidavits to Jack Adams, though we volunteered to do so." said Truman.

"However, I understand Campbell says he has talked to Storey and his explanation is that Storey merely warned Harvey as a matter of self-preservation.

"These are not the facts. He has one side of the story. What did he expect Storey to say? Isn't he interested in the other side? For one who has worked so hard to keep the name of hockey clean, why not get the facts? Why leave any basis for suspicion on his officials?

"There are three of us who volunteered the information to Jack Adams because we thought Storey's action was unfair to the Red Wings. We're not the only witnesses who heard it. I've already talked to four others who saw and heard what we did.

"Storey wasn't in any danger of a collision with Harvey when Storey jumped up on the fence in front of us. He had jumped up, as officials do many times, to keep from any interference in case a clearance shot is made along the boards.

"I've attended games for years. I think I know more about hockey than the average spectator. I wouldn't make such a statement if I weren't completely certain in my own mind of what I saw and heard.

"I've even heard opposing players, who once were teammates, utter a word of warning a second before they hit them, in order to give them an opportunity to prepare for the shock, to relax a little. That's why I insist Storey's utterance was one of warning to keep Forbes Kennedy from surprising Harvey."

Knowing Truman as we do, that's a pretty long speech for the tall, good-looking guy from the banks of the Detroit River. Up here he seldom talks hockey, seems more interested in the welfare of his Red Wing and other guests and is an all-round fine fellow.

However, the above incident is history now, and nothing came of it, but you'll never convince Truman that Mr. Storey uttered the warning for Mr. Storey's sake.

Oh well, it should make interesting conversation on Larry's lawn come spring after Mike Phillips issues the familiar invitation, "C'mon over to mya house," and "Red" Kelly starts his summer dancing lessons on the Eggert greensward.

Haney Has Recipe for Flag, Yankees Snap Out of Slump

NEW YORK (AP)—Milwaukee manager Fred Haney has added some new ingredients to a pitching recipe that helped carry the Braves to their first world championship last season.

The recipe: Take starting pitchers Warren Spahn, Lew Burdette, Bob Buhl and Gene Conley. . .sprinkle with fine relievers, Don McMahon and Ernie Johnson . . . add some exceptional youngsters, Juan Pizarro, Carelton Willey, Bob Trowbridge and Joey Jay. . .and sweeten with some components obtained from Chicago Cubs, Bob Rush and Don Kaiser.

Rush gave up only one hit Friday in three scoreless innings as the Braves trounced Philadelphia Phillies 8-1. Spahn also worked three scoreless frames while Pizarro yielded the Phils' only tally on a home run by Harry Anderson.

St. Louis Cardinals, another National League contender, turned back Pittsburgh Pirates 8-5. Joe Cunningham had four runs batted in for the Cards.

New York Yankees got help from Bill Skowron, Hank Bauer and Gil McDougald to defeat Cincinnati Redlegs 5-1. Don Larsen allowed only two singles in a five-inning stint.

In other games, Chicago White Sox beat the Los Angeles Dodgers 3-1, San Francisco Giants trimmed Cleveland 7 - 2; Detroit beat Boston 11-8; Baltimore nipped the Cubs 7-6 and Kansas City defeated Washington 5-1.

Referee Stops Bout in 7th When Canuck 'Off Balance'; Clamors for Another Bout

By JOE MacSWEEN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

NEW YORK (CP) — Yvon Durelle today called for a return match with New York's Tony Anthony, who battered the Canadian to a seventh-round technical knockout in Madison Square Garden Friday night.

Durelle was walloped to defeat but not to submission in the lusty brawl that saw both fighters come off the canvas—Anthony in the first round. Durelle went down in the sixth, swinging even as he fell.

The fighting fisherman from Baie Ste. Anne, N.B., took a boxing lesson and a series of lethal barrages from the classy New York Negro.

Durelle's hopes for a light heavyweight title bout against Archie Moore were shattered but he was still looking for action.

"JUST OFF BALANCE"

He said referee Ruby Goldstein shouldn't have stopped the fight when he did—at 31 seconds of the seventh round—"I was just a little off balance."

His manager, Chris Shaban of Moncton, N.B., said at their hotel following the fight that he and the fighter both are eager for a return match against Anthony.

"I have an offer of a return match from the International Boxing Club," said Shaban. "But I want it for Montreal. I think they may have New York in mind."

To further add to the confusion, Anthony said following the brawl that he plans on entering the heavyweight division and seeking a match with champion Floyd Patterson.

There also are tentative plans for Durelle to enter the heavyweight ranks by fighting Toronto's George Chuvalo at Ottawa in a 12-rounder April 22.

"But we'd like to get Anthony before meeting Chuvalo," said Shaban, who also indicated that another fight, at Montreal against Yolande Pompey, also still is in the works.

Anthony, 23, and weighing 173¾ was ranked No. 3 among light heavyweight contenders when he entered the ring against Durelle, 28, weighing 176. Durelle was ranked No. 2, behind Philadelphia's Harold Johnson.

DURELLE UNHAPPY

Durelle, nursing a swollen right eye in the dressing room following the match, complained about the referee's action in stopping the fight, but Shaban indicated then there would be no protest.

Durelle held Anthony to a draw nine months ago and it was generally conceded that he had the edge in that Detroit fight. And he looked like a winner in the first minutes Friday night when he floored Anthony with a pile-driving right-left to the head.

But it was Anthony from then on despite some solid flurries by the Canadian. Durelle absorbed an unmerciful pounding in the sixth and the opening seconds of the seventh.

Goldstein had to restrain Durelle, who made motions as if to continue when the referee stopped the action. The fight was scheduled for 10 rounds.

Said Goldstein:

"He was getting to the point where he couldn't defend himself. Dr. (Alexander) Schiff had told me to watch him carefully after the sixth.

COULDN'T GET GOING

Inconsolable, he said:

"I just couldn't get going. I was off — I can't explain it. I couldn't let go of my hands. I kept thinking, 'They're moving too slow,' but I couldn't let them go."

Anthony looked supremely confident from the beginning and gave a boxing lesson to the brawny Acadian, who was popular with the crowd. The lean Anthony, with cunning use of his superior reach, made Durelle miss often. In the fourth and fifth, Durelle missed so badly he fell to the canvas.

LEARNED FROM MOORE

Anthony, who was stopped by Moore in seven rounds six months ago, apparently learned plenty from the old master. He went down early in the first, but leaped up at two and waited while the referee intoned the mandatory eight-count. Then he proceeded to dish out a well-planned beating.

Throwing punches in bunches, sometimes eight and 10 in machine - gun fashion, Anthony rocked his stocky foe in the second, third and fourth rounds, outboxed him in the fifth and floored him in the sixth, just before the bell.

Goldstein and the two judges—Harold Barnes and Leo Birnbaum—all gave Durelle the first round, and Anthony all the others.

Delany Speeds To Indoor Mile World Record

CHICAGO (AP) — Poker-faced Ron Delany, irked at being regarded a "running machine that can be turned on and off," really was turned on Friday night as he sped to a world indoor mile record.

Ireland's 1,500 - metre Olympic champion electrified an International Amphitheatre crowd of 10,136 by winning the featured Bankers' Mile of the Chicago relays in 4:03.4.

That shaved two - tenths of a second off the record Delany has been flirting with for two years, the 4:03.6 mark set by Denmark's Gunnar Nielsen in New York in 1955.

Delany started off in typical fashion, permitting the others in a four-man field to set the early pace.

But the Villanova University senior turned in a 58.4 final quarter that left the crowd in a frenzy as he whizzed home some 35 yards ahead of Phil Coleman.

Hayes Jones, Eastern Michigan hurdling star, won the 60 highs in 7.0 seconds flat. This was announced as a new world indoor mark but Milt Campbell, former Indiana track great, had the same time for the 60 tall sticks in last year's Millrose Games in New York.

Here's That Man Again!

WINDSOR (CP) — University of Toronto Professor John Farina, who created a stir in the sports world last year, says there is too much professionalism in Canadian sports.

Prof. Farina said in an interview here that "professional sports is not a recreation but a big business."

"Although the Americans played better games, the Canadians had more fun. But now that's disappearing with the times.

"The athletes are starting to work at the game, forgetting the fun they used to have before."

He said "true sports can breed lying and cheating, but it can also breed within an athlete the desirable characteristics wanted in a man.

To see that this was done was the duty of sports sponsoring organizations.

OBA Approves Many Changes

WELLAND (CP) — The Ontario Baseball Association approved several amendments and additions to its constitution Friday at the opening of its two-day 40th annual convention.

One of the more important changes was in classification of affiliated teams below the junior level. The change affects A major and A teams of the province.

The population limit for A classification was raised from 15,000 to 25,000. Beyond that figure, a city must enter major competition.

Teams drawing players from other centres will be classified under the combined population figures of the communities concerned. It was also decided that players requiring change of residence can affect the category of their team.

Hodge Steps Into Hab Nets, Bruins Call Up Chevrefils

By KENNEDY WELLS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The season's most popular guessing game—"Who's in goal?"—will be played around the National Hockey League again this weekend.

And this time one correct answer will be: "Charlie Hodge for Montreal Canadiens."

Hodge, Canadiens farmhand from Montreal Royals of the Quebec Hockey League, steps into Montreal nets for the second time this season, replacing Jacques Plante who will miss at least the two weekend games.

NHL teams have changed netminders more than a dozen times this injury-ridden season, but Canadiens probably feel their luck has begun to change for the better.

Plante was injured during the second period of Thursday's game with Boston Bruins. Plante remained in Boston where doctors decided his injury, a severe concussion about the head and neck, will keep him out of only the weekend games.

CHEVREFILS TO RESCUE

Bruins had their own hard luck as high - scoring forward Jerry Toppazzini suffered a badly - cut right eye and will be out until next season, though he is recovering satisfactorily and is in no danger of losing his sight.

To replace him Boston has called up winger Real Chevrefils, a 31-goal man last season who was sent down to Springfield Indians of the American Hockey League last month for unspecified breaches of training rules.

Apparently chastened, Chevrefils scored six goals and six assists in 15 games with the Indians.

Bruins hold the record for most netminders this season. They have had five different ones, including Johnny Wilson, Detroit Red Wing netminder who filled in for one period and allowed only one goal.

For their game tonight with Chicago Black Hawks the Canadiens will have rearguard Jean Guy Talbot back, but will be missing forward Marcel Bonin with a groin injury. The Habs hope Bernie (Boom-Boom) Geoffrion will be ready for the playoffs.

In other games tonight Bruins are host to New York Rangers and Detroit Red Wings visit Toronto Maple Leafs. Sunday, Bruins are host to Detroit, Canadiens are in New York and Toronto is in Chicago.

Macs Defeat Kings 3-1 To Take Game Lead In Eastern Senior Finals

Score Pair in First Period And Add Clincher in Third In Lacklustre Series Opener

By GEORGE H. CARVER
Sports Editor

The Belleville McFarlands took a game lead in the Eastern Ontario Senior "A" finals here last night, defeating the Pembroke Lumber Kings 3-1 in a lacklustre game before 2,133 fans. The teams resume the series in Pembroke tonight, and back here Monday night.

The Hildebranders clearly outplayed the Kings in the first period scoring two goals without a return. The northerners came back in the second to whittle the margin to a goal, but the Macs sewed up the victory with the insurance marker with six minutes to go in the final chapter.

Ike Hildebrand and Floyd Crawford put the Macs in front in the first period with Wiener Brown slamming home the Pembroke heartbreaker in the third. Barton Bradley drew three assists, Benoit, Brown and Guidolin one each. Jim Maxwell scored the lone Pembroke marker with O'Connor and Bruce Giesebrecht drawing helpers. The Macs outshot the Kings 31-21.

LACKED FIRE

The game lacked the fire of the Belleville - Kingston series and both clubs played spotty hockey. Referee Gordie Fevereau had a night off with the boys refusing to get mad at one another, dealing out six penalties split by the clubs.

The Macs broke away from the initial attacks of the Kings and Ike Hildebrand opened the scoring at 1.40 with a hard backhand shot following a passing play with Bradley. Moe Benoit started the sortie.

Lepine was chased for hooking at 2.38 but the Macs defence held with not too much trouble. Then Bruce Giesebrecht got the heave-ho for hooking and the Macs tossed their power-play at Payette without success.

FLOYD CRAWFORD
Fired A Gun

MOE BENOIT
"Ole Reliable"

The McFarlands were having the better of the play easily and at 11.50 Floyd Crawford blasted a shot from well out that beat Payette cleanly. Bradley and Wiener Brown were in on the kill.

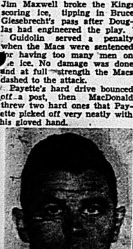
Play speeded up somewhat near the period end with the checking fairly close but with the homesters having the whip-hand. They outshot the Kings 14-5 on the period play.

The Kings looked better going both ways in the second period as play speeded up. The checking was closer and despite the fact the teams split eighteen shots on goal the Macs had the edge in the play.

The Kings drove in hard after the homesters shot their power in the early minutes and at 4.35 Jim Maxwell broke the Kings scoring ice, tipping in Bruce Giesebrecht's pass after Douglas had engineered the play.

Guidolin served a penalty when the Macs were sentenced for having too many men on the ice. No damage was done and at full strength the Macs dashed to the attack.

Payette's hard drive bounced off a post, then MacDonald threw two hard ones that Payette picked off very neatly with his gloved hand.



"WIENER" BROWN
Sewed It Up

Payette sat on the Mac winger's second shot and Referee Fevereau checked with the goal judge to see if the puck had crossed the line. It hadn't.

Bell kicked out Bert Giesebrecht's shot and on the return rush Wiener Brown broke into the clear but again his shot bounced off a post.

Chiarelli tossed a scare into the McFarland fans early in the third period when he stickhandled neatly through the Belleville defence only to have Gordie Bell kick out his drive for the corner.

Play speeded up somewhat but was nothing to write to the folks back home about, both clubs resorting to massed sorties on the opposing goals. Dan O'Connor gave the Macs a chance to increase their lead when he was charged for holding but the Kings threw the Macs back on the defensive for part of the two minutes.

O'Connor had a few seconds to go when Joe Lepine was sentenced for slashing. The Kings pepped up and raced in on the Belleville defence, Chiarelli missing a tip-in by a whisker.

Then O'Connor drew his second sentence of the period for interference and the Macs took advantage of their extra man-power. Their power-play clicked and Wiener Brown fired the goal that clinched the victory on a goalward dash with Bradley and Guidolin.

The Kings battled hard to get back into the game and gave the Belleville defence an anxious moment or two. Then Minnie Menard, Payette and Guidolin shot into the Pembroke zone with Goalie Payette kicking out Guidolin's drive and sitting on Menard's second shot. That was it.

An interested spectator, unknown to the fans and players, was Eddie Shore, well-known former Boston Bruin and now manager of the Springfield Indians, and Mrs. Shore. Mr. Share was not in town for the opening of the trout season.

The line-up:

Doug Ford Tops Pensacola Open

PENSACOLA, Fla. (AP) — It was an old story on the professional golf tournament trail today—the pack was chasing Doug Ford, last year's Masters champ.

The Mahopac, N.Y., veteran snapped out of a slump with a rousing seven-under-par 65 in second round of the $15,000 Pensacola Open Friday. His 36-hole total of 70-65—135 gave him a one-stroke lead as play resumed today.

Pressing him strongly was Ken Venturi of San Francisco, who carded a 66 to go with his opening round 70.

Toronto's Al Balding, who had a 69 Thursday, slipped to a one-over-par 73 Friday, giving him a total of 142 where he was tied with five others.

Dunnies Defeat Canadians 8-1

PARIS (CP) — Canada's world hockey champions from Whitby defeated 8-1 a team of Canadians who live and play hockey in Europe in an exhibition at the Palais des Sports Friday night.

Whitby took a quick 4-0 lead and was never threatened.

Connie Broden, the leading scorer for the Canadians in their march to the world championship at Oslo, netted Whitby's first goal. Broden, George Samolenko and Jean Paul Lamirande all scored twice. Charlie Burns and Gordon Myles added singles.

The Canadians - in - Europe launched a strong counter-attack in the second period which kept Whitby goalie Roy Edwards busy.

The lone goal from the European squad came early in the first period from the stick of [illegible].

The world champions arrived in Paris Friday from Switzerland where they won two post-tournament exhibitions. They leave here Sunday for Scotland and three more exhibitions before sailing March 21 from Liverpool. The team is due at Saint John, N.B., March 27.

Peter Carver scored on a breakaway to snap a 1-1 deadlock and place the Canadiens in the finals. Bob Skinner had the first Hab marker with Dean Williamson assisting. Dennis Tracey fired the Bruin goal on Bill Leslie's assist.

Allan Mott and Bob Purcey were the Ranger scorers this morning, with Jack Thompson and Carl Boomhour getting assists.

Dennis Lane and Tony Savage netted the Wing goals, while Robert Brant had an assist.

How Smart Is Average Hunter?

A few years ago, an imaginative enforcement officer of the Pennsylvania Game Commission came up with a new idea for keeping things under control on opening day of the ringneck season. A friend of his owned a little Piper Cub airplane so these two men circled around over the pheasant terrain, one man doing the flying and the other looking things over with the aid of a strong pair of binoculars.

The officer told me later that he had quite a laugh watching the manner in which those wily old ringneck roosters would outwit the nimrods. Being directly above them, he could spot the movements of the big birds quite easily through his glasses. He told me that the average group of hunters which staged a drive through a cornfield actually put up about a third of the birds in that field.

Of course, the men who hunted with dogs did far better than those who hunted without benefit of spaniel, pointer or setter. The birds simply would hide until the drive had passed, or circled out and around the hunters. Moreover, unless the dog were an experienced performer, well-versed in the obscure tactics of ringnecks the birds would outwit them almost as easily as they did the dogless hunters.

The same sort of behavior is typical of ruffed grouse. These birds are wary and smart. They prefer to hide rather than to flush. A hunter who moves at a fairly rapid, even rate through [illegible] country will walk past a great deal more game than he will see.

CHANGE-OF-PACE

One way to outwit these birds, and this is particularly true of grouse, is to adopt the change-of-pace method. Walk slowly through good grouse country and then, every once in a while, come to a complete stop. Stand there, perfectly still, for a minute or so; then go on.

Frequently, while you are standing still, a bird will flush from nearby cover. The probabilities are that your lack of movement indicates to the bird that he has been seen. He will stand this sort of suspense for a while, but if you remain stationary the pressure builds up to the point where he can stand it no longer. Then he takes off and you get the shot.

Did you ever notice how often, as you are preparing to climb a fence, a bird will flush almost from under your feet? That is the perfect example of the way the change-of-pace method works. Had you not stopped at that particular place, the bird would have stayed right there and you would have been none the wiser.

Michigan wardens, always under verbal fire from the rank and file of the hunters because of the alleged scarcity of deer, decided to do something about it. They put a fence eleven feet high around 47 acres of hardwood forest and conifer swamp. Then they put 39 deer inside the enclosure. There were seven bucks, fourteen does and eighteen fawns.

This done, on the first day of the deer season six veteran deer hunters entered the enclosure. These men knew that the deer were there, unable to go beyond the fence. It took four days — 15¼ man days of hunting — before these men so much as saw their first buck. It took the six men four full days in order for them to kill two buck.

AN AVERAGE HUNT

This is what happened — on years, was hunted a total of 18 days by an average of seven hunters per day — this to duplicate, so far as was possible, the gun pressure on open deer country, the hunters spending an average of five hours per day inside the enclosure.

This 8s what happened — on buck-only hunts, the hunters saw about one deer per hour but only one buck in more than ten hours. During the any-deer hunts, the hunters saw only 17 per cent of the deer and only three per cent of the bucks. The size of the herd was maintained almost at a constant level throughout the entire experiment.

Of course, the wardens were simply proving what they had known right along, but they wanted some definite counter-intelligence with which to quiet their critics. And the reason for the surprisingly poor showing is easy to spot. The average hunter is used to living under civilized conditions and inescapably has his perceptions dulled through lack of use. In short, he is a hunter only a very small part of his time.

A deer, on the other hand, has acute perceptions and works at the job of being a deer 24 hours a day. Thus, the odds are greatly in his favor. So keep this is mind next time you feel like taking your game commission to task because of the alleged scarcity of game. Our country holds more wildlife than you think.

Canadian Sportsmen's Show Has Models of Everything

By BEN WARD
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP) — If it's even remotely connected with sports, name it. . .and the Canadian National Sportsmen's Show has it. The latest model, too.

Right down to such improbabies as a brash cow moose, a performing chimpanzee and a tankful of fat brown trout.

The Sportsmen's Show — 11th annual version sponsored by the Toronto Anglers' and Hunters' Association—was formally opened Friday night by Lieutenant-Governor J. Keiller Mackay after an estimated 25,000 persons had clicked turnstiles at the Coliseum Building at the Canadian National Exhibition grounds.

Attendance is expected to top last year's 225,000 before the windup March 22. Proceeds go to develop Ontario conservation projects, adding to the $550,000 raised by the shows since 1947.

The 268 exhibits this year for a record. Dozens of camps offer fishing and hunting accommodation.

One of the biggest attractions is the department of lands and forests live display of fish and wildlife. It includes tanks of game fish, beaver, raccoons, a wolf, geese, grouse and a saucy-eyed cow moose caught near Port Arthur last year and raised from calfhood at Toronto's Riverdale Zoo. It's her first public showing but she is taking it in her stride.

Bowling and casting competitions run through the eight-day show, along with displays of water-skiing, square-dancing, fly-tying and log-rolling. There's a dog show and a car show.

About the only thing missing is privacy. Yet some of the starry-eyed fishermen, standing transfixed before the tanks of sleek, swirling trout, seem to have achieved that, too.

College Hockey League 'Dies'

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — The seven - year - old Western Intercollegiate Hockey League, most powerful in United States college hockey, formally voted itself out of existence Friday.

The action, taken by faculty representatives, brought to an end years of haggling among the seven teams. The disputes were over such things as the recruiting of mature Canadian talent, conflicting rules governing teams which also owed allegiances to other athletic leagues and lack of a central league authority.

Says Fight Club Is 'Ruination' Of Boxing

HALIFAX (CP) — Cus D'Amato, manager of world heavyweight champion Floyd Patterson, said Friday night the International Boxing Club is "the ruination of boxing."

D'Amato said fighters deserve a better cut of receipts than the $4,000 given participating boxers during televised bouts. D'Amato and Patterson were interviewed during a stopover of the liner Saxonia taking them to Europe.

D'Amato said he will talk over a possible title bout with British promoter Harry Levene. . ."an independent promoter having a tough time with Jack Solomons.

"In my book, Solomons is another Norris." Norris is president of the IBC. Patterson will fight several exhibition bouts in Europe.

SPORT IN BRIEF

ROUND TABLE FLIES

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Travis M. Kerr's Round Table established himself as a solid favorite for the $100,000 added Gulfstream Park Handicap when he broke the track record for a mile and a sixteenth Friday while easily winning the $10,000 Challenge Purse at Gulfstream Park. Round Table was timed in 1:41 3-5 over the fast racing strip.

BLIZZARD STOPS RACES

LINCOLN, R.I. (AP) — Lincoln Downs, which gambles annually with New England's unpredictable weather to open its racing season early, lost another round Friday. The nine - race program was snowed out by a blizzard which hit just as 2,500 fans went to the mutuel windows to wager on the first race.

SAVED BY BELL

BALDWIN PARK, Calif. (AP) A singing doorbell awakened Jesse A. C. Niemela, 39, his wife and 10-year-old daughter, and got them up in time to flee from their burning house early Tuesday. Firemen said an attic fire from an overheated furnace short-circuited the doorbell.

ORFU May Fade From Scene Unless the Big Four Relents

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP) — The 75-year-old Ontario Rugby Football Union, the country's oldest league, today faced the possibility of fading out of the picture.

Unless there's a last - minute change of heart by the Big Four and Western Interprovincial unions, and this isn't considered likely, the ORFU will lose its fight to gain a berth in the Grey Cup competition. "Without this, it is certain that two of our four teams will drop out, and that could be the end of us," one high-placed official said early today.

"We wouldn't have the incentive to carry on. Our fans don't want to see the same teams play week after week during the season, then have a two- or three-game playoff, and then pack up for the year."

SHOWDOWN TODAY

The showdown is expected today, final of the three-day Canadian Rugby Union annual meeting when decisions taken Thursday ad Friday will be formally voted on. The ORFU has put in its challenge for a cup semi-final playoff this year after a three-year absence from the classic.

The Big Four and WIFU, which amalgamated into the Canadian Football League two months ago, don't want any part of the ORFU in the plyoffs. They've said this since 1955 when they paid the ORFU $5,000 to forgo its challenge and they've fought the ORFU over the issue at CRU annual meetings since.

They discussed the ORFU challenge briefly before ending Friday's meeting but no decision was reached.

The big leagues, who came to this meeting determined to have their own way or pull out of the CRU, have had their way as everyone expected. And before today's meeting ends, it is expected they'll be the only winners.

They won an initial victory Friday by taking over majority voting power in the CRU after silencing opposition by declaring they would withdraw immediately if this power wasn't granted them.

WIN VOTING CONTROL

The new setup, to be formally voted on today, gives the Big Four and WIFU five votes each, with two for the ORFU and single votes for the Intercollegiate, Quebec and Maritime unions. Formerly, each of the pro leagues had three votes, the ORFU two, Quebec and college one. The Maritimes, accepted as a non-voting member of the CRU in 1956, was given one vote Friday.

In effect, the new deal means that the two pro leagues, acting in accord, can supply by themselves the necessary two-third vote to make any constitutional change in the CRU it wishes. They needed help to swing the voting change and they got it from the QRFU and Maritime Union, making the balloting 8-3, with the ORFU and Intercollegiate dissenting.

Had either the Quebec or Maritime vote gone the other way, the motion would have been defeated—and the Big Four and WIFU would have pulled out o the CRU and operated their own show.

"That was the ultimatum our delegates were instructed to give the meeting, and they would have done it," said G. Sydney Halter of Winnipeg, CFL commissioner who is attending the meetings as an observer.

"We haven't any great wish to withdraw from the CRU, but we don't want to come to these meetings year after year and fight with other unions or depend on voting support from some union for voting support."

U.K. EXPORTS AT RECORD

LONDON (Reuters) — British exports to the United States last month reached a record £22,800,000, the board of trade announced Wednesday night. This was £4,000,000 more than in January. Exports to Canada remained seasonally low in February at £12,500,000. In January and February together, they were slightly lower than the corresponding period last year.

FREEDOM FIGHTERS MEET

PARIS (AP)—Hungarian freedom fighters in the 1956 Budapest rising met Wednesday to elect leaders and plan their activities in exile. A spokesman for the World Federation of Hungarian Freedom Fighters said the aim of the group is to keep up the spirit of struggle among the thousands of Hungarians dispersed throughout the free world after their defeat by the Russians.

Radio Commentator Keeps Audience Warm, Friendly

By HARRY ECCLES
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Bernard Cowan, 35-year-old native of Vancouver, has a rare task among radio announcers. He is commentator on a coast-to-coast radio network for the Toronto Symphony Orchestra's Sunday afternoon "pops" concert and at the same time keeps a live studio audience informed over the theatre's loudspeaker.—(CP Photo) 1958.

TORONTO (CP)—A rare task among radio announcers is performed here each week by Vancouver-born Bernard Cowan.

He's the commentator on a coast-to-coast radio network for the Toronto Symphony Orchestra's Sunday afternoon "pop" concerts, and in addition keeps a live audience in Massey Hall—generally a packed house of 3,000—warm and friendly with his pre - broadcast announcements over the theatre's own loudspeaker.

Mr. Cowan, 35, works with a standup microphone in front of the centre aisle, directly below the stage, and as such is seen as the host by the audience. The performance runs for 30 minutes before the theatre audience is joined by radio listeners across Canada.

"To be able to give the radio audience a custom-built hour of concert programming, and at the same time prevent any weakening of the link between the orchestra and the live audience, is the major task," he explained in an interview.

The radio audience must also be kept warm and friendly, which requires an unobtrusive broadcast explanation of spontaneous applause or laughter at some incident on stage which the radio listeners cannot see—for instance, a warm handshake between the guest artist and conductor Walter Susskind, or one of the guest conductors who often appear at these Sunday events.

"We are always trying to please a live audience, which involves their personal reactions to visible movements, while keeping the radio audience pleased and interested," he said.

SMOOTH OPERATION

"The problem," says Cowan, "is to package an entire 90 minutes for continuity and good taste, so that the broadcast hour smoothly follows the first half-hour. While the radio has priority in announcing, we try not to intrude."

Since the radio announcements are heard simultaneously over the theatre system, this requires delicate timing. The aim is to achieve a two-minute lapse before going on the air, which varies according to length of applause for various numbers in the prior period.

Mr. Cowan fills this small interval with another talk to the audience — he is operating from the opening of the concert — in which he explains that in a minute and a half, or perhaps 40 seconds, they will be joined by a Canada-wide radio audience.

FRANK REMINDER

He reminds them that the broadcast portion will include a message from the radio sponsors—a packing house and a department store chain—which he hopes will prove "interesting and informative." His commercial message later, heard over the theatre speaker as it is broadcast, invariably is applauded by the theatre audience.

As the seconds tick away towards air time—a broadcast director is visible in a glassed-in booth high at one edge of the stage—Cowan gives a signal to the concert master for the traditional tune-up which heralds the orchestra's appearance on radio.

Long experience enables Mr. Cowan to perform his task with friendly ease. He was only 15 when he was paid for his first announcing at CKCL, Toronto, which later became CKEY. He began full-time radio work as an actor in various CBC programs at Toronto in 1942, appearing in such wartime programs as Canada Carries On and Fighting Navy.

He was a regular announcer for a time in 1942 at CHEX, Peterborough, and in 1943 returned to the CBC at Toronto, doing actuality broadcasts with a mobile unit at army shows, football games and other events.

He left the CBC in 1946 to become a free-lance announcer for various commercial broadcasts and other programs. In 1956 he did some actuality broadcasts for the CBC from London and Paris.

Mr. Cowan started announcing the Toronto Symphony's regular Friday night concerts in 1947, and began with the Sunday "pops" concerts two years ago.

TV NOTEBOOK

by John Wetilaufer

What many TV owners do not comprehend is the principle of "scanning" which puts a picture on your home screen. Unlike a movie, which projects by sending light through a strip of film, a TV picture is made up of a succession of dots, transmitted by the station and reproduced on the picture tube of your home set. The picture is not unlike a newspaper photo which, if viewed closely, consists of thousands of tiny dots.

In TV broadcasting, these dots are transmitted in a series of 525 horizontal lines covering your screen from top to bottom. Your receiver sweeps these 525 lines across your screen 30 times per second—a total of 15,750 lines per second.

This all points up the fact that your TV set is a highly complicated instrument which must be in good repair to give good performance. CIRCLE TV SERVICE can and will make necessary repairs to keep your set in tip-top condition. As we have said before: At the first sign of trouble, call CIRCLE TV SERVICE on the double. We have two depots to serve you — 368 Coleman St., phone WO 8-6791; in Trenton phone Zenith 6-3800.

Producer of Top TV Shows, Henry Jaffe Is Also Lawyer

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—If Henry Jaffe argues a pretty good case for his television shows, it's no accident. He's a lawyer as well as producer of some of the top TV fare.

Jaffe looks and talks like a lawyer, a sharp - witted New Yorker with names and figures at his fingertips. But he also operates importantly in the less orderly world of show business.

He was the man behind Producer's Showcase, which contributed such TV achievements as Peter Pan, the Bogart-Bacall Petrified Forest, the Sadlers Wells Ballet, etc. His regular shows now are the Dinah Shore hour, Shirley Temple's Storybook and the daytime serial, Kitty Foyle.

Catching up with Jaffe is no easy matter. Though he produces the Temple and Shore shows here, he lives in New York and is one of the airlines' best customers. But I got him down to earth this week and asked him how he switched.

STARTED IN BOYHOOD

"If you want to go 'way back," he said, "you could start when I was a boy. My father was attorney for many of the leading figures in show business. He loved concerts and the theatre, and I'm not exaggerating when I say we often went to them five nights a week.

"In those days, Broadway had 70 shows a season, and we went to each of them. When we finished the list, we started over again. Sometimes I'd see a show 20 times.

"But I must say I haven't regretted it a bit. I'm having the time of my life."

Jaffe bristles with exciting future projects. One of them is the idea of a theatre-in-the-round which would try out plays here for TV. He has a special interest in the project. He wants to live here; his wife, the former film actress Jean Muir, hates California. But she's interested in theatres-in-the-round.

Who but a lawyer would think up a plot like that?

Astrological Forecast

By CARROL RIGHTER

Sunday, March 16th.

Aries (March 21 to April 19)—Follow that thought today that you are not giving enough time to the pursuits of a religious or educational nature and go to hear the finest speakers within reach. You will thank God that you did.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20)—While your religious convictions [illegible] your physical desires are at [illegible]eme variance now, spend a little time thinking out how the famous persons of your era would have handled the situation. Live the Golden Rule.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21)—Associates and closest ties today do not agree at all with the many fixed ideas and convictions that you have. Listen and learn, but follow own heart, since it is guiding you properly and well.

Moon children (June 22 to July 21) — While the tests you have made have proved very accurate, your own belief about what is truth does not seem to ring true. Hence, get into the so-called silence and let the spirit within guide you rightly now.

Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21) — Erroneous intuition, though forceful, should not be heeded since it is entirely contrary to what has been proven true and [illegible]tical, especially by closest [illegible]. Hence, talk it over with wisest persons you know, also.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22)—Associate is very unhappy and today acts in a pugnacious, depressive fashion. Don't let it bother you, for the aspects are fine and you can accomplish much of a constructive nature, get along well with fellow man.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22)—Leave all dull-doldrum chores behind today. Nice day for the gay, light things of life that give joy and pleasure. Go out driving, be with sweet, companionable persons, dine at a lovely inn, play golf, etc.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21)—Don't attempt to take that little joy trip today, for it will turn out badly. After you go to church remain at home as much as possible, entertaining there, or just studying, relaxing. Make it an ideal Sunday.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Home conditions are a bit diffi[illegible] and annoying, so dress b[illegible]fully and go to services of your choice early. You will get a wonderful uplift, and meet friends who will invite you to charming recreations.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) — The day is fraught with all sorts of rather ugly rumors, gossip whether on the telephone or by mail that you can put down as just that. Stick to Golden Rule, and tonight get your monetary affairs in order.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) — Any money worries should be put out of your mind quickly today. Concentrate on your hopes and dreams instead, and contact those who can make them an actuality. . . Then let sociability reign supreme.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20)—If you allow it morning can be most worrisome, and worry is only a habit that is too expensive for anyone to indulge in. Then some good persons bring success and joy. Don't be too proud to accept gifts given you.

If your child is born today... The serious child born today is the kind who will appear to be very sombre at earliest stages of life. But time brings the conscious realization of more joyful thoughts and pursuits in the Great Age ahead, and if you give the proper spiritual training along with a good foundational academic education, your progeny will become a most successful and happy adult.

Klan Head Convicted of Inciting Riot

LUMBBERTON, N.C. (AP) — Dapper James W. Cole, acknowledged grand wizard of North Carolina's Ku Klux Klan, was convicted Thursday of inciting a riot among Lumbee Indians last Jan 18.

Judge Clawson L. Williams deferred sentencing until today. Cole and James W. Martin, another Klan official convicted on the same charge, could get up to two years on the charge.

Cole, a self-styled minister in the Southern Free Will Baptist Church, was indicted on the riot charge after a crowd of Indians broke up a Klan rally near Maxton with gunfire.

Preacher-Mayor Steps Into Politics Again

PORTAGE LA PRAIRIE, Man. (CP)—Rev. H. Lloyd Henderson, clergyman mayor of this city 56 miles west of Winnipeg, has stepped into the federal political scene again.

Mr. Henderson, who received only one vote when he tried for the Liberal party leadership against Lester B. Pearson and Paul Martin in January, was named Liberal candidate Thursday in the Portage-Neepawa riding over two opponents. He received 99 votes while farmer Gisli Thordarson of Amaranth got 72 and Rev. G. H. Hambley of Basswood, two.

The meeting was made necessary by the withdrawal for health reasons of W. G. (Gib) Weir, who had been nominated previously. Mr. Weir, former Liberal Whip in the Commons, was defeated last year by Dr. George C. Fairfield of the Progressive Conservatives.

Mr. Henderson and Mr. Thordarson both withdrew at the earlier convention because they did not wish to oppose Mr. Weir.

HOUSE SHORTAGE

BONN (Reuters)—West Germany had a shortage of nearly 2,000,000 homes at the start of 1958, says a housing ministry official who predicted this would grow to 3,000,000 in the next five years through the normal increase in population.

Astrological Forecast

By CARROLL RIGHTER

Saturday, March 15th

Aries (March 21 to April 19) — Your thinking is not quite up to par today and if you do not take yourself in hand early, you may waste much of your time on nonconstructive things. Meet your obligations and impress others with common sense.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20) — A sort of mulishness has gotten into your nature today and you might easily try to break established laws, standards if you do not change your attitude. Do it and accomplish something outstanding instead.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21) — Here is a day when the greener pastures appeal to you tremendously. That is well and good provided you first attend to important duties awaiting your attention. P. M. indulge in some recreation that will build up your system.

Moon children (June 22 to July 21) — An erroneous intuition assails you today, or some authority who does not have all the data necessary, gives you rather poor advice. Be courteous, but do not follow. Get work done, and zip your purse.

Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21) — A family tie and your associate are at loggerheads, whether visible or felt. Be neutral and above it all. However, be certain you come through with any promises made, obligations, etc. Then all is well.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) — The air is seemingly charged with electricity, and you can't quite figure out what is going to happen Keep your equilibrium, go about your business carefully, doing what you are sure is right and all is O.K.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) — Entertainment at any cost is uppermost in your mind today, whether it hurts your pocketbook terribly or some innocent bystander. Concentrate on security instead and being kind to kith and kin.

Scorpio (Oct. 22 to Nov. 21) — Look about you and see if your home and the persons in it are in the ideal, harmonious condition you like. If not, get busy right now and do what has to be done. Use your powers constructively.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) — An unexpected situation arises today which could throw you for a proverbial loop, especially since you are a creature of habit. But take advantage of the innovation. P.M. drive carefully. Be cultured, sweet.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) — While you are all steamed up to get going on some new venture with great speed, a good pal does everything but tie you up to stop you. Listen, then study all phases of the matter carefully, be very sure, then go!

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) — How you would love to lambaste a higher - up who is acting so peculiarly, according to you. But wait! He or she may have very good reason, so stick to own knitting. Then all works out fine, you don't get hurt.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20) — Don't waste time fretting over some problem, fixed or fantastic, and keep going around in circles. Seek the company of interesting and fascinating persons who can give you the insight into a better future.

If your child is born today . . . The child born today is the fascinating kind who seems to be content to build a little world of his or her own and revel in it. The nature is an artistic and dreamy one, so it is best to give a fine course of training in the arts and religious fields early for the best results in this horoscope. The social graces will be absorbed quickly and you have a successful progeny.

AVOID U.S. NAVY'S FIRE

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Pilots of the two Pan American World Airways planes reported Thursday that they had to fly off their courses to avoid anti-aircraft fire from four United States Navy vessels. There was no damage to the planes, bound to Nassau from Miami. A navy spokesman here said the ships were manned by reservists conducting gunnery practice.

HEPATITIS CONTROLLED

CHICAGO (AP) — Storing of blood plasma at room temperature for six or more months eliminates the danger of transmitting hepatitis to the plasma recipients, two Cincinnati physicians reported Thursday. Hepatitis, a liver disease, is caused by a virus which may be transmitted through transfusion of whole blood or plasma.

EARNS RETIREMENT

LONDON (CP)—A. J. Lazenby has resigned after 29 years as secretary-manager of The Press Club. Well known to Fleet Street and visiting journalists from overseas, he gave up the post on medical advice. He is in his 60s.

FRANKFORD

H-S Assoc. Hears Talk On 'Music'

FRANKFORD — The Frankford Home and School Association held its March meeting in the Frankford Public School on Wednesday evening. President Frank Rabel, opened the meeting by welcoming members and guests. He also introduced Mr. Steve Choma, violinist from Batawa, and a former student at Frankford, also his accompanist, Mrs. G. Leatherland.

They pleased everyone with their rendition of "Indian Love Call," "When a Gypsy Violin Cries," and "Be My Love."

A vote of appreciation was given to Mr. Choma and Mrs. Leatherland by Mr. V. Spears.

The students taking part in the Public Speaking contest, were introduced and Miss Marilyn Picard, winner of the senior group gave her speech entitled, "Education of the Blind," and master John Beach, winner of the junior group spoke on Lord Baden Powell.

PRESENTATIONS MADE

The president awarded the winners cups. Following this award, Mr. W. J. Picard, on behalf of Kent shoes, presented each of the winners with a gift certificate and on behalf of the Bata Shoe Company, presented all contestants with a silver dollar.

The guest speaker of the evening, Mrs. Keiffer was introduced by Mrs. J.E. Finnegan. Mrs. Keiffer, who is the music teacher for the school is a graduate of Glasgow University and London College of Music and has her A.L.C.M. which is equivalent to A.T.C.M. in Canada, and has done post-graduate work as well. The guest speaker whose subject was "music" demonstrated the type of music she teaches with the assistance of some of her pupils. Mrs. Keiffer stated that, on the average of 1-3 the pupils starting school can carry a tune. To help non-singers, she mixes' singers with them to aid them in tone and rhythm.

Mrs. Keiffer informed the gathering that the key to reading music starts in the recognition of the note 'do' and for singing the key is in correct breathing.

The children in Grade I were taught 60 songs last year. Three part harmony is taught to the higher grades and the theory examinations are given. Mrs. Keiffer said her aim as a teacher is to get the children to love music.

Following her speech, she told the Association that the Music Festival will be held at the end of the month.

TWEED

Kinsmen Club Hears Talk on Rescue Corps.

TWEED — The Kinsmen Club held its regular meeting at the Stoco Lake Hotel on Tuesday evening with a good attendance of members and 15 invited special guests. A sumptuous meal was prepared and served by the host and hostess, Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Austin, with turkey and all the trimmings, which was greatly enjoyed by all.

The guest speaker was Flight Lieut. Allen Vanderwater, of Trenton, who is with the Air Search and Rescue Corps, of the RCAF. The speaker showed an interesting and educational film on a recent air-crash which occurred in the Yukon, in the year 1957 and in which the A.S. and R. Corps aided, searched and found the victims.

He outlined another disaster in November last in Northern Ontario which was also speaking of the vast and heroic deeds being done by this force.

These films were to familiarize the public with what is being done with its monies, and that the benefits are not solely for the RCAF but aids the individuals — or the population as a whole. In case of sickness, or forest fires, they work with the Department of Lands and Forests 100%, and also in cases of evacuation or such emergencies they are all on call 24 hours a day, the same as your family doctor or any other night and day service which is rendered to you in any way. For instance, a fellow who was recently shot in the city of Brockville; the bullet went through the brain, the Air Search and Rescue Corps picked him up by helicopter and had him on the operating table in a Montreal Hospital, which was the only hospital that could perform such an operation for surgery in two hours time.

This was one of the incidents that the Flight Lieut. pointed out as to the speed and alertness in which they carry on their unceasing good works.

The guest speaker was introduced and welcomed by Kinsman Ken Thompson, the publicity chairman, and thanked following his remarks by Past-President Kinsman Doug Spencer.

The president, Ron Way, was in the chair for the evenings meeting, and Mrs. R. C. Passmore, the local district Forester, of the Department of Lands and Forests, was also in attendance. As this is a service club, many discussions were dealt with, one in particular, and it was finally passed to put forth some money to an individual for a worthy cause and where it was, as the club deemed, needed for a specific purpose.

The evening will remain in the minds of many "Kin" and also the visiting guests as a memorable one, with a warm spot in their hearts for the Air Search and Rescue Corps, which was revealed so knowingly by Flight Lieut. Allen Vanderwater, to whom they are deeply grateful.

Garden Notes

Here's New Color for Old Gardens

By FLORA M. SAVILLE

Pick a new plant to fill an old place and add fresh interest to your garden.

Linarias are like miniature snapdragons. The color range is through several shades of pink and yellow and salmon. Fairy Bouquet linaria is a dwarf type about ten inches tall of erect habit. They do not spread or interfere with the lawn mower. The seed germinates quickly and the plants will bloom four weeks after seed is planted. Plant early so plants will become established before hot weather arrives. They withstand drought and thrive in poor soil.

When the first round of bloom is fading, about four weeks, shear off tops work in a side dressing, water it in well and you will have a second round. Keep the seed spikes picked off and the plants will continue to bloom until late September. They make good cutting, bedding or edging plants. Sow a band in front of the chrysanthemums. The linarias will carry the color interest until the mums are ready to take over.

The blue veronicas have long been favored for their long period of bloom. From England we have three good pink veronicas. Baccarole is a deep carmine pink, minuet a dusty pink and pavane a warm clear pink. All are quite hardy.

CLOVE-LIKE PERFUME

The dianthus family includes the pinks, sweet William, carnations and many varieties in these divisions. They all have laciniated edges, tufts of grass-like foliage and that clove-like perfume.

The grass or spice pinks are double with short stiff stems, and strong scent. Cyclops are single with red eye. Delatoids brilliant are quite dwarf, eight inches tall with rich crimson blossoms. These three are perennials.

The annual pinks chinensis are double and borne in clusters on strong stems, good for cutting. D. Heddewigi includes fireball, deep scarlet, salmon queen shrimp pink, snowball a solid white. All of these bloom from May to October. They are easy to grow and make long lasting cut flowers. Dianthus sweet Wivelsfield blooms from April to October if the seed is started indoors in February. Scotch pinks have large double blooms in several shades.

African daisy makes a good bedding plant and will bloom May to October if the seed is started in February. Glistening white has a sheen that is especially attractive. The blooms are large, but the plant is dwarf and spreading. They are heat and drought resistant. Orange glory, also dwarf is fine for edging. The taller types grow to 15 inches and the new hybrids include several shades of pink, salmon and yellow.

Heliotrope is an old favorite which is coming back into fashion. It is one of the few flowers which seem to fit into a rose garden. The soft lavender blue blooms have a fine fragrance. Use the tall mammoth mixed to edge the back of the rose bed, and the dwarf types, queen margurite and Florina for the front edges. These plants need good drainage but must not be allowed to dry out.

SETTLEMENT

The battle over a suitable wage standard has a topsy-turvy history. Adopted in 1950, the durable goods wage standard was supported by the railways in 1952 and 1954 negotiations, with the unions opposing it.

In 1956, they switched sides. The railways suggested a new standard based on the average earnings of workers in industry across Canada — the so-called community standard. The unions this time backed the durable goods index, and the 1956 conciliation board used it as the wage yardstick.

Present conciliation hearings—ordered by the federal government after brief negotiations broke down last November — again revolve around the standard of comparison.

There are other issues in dispute. The unions also demanded an extra statutory holiday, changes in vacation arrangements and severance pay, but have indicated a willinhness to compromise on some points.

The railways rejected all demands and asked for a straight extension of the present agreement which was to have expired last Dec. 31, saying their financial plight is such they haven't the ability to pay more than present wages and citing dwindling revenue as proof.

The railways say the workers' demands—worth about $116,000,000 a year if granted — could price them out of their market. The unions says their demands if spread over a two - year contract would cost $96,000,000 a year.

Says Air Traffic Would Double

WINNIPEG (CP) — A Canadian Pacific Airlines official says the number of Canadians travelling by air will almost double and fares will be lower if his company is granted trans-continental routes in competition with Trans-Canada Air Lines.

H. B. Mai, executive assistant to the president of CPA, said in an interview Thursday only 10 per cent of five routes proposed by CPA would duplicate those of TCA. However, duplication would almost double passenger traffic, he said.

"The Canadian air traffic potential has been barely tapped," he said. Airlines have been able to get only 20 per cent of the over-all traffic compared with 38 per cent of domestic traffic by airlines in the United States.

Comparing U.S. and Canadian fares for similar routes, Mr. Main said travellers from New York to San Francisco pay $80 for tourist fare while the rate is $120 for tourist fares from Toronto to Vancouver.

U.S. May Propose Three-Year Ban On Nuclear Tests

Marked Policy Change Reported Under Study

WASHINGTON (CP) — The United States, in what would be a marked change in policy, may propose a three-year ban on nuclear weapons tests.

President Eisenhower's disarmament advisers have been reported working on a proposal for the ban which could be presented to Russia for negotiation.

It would cover the U.S., Russia, Britain and potentially France. British sources were quoted in London as informally supporting the proposal, provided the U.S. will turn over some nuclear weapons secrets.

The advisers were reported thinking in terms of inspection teams in both Russia and the U.S. empowered by a United Nations agency to man check stations and move freely about to investigate signs of secret test attempts.

BAN BEFORE NEGOTIATIONS

While the ban would be in effect, the atomic powers would negotiate the problem of halting nuclear weapons production.

In the past, the U.S. has insisted that any test suspension agreement be tied in with a broad disarmament program, including the halting of production of nuclear materials for military purposes.

The present Russian position calls for a halt of weapons tests before considering any other nuclear problem.

The Russian position has won wide support in India and Japan and several central European countries.

British informants said the proposal may stand or fall on talks between Prime Minister Macmillan and Eisehower during the prime minister's visit to Washington June 9-10.

WANTS CHANGE IN LAW

Macmillan is expected to pres for a change in the present U.S. law which prohibits the giving of atomic secrets to other countries. It has been reported Eisenhower plans to ask Congress to change this law, but there is no indication if or when Congress will act.

Britain also was reported considering the proposed ban one way for the West to win the initiative at the projected summit conference.

Meanwhile, the Atomic Energy Commission announced that the Russians conducted another nuclear weapons test Saturday at "the usual Siberian test site." It was the third Soviet nuclear weapons test announced by the AEC in the last three days.

CONTROL OF SPACE

On Saturday, U.S. officials rejected as "wholly unacceptable" Russia's offer to accept international control of space in exchange for the elimination of U.S. overseas bases.

This reaction came as the state department said simply that the Soviet bid "will require and will receive the most careful study."

But department officials were outspoken in rejecting the whole idea, as it was presented Saturday in a Soviet foreign ministry statement.

Husband Under Guard After Wife Found Slain

ST. CATHARINES (CP) — Police today maintained a round-the-clock guard in the hospital room of Kazys Svirplys, 34, following the discovery Sunday night of his wife's nude, stabbed and beaten body.

Hospital authorities described as successful an operation on Svirplys for a deep stab wound in the pit of his stomach which pierced his liver. They said he is off the critical list.

He and his wife, Rita, 28, formerly Rita Boudreau of Timmins, were found together in her two-bedroom apartment by a relative, Raymond LaMontagne.

Mrs. Svirplys moved two days ago from an apartment she shared with her husband.

Police said Mr. Lamontagne found the woman's body on the bedroom floor. Her husband was sitting in the living room.

Their children, Victor, 5, Richard, 3, and Julia, 2, were playing in their own room in the second-floor apartment.

Detective-Sergeant Albert Shennan, in charge of the investigation, said there appeared to be knife wounds on the body, and that it showed severe bruises. He could not say what had caused death.

Mr. Svirplys had been a pharmaceutical helper at Hotel Dieu Hospital for the last four years. He came to this country about 1948 from his native Lithuania.

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Dynamite explosions here and at Nashville, Tenn., Sunday damaged Jewish centres and set police to sifting the wreckage for clues to the identity of the terrorists. ......

An anonymous telephone caller linked the Tennessee incident to school integration and threatened that a federal judge "would be shot down in cold blood."

The Miami blast came at 2:20 a.m. EST, waking sleepers for miles around and doing at least $30,000 worth of damage to the school-recreation annex of Temple Beth El, located in the south-west section of the city. Doors were blown out, a hole torn in a concrete wall and a kitchen ceiling, the roof lifted and walls shifted on the foundation.

The Nashville explosion, coming "like sudden lightning" shortly after 9 p.m. EST smashed the front doors of the Jewish Community Centre. It ripped down the ceiling of the reception hall and broke panes of glass. Damage was estimated at $6,000.

There were no injuries in either dynamiting although windows were broken in nearby homes in both cities.

Almost as soon as the roar of the explosion died at Nashville, Rabbi William B. Silverman of the Jewish temple there got a telephone call warning "the temple is going to be next." The caller also told the rabbi that Federal Judge William E. Miller "would be shot down in cold blood."

SIX FISHERMEN AWAIT RESCUE ON LAKE EIRE

Two Vessels Firmly Locked in Thick Ice

DUNNVILLE, Ont. (CP)—Five men and a boy today waited for a United States Coast Guard cutter to hack its way through ice and free their two fishing vessels in the east end of Lake Erie.

The Kaw was ordered to start at sunrise from Erie, Pa. Coast Guard officials said the cutter would probably take five to six hours to make the 60-mile trip.

The vessels were locked about 15 miles southeast of this town, 18 miles southwest of Welland.

Three men were aboard the Charles R., which left nearby Port Maitland early Saturday to set nets. Owner Daniel Minor said the boat, with himself, Leonard Farr and Wayne Chalmers aboard, was swept into the ice.

RESCUE SHIP CAUGHT

He radioed for help and the Colby, owned by William Siddall, put out Sunday. It also became ice-bound, about 20 feet away from the Charles R., and developed a hole that caused it to list.

Mr. Siddall's son, Wayne, 21, was aboard the Colby with Daniel's brother, Ray Minor, and Matthew Vargo, 14.

An attempt by the coast guard cutter Ojibway to reach the vessels from Buffalo, 40 miles east, was unsuccessful. An RCAF Dakota from Trenton dropped food to the group later Sunday.

USCG search and rescue district headquarters at Cleveland said the water was clearer from the west.

Mrs. Siddall, who spoke to the Colby by radiophone, said the group was short of blankets but had enough fuel to keep a fire going through the night.

Supreme Court Refuses Request Of Railways

OTTAWA (CP) — The railways today were refused leave to appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada against the size of their latest general freight rate increase.

The carriers had claimed that a 3.6-per-cent boost awarded them in December was too small and that the Board of Transport Commissioners had erred in law in calculating the amount of the permitted increase.

The application for leave to appeal to the high court, dismissed today by Mr. Justice C. H. Locke of the court, had been opposed by all provincial governments except Ontario and Quebec.

PROVINCES ALSO APPEAL

Meanwhile, the increase has been suspended by the federal cabinet until May 1 pending hearing of an appeal taken by the same provinces, who contend there should have been no increase.

The two appeals are separate, each having been taken on different grounds.

The railways had sought an increase of 10 per cent, estimated to yield them about $40,000,000 a year. The 3.6 per cent would be worth about $15,000,000 annually.

Pearson Hopeful of Liberal Victory in Quebec Ridings

MONT JOLI, Que. (CP)—Lester B. Pearson said today party reports give strong indications the Liberals will hold their present strength in Quebec on March 31.

The Liberal leader told a press conference the Progressive-Conservatives know that if they do not make gains in Quebec, they cannot hope to form a majority government.

"The best they can hope for is stalemate. If the general public begins to realize this, people will swing to the Liberals."

In the last Parliament the Liberals held 64 of Quebec's 75 seats in the 265-seat Commons. The Conservatives held nine and Independents held two.

Mr. Pearson, who campaigns in the province the last time today before swinging into Ontario, told reporters:

"We seem to be picking up strength as we go along. The last week or two has been immensely stimulating and encouraging."

"Apparently the people are beginning to feel that we have a plan for the emergency and the Conservatives have not. In fact the more we talk about our plan, the less the Conservatives talk of their public works. We are getting our message across.

"You have seen the enthusiasm in our Atlantic tour," he told correspondents of his campaign train. "I am told that if we had gone into the Atlantic area two or three weeks ago, we might not have got the same impression."

Mr. Pearson touched again on the "tight money" controversy. He said a further study of the Bank of Canada 1957 annual report supports the Liberal party's view that tax cuts in the spring of 1957 would have been bad for the country.

14 Days Before Canadians Pronounce Decision at Polls

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The campaign for the March 31 federal election pounded into its second-last week today.

With 14 days to go until Canadians pronounce their decision at the polls, Prime Minister Diefenbaker spurred the Progressive Conservative cause in Manitoba while Liberal Leader Lester B. Pearson rode purposefully into Quebec.

CCF Leader M. J. Coldwell, pronounced still well-fit for action by his doctor during the weekend after complaining of road weariness earlier last week, remained in Ottawa awaiting a Tuesday engagement in Montreal.

Social Credit Leader Solon Low, meantime, made his way east from Alberta for a meeting tonight in Toronto.

While the hustings rang often during the weekend with phrases now familiar, both Mr. Diefenbaker and Mr. Pearson blew a new note each.

At Moose Jaw, Sask., the prime minister announced a cost-sharing agreement with Saskatchewan's CCF government which he said will enable an early start on the South Saskatchewan River power and irrigation project, already a seedling political issue in the droughts of the 1930s that forced many farmers out of southeastern Saskatchewan.

Mr. Pearson ended his Atlantic provinces campaign with a pledge in Moncton, N.B., that a Liberal government would expand national hospital insurance into a full health insurance scheme covering medical, dental and surgical costs. It now is to cover only normal hospital care.

In Ottawa, Mr. Coldwell emerged from a session with his doctor to say:

"Except for being tired I am very well. I shall be able to continue the campaign until election day, March 31."

The 69-year-old CCF leader suffered a mild heart attack a year ago that curtailed his campaigning in last June's election.

Spread of Indonesian Revolt Against Sukarno Now Likely

SINGAPORE (AP) — The fall of North Sumatra's key port, Medan to a rebellious army garrison touched off speculation today that North Celebes and other island sectors soon will join the spreading war against President Sukarno's regime.

The central government confirmed rebel reports that some 2,000 troops under Maj. Boyke Nainne Golan seized the city of 300,000 — Sumatra's largest—Sunday in the second major development since the rebellion in the outer islands turned into a civil war nearly two weeks ago.

Obviously alarmed over the turn of events, Sukarno ordered reinforcements dispatched to the Medan area.

In North Celebes, in East Indonesia, the rebel commander, Lt.-Col. Ventje Sumal, was expected to launch an offensive soon. There also were indications the strongly anti-Communist garrison in West Java might join the spreading revolt.

Neutral South Sumatra also showed signs of swinging over to the rebels. A broadcast from the capital of Palembang denounced the government's attack on central Sumatra, and the South Sumatran commander, Lt.-Col. Barlian, held long conferences with his staff on the situation. And in a speech he urged negotiations "to halt further destruction."

Sukarno announced that his forces had captured the town of Siak Sri Indrapura in central Sumatra. He claimed the seizure consolidated the central government's control of the east coast of central Sumatra. The rebels still hold the west coast and its big port, Padang.

Sukarno also authorized the U.S.-owned Caltex Oil Co., to resume operations in the central Sumatran oil fields around Pakanbaru. The company suspended operations when the Jakarta forces invaded.

Sukarno's chief of staff, Maj.-Gen. Abdul Haris Nasution, broadcast an appeal to Col. Djamin Gintings, fleeing commander of the North Sumatra area, and the chiefs of the navy and air force to keep contact with Jakarta.

The rebel radio said Gintings took to the hills with some 600 troops when the insurgents began arresting loyalist officers and was holed up in the mountains of Sibolga, about 100 miles south of Medan.

Irish Welcome St. Patrick With Donnybrook

LONDON (CP) — More than 1,000 Irishmen started St. Patrick's Day shenanigans several hours in advance Sunday night with a bang-up donnybrook in Soho.

Two rival groups clashed in streets around Soho Square as visiting Irish republic Prime Minister Eamon de Valera attended mass in nearby St. Patrick's Church.

Canada Counts 25 Killed In Accidents

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Canada counted at least 25 persons killed in accidents this weekend.

A Canadian Press survey from 6 p.m. local time Friday to midnight Sunday found 19 killed in traffic mishaps, four burned to death, one drowned and one believed accidentally shot.

The toll by provinces (traffic deaths in brackets): Ontario 12 (10), Nova Scotia 5 (2), Newfoundland 3 (3), Quebec 2 (2), British Columbia 2 (1), Saskatchewan 1 (1).

Ontario deaths:

Howard Adair, 29, of Toronto in a car-truck crash at Kapuskasing Saturday.

Thomas Knowles, 41, and Charles Sheahan, 31, in a level-crossing crash at Ingersoll Saturday.

William McDowell, 48, and Mrs. Emile Flanagan, 51, in a two-car collision at Toronto, Sunday.

Alice Walton, 66, of Burlington, struck by a bus Saturday night after visiting her sick husband in Hamilton General hospital.

Police said Mrs. Walton suffered from poor eyesight and wore a contact lens in one eye.

Harry E. Middleboro, 84, struck by a car at Owen Sound Saturday.

Carl Reiha, 72, and his wife, Ida, 80, in a two-car collision near Kitchener Sunday.

Sadaichi Tahara, 80, struck by a car in Toronto Sunday while crossing an east-end street.

SHOT TO DEATH

Barry Lamond, 16, found shot to death in his Kirkland Lake home Saturday. Police believe a pistol he was examining accidentally discharged. An inquest has been ordered.

At Owen Sound Thomas Cooper, 22-month-old baby son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Cooper of nearby Chatsworth, was burned to death Saturday evening when fire swept through the couple's one-storey log home on Highway 6. The father is unemployed.

The small 14-by-16 house, lined and partitioned with pasteboard, was burned to the ground. The blaze was believed started from a kitchen stove.

The boy was the Coopers' only child. They were working on their old model car at a gateway 150 feet from the house when a passer-by drew their attention to smoke billowing from the home.

They tried in vain to rescue their child while the Chatsworth fire brigade was being called.

SET BIG FIRE

CHICAGO (AP) — A policeman's two young sons Sunday told police investigators they set a $400,000 fire that destroyed a public school Saturday. Police Capt. Edward LeFevour identified the boys as Robert Merchant, 12, and John, 7. LeFevour quoted their parents as saying the 12-year-old has been undergoing treatment because "he loves fires."

NOMINATION DAY TO SEE SMALLEST FIELD SINCE '40

One Member of PC Party Is Acclaimed

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Nominations close today for the March 31 Dominion election. One Progressive Conservative acclamation and the smallest field of candidates since 1940 were in prospect.

By 2 p.m. local standard time, aspirants for office must file their official nomination papers bearing signatures of at least 10 qualified voters and pay a $200 deposit, forfeited if the candidate polls less than half the vote of the winner in his constituency.

Today's official nominations are in 242 of Canada's 263 constituencies, two of which return two members apiece. Nominations closed March 3, two weeks ago, in 21 large, scattered constituencies where extra time is needed for delivery of ballots and other election supplies.

The acclamation was expected in the traditionally Conservative riding of Lanark in the Ottawa district where the only candidate named in advance nominations was George Doucett, former Ontario minister of highways. Mr. Doucett resigned his Ontario legislature seat last summer to take Lanark by acclamation in a by-election called to fill the vacancy left by the death of Dr. William Blair, member since 1945.

SHOW PROBABLES

An advance Canadian Press compilation showed at least 281 candidates probable in the 265 constituencies. Most were nominated at party conventions. Some simply announced their intention of standing.

Barring a late splurge of entries, the final total is not expected to top 835, lowest since 1940 when 672 faced the barrier for 245 seats. The 1957 election last June 10 drew 862 starters and the record high was 954 in 1945.

The governing Progressive Conservative party, seeking a clear majority in the House of Commons where it held 113 of the 265 seats at dissolution, is contesting every seat. Liberals, with 106 members at dissolution, are running in 264. Their only vacancy is in Lanark.

In 1957, Liberals contested all 265 seats and Progressive Conservatives all but nine, including Burin-Burgeo in Newfoundland where Liberal Chesley W. Carter got the only acclamation in that election. This time he faces a Conservative opponent.

The CCF, with 25 seats at dissolution, is contesting 170 seats compared with 162 last June. Social Credit, with 19 seats, has 82 candidates compared with 114 a year ago.

Others number 40 compared with 65 starttrs, last June 10 and this is the group most likely to show a sizeable increase today. They include 18 Communist Labor-Progressives who had 10 candidates last time. Two Independents held seats in the last House and there are six candidates with that label this time.

WILL BE FIRST

If the acclamation develops in Lanark it will be the first for the Conservatives in a general election since 1900 except for the 1917 wartime election when nine Union government candidates, including both Conservatives and Liberals, were returned on nominationsday.

Former Aconic Mining Corp. Head Surrenders to Police

TORONTO (CP)—Joseph Beaudry, millionaire Montreal tavern owner and former president of Aconic Mining Corporation, surrendered to police today, on charges involving the collapse of Aconic stock.

Beaudry was advised at Miami Beach, Fla., where he was on holiday, that a warrant was out for his arrest. He returned Sunday night.

Aconic shares dropped on the Toronto Stock Exchange to $1 from more than $11 a share during a two-hour period last August. The stock was later suspended from trading on the exchange.

Jointly charged with Clifford J. Butler, former general manager of Aconic, Beaudry is accused of conspiring by fraudulent means to affect the market price of Aconic between Nov. 1, 1956, and Aug. 31, 1957, and with conspiracy to defraud the public of money in relation of the trading of voting trust stock of Aconic on the Toronto exchange.

Butler was arrested two months ago on similar charges and is on bail of $50,000.

Police opened their investigation into the Aconic dealings following representations made by Attorney-General Roberts of Ontario. Beaudry headed Aconic until January, 1957.

Aconic owns magnetite sands property in Natashquian near Sept Iles, Que., a titanium prospect in Saguenay County, Que., and a cobalt-silver prospect in the Cobalt area of Ontario.

Tiny 6-Inch Ball Will Stay Aloft Five To 10 Years

U.S. Now Has 2 'Moons' In Sky With Sputnik

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) The U.S. Navy's Vanguard rocket hurled the second U.S. satellite into orbit today.

With its back to the wall after two highly-publicized failures, the Navy launched the Vanguard in one of the most perfect flights ever seen at this missile test centre.

Belching fire and smoke, the rocket left its launching pad at 7:16 a.m. EST.

Two hours and 23 minutes later, President Eisenhower told the world the trouble-plagued Vanguard had succeeded.

BIG CELEBRATIONS

His announcement that the Vanguard's tiny "moon" was circling the earth with the Army's Explorer and Russia's Sputnik II touched off a celebration in Navy circles here and among personnel of the Martin Company, which built the rocket.

The U.S. Army launched Explorer with the Jupiter-C missile here Jan. 31.

16 MINUTES LATE

The firing originally was scheduled for 7 a.m. sharp. It was just 16 minutes off this schedule when it blasted off.

Test range instruments indicated the rocket's three stages and the small "moon" in its nose separated successfully, Cmdr. Vincent Thomas told reporters in Washington.

The Vanguard thundered off its launching stand to the cheers of watchers who had seen two previous firings end in flames and discouragement.

An official bulletin telephoned from Cape Canaveral to the defence department said:

"TV-4 (test vehicle No. 4) was launched today at 7:16 a.m. EST. The first and second stages of the vehicle appeared to function normally. Further information concerning the results of the test will be issued by the department of defence in Washington as soon as it becomes available."

The launching was primarily an experiment in the capability of the three-stage rocket to climb 260 or more miles into the sky and then angle over into a horizontal course.

If it succeeded also in depositing the 6.4-inch sphere in its nose into an 18,000-mile an hour orbit, this would be sheer profit.

EYE-WITNESS ACCOUNT

The 72-foot Vanguard missile climbed vertically for more than 10 seconds.

High aloft the giant rocket put out a trailer of white smoke, and part of the rocket could be seen to break away.

This may have been the first stage falling away from the main part of the rocket.

The missile continued to put out a pink trail of vapor as it angled away toward the south.

SAILS FOR NEW YORK

LISBON, Portugal (AP)—Don Juan of Bourbon, pretender to the Spanish throne, sailed Sunday for New York aboard the Saltillo, a 42-ton, 66-foot ketch. He hopes to reach New York within 45 days.

WASHINGTON (AP)—Dr. John P. Hagen, director of the Vanguard project, said today the new earth-circling satellite probably will be in orbit five to 10 years.

Hagen told a press conference that on the basis of provisional figures the satellite is travelling between 18,000 and 19,000 miles an hour, is going out as far as 2,500 miles and coming as close to the earth as 400 miles.

On this basis, he said, it will be a "very long-lived satellite."

Soon, Hagen said, the U.S. Navy is prepared to attempt a launching of a fully-instrumented scientific satellite of about basketball size.

The new satellite itself weighs only a little more than three pounds and is something like six inches in diameter. It is not expected to be visible even with binoculars except under highly-unlikely conditions.

Police Blotter

A number of minor accidents, a stolen auto, a few drunks, and an uninvited guest at the county jail, kept city and provincial police fairly busy over the weekend.

A Madoc man was found sleeping on a bench in the basement of the county jail and on being picked up by police was charged with vagrancy and this time returned to inside the cells.

And another man picked up by an ambulance and taken to hospital when he was believed to have suffered an epileptic fit, was later charged with being drunk when he attempted to damage the ambulance.

Henry J. Johnston, 73 South John Street, was charged with drunk driving after his car slammed into the rear of another car on Dundas St. The car which was rammed by Mr. Johnston's vehicle, was owned by an American tourist from Massachusetts. Damage amounted to about $400.

Provincial police investigated a two-car accident at the corner of North Front and College Sts. Damage was over $100 but no injuries were reported.

And at Chatterton west of Foxboro, on No. 14 Highway, a car driven by Mrs. Flossie Ritz, North Park Street, skidded off the highway and struck a telephone pole. Damage to the pole was about $40 and to the car $50.

Gordon Lee, 28 Frank Street, reported his car stolen from in front of his residence. Provincial police later found the car abandoned on the OSD road near the Drive-in Theatre.

IN MEMORIAM

SMITH. — In loving memory of a dear father, Harry Smith, who passed away March 17th, 1957.

What we would give if we could say,
Hello Dad, in the same old way;
To hear your voice, see you smile,
To sit with you and chat awhile.
So you who have a father,
Cherish him with care;
For you'll never know the heartache
'Till you see his vacant chair.

—Sadly missed and ever remembered by daughter Margaret and son-in-law George.

SMITH. — In loving memory of a dear husband, Harry Smith, who passed away March 17th, 1957.

He bade no one his last farewell,
He said goodbye to none;
The heavenly gates were opened,
A loving voice said, come.
I often sit and think of you,
The things you used to say;
I wonder why you had to die,
Without a chance to say goodbye.
Though out of sight, you're ever
Still missed, loved, still mine;
You will live with me in memory,
Until the end of time.

—Ever remembered and sadly missed by wife.

SMITH. — In loving memory of a dear brother-in-law, Harry Smith, who passed away March 17th, 1957.

His memory is as dear today,
As in the hour he passed away.

—Ever remembered by Vi and Allan Ealy.

Though you died one year ago.

SMITH. — In loving memory of a dear father and grandfather, Harry J. Smith, who passed away March 17th, 1957.

One year today our dad was called
To his eternal rest,
Gone where angels sing so sweet,
And taken when God knew best.
We miss him here so very much,
His presence oft seems nigh,
But we hope in heaven to meet
Where no one says goodbye.

—Ever remembered by son Harry, daughter-in-law Shirley and family.

Nature Dumps Four Inches of Snow on City

Know what the snowfall was in Belleville since Friday? The pump house on the Trent Road reported today that almost four inches of snow fell since a storm passed over Pennsylvania Friday.

But after the conversion factor is applied, the snowfall is reduced to 0.38 inch of water. For those who are interested, 10 inches of snow are the approximate equivalent [illegible] of water.

The weather bureau at [illegible] Station Trenton said today the weekend's snow [illegible] was caused by a disturbance over the Maritimes and the [illegible] which was an [illegible] of Friday's storm over [illegible].

What's the weather [illegible] for the next few days? [illegible] seasonal temperatures [illegible] no snow in sight. It is likely cool weather will be around until the "jet stream," now [illegible] above Chicago and Washington, eases a bit further north. A week or so ago it was flowing over Louisiana and caused severe storms in that area.

PEARSON

"Mr. Coyne (Bank governor James E. Coyne) makes it clear tha' demand for money and credit continued to rise throughout the first half of the year; and that the turn away from these inflationary circumstances did not start until August.

"Indeed, right up to October, employment went on increasing as fast as in 1956; unemployment increased only to the extent to which the labor force grew more rapidly. It was ot until later in the year that unemployment began to rise more rapidly than the labor force.

"The report shows that the cause of this recession was not monetary policy. It was set off by slackening of demand pressure for Canadian products, lumber, pup and paper, copper, lead and zinc—in foreign markets.

"The report also shows that if a 'loose money' policy had been adopted in the spring — whether by the Bank of Canada or by the government through tax cuts—this would have brought on a more serious recession with a great degree of unemployment.

"This is a conclusive answer to the Conservative criticism that we should have reduced taxes last spring. . . .

"This objective report makes nonsense of the story the prime minister has been telling voters—that he inherited a recession which was due to Liberal policies of tight money."

PC's Threaten To Defect to Liberal Ranks

QUEBEC (CP) — Dissension had leaked into the ranks of Quebec City Progressive Conservatives and a group of party supporters has threatened to defect to the Liberal opposition.

Two nominated Conservative candidates have been replaced by appointments and the dissatisfied group has called for the withdrawal of a third as the March 31 federal election draws nearer.

The group, in announcements published Saturday in Quebec City's daily newspapers as paid advertisements, called for Dr. Louis Gagnon to replace Yvon R. Tasse as Conservative candidate in Quebec East.

Mr. Tasse was appointed last Wednesday after the nominated candidate, Emilien Simard, withdrew. Dr. Gagnon was defeated at a nomination convention.

The advertisements were signed by nine men. Dr. Gagnon confirmed the signers were his supporters, but said the advertisements were "published without my knowledge."

The newspaper advertisements said that unless Mr. Tasse withdraws in 24 hours, the signers would "give our support to the Liberal party" and reveal the "names of the politicians of our party who are ruining the career of an honest professional man."

In Quebec West, lawyer Raymond Maher filed nomination papers Friday night as an Indeepndent Conservative candidate. J. Wilfrid Dufresne, a former member for the seat, had won the nomination, but later announced his withdrawal "for personal reasons." Dr. J. Eugene Bissonette was appointed to replace him.

TINY 6-INCH

It was impossible to tell whether it was flying properly and on course.

The pre-launch checkdown proceeded with amazing smoothness, even more rapidly than had been the case with the Army's much simpler Jupiter-C rocket that put Explorer I into the skies.

LIQUID OXYGEN FUEL

The rising sun highlighted the missile and the frost accumulating on its midsection, icy cold from its liquid oxygen fuel content.

The weather was just right. There was no wind to turn or twice the long and awkardly light missile.

When the 44-foot first stage fell away the rocket was 35 miles high. Experts said the first stage probably fell into the ocean about 275 miles from this launching site.

The round satellite in the missile's nose weighed only 3¼ pounds as against 30.8 pounds for the 80-inch long, six-inch wide cylinder of Explorer I, the 184 pounds of the now defunct Sputnik I, and the 1,120 pounds of the dog-carrying Sputnik II.

It contained two radios, one powered by solar cells designed to draw their enery from the sun and the other by conventional batteries.

The sun-powered radio, operating on 108.03 megacycles at about 5 miliwatts, was geared to send back information on the temperature of the satellite's aluminum skin. The other would broadcast internal temperatures on 108 megcycles at 10 miliwatts.

The baby moon's companion satellite would be the Vanguard-spent third stage rocket, a tube 18 inches in diameter and five feet long.

$1,000 Damage To Two Cars In Collision

TRENTON—Damage was estimated at $1,000 to both cars which were involved in a head-on collision on Dundas Street East at the intersection of Ontario Street. No one was injured.

Charles Sheppard, of 58 Kerr Crescent, driving a vehicle belonging to Lange and Fetter Motors, reported to police that he was proceeding along Dundas East and after going over the town bridge and approaching the Ontario Street intersection he saw another vehicle pull way out onto Dundas.

He said he applied his brakes but was unable to stop the car he was driving and crashed head-on into the oncoming vehicle. After hitting the other, his car bounced over to the other side of the road which was slippery and covered with slush.

The accident occurred about 8.10 p.m. on Saturday.

Horace Adey of 94 Marmora Street, driver of the second vehicle, reported he was proceeding south along Ontario Street and, when pulling out onto Dundas Street East to go west over the town bridge, he said his car failed to get any traction when turning the corner and went out a little further than it should have due to the slippery conditions. He said he got it back on the right side of the road but the oncoming vehicle, which had applied his brakes, skidded across the road and into the front end of his.

Both cars suffered extensive damage to the front ends and radiators.

Councillors Will Adhere to Rule

TRENTON — The town council will meet in the board room of the municipal building tonight and a motion on procedure passed at the last meeting will be adhered to.

After the last council meeting went into a two-day affair, Councillor Ray Fox decided something should be done about the lengthy debates which have consumed so much time at the council sessions.

Looking back over the "Rules of Procedure" for the town council he came upon an old ruling which said each councillor must stand when addressing the chair.

Councillor Fox made the motion that in the future this ruling should be put into practice in an attempt to cut down on lengthy discussions. The rest of the councillors agreed and tonight's meeting will be the first session the practice will be used.

However reports from the town office say the agenda for the meeting tonight is expected to be quite short with only a few items coming up for discussion and all of a minor nature.

It is not known what committee chairmen will make in the line of reports tonight although It is expected Councillor Worrall will make some report on the issue of the new police station and progress on the purchase of a new aerial fire truck.

Councillor Worrall is chairman of the Protection to Persons and Property Committee.

Mayor Ross Burtt will sit in the chair at tonight's meeting. He was absent at the last sitting while attending a convention.

Town Briefs

TRENTON — Ted Snider, manager of the Trenton radio station, and Jim O'Neil, news editor of a local paper, left this morning for Washington, U.S.A. aboard an RCAF plane. The plane will be one of several which will practise landings at larger world airports. The Washington International is believed among the biggest. After a three-hour stop in Washington the planes will return to Trenton. They are expected to return about 8 p.m. tonight. The newsmen are on the flight under the invitation of the public relations office.

TRAFFIC CUT

The one inch of wet snow which fell on Trenton over the weekend kept traffic to a minimum and cut traffic accidents. Few cars were noted on the highway with weather conditions making pleasure driving on Sunday almost out of the question.

SUDDEN DEATH

The Combines will meet the Falcons tonight in a sudden-death game for the Series "B" crown of the RCAF Station Trenton League. The game will get underway at 8 p.m. and will be the only one tonight. It is understood the F.I.S. will not continue the playoffs with the Rockets in the Series "A" finals. This would give the Rockets the championship in their division. Only one game was played between the Rockets and F.I.S. with the Rockets taking it 8-6. There will be no playoff between the winners of Series "A" and Series "B" in the RCAF league.

NO INJURIES

Nine slight accidents were reported to the town police officials last week with none of them totalling in damages to much over $50. There were no injuries reported. There were only two reported due to the slush which covered the town streets over the past few days.

Be Objective . . .

In our opinion, investment should be objective. It should have a purpose and once the purpose is clearly defined, then securities can be selected to accomplish that purpose.

If you want to gamble, good luck to you, but . . . you should be prepared to lose and surprised to win. Go in with your eyes wide open.

If you want to speculate . . . then take a calculated risk. Know why your selected securities should be worth more, calculate how much more, and in roughly what period of time. Plan your future action in the event that you are right . . . and also in the event that you are wrong.

If you want income . . . design a fund for income. If you want long-term growth and are willing to take the risks . . . design a fund for long-term growth.

If you want a balanced fund to take care of contingencies and provide a chance for reasonable income and growth . . . then design your fund that way.

Plan your investment fund to accomplish your purpose . . . be objective in what you do.

Planning programmes and helping investors be objective is part of our job. Perhaps we can help you.

"Mr. Coyne (Bank governor James E. Coyne) makes it clear tha' demand for money and credit continued to rise throughout the first half of the year; and that the turn away from these inflationary circumstances did not start until August.

"Indeed, right up to October, employment went on increasing as fast as in 1956; unemployment increased only to the extent to which the labor force grew more rapidly. It was ot until later in the year that unemployment began to rise more rapidly than the labor force.

"The report shows that the cause of this recession was not monetary policy. It was set off by slackening of demand pressure for Canadian products, lumber, pup and paper, copper, lead and zinc—in foreign markets.

"The report also shows that if a 'loose money' policy had been adopted in the spring — whether by the Bank of Canada or by the government through tax cuts—this would have brought on a more serious recession with a great degree of unemployment.

"This is a conclusive answer to the Conservative criticism that we should have reduced taxes last spring. . . .

"This objective report makes nonsense of the story the prime minister has been telling voters—that he inherited a recession which was due to Liberal policies of tight money."

Wm. Hamilton Special Speaker At Sales, Ad Club

Guest speaker at Tuesday evening's Sales and Ad Club meeting here will be Hon. William Hamilton, M.P. for Notre Dame de Grace, Montreal, and Canada's Postmaster General.

A native of Montreal, the 39-year-old cabinet minister in the Diefenbaker government has had a varied career, leading up to his election as Progressive Conservative member in 1953.

Following graduation from high school he worked as salesman in printing and advertising and then for some years was active in press photography. During this time he studied commerce at a night school course at the Sir George Williams College.

On completion of his course in commerce he became chief accountant in the Canadian office of an English private bank, then was manager of a hotel in Nassau and later served with the Wartime Prices and Trades Board, becoming head of prices division, Montreal branch.

Later he was associated in an executive capacity with a wholesale paper and stationary business and after serving in an executive capacity with the Advertising and Sales Executive Club in Montreal and with the Federation of Canadian Advertising and Sales Clubs in 1950 was appointed councillor with the Young Men's Section of the Montreal Board of Trade.

He entered federal politics in 1953 and was elected for the Montreal riding of Notre Dame de Grace and was re-elected last June 10th.

PC's Threaten To Defect to Liberal Ranks

QUEBEC (CP) — Dissension had leaked into the ranks of Quebec City Progressive Conservatives and a group of party supporters has threatened to defect to the Liberal opposition.

Two nominated Conservative candidates have been replaced by appointments and the dissatisfied group has called for the withdrawal of a third as the March 31 federal election draws nearer.

The group, in announcements published Saturday in Quebec City's daily newspapers as paid advertisements, called for Dr. Louis Gagnon to replace Yvon R. Tasse as Conservative candidate in Quebec East.

Mr. Tasse was appointed last Wednesday after the nominated candidate, Emilien Simard, withdrew. Dr. Gagnon was defeated at a nomination convention.

The advertisements were signed by nine men. Dr. Gagnon confirmed the signers were his supporters, but said the advertisements were "published without my knowledge."

The newspaper advertisements said that unless Mr. Tasse withdraws in 24 hours, the signers would "give our support to the Liberal party" and reveal the "names of the politicians of our party who are ruining the career of an honest professional man."

In Quebec West, lawyer Raymond Maher filed nomination papers Friday night as an Indepndent Conservative candidate, J. Wilfrid Dufresne; a former member for the seat, had won the nomination, but later announced his withdrawal "for personal reasons." Dr. J. Eugene Bissonette was appointed to replace him.

TINY 6-INCH

It was impossible to tell whether it was flying properly and on course.

The pre-launch checkdown proceeded with amazing smoothness, even more rapidly than had been the case with the Army's much simpler Jupiter-C rocket that put Explorer I into the skies.

LIQUID OXYGEN FUEL

The rising sun highlighted the missile and the frost accumulating on its midsection, icy cold from its liquid oxygen fuel content.

The weather was just right. There was no wind to turn or twice the long and awkardly light missile.

When the 44-foot first stage fell away the rocket was 35 miles high. Experts said the first stage probably fell into the ocean about 275 miles from this launching site.

The round satellite in the missile's nose weighed only 3¼ pounds as against 30.8 pounds for the 80-inch long, six-inch wide cylinder of Explorer I, the 184 pounds of the now defunct Sputnik I, and the 1,120 pounds of the dog-carrying Sputnik II.

It contained two radios, one powered by solar cells designed to draw their enery from the sun and the other by conventional batteries.

The sun-powered radio, operating on 108.03 megacycles at about 5 miliwatts, was geared to send back information on the temperature of the satellite's aluminum skin. The other would broadcast internal temperatures on 108 megacycles at 10 miliwatts.

The baby moon's companion satellite would be the Vanguard-spent third stage rocket, a tube 18 inches in diameter and five feet long.

$1,000 Damage To Two Cars In Collision

TRENTON—Damage was estimated at $1,000 to both cars which were involved in a head-on collision on Dundas Street East at the intersection of Ontario Street. No one was injured.

Charles Sheppard, of 58 Kerr Crescent, driving a vehicle belonging to Lange and Fetter Motors, reported to police that he was proceeding along Dundas East and after going over the town bridge and approaching the Ontario Street intersection he saw another vehicle pull way out onto Dundas.

He said he applied his brakes but was unable to stop the car he was driving and crashed head-on into the oncoming vehicle. After hitting the other, his car bounced over to the other side of the road which was slippery and covered with slush.

The accident occurred about 8.10 p.m. on Saturday.

Horace Adey of 94 Marmora Street, driver of the second vehicle, reported he was proceeding south along Ontario Street and, when pulling out onto Dundas Street East to go west over the town bridge, he said his car failed to get any traction when turning the corner and went out a little further than it should have due to the slippery conditions. He said he got it back on the right side of the road but the oncoming vehicle, which had applied his brakes, skidded across the road and into the front end of his.

Both cars suffered extensive damage to the front ends and radiators.

Councillors Will Adhere to Rule

TRENTON — The town council will meet in the board room of the municipal building tonight and a motion on procedure passed at the last meeting will be adhered to.

After the last council meeting went into a two-day affair, Councillor Ray Fox decided something should be done about the lengthy debates which have consumed so much time at the council sessions.

Looking back over the "Rules of Procedure" for the town council he came upon an old ruling which said each councillor must stand when addressing the chair.

Councillor Fox made the motion that in the future this ruling should be put into practice in an attempt to cut down on lengthy discussions. The rest of the councillors agreed and tonight's meeting will be the first session the practice will be used.

However reports from the town office say the agenda for the meeting tonight is expected to be quite short with only a few items coming up for discussion and all of a minor nature.

It is not known what committee chairmen will make in the line of reports tonight although it is expected Councillor Worrall will make some report on the issue of the new police station and progress on the purchase of a new aerial fire truck.

Councillor Worrall is chairman of the Protection to Persons and Property Committee.

Mayor Ross Burtt will sit in the chair at tonight's meeting. He was absent at the last sitting while attending a convention.

Town Briefs

TRENTON — Ted Snider, manager of the Trenton radio station, and Jim O'Nell, news editor of a local paper, left this morning for Washington, U.S.A. aboard an RCAF plane. The plane will be one of several which will practise landings at larger world airports. The Washington International is believed among the biggest. After a three-hour stop in Washington the planes will return to Trenton. They are expected to return about 8 p.m. tonight. The newsmen are on the flight under the invitation of the public relations office.

TRAFFIC CUT

The one inch of wet snow which fell on Trenton over the weekend kept traffic to a minimum and cut traffic accidents. Few cars were noted on the highway with weather conditions making pleasure driving on Sunday almost out of the question.

SUDDEN DEATH

The Combines will meet the Falcons tonight in a sudden-death game for the Series "B" crown of the RCAF Station Trenton League. The game will get underway at 8 p.m. and will be the only one tonight. It is understood the F.I.S. will not continue the playoffs with the Rockets in the Series "A" finals. This would give the Rockets the championship in their division. Only one game was played between the Rockets and F.I.S. with the Rockets taking it 8-6. There will be no playoff between the winners of Series "A" and Series "B" in the RCAF league.

NO INJURIES

Nine slight accidents were reported to the town police officials last week with none of them totalling in damages to much over $50. There were no injuries reported. There were only two reported due to the slush which covered the town streets over the past few days.

A LONG AND USEFUL LIFE

The death last week of ex-alderman Harry J. Clarke was widely mourned in this, his native city.

Comparatively few men are granted as many years of life as those enjoyed by Mr. Clarke. Not all who have such a lengthy life-span use it as fully or as wisely. Mr. Clarke was a living example of the absurdity of the claim that a man's usefulness to the community is ended when he retires from his chosen life-work. After a full and active career as a teacher and as a school inspector, Mr. Clarke made what amounted to a second career for himself in municipal politics. He continued to serve his fellow citizens in this new role with competence and courage. His seventeen years in the City Council testify to his love of his native city and his desire to show his love by good works.

Fortunately for Belleville and for other similar communities in Canada and other lands, this interest in the welfare of the community is not unique. Many other citizens share the same feelings, but all too few recognize, as Mr. Clarke did, that so-called retirement can be just the opening of the door of opportunity to serve in another field.

DROPPED BY ACCIDENT

Now it has happened. An atom bomb has been dropped by mistake.

The result was nowhere near as terrifying as many of the forecasts. The bomb exploded, but the explosion was not a nuclear blast but came from TNT, variously described as part of the mechanism for triggering the atomic explosion and as a method of scattering the radioactive material, presumably to safeguard against any possibility that it might explode.

Results were bad enough. One house was wrecked, six others and a church damaged and six persons injured. Even the TNT explosion could have been much worse. Had the bomb fallen on a house, rather than 100 yards from it, somebody would almost certainly have been killed.

In one sense, it may be argued that this incident did more good than harm. It provides proof that the United States authorities are telling the truth when they state that there is no danger of an atomic explosion resulting from the accidental dropping of a bomb.

However, there still remain questions. In the first place, it is now proven that bombs can be dropped by accident. What has happened once may very well happen again. In one sense, what we are discussing is no longer what would happen if an atomic bomb is dropped by accident, but what happens when one is so dropped. The "if" has been eliminated.

The next point which will almost certainly be raised is whether the nuclear bombs which U.S. planes carry on flights from bases overseas are identical with the one dropped in South Carolina. This was officially described as "an unarmed nuclear device." U.S. planes on patrols overseas are frankly reported to carry bombs so that there is no possibility of a surprise attack destroying all the forces of "massed retaliation." Some of the planes are always in the air ready to strike. Are the bombs they carry not merely "unarmed" but "unarmed" in the same sense as applied to that one which was dropped by accident in South Carolina? We suspect that the answer is in the affirmative - - but we also suspect that those people in lands overseas who find it a little nerve-wracking to know that nuclear bombs are flying around over their homes are not going to be overly comforted by what happened at Mars Bluff, S.C.

KEEP DOORS LOCKED

A middle-aged woman was assaulted in her Toronto home over the weekend by an unidentified man.

The police report said she had gone to bed after leaving the front door unlocked.

Let this be a lesson to everyone, regardless of where they live.

Be sure your doors are locked before retiring at night.

must have had a friendly way
And known the needs of maids and men.
knew what lovers wished to say
And tender notes for them would pen.

The human heart he understood,
The human mind he tried to aid.
He wrote their letters when he could
To help the faltering man and maid.

The legends of his life still grow
And some, perhaps, the faithful doubt;
But good St. Patrick seemed to know
Just what the youthful think about.

He lent to them his precious pen,
He filled their notes with tender phrase;
He won the confidence of men,
And March holds now his day of days.

Those Potted Bulbs

New York Times

A snow crocus, defying the weather, is blooming in the front yard. The lady of the house — who in season is also the head gardener — stopped to admire it the other day. And then came to pass that which the assistant gardener, chewing on his pipestem, had greatly feared. The sight of this fragile flower, reaching from some irrepressible instinct through the cold toward the sun, reminded the head gardener of certain flower pots, containing tulip and hyacinth bulbs.

Long ago — a long time ago, in the autumn when this spring's bulbs arrived in their little brown paper bags — the head gardener (having read somewhere an article probably titled, "It's So Easy to Have Tulips on Your Windowsill") suggested potting some tulips and hyacinths and setting them out in the garden to be brought into the house after eight or ten weeks, then to be forced into bloom. The head gardener now wants to know the whereabouts of those potted bulbs and hyacinths.

A LITTLE LATE

This is a reasonable but embarrassing query. The assistant gardener had not forgotten about those pots, but he had forgotten how suddenly the weather can change in January; for then the ground was soft and those pots could and should have been dug up and carried to a cool place in the house.

It is no longer early January but the pots holding those bulbs are right where they were last autumn, and for a good reason. The earth surrounding them is rock-like; those pots as well might be set in concrete, and they surely are not coming out now. Tulips and hyacinths on the windowsill will be a little late, this year. The head gardener definitely is not amused.

Fortunately a distraction is at hand—the 1958 seed catalogue, which is a good thing to sit down to as the radiators gurgle and ice clings to the bottom of the window panes. This the catalogue indicates, will be the year for giant marigolds — fluffy marigolds resembling double chrysanthemums, and giant hybrid marigolds which promise to grow into balls of flaming color almost five inches in diameter.

The head gardener, being susceptible (to a point) to suggestion, undoubtedly will follow the catalogue cover's eye-stopping invitation to try these new giants. That is good, because marigolds are easy to grow — unlike some of the head gardener's 1957 selections. Reviewing last year's trials and errors the head gardener announces that in 1958 the garden will have fewer varieties of annuals and only those which the assistant gardener has proved he can nurse successfully from seed to flower.

POTS CAN STILL WAIT

The assistant gardener, lighting a pipe, does not care to remind the head gardener that this is what she said in 1957, 1956, 1955, and possibly in each of many years before that. He is certain that the 1958 order blank for annuals will again include stock, strawflowers, cornflowers, sweet peas, some new asters, snapdragons, petunias and phlox (in addition to the tried and true varieties).

The assistant gardener will agree to anything so long as he can keep the head gardener's eyes fixed dreamily on the 1958 seed catalogue and its colorful promises, instead of sternly upon that frozen plot in the back yard where, solidly entrenched, are those potted tulips and hyacinths which should be sprouting on the windowsill right now — and aren't.

Strength for The Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

HAVE WE IMPROVED?

A man out of college some thirty years was introducing his son to his classmates. As one of the older men shook hands with the younger man, he grinned and said, "Heavens above! What an improvment on the old man."

A classmate's jest, but in this case very true, and the philosophy expressed very much to the point. For if children are not better than their parents, they very decidedly are not as good. The youngsters have had the advantage of what their parents learned, gave them, and helped them to attain. They should be better. We repeat, if they are not better, they are not as good.

The complacent theory accepted some years ago that man was evolving upward and upward and that with the passing of time he would be free of all his earthly limitations and weaknesses, and be perfect — or as perfect as a styly indulgent earth-dweller wants to be — has now been cast into the ash can. Since 1900, we have killed more people in battle than ever before. If Attila the Hun ever returned and saw how we can — and in 1945 did — kill people off with atomic bombs, he would be scandalized.

No, we shall never evolve into any angelic state, but we can — and, thank God, we do — get better with the passing centuries. Anyone looking at us and our direct ancestor three hundred years ago should be able to say of us, "What an improvement on the old man."

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

An Irish friend of mine who is tired of his job thinks he will make his fortune. He plans to buy a hundred acre farm, not too far from the city, an old-run-down farm with not much prospect of fertility. And around this farm he will run a tight wire fence suitable for keeping dogs in. He will erect comfortable kennels for housing 200 dogs of assorted sizes.

And then he will advertise, offering to board a dog for $10 a week.

"Two hundred dogs," he says, "at $10 a week? Why, that's $2,000 a week And it wouldn't cost me more than $300 a week to feed them. That's $1,700 clear profit, per week."

"And where," I ask "would you get 200 dogs?"

"Look, he says. "At this time of year, right through to May, think of how many thousands of people there are, right in this city, who are being driven crazy by their dogs coming in filthy, with mud on their feet, tracking muck and slush and dirt all over the place. How many people would not think it a god send to be able to send their pet away for six weeks in March and April, and six weeks in November and December, during the two mud seasons?"

"You've got something," I agree.

"Twelve weeks," he says, "at $1,700 net per week: $20,400. The rest of the year, I could loaf.

"You'd have to bath them," I point out, "before returning them home. And comb the burrs out of them, and so forth."

"Well, say I allow $200 a week for some hired help," he says. "That leaves me $1,500 a week."

Is he ever tired of his present job!

TODAY'S TALK

NERVES AS ALLIES

One of the most interesting, instructive and inspiring books on health is the recent one by Dr. Walter C. Alvarez, formerly of the Mayo Clinic. Dr. Alvarez says that you can live at peace with your nerves, and he draws from his 53 years of distinguished practice to prove his statements. For years this cheerful medical man has been advocating common sense and intelligence in the mastering of your nerves. That is what this book is about. It is more useful than a novel, for it is a book about you! This noted Doctor says that you can live at peace with your nerves. His book is alive with suggestions and wise discoveries. None of us realize how we are being led around wrong roads because of our nerves. Dr. Alvarez contends that the nerves block out much of the happiness and spirit that should be ours. Here is a man who has well earned the title of "America's Family Doctor." His new book teems with knowledge from what he has learned, largely from his own patients. He acquaints you with yourself. He tells how many use disease as a mental crutch, and then tells them how to throw that crutch away.

He gets you away from the notion that you have to be at war with yourself. He teaches mental control and the mastering of the entire nervous system. He gives to his reader new viewpoints, and helps to simplify life. He talks the language that the average intelligent person can easily understand. The better we understand the wonderful body that is ours, the happier and healthier we be-

Thirty - one years ago today Mr. J. W. Johnson became associated with the Ontario Business College as co - principal and partner with Mr. W. B. Robinson. The college was founded in 1868 by Mr. Samuel G. Beatty and Mr. George Wallbridge. In 1871 Mr. Wallbridge retired and Mr. W. B. Robinson took Mr. Wallbridge's place with Mr. Beatty. Six years later Mr. Beatty withdrew from active connection with the college and it was at this time in 1877 that Mr. Johnson became connected with the college. The partnership of Robinson and Johnson continued for twenty seven years at which time in 1904 Mr. Robinson retired owing to ill health. Mr. Johnson then became head of the institution and he engaged as Assistant Principal Mr. I. L. Moore, an experienced instructor in business training. (Note 1958) Mr. Johnson continued active in the affairs of the college until 1919 when he retired after forty-two years association with the college. Mr. I. L. Moore assumed the management and position of principal and for the past 39 years he has successfully promoted the interests of this widely known institution — the O.B.C.

Atom May Oust Diesels

St. Catharines Standard

Announcement by the Canadian National Railways that orders have been placed with Canadian builders for 151 diesel - electric locomotive units came shortly after Vice-President Dr. O. M. Solandt of the CNR declared in an address the possibility of atomic-powered locomotives.

However, by the time the atomic-powered engines are ready for operation the diesels now being purchased by the CNR, and possibly for some years to come, will have served their purpose.

Dr. Solandt, who it will be remembered was chief of the defence research board before joining the CNR some two years ago, was quite frank in stating he did not expect that atomic locomotives would be used in his lifetime.

What Dr. Solandt did say was: "I think there is no doubt that a functional atomic locomotive could be built today, but I can see no economic incentive to build it. On the other hand, there does seem to be a strong possibility that the widespread availability of electrical power from nuclear power plants at reasonable prices may alter the economics of electrification of main lines. This is in fact now occurring on British railways."

Thus Dr. Solandt visualizes the use of atomic energy in the production of power for the operation of railways. It shows that his mind is as keen in seeking means of reducing railroad operating costs as it was in defence projects.

In the meantime, the Canadian National is continuing to extend its program of territorial dieselization.

To Your Good Health

By Joseph G. Molner, M.D.

TUBERCULOSIS CAN BE TRACED BY MANY TESTS

A letter from a worried reader recently took me back in memory, to a time when a friend of mine, then a rugged, healthy youngster in the late teens, discovered a smear of blood in his mouth.

He went dashing off to his doctor (a measure with which I can find no fault!) convinced that he must be in the serious stages of tuberculosis, or consumption as it was still called then.

As far as anybody could learn the blood came from a tear in the gum around an erupting wisdom tooth! That was pretty close to 30 years ago, and my friend is still without any sign of lung trouble.

This anecdote ties in rather closely with today's question. The inquiry comes from a woman who once had tuberculosis but was cured 14 years ago. Lately she has been spitting up some blood, and she was in immediate fear that the TB had returned. We can't certainly, blame her for leaping at once to such an unhappy suspicion.

Yet all sorts of tests — X-ray, sputum tests, bronchoscopic examinations and a host of others —revealed nothing more serious than a "slight bronchiectasis." I would not presume to try to guess an answer after a number of fine specialists have examined the patient and have found nothing serious.

In this day and age, it is rare that blood would be the first sign of TB. There are too many other signs, all of which can be traced readily by modern tests. In older days bloody sputum often was the first sign of TB.

SOME OF THE CAUSES

Today we know that the commonest cause of spitting blood is bronchiectasis. This is an ailment which, in simplified terms, amounts to the formation of a cavity, or cavities, in the lungs —a hollow, or "stretched" area. While this may affect former TB patients, it comes to many who never have had TB at all. Bronchitis and pneumonia, for instance, are other common inciting causes. Or it may develop without any vigorous illness at all.

But let's go on. There are so many causes for spitting blood that I could use this whole column just to list them. Yes, there are that many! Ulcers anywhere in the area can be the cause. Or some forms of heart trouble, tumors of bronchus or lung, lung congestion, clots in the lung, blood disorders, etc.

Or, to cite one common situation, remember that it is quite possible that the blood may come from above, rather than below — an ulcer in the nasal passages might (and often does) bleed, with the blood seeping down to the throat and then being "coughed up."

Persistent bleeding from bronchiectasis can be a nuisance, and if extensive can be serious. Removal of a lobe of the lung may prove to be the proper treatment. But remember that these other causes are numerous and varied.

I certainly must add this thought: In the late winter and early spring, a "cold that hangs on," without any sign of bleeding, is a good reason to seek a physical examination. The lingering, persistent "cold" at that time of year may be fair warning that one of many other things has started. So don't delay having a checkup. Make use of the "persistent cold" as a sign warning you to discover and treat the real trouble before it has time to get out of hand.

Quotations Intimidating

Hamilton Spectator

It may have been that the scholarly memory momentarily slipped, or that the ubiquitous ghost of Shakespeare played a trick on one of his fondest admirers and claimed something that was not his own. Mr. Lester B. Pearson gave his Liberal followers in Medicine Hat a rousing thought when he quoted:

> "Tis not in mortals to > command success;
> But we'll do more, Sempronius, — we'll deserve it."

and attributed it to Shakespeare's "Timon of Athens".

There is a "Shakespeare-ish" sound to it, but even so a few conscientious editors scuttled off to "Timon of Athens" to check it. They searched in vain. Others, knowing Mr. Pearson's scholarly reputation, took it on trust. The source of the quotation is Joseph Addison's play "Cato" (Scene 2). Shakespeare, for once, had nothing to do with it.

Mr. Pearson can be forgiven for the slip. One can only reflect on how wonderful it would have been if his utterance had been corrected by a full-throated protest from those Medicine Hat Liberals. But it was not so.

There is something intimidating about a quotation. Even for the learned there is always the feeling that memory may trick them, so they hesitate to correct. Then there is the labor of checking it . . . .

But what is perhaps amusing is that Mr. Pearson should have quoted, though unwittingly, from a play about a good, old fashioned conservative, honored in his time for his brave and sturdy defence of the status quo. And Cato was certainly all that, and much more.

Making Beds Hardest Job

St. Thomas Times-Journal

A research team headed by a physician has been making tests in Glasgow to ascertain what household chores make the greatest demands on the lady who runs the home.

They come up with the answer — making beds.

The finding was arrived at by means of a combination of masks and meters that registered the heat units developed in the course of housekeeping. A Dr. R. Passmore announces that bedmaking took 4½ units per minute; dusting took 3½, and cooking only two.

We doubt if the average woman would feel the making of beds was the hardest job she does, but if scientists say so she will have to believe it. Our sympathy goes out, therefore, to the chambermaid in a hotel who may have to make 20 beds a day and dust 20 rooms.

Prime Minister Warns Party of Over-Optimism

By ALAN DONNELLY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MOOSE JAW, Sask. (CP)—With election day two weeks off, Prime Minister Diefenbaker has warned his party against over-optimistic complacency.

"Don't take anything for granted," the Progressive Conservative leader said at a Saturday afternoon reception in Regina.

Then he motored here and in a 70-minute evening speech to an audience of 2,600 he made two statements aimed at boosting party chances on the Prairies.

He said agreement has been reached with Saskatchewan's CCF government on sharing costs on the South Saskatchewan River power and irrigation project. One or two "smaller matters" remained to be ironed out for a full agreement, but the long-talked-of project "will be proceeded with at the very earliest date."

He also promised "sympathetic consideration" of a new form of aid to Prairie farmers: federal deficiency payments on wheat, oats and barley.

MAKE UP DIFFEFRENCE

Such payments are generally considered to involve making up any difference between cash returns on a crop and the average costs of efficient production.

Mr. Diefenbaker told reporters afterwards the estimated cost of the South Saskatchewan River project, some 80 miles northwest of here at outlook is $170,000,000. He said details of the cost-sharing agreement cannot be disclosed now.

At Regina, where he shook hands with about 1,000 persons during a 70-minute stint, he said the most recent public opinion poll shows "a tremendous upsurge in public support—beyond anything that has ever been seen."

"Let us all everywhere now join together. Don't take anything for granted . . . between now and two weeks from Monday—everyone to work. I'll do my part. You continue to do what you've been doing."

The Conservative leader's "part" today consists of a rugged schedule in southern Manitoba with a morning reception at St. Boniface near Winnipeg, a 150-mile flight to Dauphin for an afternoon meeting, and an evening speech at Selkirk, 25 miles north of Winnipeg.

FINALE IN WEST

It is the final day of his campaign in Western Canada until he returns to his Prince Albert, Sask, home for election day.

In last year's election, Conservatives won three of Saskatchewan's 17 ridings and eight of the 14 in Manitoba.

In Saskatchewan, the party hopes to attract support from among those who voted Social Credit last year. Only two Social Credit candidates are running in the province, compared with 16 last year.

Mr. Diefenbaker's speech in this south-central Saskatchewan city—main point in a riding which went CCF last year—emphasized agricultural topics.

He said his government is drafting a new plan to provide loans to farmers at "reasonable" interest to help farm expansion and keep young farmers on the land.

The South Saskatchewan River project—a political issue in this area for years—envisages a dam which would produce power, irrigate eventually 500,000 acres and provide water to Regina and Moose Jaw.

Pearson Pledges Expansion of Hospital Plan

MONCTON, N.B. (CP) — Liberal Leader Lester Pearson, winding up his Maritime tour during the weekend, pledged to expand the national hospital insurance plan to a full-fledged medical insurance scheme.

He told supporters Saturday there would be coverage of major medical, dental and surgical costs.

Mr. Pearson, after stops at Mont Joli and Rimouski, Que., today, was to reach Ottawa Tuesday and then head into his own Algoma East riding Wednesday, starting a tour of Northern Ontario.

Wednesday he is to make stops at Chapleau and Elliot Lake; Thursday at Little Current, Gore Bay and Blind River. Friday he is to speak at Thessalon at noon and Toronto in the evening. He plans a tour of the Niagara Peninsula next Saturday.

The Pearson caravan bucked through a heavy snowstorm over roads that were almost impassable to keep dates Saturday at the fishing villages of Shediac and Grand Digue.

GET OUT AND VOTE

Speaking to an audience of 800 here he called upon Canadians to get out and vote March 31. All he asked was that the voters think before casting their ballot.

His speech was mainly on the national hospital insurance scheme but he touched briefly on other subjects.

Turning to health insurance Mr. Pearson said

"One method of achieving this added social security would be for the government to pay medical and other expenses which exceeded either a basic minimum or a reasonable proportion of a person's or family's income."

The present national hospital insurance scheme, which goes into effect next July in some provinces, covers standard hospital care and diagnostic services. Mr. Pearson's pledge would be to expand this to cover major surgical, dental and medical charges.

The Liberal leader did not estimate what the additional benefits would cost but the present scheme is expected to cost the federal government about $200,000,000 when all provinces are included.

ON RAIL ISSUE

In a local television interview, Mr. Pearson said the rights to jobs and seniority should be fully protected for railway firemen in any implementation of the Kellock report.

This report agreed with the CPR management that firemen are not required for yard and freight service.

"The implementation or the rejection of the recommendations of the report of this commission is the responsibility of the government and should be dealt with as such," the Liberal leader said Saturday.

Oldest Resident of County Home, Mrs. Urena Pinner, 104 Tomorrow

Good care and comfortable surroundings must have some very close connection with longevity.

At any rate elderly residents at the Hastings county home on the Trent Road are establishing some kind of a record for living to a ripe old age.

Close to 50 per cent of all patients in the home are over 80 years of age; at least a dozen are over 90 and one resident of the home will be 104 tomorrow, March 18th.

She is Mrs. Urena Pinner, former resident of Marmora who has been a resident of the home since the death of her son six years ago. She has outlived her husband, George Pinner, and also her three sons and daughters.

Mrs. Kenneth York, matron of the county home, said over the weekend that Mrs. Pinner has been confined to the infirmary for some time but considering her advanced years she is in good health.

Another county home resident who will commence her second century is Mrs. Emily Rowe who will be 100 on April 12th.

Belleville Native Commands Unique Base in Far North

FORT CHURCHILL, Man. — No other military camp in Canada is as unique as this northern base where Canadian and American military personnel and civilian scientists share a wide variety of interests and a common enemy — isolation.

Here, where the tree-line stops and the Arctic tundra starts, Canadian jets and American rockets whistle through the thin Arctic air while ground troops of both countries use the tundra for tests of men and equipment under conditions of extreme cold.

Although about one-quarter of the troops, scientists and civilian dependents living here are U.S. citizens, the camp is commanded and administered by the Canadian army.

Camp Commandant is Col. Donald G. Ketcheson, OBE, CD, of Belleville, Ont., who has held the appointment since July, 1955.

If the camp is unique, so is the command.

RIVALRIES NOT SERIOUS

Col. Ketcheson said that with so many services using the camp's facilities some friction does occur but "inter-service-international rivalries are never very serious."

Officially known as the "Canadian Joint Services Station, Fort Churchill," the camp houses an RCAF unit; the U.S. Army's first Arctic test centre; the Canadian Army's Winter Warfare Training Wing; the Defence Research Board's northern laboratories; a Department of Transport office; the U.S. Army's IGY rocket project site; Canadian and American formation headquarters, and other smaller units or groups from the various branches of the armed forces of both countries.

TEST EQUIPMENT

Describing training carried out by Canadian Army personnel at Fort Churchill, Col. Ketcheson said that in addition to conducting typical operations under severe Arctic conditions, the Army also has a very active equipment test and trial program.

"All types of Army equipment are involved, including weapons, ammunition, vehicles, special clothing and trail equipment," he said. "Defence Research Board scientists work very closely with all military services at Churchill and measure the effects of Arctic environment on personnel and equipment.

"From these studies," Col. Ketcheson added, "the military services can develop techniques, methods and equipment to enable them to carry out military operations in the air in Arctic regions."

1000 DEPENDENTS

If Fort Churchill is interesting from the serviceman's point of view, life here is a real experience for the 1,000 dependents of military personnel stationed at the camp.

Canadian and American families live side by side in comfortable married quarters; attend the same social groups, and send their children to the Duke of Edinburgh high school, named after His Royal Highness, Prince Philip, Duke of Edinburgh.

They share the same Canadian Army chapels, shopping centre and messes. They even get together annually to jointly celebrate Dominion Day and Independence Day which fall within a few days of each other.

And here, if nowhere else in Canada, Boy Scouts, Cubs, Girl Guids and Brownie groups all are joint Canadian - American projects. So is the Fort Churchill Camera Club, model railway club; drama group; radio station; 'teen club and hobby centre.

"We lead a very interesting social life," Col. Ketcheson said not too long after he and Major Erich Hett, of Mittenwald, Germany, had met in friendly competition on the Fort Churchill curling rink. Major Hett is one of several NATO officers here for training in Arctic warfare.

NATIVE OF BELLEVILLE

Born in Belleville, Ont., Col. Ketcheson was educated at Belleville Collegiate and at Queen's University.

Commissioned in the Royal Canadian Ordnance Corps in 1940 he served with the RCOC throughout the Second World War.

In January 1946, he was appointed Assistant Director of Ordnance Services at Army Headquarters, Ottawa, and subsequently served as Commanding Officer of No. 25 Central Ordnance Depot, then located in Ottawa; as Deputy Director of Ordnance Services, and as Director of Ordnance Services.

He has commanded Fort Churchill since 1955. Mrs. Ketcheson and a son, Bob, 16, reside at the camp where Bob Ketcheson is a Cadet Corporal in the Duke of Edinburgh High School Cadet Corps. A daughter is "outside," studying at the University of Manitoba.

FARMER, 150, VOTES

LONDON (Reuters) — Moscow radio claimed tonight that a 150-year-old farmer — still "strong and healthy"—was among those who voted today in the Soviet national elections. The broadcast said Kolholznik Eivazov, who lives in a mountain village in Azerbaijan, marched in front of 58 members of his family on their way to cast their votes.

BOY SCOUT ACTIVITIES

The 18th Parkdale group recently showed in very tangible form what can be done after being formed only last September by an enthusiastic group committee, with energetic experienced Scouters, backed by the parents and the ratepayers of the community they now look back on a very successful first father and son nights. The attendance of fathers being nearly 100 per cent bears testimony to their interest in the boys and the training they are receiving.

Following grace by Rev. J. S. A. Spearman, a sumptuous banquet was served by the Mothers' Auxiliary led by Mrs. John Fudge. The Parkdale community centre had been attractively decorated for the occasion in the group colors of black and white. A real wolf's head on the pole, flanked by the pack flags on the platform looked down on the proceedings.

Among the highlights of the evening was the presentation of the charter by C. F. Leggat, president of the local association, to Charlie Keeble, president of the Parkdale ratepayers' association, who, in accepting it, spoke of the wonderful co-operation they had received and especially of the backing of the Women's Institute prior to the formation of the Mothers' Auxiliary. Mr. Keeble proudly presented the charter to Harry A. Hutt, chairman of the group committee and generously praised the boys and their fine Scouters.

Other guests for the evening were F/L A. M. Jamieson, ADC, Cubs; John Townsend, DCM; J. W. Hodgson, secretary of the L.A., and Frank Page of the Department of Lands and Forests, Tweed.

Mr. Page spoke briefly on the need for conservation, following which two excellent films were shown. The film on survival in the bush depicted so many practices learned in Scouting, as two water-soaked men with nothing but an axe, caught and cooked food, built a shelter and finally an excellent canoe with which to evacuate themselves.

Christ Church Parish Guild Views Film

Christ Church Parish Guild's monthly meeting was held in the parish hall on March 11.

The treasurer's report was presented and the committee chairwomen gave their reports.

Members were reminded of the corporate communion and the president requested as many as possible to make an effort to attend. At this point, the meeting adjourned so members could welcome guests who had arrived to enjoy the balance of the program.

The president extended a welcome to all and hoped that everyone would enjoy the afternoon. Archdeacon J. B. Creeggan told the story, "Where Love Is" by Count Leo Tolstoy, which was appropriate for the lenten season.

Mrs. Margaret Boyd pleased everyone with her vocal solo, "Jesus My Lord, My God, My All." Mrs. A. W. Jordan was the piano accompanist.

FILM SHOWN

A film was shown entitled "A Home of Their Own." This movie has been made to acquaint the public with the wonderful work being done for retarded babies at the home in Plainfield. The Guild was particularly pleased to be able to show the picture and were honored to have among its guests, Mrs. Velleman, who is superintendent of the hospital; also members of the Theatre Guild who appear in the film and who did such an excellent job.

The picture was enjoyed and each one gained a better insight into the work being done, and the need for such a home for these little ones.

After the meeting closed, refreshments were served.

Women's Activities

ST. ANDREW'S-GILEAD WMS

GILEAD — The March meeting of St. Andrew's - Gilead W.M.S. was held at the home of Mrs. Clarence Martin on Wednesday afternoon with ten ladies in attendance.

The meeting opened with Mrs. Carman Huffman presiding. The business session consisted of the reading of "thank-you" letters received. Report was given of assets received from the "Youth for Christ" banquet, which was gratifying.

It was decided to hold the Easter "thankoffering" at the regular Easter meeting, April 9th., at 2 p.m. at the home of Mrs. Gerald Swan, with Mrs. W. Clare and Mrs. W. Badgley as program conveners.

Mrs. Arthur Balcanquel, Baby Band secretary, displayed her new line of greeting cards.

The program was under the direction of Mrs. Carman Huffman and Mrs. Roy Huffman. In the absence of Mrs. R. Huffman, Mrs. Carman Huffman presided for the following program: the worship service, as listed in the Missionary Monthly. Mrs. Arthur Balcanquel read the Scripture lesson from Philippians and Mrs. Gerald Swan read the meditation. A Christian Stewardship reading of inspiration in action was given by Mrs. Wilfred Clare. Mrs. Fred Yorke gave one of a series of interesting stories on Japan. Music was rendered by Mrs. Earl Ross, "Nearer My God To Thee". piano solo and Mrs. Fred Yorke favored with a fine solo, "All for Jesus."

A delightful luncheon was served by the hostess and an enjoyable half-hour spent.

An announcement was made by the president, requesting as many as possible to attend service at Cannifton that evening when a class of students from Queen's University Theological College, Kingston, would be in attendance, with the Rev. R. J. McCrea one of this group.

SCOTT'S W.A. W.M.S.

6TH SIDNEY — Mrs. Edison Sine was hostess for the March W. A. dinner in the church hall. A good crowd enjoyed the fine repast.

In the afternoon, Mrs. C. Copeland, president of W.M.S. called the meeting to order. There were ten members present.

Mrs. Farmer reported seven hospital and five house calls made.

Mrs. M. Sine reviewed the last chapter of the Study Book on Japan, which was really a summary of what had been taken. In a few minutes she showed a few events in the story of Protestant Christianity in Japan during the last 100 years.

It is an interesting tale from the time in 1853 when Commodore Perry persuaded Japan to open her doors to ships from foreign nations. The first Protestant missionaries came to Japan in 1859. In 1871 the Gospel of St. Matthew was translated and in 1880 the translation of the gospels was finished.

In 1895 the Salvation Army began work in Japan and ten years later in 1905 the Y.W.C.A. was founded. In 1922 the Protestant Churches in Japan formed the National Christian Council to consolidate their work.

The earthquake of 1923 brought disaster to Tokyo and Christians from abroad sent relief to the stricken people. In 1937 many Christians were persecuted and the war with China began.

In 1941 Japanese Protestant churches united in "Kyodan" and most foreign missionaries left Japan. In 1945 about one quarter of all churches in Japan were destroyed by incendiary bombs, and during these years the Church World Service distributed relief goods in Japan.

MISSIONARIES RETURN

Again in 1946 foreign missionaries returned to Japan and in 1953 the International Christian University opened its doors.

During the years since 1953 there has been co-operation between the United Church of Canada and Kyodan.

Two coming events of great importance are coming up in Japan: The 14th World Convention on Christian Education in August 1958 in Tokyo, and the 100th anniversary of the opening of Protestant work in Japan to be celebrated in 1959.

"There are times in the history of a nation when God reaches forth His wonder-working hand and the nation sets new sights and moves out in a new direction. Japan stands in such an hour — one of God's great creative hours." — (Quote from Axling.)

Arthritic Sufferers Greatly Aided By Quinte Branch of C.A.R.S.

At the annual meeting of the Ontario division, the Canadian Arthritis and Rheumatism Society, held recently in Toronto, Mr. R. Burns Lind, president, highly praised the work of the Quinte Branch, under the leadership of Mr. Enos David and his energetic executive, for the outstanding service being rendered in bringing aid and comfort to arthritic patients in the Quinte district.

The local Branch of the Society, through its capable physiotherapist, Miss Hesba Williams and the CARS mobile unit is playing an important part in the fight against the crippling effects of arthritis and the rheumatic diseases. Working in co-operation with and under advisement of the attending physician, the mobile unit of CARS, with its insignia the "Bluebird of Happiness", makes its rounds daily, bringing relief from pain and encouragement to the afflicted. The area served is not confined to the city but extends through Trenton, Tweed, the surrounding areas and Prince Edward County.

During the past year over 15,421 miles were travelled and over 800 treatments given by the physiotherapist.

That the services of the Society are of invaluable aid to the attending physician's care is attested over and over again by grateful patients.

Here are the case histories of a few of the many in the files of the local branch. It is a story of suffering, patience, hope and perseverance, that brought its own reward.

CASE HISTORIES

Miss B of Tweed: Miss B first had suffered intermittently from rheumatoid arthritis since 1934 In 1955 she had a bad flare - up, and was referred by her family doctor to the Canadian Arthritis and Rheumatism Society in May 1956. At that time most joints were badly involved and movement was extremely painful. After a lengthy course of treatments, the patient was encouraged to continue her own home exercise program.

She persevered and in time, with the aid of an improvised wheel chair, was able to do much of her own cooking and housework.

In August of last year she came to Belleville to live with her sister. Her progress is most satisfactory and she is walking quite well.

"I can never be thankful enough to the Arthritis Society," she states, "Its services have literally put me back on my feet."

Mrs. L. of Belleville is also loud in her praises of the society's services. She has suffered from the pain and crippling effects of arthritis for eight long years. To add to her misfortunes she fell three years ago causing a bad fracture, and was hospitalized for some time. In 1956 and 1957 she was again hospitalized. Throughout all her suffering, however, she showed a dauntless spirit and by fully co-operating with the CARS physiotherapist, persevering with her treatments and exercises, she has shown steady improvement. In 1956 she was still unable to walk, even with the aid of crutches. Today she is able to get around with the aid of crutches and is looking forward to the day when she can discard them altogether.

ARTHRITIC FOSSILS FOUND

While arthritis and the rheumatic diseases are older than civilized man — evidence of their existence has been found in the fossils of pre-historic animals— it has only been within comparatively recent years that world attention has been focused on this great crippler. Though not fatal in itself, it is one of the chief causes of suffering and economic loss in the community.

According to estimates prepared by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics and the Department of National Health and Welfare, these diseases totally or severely disable 50,000 Canadians; partially disable a further 115,000; cost Canadian workers and business 90,000,000 days in lost work annually; cost Canadians $75,000,000 each year in lost wages.

These cold statistics do not tell the whole story — the mother unable to care for her children, the breadwinner unable to provide for his family, the child unable to run and play. Nor do they show the costs of medical and hospital care, which must be borne by the patient, his family or the taxpayer.

VOLUNTEER HEALTH AGENCY

The Quinte branch of the Canadian Arthritis and Rheumatism Society, is a volunteer health agency. Its services are available to all, but only on recommendation of the patient's physician. It brings right into the home the physio treatments necessary to correct and prevent the crippling effects of arthritis.

There is a nominal charge for the services, as is the case in all health agencies but no one is refused treatment if payment causes financial hardship.

The local board of directors has been most active in the past year in establishing the branch in this district.

The following comprise the board: Messrs. Enos David, Clifford Baker, E. G. Gurnett, John C. Gurnett, F. C. Adsett, George R. Simpson, J. C. Demeza, Drs. J. S. Loynes, L. Bruce Cronk, W. A. L. McDonald and D. E. Campbell, Mrs. J. A. Jarvis, Mrs. J. A. Layton, Mrs. Enos David.

Keen Age Club Plans for Rummage Sale

The regular meeting of the Keen Age Club of Tabernacle United Church, was held at the home of Mrs. A. Firth, 296 Foster Ave. The meeting was opened followed by the devotional, given by Mrs. S. Lathangue, on the lenten season in the form of a reading and a poem.

The business was conducted by the president, Mrs. G. Priest. It was decided that the group hold a rummage sale the latter part of March. A committee was formed and everyone was asked to start collecting for this sale.

Mrs. E. Cornish, the club's official board representative, gave her report, and Mrs. E. Stansfield gave her report on the mission and maintenance committee.

The remainder of the evening was a demonstration conducted by Mrs. Irene Rushlow.

After the meeting closed tasty refreshments in keeping with St. Patrick's Day, with the touch of green on the goodies, were served by Mrs. R. Carmichael and her committee.

The lucky winner of the door prize was Mrs. E. Stansfield.

Alliance A.F.G. Holds Enjoyable Get-Together

The Adult Fellowship Group of the Christian and Missionary Alliance was held recently at the home of Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Millard, Cannifton with a good attendance of members and friends present.

Owing to the absence of the president, Mrs. Sackville Palmer, the vice-president, Mrs. G. A. Millard took charge of the meeting, the theme of which was "Shamrock, and Rocks of the Bible." Mrs. Henderson gave a talk on "The Shamrock" and St. Patrick", and Mr. Wilbur Wright on "Christ, the Rock."

Mr. James MacKay favored with a solo, "Rock of Ages".

A social time was enjoyed by all, followed by bounteous refreshments.

Appreciation was tendered Mr. and Mrs. Millard for for their kind hospitality.

A modified chemise silhouette is shown here in a costume for evening wear. The sleeveless dress has a low V neckline front and back. It is accompanied by a sleeveless plain-color chemise coat, buttoned at the neck in front and draped to a low-placed bow in back. The silk crepe frock is in black with a black-and-rose print or in green with a lighter green-and-blue print.

Six Carmel Guides Win Cooks' Badges

Six girls of the 1st Carmel Company Guides tried their tests for their cook's badge on Saturday evening, when they invited their mothers to supper at the church hall.

The banquet table was beautifully appointed with white damask and decorated with green shamrocks and green streamers, also giving all a spring touch was the huge bouquet of daffodils on the head table, donated by Mrs. E. Dawson.

Soft candlelight flickered from the green candles in their silver holders, and quiet music floated around the room as the Guide mothers relaxed and enjoyed the food cooked and served by the Guides.

The Rev. and Mrs. R. J. McRae and daughter Kathleen, also Miss Doreen Reynolds, were guests who sat at the head table, also Mrs. Harry Harrison, the tester, and Dorothy Howes, captain of the company.

The banquet opened with all pesent saying Grace led by Mrs. McRae. Mr. McRae proposed the toast to the Queen.

The Guides trying the test did a wonderful job of the cooking and serving and the washing up afterwards.

Following the main course, the Guides served all sorts of fancy cakes, cookies, and chocolate cake they had make themselves, topped with ice cream donated by Mrs. F. Whitney.

A Guide sing-song took up part of the evening.

Mr. and Mrs. McRae sang three lovely Irish songs.

TRIBUTE PAID

Mrs. Harrison, tester for the badge, gave the girls a glowing tribute in her remarks and said the girls certainly had worked hard and were most worthy of their badges.

The Guides winning their cook's badges were: P.L. Barbara Horton; Shirley Dafoe; P.L. Rita Demecyzna; Linda Dawson and Guides Faye Robinson and Judy Dafoe.

The most enjoyable evening closed with all present singing a Guide evensong, and "Taps."

Casual Sophistication

By ALICE ALDEN

An unusual and beautiful shade of pale beige, poetically and aptly named "white sand," is used by one house for most attractive clothes to be worn from spring on into early summer and for travel. George Carmel uses this shade for a dress and jacket of wool. The slim "sylph" frocks is unexpectedly buttoned at the side beneath a centre-buttoned, hipbone jacket with scalloped hemline. The pointed neckline is novel and a nice detail in an outfit where hue and line are of prime importance.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, a newspaper editor, a women's editor and two writers. Each article is a summary of an actual case history. The Council reports on problems that have been dealt with by responsible agencies and counsellors.

Carolyn S. — She should make him suffer.

Betty M. — I know when I am licked.

• • •

Carolyn S. — I am trying to stop my sister from taking a disastrous step.

Several months ago, after a marriage of six years, she learned that her husband had been having an affair with another woman. When she confronted him he readily admitted it and said he wanted a divorce.

My sister is heartbroken and is ready to go ahead and do as he asks. I say she is crazy. This thing may pass off as suddenly as it happened. Her husband is infatuated, and I don't think he realizes what he is doing. In any case, why make it easy for him? She should make him suffer as he has made her suffer.

• • •

Betty M. — It won't make me suffer any less to make my husband suffer more. He has hurt me and the two children so much already I almost wish I'd never see him again.

As for its being infatuation, I doubt it. I have seen this woman and she happens to be a real beauty. She is several years younger than I am and has money besides. In short, my husband has everything to gain. Why would he ever come back to me?

I'm trying to be realistic for my sake and the children's sakes. I know when I'm licked and I don't see any sense torturing myself fighting a losing battle.

• • •

The Council: Betty is hurt and her feeling of despair is understandable, but she is allowing her emotions to cloud her best judgment at this time.

She is wrong in believing that all is lost because the other woman is rich, young and beautiful. She knows nothing about the other woman's personality and probably little about her relationship with her husband.

Betty has resources which she underestimates. A sixyear marriage and two young children are no small items. Over the years she and her husband must have developed many strong, meaningful ties. Her love for her husband and children should be the spur to quicken her desire to put up a fight.

It is true that the battle could be a losing one, but surely it is worth fighting. There should be no haste in such an important matter. The time might come when Betty and her husband would regret hasty action.

We don't think there is much point in Betty's focusing her interest on trying to make her husband suffer. As long as she does this, she would be living a miserable, vengeful existence which would leave her with little desire or energy for building a happier life for herself.

But we do think that Betty ought to take plenty of time to put up a positive fight for her home. She can't be licked until she has fought.

GOOD MANNERS

By Mrs. Beeckman

TODAY'S COURTESY TIP . . . USE NAME IN LETTERS, TOO

Have you that graceful habit of using a person's name quite often when you are talking to him or her? Do you carry this pleasant habit over into your letters and notes? I hope you do. It gives a gracious bow of friendliness and welcome to write, for example: "We are all looking forward to having you with us, dear Elaine, and we very much hope you can come."

WANTS TO GIVE HOUSE-WARMING "TO GREET THE SPRING"

Dear Mrs. Beeckman

My husband and I have recently moved into our new house. To "greet the Spring" in our new home we would like to give a housewarming soon. But one bedroom is not finished, nor is the downstairs recreation room, nor is the sun-porch. Is it absolutely necessary, as several relatives and friends have told us, for us to postpone our housewarming until we can show the whole house completed? — C.

No. While it is, of course, ideal to be able to show the completed house at the housewarming, it really isn't at all necessary to wait for this ideal time. It will be fun to "greet the Spring" in your new home, and never mind if the house isn't finished. Either close off the rooms not ready, or with a casual air show each unfinished room and tell the guests about your plans for its use and perhaps about your decorating plans.

BIRTHDAY CARD OR NOTE TO ONE IN MOURNING

Dear Mrs. Beeckman

The father of a dear friend of mine (we are both 17) died the week after Christmas. Her birthday is next month, and I am wondering if it would be right for me to send her a birthday card, as I have always done. — N.

Do send your friend a birthday greeting, either a card or a note. If a card, take gentle care to choose one suitable under the circumstances . . . a card perhaps with "Birthday Greetings" on it, but, please, not one with "Happy Birthday" on it. Or, perhaps better than sending her a card, write her a note (on plain white notepaper) telling her of your loving thought of her on this day, and of your devotion and friendship. Two or three sentences of affectionate reassurance — very important to her these days.

Reliable Hamburg In Sunday Dress:

By Mary Moore

A clergyman's wife and a dentist's wife have said to me that the meat they serve to their families is usually hamburg. The dentist's wife says she serves it every known way—and some unknown. Her husband, who is my cousin, chipped in to say in his habitually gallant way "the unknown ways are out of this world." They are on a strict budget for they are building a new home for their family.

Dinner Menus

by Mary Moore

MONDAY

Lamb Pie with Vegetables (left over from Sunday's dinner); Creamed Cauliflower; Waldorf Salad Moulded in Apple Jelly (pkgd.); Open Face Rhubarb and Orange Pie; Coffee.

Clergymen's salaries, home building, unemployment, recession — or saving for a round-the-world cruise — for all of these reasons hamburg could be the solution to the problem of the high cost of meat.

But if you fall into one of these categories, don't limply shove it at your family as meat cakes day in and day out. Make a game of changing your ways of serving it every time. My cousin-by-marriage Bunny, asks the children to give names to her creations. Thus Salisbury Steaks became HAMBURGS BY (cptional), 1 tablespoon butter clever for it was 6-year-old Mardie who came up with it. One and one-half pounds of ground beef, 1 cup stale bread crumbs, 1 teaspon salt, 1-8 teaspon pepper, 1-2 teaspoon each grated onion, grated lemon rind, 1 tablespoon chopped parsley (optional), 1 tablespoon butter or margarine, melted, 1 egg. Add bread crumbs, seasonings, butter and beaten egg to meat. Mix well. Shape into individual loaves on greased baking dish. Bake at 375 degs. Fahr. for 45 to 60 minutes, basting every 10 minutes with two tablespoons margarine melted in 1 1-2 cups hot tomato juice. Bunny serves them with halved small potatoes, cut side buttered before baking, putting them in the oven for 10 minutes before the meat at 450 degs. Fahr.

HANK'S HAMBURGERS

Two pounds hamburg meat, 3-4 cup dry bread crumbs, 1-2 cup milk, 1 tablespoon finely chopped onion or 1-2 clove garlic, finely chopped. Make 12 large flat meat cakes and sear them in a hot pan until barely cooked but still moist. In another pan, fry 1-2" thick slices of onion in bacon fat until barely limp. Alternate the slices of onion and meat cakes in a long hot dish, decorate lightly with fried strips of green pepper. Hank heats 1 can of tomato soup and adds 1-2 teaspoon curry powder, for he was born in India. Pour this sauce on both sides of the meat and onion.

MINIATURE MEAT BALLS IN MUSHROOM SAUCE

See above meat mixture for hamburgs by bun. Make same amount but shape meat into 1-inch balls. Roll in flour. Saute 1 small chopped onion in 4 tablespoons margarine until limp. Add meat balls and brown them on all sides. Pour over 1 can condensed mushroom (or celery) soup and simmer 5 minutes. Serve on bed of fluffy boiled rice and garnish with parsley.

Pope Composes Prayer for Young Women

VATICAN CITY (AP) — The Pope has composed a prayer for Roman Catholic young women, containing a request to be "like a luminous ray" lighting up a life of faith.

The 400-word prayep was published Friday in the Vatican newspaper, L'Osservatore Romano.

"In our social relations," the prayer says in part, "we will always strive to hold high the flag of justice and of love as a visible symbol of a Christian program of life; in our study and in our work we will seek. . .to inspire serenity and joy."

For those reciting the prayer, the Pope has granted a partial indulgence or pardon of three years for temporal punishment due to sin. Temporal punishment, according to Roman Catholic belief, is punishment that must be satisfied for sin — normally in purgatory — before the soul can be admitted to heaven.

W.I. Plans Coming Events

MARMORA — Marmora Women's Institute met at the home of Mrs. Frank Grant on the evening of March 12th. Due to the keen interest in the hockey play off game only eight members were present.

Several requests for financial aid were read but were laid over until later.

Mrs. Ralph Neal gave a paper on home economics dealing with the change in the way of living from the early settlers and the demands of the present day and ways to cope with the situation.

Mrs. L. Green read the paper on "Health" in the absence of Mrs. Percy Gray, telling of arthritis, its causes, and cures of some cases which depend upon the cause.

Two provinces were dealt with this month, Alberta and Manitoba. Their geographical, industrial interest and populations were given. Manitoba has the greatest number of grain elevators of any province in the world. Alberta has oil and is a large tourist attraction.

Mrs. George Empey read the summary of Alberta and Miss Grace Warren dealt with Manitoba.

Mrs. Hogarth Sabine gave a worthwhile paper on citizenship and education, stressing the value of education and citizenship and also the advance in technical work which demands a higher grade of education.

A card party was planned to help finance the yearly grant which the branch makes to Marmora public library. Mrs. H. Sabine offered her home. The tickets on Easter hams are now available and proceeds will go to the library grant.

Those not having sent the report of their standing committee to the district convener were asked to do so at an early date.

The secretary was asked to invite Mrs. E. Irwin, district president to attend the April meeting.

Mrs. George Empey and Mrs. L. Green were named to bring in a slate of officers at the annual meeting.

After the meeting closed refreshments were served.

ajor Political Parties Woo uebec in Bid to Find Key o Victory in Federal Vote key question in the elec- campaign is: What will pen in Quebec? In this story Canadian Press sets up the kground, in terms of Que-'s federal political history, the answer to be given rch 31.

By D'ARCY O'DONNELL
anadian Press Staff Writer

UEBEC (CP)—In 18 of the 23 ral elections since Confedera- the party that carried Que- formed the government in Ot- a.

ith that record as a backdrop, ada's two major political par- are making a concerted bid woo from Quebec the key to tory in the March 31 election. t stake are the province's 75 ts in the 265-member House of mmons. The Liberals, winners 13 of the 23 elections since 7 largely as a result of over- elming Quebec support, have ndidates in each of the 75 con- tuencies. So have the Progres- e Conservatives who only twice ce 1896 have been able to win sizable number of Quebec seats. The CCF and Social Credit par- s, comparative newcomers to e province, have fewer than 25 ndidates each.

OLORFUL HISTORY

The campaign has been waged uetly in a province whose color- l political history covers the vi- ence of anti-conscription riots, pen verbal warfare between urch officials and statesmen, nd jubilation over the election of wo French-Canadian prime min- sters.

For one of the few times since Confederation, the election or de- eat of "favorite son" candidates s not an issue. Prime Minister John Diefenbaker and Liberal Leader Lester B. Pearson are both Protestant natives of neighboring Ontario.

Their Quebec lieutenants are men still cutting their political eye teeth. None has yet reached the stature that Sir Georges Etienne Cartier, a father of Confederation, did alongside Sir John A. Macdonald. None claims to match the flamboyant oratory or wield the power of the late Mackenzie King's famous Quebec triumvirate — Lapointe - Cardin- Power.

Former prime minister St. Laurent, succeeded by Mr. Pearson in January as Liberal party leader, has retired from politics. He left on holidays shortly after the election was announced and has not participated in the campaign.

This time, too, say political observers, the issues—trade, unemployment, taxation and world peace — are not comparable to those which roused predominantly French-speaking Roman Catholic Quebecers to fever pitch and led them to vote overwhelmingly in favor of one party in other elections.

FAMOUS ISSUES

For instance, only rarely is reference made to conscription, the Riel rebellion, the separate school question, or imperialism, all issues that split the nation in times of war and peace, dating back to Confederation.

In some of his campaign speeches in Quebec Mr. Diefenbaker hinted he will increase Quebec's representation in the cabinet if his Progressive Conservative government is re-elected with strong support.

At Rimouski he said: "You have it in your power — and I know that you understand me well when I say this—to surround me with the talented lieutenants I need to direct the destinies of our country."

In the last election nine Quebec Conservatives were elected. Three were named to cabinet posts. In Liberal governments elected with strong Quebec support, as many as six cabinet posts were held by Quebecers.

In the early years of Confederation, the Conservatives won a majority of the province's seats. This was credited to the personal appeal of Sir Georges Etienne Cartier, who convinced Quebec that its future lay in union with other provinces.

INFLUENCE DECLINED

But Cartier's influence waned in 1872 when the Conservative government declined to veto a New Brunswick bill banning separate schools in the Atlantic province. Personally defeated in his Montreal constituency, he died in London in 1873.

However, with Cartier's death, the Liberals became embroiled in a controversy with the Catholic Church. Several church leaders openly fought the Liberal party on the grounds that it was revolutionary, anti-clerical and that it advocated subordination of the church to the state.

The controversy reached a point where some priests threatened to excommunicate anyone who voted Liberal. Some regarded marriage between a Liberal partisan and a Conservative supporter as a mixed marriage.

Two Romeos And Juliet

It was in this period that Sir Wilfrid Laurier, then a brilliant young lawyer, began his rise to power in the ranks of the Liberals.

Intervention by the Vatican to halt electioneering from the pulpit, Laurier's personal dynamism, the fact he was a native son, and the execution of northwest rebellion leader Louis Riel with Conservative government consent all contributed to a sharp Quebec swing to the Liberals in the 1890s. Quebecers looked on Riel as a French - Canadian unfairly dealt with by the English - speaking majority.

Laurier led the Liberals into office in 1896, sweeping 49 of Quebec's 65 seats. He increased his hold on Quebec until 1911 when the Liberals were ousted by the combined opposition of the Conservatives and a group of Quebec nationalists, led by Henri Bourassa. The combined Nationalist-Conservative forces won 27 Quebec seats. In the whole country the Conservatives won 132 to 86 for the Liberals.

The main issue in the provinces at that time was a reciprocity agreement Laurier planned to sign with the United States. In Quebec, Bourassa, with the acquiescence of the Conservatives, battled Laurier on his plan to build five cruisers and six destroyers, to be placed under imperial control in the event of war. The nationalists argued the navy would lead to involvement in war which in turn would lead to conscription.

Then began one of the most critical political periods in the province's history. French-speaking Quebecers were becoming restive because of repeated federal government refusal to force the provinces, notably Ontario, to provide separate schools for French-Canadian Catholics.

The school problem remained the top national issue until the First World War reached a critical point. With casualties running far ahead of voluntary enlistments, the cry for conscription was raised in the English - language provinces.

When Sir Robert Borden formed a union party of pro-conscriptionist Conservative and Liberal forces to contest a general election in 1917, he won handily in all provinces except Quebec. Only three unionist candidates in English - speaking Montreal constituencies were elected. The remaining 62 Quebec seats were won by Sir Wilfrid Laurier who campaigned for continuation of the voluntary enlistment system.

The new government's efforts to enforce conscription in the early months of 1918 gave rise to violent riots in Quebec City. Historians say several things touched off the uprising. Chief among them was the fact that some French-Canadian volunteer regiments were split and assimilated into English-language regiments. There was little opportunity for French-speaking soldiers to serve under officers of their own language and religion.

But credited with providing the spark that touched off the powder keg of human emotions was the sending of a regiment from Toronto to enforce conscription in Quebec.

In five days of rioting in Quebec City, four civilians were killed and many, including five soldiers, wounded.

The end of the war did not bring an end to the bitterness aroused by the conscription issue. When Sir Robert Borden passed through the province after returning from the peace treaty conferences in London in 1919 his railway car was stoned.

DEATH OF LAURIER

'The province, feeling itself cut off, alone and oppressed poured out its grief on the passing of Sir Wilfrid at 78 in February, 1919.

He was succeeded as Liberal leader by Mackenzie King who swept all of Quebec's 65 seats in riding into office in a 1921 general election. Prominent with Mr. King in victory were his powerful Quebec trio—Ernest Lapointe, P. J. A. Cardin and C. G. (Chubby) Power.

They helped to win 60 seats in Quebec for the Liberals in both the 1925 and 1926 general election. But in 1930, at the start of the great depression with trade and unemployment the major issues, the Conservatives staged a comeback. Under Rt. Hon. R. B. Bennett they won 24 seats in Quebec and 113 in the rest of the country to form a government with a solid working majority.

The Conservative comeback was short-lived. In 1935 Mr. King bounced back into power, winning 55 seats in Quebec. In 1940, the Conservatives failed to win a seat in Quebec.

When Mr. Lapointe died in 1941, Mr. King summoned corporation lawyer Louis St. Laurent from Quebec to replace him. Without political experience, Mr. St Laurent agreed to serve as a wartime duty.

Conscription once again became an issue. In 1942 Mr. King asked in a national plebiscite to be relieved of his "no conscription" pledges. Quebec voted a resounding "no," the English - language provinces an equally resounding "yes".

Mr. Cardin split with Mr. King when the government instituted compulsory military service at home. Mr. Power also left the cabinet and Liberal ranks when the government decided to enforce token conscription to raise from among home-defence troops the reinforcements needed for casualty-depleted regiments overseas.

None of these moves roused the fire of Quebecers to the pitch it reached during the 1918 conscription crisis. There were a few disturbances in Montreal district and some desertions by men conscripted for overseas duty. But there was no major rift.

In 1945, with the war in Europe at its end, Mr. King was re-elected in a general election, winning 54 of Quebec's seats.

FAVORITE SON

Meantime, Mr. St. Laurent was urging that he be relieved of his cabinet post to return to the private law practice he gave up to serve during the war. Mr. King persuaded him to stay on and earmarked him as his successor as party leader. A 1948 convention confirmed Mr. St. Laurent in the leadership.

With a favorite son to vote for once again, Quebec overwhelmingly backed St. Laurent in the Liberal sweeps of 1949 and 1953. They voted for him again last year giving him 63 of 75 Quebec seats to nine for the Conservatives. But the Conservatives picked up enough seats in other parts of the country to oust the Liberals from office and form a minority government.

Now with no favorite son in the running, political observers are wondering how Quebecers will react.

One cartoonist summed up this situation this way:

Juliet on a balcony represented Quebec seats. Beneath the balcony in Romeo costumes were Prime Minister Diefenbaker and Mr. Pearson, who says to his rival "hey! this has always been private property."

PEMBROKE — Up here in this birthplace of many hockey greats, where a hometown Canadian senior championship has been predicted, they're not quite so sure now the Allan Cup will rest on a mantel of Maestro Wally Lenser's choosing.

Previous to Saturday night's game that at times was tinged with wackiness, the good burghers of Harry Moore's balliwick, discounting that 3-1 defeat Friday due to "poor Belleville ice," were confident the Lumber Kings would sweep aside the Belleville threat come Saturday, and go on from there to take the group laurels.

That of course, is not beyond the realm of possibility yet, but after watching the Kings sweep to a three-goal lead with no returns, then see a fighting Belleville club outscore the local puck royalty four goals to one to earn an overtime 4-4 tie, fans' hopes here are not so rosy.

Nearly 3,000 were almost stunned at the gradual turn of events. The local press-radio contingent in the press box were pessimistic after the Macs had nearly snatched victory from what, earlier in the pastime, looked like certain defeat.

Be that as it may. From here in, it looks like a survival of the fittest. Or he who travels and shows no effects —will win this group, and go on to the next. For the OHA via telegraph laid down the order "Have a winner declared by Friday, March 21."

This meant that the Macs and Kings, if the series goes to seven games, would have to play alternately at home for the next five nights. Wally Lenser, Keeper of the Royal Purse, up thisaway at first kicked over the traces. "No deal," said he, "we'll make our own arrangements, and let the OHA go fly a kite."

However, after a somewhat lengthy conference with Manager Drury Denyes of the Macs, Lenser apparently saw the futility of bucking the OHA and grudgingly agreed to play the game-a-night series until a settlement is reached.

So that's the way it is. The Kings will be here tonight for the third game. The Macs go back to Pembroke Tuesday and if necessary the clubs will alternate with the seventh and deciding game scheduled for Friday night in Belleville.

The game here Saturday had its odd, humorous and wacky moments. In the first place the 8.30 game was held up "a few minutes" until nine o'clock due to the non-appearance of Kingston linesmen. Two local' arbiters were pressed into service. Another delay was caused when Joe Lepine hoisted a Texas leaguer that partly smashed one of big lights over centre ice near the left boards. Glass fragments cluttered the ice. After the rink minions had mopped up and the teams ready to face off, down came another section of glass and again a delay for mopping-up operations.

Later, after Russ Kowalchuk was presented with a major penalty, a couple of jungle-juiced fans started to harangue the Belleville players' bench and actually waylaid Turk Barclay in the players' passageway. Manager Denyes went to his aid and the two hotheads wanted to play rough. The Macs "bench" went to rescue and it looked like a young riot was in the making.

The humorous part of the affair was the game stopped without official sanction. Players on the ice rushed to the sidelines to get a view of what was going on, while officials stood around waiting. It could have happened, by this department did not hear the official whistle toot for stoppage of play. The Macs gave the local red-eyes the rush-out and order was restored. It was 11.37, just 23 minutes short of the Saturday curfew when the siren shrilled game-end.

In the game itself, the Kings were not three goals better than the Macs in the first period and the first few minutes of the second as the 7-7 shots on goal indicates. The first two Pembroke goals were definite deflections off the sticks of Kings of off-goal shots. Gordie Bell moved a step the wrong way on the fourth goal.

Both Bell and Payette played outstanding hockey with the Pembroke goalie being one of the main factors in the Kings settling for a tie. He was especially good in the second period when the Macs outshot the Kings 11-5.

However tonight is another night, and could prove the key game of the series. A win for the Macs will put them in the driver's seat and establish them heavier favorites to win the group title. Both Lenser and Denyes are hoping that the series will not go the limit due to the heavy strain being placed on players by the consistency of games and travel toll.

Whip Bruins, Leafs in Stride Canadiens Nip Blues, Hawks Lose Two More by Injuries

By MARTY GOODMAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Detroit Red Wings won both their games during weekend National Hockey League action. The first victory eliminated Toronto Maple Leafs from playoff competition. The second may hasten the Wings' exit.

The four points, combined with two losses by Boston Bruins, hoisted Detroit back into third place. Third place means playing Montreal Canadiens in the first round of the Stanley Cup playoffs.

The injury - ridden but still-mighty Habitants also won two games and tied the league record for team goal-scoring in the process.

The revitalized Wings defeated Toronto 3-1 Saturday and beat Boston 6-3 Sunday. Montreal whipped Chicago Black Hawks 4-1 Saturday and edged New York Rangers 3-2 Sunday. New York shut out Boston 4-0 Saturday and Chicago defeated Toronto 3-2 Sunday.

MINOR RIOT IN BOSTON

The game at Boston Saturday was marked by a fight between Ranger defenceman Lou Fontinato and a fan, which brought players of both teams rushing to the region of the penalty box and delayed the televised game by seven minutes.

New York needs one more victory to clinch second place. Rangers are six points ahead of Detroit and 22 behind Montreal. Detroit leads Boston by two point and Toronto is two points ahead of Chicago.

Billy McNeill scored two goals for Detroit Saturday as Toronto's hopes for a playoff berth were officially finished. Johnny Wilson scored the other Detroit goal while Barry Cullen scored his 15th for Toronto.

Coach Sid Abel had Detroit use an unusual defensive alignment Sunday against Boston. Alex Delvecchio and Forbes Kennedy alternated in playing behind their own defencemen in their own zone and continually intercepted Boston passes.

TWO MORE HABS OUT

Montreal, with Charlie Hodge substituting in goal for the injured Jacques Plante, lost another two defencemen Saturday. Dollard St. Laurent suffered a fractured cheekbone and will be lost an indefinite time. Tom Johnson damaged his right knee but may return to action shortly.

The Claude Provost — Andre Pronovost — Phil Goyette line starred with two goals and four assists.

Montreal's three goals against New York Sunday gave the Canadiens 236 for the season, tying the team record set in 1950-51 by Detroit. Montreal has three games left.

Beliveau scored the goal that tied the record. Jean Guy Talbot and Floyd Curry also tallied.

Dean Prentice and Andy Hebenton netted singles for New York.

BRUINS TAKE LUMPS

New York was the whole show against Boston Saturday, the Bruins' first loss in eight games. Goalie Lorne (Gump) Worsley was outstanding in getting his third shutout, Andy Bathgate scored his 30th goal, and Fontinato got himself involved in a miniature riot.

Dave Creighton, Harry Howell and Prentice were the other scorers. The game marked Prentice's return to the lineup after a 25-game absence due to a skate cut.

Worsley turned aside 32 shots including an acrobatic effort when Norm Johnson deflected Fern Flaman's long shot. Worsley falling to his right, reversed his body in mid-air, did a handstand and stopped the puck at the goal line with one hand.

Fontinato was in the penalty box taking a ribbing from nearby fans when he flicked his glove at a green - sweatered tormentor. The fan began swinging and several others joined him.

PLAYERS TO RESCUE

Players piled off the New York bench and rushed across the ice, several hurling themselves into the stands. Boston players joined to push back the surging crowd.

Ranger manager Muzz Patrick and coach Phil Watson crossed the ice in civvies to act as peacemakers.

Police arrested the 30-year-old green-sweatered fan and charged him with disturbing the peace. Fontinato escaped without additional penalty.

Chicago took a 3-0 lead against Toronto on goals by Eric Nesterenko, Glen Skov and Ed Litzenberger, his 29th. George Armstrong and Tim Horton scored for Leafs in the last six minutes.

The schedule, now in its last week, resumes Tuesday with Toronto at Detroit.

Ontario Football Union Fate Rests in Hands of Big Four

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Rugby Football Union, struggling for survival since the out-and-out professional leagues gobbled up fan patronage in the post-war years, should know its fate in a month. The answer is held by the eastern Big Four Union.

The Big Four, it was decided at Saturday's annual meeting of the Canadian Rugby, Union, should let the ORFU know within that time whether one of its teams intends to meet the ORFU champion in a post-season game this year. An affirmative answer would give life to the 75-year-old ORFU, a negative one would almost certainly kill it.

This was the only major issue left in abeyance when the unusually caustic two-day session finished its business. Otherwise, things went as predicted with the Big Four and Western Interprovincial Unions getting exactly what they set out to get.

WHAT PROS GOT

Among other things, they decided that:

The 1958 cup final at Vancouver would be between the champions of their leagues; the classic would be under their sole jurisdiction, including the touchy subject of ticket distribution, and they would control the voting power of the CRU without enlisting support of a minor union to give them the necessary two-thirds majority on any planned change in the CRU constitution.

They needed help to push through legislation which gives them 10 of the 15 votes in the CRU. That was the last time they'll need it; from now on they'll run their own show, just as they said they would when they banded together to form the Canadian Football League in January.

They accomplished all this by plain talk. "Give us our way or we'll pull out of the CRU," they told member unions. The CRU needs the financial help from the big leagues to serve its primary purpose — development of minor football in Canada—and without the pros it couldn't operate.

ORFU MAY SUFFER

The only league that could be hurt is the senior ORFU, whose teams operate on budgets of up to $75,000 and who function without financial assistance from the Big Four and WIFU. The minor groups went away happy Saturday—they were assured that the pros would continue to subsidize junior and intermediate football and give them additional funds to promote the game from the peewees up.

But things are much different with the ORFU. Maurice Chilton of Sarnia, its past president, summed up the league's future position when he said:

"Give us a chance to live. If you are not interested in playing us, then there is nothing we can do. The whole future of the ORFU depends on the consideration we receive from you."

Chilton added that the ORFU is prepared to play this season with the full import quota of 12 Americans per club. He said an early decision on a post-season game was necessary because "our teams will not make plans to operate if we do not get the post-season game."

FANS WANT VARIETY

"Our fans are becoming tired of watching the same teams play out the regular season and then have playoffs to decide a league champion — and fold for the year," he added.

Any such game would determine whether the ORFU was strong enough to re-enter cup competition after a three - year shutout. If it becomes a reality, the Big Four's demand of a financial guarantee from the ORFU could be high, up to an estimated $20,000.

The ORFU will meet in London this week to decide the price it would be prepared to pay for a game and Ted Workman of Montreal, president of the Big Four, has instructed the union's general managers' committee to take the matter "under advisement" and, if necessary, report to the league executive.

DICTATORSHIP CHARGE

This subject took up most of the Saturday open session but a real hey-rube developed when the Big Four and WIFU moved to increase their voting powers to five each from three. ORFU delegate Sam Lerner of London said the resolution "literally created a dictatorship" and Bobby Coulter of Toronto, intercollegiate delegate, termed it "wrong in principle, and not in the best interests of football."

Lerner said constitution changes made at the 1957 CRU annual meeting were invalid because the Maritimes union, a member of the CRU since 1956, did not have a vote, contrary to the CRU constitution. He indicated the ORFU might seek a court ruling.

The Maritimes was given a vote this year and it was used to support the Big Four and WIFU's resolution. The Quebec Rugy Union also voted for it while the ORFU and college groups opposed it.

Dutchies Whip Wolves 5-1; Enter Finals

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Kitchener - Waterloo Dutchmen, runaway league-leaders in the OHA-NOHA Senior A schedule, have moved into the playoff finals after an off - form spell which threatened them with early retirement for the season.

A 5-1 victory Saturday over Sudbury Wolves gave the Dutchmen a 4-2 edge—with one game tied—in the best-of-seven semi-finals after they had trailed 2-1.

The Dutchmen now meet Windsor Bulldogs, conquerors of the second-place finishers, Sault Ste. Marie Greyhounds. First game of the best-of-seven final series is in Kitchener Tuesday.

In the Ontario Hockey Association Eastern Senior A finals, first-place finishers Belleville McFarlands fought to a 4-4 tie with Pembroke Lumber Kings. Belleville leads the best-of-seven series 1-0, with one game tied.

Centre Ken Laufman led the Dutchmen to victory, scoring twice. Don Rope, Billy Flick and Jim Uniac added the others. George Sennick got the lone Sudbury goal.

ANOTHER GOALIE HURT

The game was delayed 30 minutes when Wolves goalie Bob Mitchell, deputizing for Johnny Albani, injured in the first game, was cut over the right eye when struck by a slap-shot by Kitchener defenceman Ted Mak Twelve stitches were needed close the gash.

The McFarlands came from behind a 3-0 deficit to tie Pembroke. Neither team scored in the overtime period.

Jack Giesebrecht, Frank Chiarelli, Bernie Limoges and Bruce Giesebrecht tallied for Pembroke. Wayne Brown, with two, Keith McDonald and playing coach Ike Hildebrand replying for the McFarlands.

McFarlands Come From Behind To Tie Lumber Kings 4-4 In Overtime

Sweep Aside 3-Goal Deficit With Late-Game Offensive; Play 3rd Game Here Tonight

By GEORGE H. CARVER
Sports Editor

PEMBROKE — For thirty-four minutes of the game everything was hunkey-dory for Owner-manager Wally Lenser, the Pembroke Lumber Kings and nearly 3,000 cheering fans here Saturday night. The Kings, beaten 3-1 the night before in Belleville, led by 3-0 and seemed headed for a decisive series-tying victory.

Then it happened. It started at 4.32 of the second frame when Wiener Brown's sizzling slapshot ripped by Andy Payette in the Kings' net for the Macs' first goal. From here in, they went on a driving offensive backed by fine defensive work to score three goals against a single return to earn a 4-4 overtime tie. Down two goals in the first period, the Hildebranders outscored the Kings 2-1 in each of the following frames. The teams divided 62 shots on goal.

The teams clash here again tonight and on orders from the OHA will play every night until a group champion is declared.

The game was delayed a half-hour in starting due to non-appearance of OHA linesmen. Two local men were pressed into service. It was held up again when a light was smashed by a driving puck, and again when trouble between the Macs' players and hot-head fans broke out in the McFarlands' corridor. The trouble-seeking fans were ousted and the trouble stopped before play was resumed. The game ended 23 minutes ahead of the midnight curfew.

WIENER STARTED IT

Wiener Brown was the Alpha and Omega of the McFarlands dashing comeback effort. He fired the opening gun early in the second period and slipped Ike Hildebrand the goal-mouth pass which resulted in the tying marker. He triggered the third goal to put the Macs within range of a tie or victory.

Ike Hildebrand came up with a goal and two assists with Keith MacDonald rounding out the quartet of markers. Keith Montgomery had two assists, Moe Benoit, Russ Kowalchuk and Bep Guidolin one each.

Coach Hildebrand changed his player strategy again using five defencemen and nine forwards, Davy Jones sitting this one out. Eddie Marineau was sidelined with an injured ankle, and it is hoped he will be able to play before the series is completed. He is missed up front with the shock troops.

Referee Gordon Pranske of Ottawa dealt out eight penalties, five to the Kings. He tabbed Russ Kowalchuk for a major for slashing and taking a punch at Gerry Plamondon who had hooked the Macs player high up, but when Montgomery was hooked later in the game and suffered a head injury no major sentence was handed out.

LIONEL BOTLEY
Stout Defender

WIENER BROWN
Lit the Fuse

It was a vastly different first period to that which marked that of the first tussle between the teams in the opening game. The clubs set a fast pace with honors about even, both goalies having seven shots fired at them.

Joe Lepine was given the heave-ho at 8.25 and the Kings lost little time taking advantage of their manpower. Jack Giesebrecht led a Pembroke dash into Belleville territory deflecting Farelli's screened shot past Gordie Bell for the opening score.

Three minutes later, after Payette had kicked out some hard drives from the Macs, the Kings again roared in to paydirt territory. Clarke blasted a waist-high shot off the Belleville net and Chiarelli lifted his stick and deflected it into the net behind Bell.

Plamondon hooked Kowalchuk steaming into the goal and the McFarland slashed him, drawing a major for ensuing fisticuffs with Plamondon getting a minor.

The game was held up at the 19-minute mark when fans attacked the Macs officials in their corridor.

The teams swept into the same fast pace in the second period and the Pembroke spectators roared as Limoges put the Kings three up with less than four minutes gone. The Macs ripped back to the attack and took a new lease of life when Wiener Brown blasted a slapshot from thirty feet out a minute later with Hildebrand and Bradley getting assists.

Guidolin was heaved for hooking when Joe Lepine hoisted a lofty shot that crashed a big light near centre ice left boards. The sweepers had cleared the mess when another chunk fell to the ice again delaying the game.

It was the McFarlands from here in. Sparked by the goal they ripped to the attack and MacDonald climaxed a beautiful play with Kowalchuk and Benoit to narrow the margin to 3-2. Kowalchuk swept down the right boards circled the Pembroke net in a sweeping motion slipped the puck to Benoit. Moe blasted a shot which Payette stopped and MacDonald pounced on the rebound to cut the margin to 3-2.

Bert Giesebrecht was sent off for penance and the Macs poured on their full pressure. They swarmed around the Kings net and Payette rose to height kicking out their drives. They outshot the Kings 11-5 in the period.

Farelli and Montgomery went off together for high-sticking at 4.06 in the third chapter and three minutes later Bruce Giesebrecht brought the crowd to its feet when his shot ripped into the net on a pass from Farelli.

Douglas retired to the hoosegow for interference and the Macs put on the power play. Wiener scoring his second goal on another sizzling slapper with Hildebrand and Guidolin assisting. Bart Bradley and Paul Payette missed from close in before the penalty was ended.

The Kings took over and blasted offensives at the Belleville net with the Macs coming up with outstanding defence work. Then with less than six minutes to go, Montgomery sent Hildebrand and Brown away with the coach tipping in Wiener's goalmouth drive for the tying marker. That was all until overtime when the McFarlands had a clear edge in play outshooting the Kings 3-1 but failing to notch the winner.

BCI Teams Play Benefit Game For Ab Wright

By DONN MARTINSON

Friday noon in the BCI gym, the BCI senior basketball team challenged the BCI "Dumbells" to a benefit game from which all proceeds were put into the Ab Wright Fund. Ab Wright, a student at BCI, was injured during a hockey game and has been in Toronto hospital since the accident. The Boys' Athletic Society duplicated the sum received at the door and the approximate amount accumulated was $75.

The senior basketball team is the team that was eliminated in the COSSA playdowns while the "dumbells" consisted of those students who were either too old or did not obtain the required academic standing to play inter-school basketball this year. Frank Geard coached the senior team while Fred Bradley handled the coaching chores of the "Dumbells."

In the first quarter of the game, both teams checked close with the seniors holding a 7-6 scoring edge but the seniors moved ahead slightly in the second quarter and by half-time the seniors held a 24-18 lead. The "Dumbells" played their best ball in the third quarter but were outscored 13-10. The seniors completely dominated the play in the last quarter by keeping the opponents off the score sheet, while they racked in 8 points to take the game 45-28. This successful benefit game was capably officiated (?) by Dave Deacon and Homer "Red" Townsend.

Points:

"Dumbells — Skelly 3, Alexander 3, Hurst 3, Elliott 4, Kennedy 1, Kingston 4, Goyer 5, James 5, Kvarda, Buchan and Morton.

BCIVS Seniors — Mowers 2, Irwin 11, Stark 2, Hill 1, Deacon 2, Martinson 1, Walters 14, Stephanson 12, Rowbotham, MacKenzie and Parkhurst.

Rugby Union Notes

TORONTO (CP)—Bobby Coulter, former great football player with the University of Toronto Blues, resigned Saturday from the executive of the Canadian Rugby Union. Coulter, third vice-president, gave no reason for his action.

Ed Fennell of Montreal succeeded Don Downey of Toronto as president.

Other officers: First vice-president, Bob Moran, Toronto; second vice-president, Carl Slocomb, Winnipeg; third vice - president, Maurice Chilton, Sarnia; fourth vice - president, John Funston, Halifax.

The office of fifth vice-president will be taken by the official named by the Intercollegiate Senior Union to succeed Coulter.

TORONTO (CP) — Over objections of the Big Four, the Canadian Rugby Union voted Saturday to allow blockers to operate up to the third five-yard stripe beyond the line of scrimmage. The CRU also allowed the eastern Intercollegiate Senior Union to introduce unlimited blocking for linemen in 1958.

Bert Warwick of Edmonton, chairman of the rules committee, said "certain unions" asked for unlimited blocking but his committee was prepared to allow only the Intercollegiate to adopt it for 1958.

Warwick did not identify the requesting unions but it is known the Western Interprovincial and Ontario Rugby Football Unions would like to adopt it.

Under the new rule, which will apply only to properly marked fields, blockers can go up to 14 yards ahead of the line of scrimmage on running plays.

Warwick said that 14 rule changes were accepted by his committee, most of them were of a minor nature.

TORONTO (CP) — There will be big changes in distribution of Grey Cup tickets this year, and possibly the hardest hit will be the Ontario Rugby Football Union.

In the past the ORFU has received 10 per cent, or about $2,500, but it probably will get 200 or 300 this time.

The subject came up at the Canadian Rugby Union annual meeting Saturday when the Big Four and Western Interprovincial Football unions proposed that the ORFU's allotment be cut to 200.

After little discussion, the issue was turned over to the incoming CRU executive. Its decision probably won't be known for some time.

In previous years, the Big Four, WIFU and CRU each received 30 per cent and the ORFU 10 per cent. The 1958 game scheduled for Vancouver on Nov. 29, and a crowd of more than 40,000, including 8,000 standing room, is expected. One suggestion is that the WIFU champion would receive 3,700 tickets, the runner-up 2,000; the other two WIFU clubs 1,500 each and the host club B.C. Lions—6,200, including 2,000 to come out of the ORFU's share.

TORONTO (CP) — Playoff pay for players in the Big Four—Canadian and American—will be $300 each, it was decided at a special Big Four executive meeting here Saturday.

Players of the Big Four team in the Nov. 29 Grey Cup final at Vancouver will receive $500 each.

Previously, players negotiated playoff payments at contract-signing time.

Also decided were Big Four playoff dates.

The sudden-death semi-final between the second- and third-place teams will be played on Wednesday, Nov. 12, on the home ground of the runner-up club.

The winner will meet the first-place club in a home-and-home total-point series Nov. 15 and Nov. 22.

Detroit's New Defence Play Irks Boston Bruins Brass

BOSTON (AP) — Boston Bruins are sharply criticizing Detroit's use of a rarely seen hockey defence which may be a tipoff to the Red Wings playoff plans.

Coach Milt Schmidt and general manager Lynn Patrick both blasted the Wings for a style of play they believe is not enjoyed by the paying customers.

In Detroit's 6-3 National Hockey League victory over the Bruins Sunday night at the Garden, the Wings played the centre in their own zone behind their defencemen most of the time.

Alex Delvecchio and Forbes Kennedy shared the "laying back" job. The puck couldn't be shot into the zone to set up a ganging attack because the deep defender was back to pick it off the boards.

"That's the way to really draw crowds," Patrick said sarcastically after the contest. "We'll end up with the Garden empty if teams play like that."

Schmidt, commenting on the defence, said

"It wouldn't be effective for any period of time. There are too many loopholes in it. It was strange to us so we ran into trouble. But if we had gotten the first goal they couldn't have kept it up. It's really tough to put on a show against a style of play like that.

"It's too bad we aren't playing in Detroit again this year. But maybe we will be (referring to the playoffs) If we do, I'll put on a show for them. We'll be icing the puck all night long. We'll see how their fans like it."

Sid Abel, Red Wings coach, said

"We had to try some kind of strategy because we hadn't won a game in Boston all year long. We practised this style of play once and decided to try it out. It worked but we don't plan to work it again this year."

Doug Ford Wins Pensacola Open; Balding Fifth

PENSACOLA, Fla. (AP)—Doug Ford's slump on the pro golfing circuit is ended.

The 1957 Masters champion won his first title in nine months with a two-stroke victory in the $15,000 Pensacola Open tournament Sunday.

The Mahopac, N.Y., veteran cinched his win in dramatic fashion by sinking a 53-foot shot from between two traps to the left of the 18th green. The usually-restrained Ford leaped and jigged when the ball hit the flag and dropped into the cup. He made the 1,000-to-1 shot with a putter.

The birdie three on the par four 400-yard 18th gave Ford a 72-hole total of 278, 10 strokes under par. He won $2,000.

Ken Venturi, who had pulled even with Ford on the 15th hole, finished in a runnerup tie with defending champion Art Wall Jr., at 280.

Toronto's Al Balding, only Canadian in the tournament, won $650. He finished seven strokes behind Ford in a five-way tie at 285.

Harry Morgan Heads District Softball League

If interest in the Belleville and District softball league remains as active as it was at the first meeting held at Moira Street firehall yesterday, the loop should be in for its best season in years.

Four clubs were represented and three other possible entries discussed at the gathering, attended by 16 softball enthusiasts.

Represented at the meeting meeting and almost sure entries were Goyer's Marines, Point Anne, the Bobcats and Cobourg. Mention was made of Trenton Juniors, RCAF Air Station and a club from the Picton-Bloomfield area. These last three teams have shown interest in pre-meeting discussions but were not in attendance yesterday.

The league will operate under a complete new executive this season. Harry Morgan, well-known in hockey and ball circles for many years here, was named president of the loop. Mr. Morgan was unable to attend the meeting yesterday but had informed others earlier that he was very interested in the loop and would be happy to serve as president. Morgan replaces Cy Barriage who stepped down after two years and who said he would be only too happy to remain active in any other way he could to help the league.

Gord Booth was named vice-president while Bob Blaind took over as secretary-treasurer. All three were elected without opposition.

It was decided to dissolve plans for a banquet. The annual presentation banquet was not held last fall because of a lack of interest and considerable thought was given to holding it before the opening of this season. But those present yesterday decided to forget the matter. Batting trophies will be presented at opening home games of the winning players' clubs this spring.

Belleville will be represented at the annual OASA convention, to be held in St. Catharines on Easter weekend, by OASA vice president Don Lee, Harry Rollins and Tom Hookings.

Among those present yesterday were "Huck" Matthews, representing the Cobourg team, and Harold Bawden from the Bay of Quinte Umpires' Association.

The next league meeting will be held on Sunday, March 30, one week before the OASA convention.

Yankees Snap Batting Slump Mantle, Berra Start the Show

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Mickey Mantle and Yogi Berra, the big boomers of the Bronx Bombers, have started to get the bat squarely against the ball and today the word went out: "Beware the Yankees."

The New York sluggers snapped their slumps Sunday and led the Yankees to a 4-1 exhibition victory over Milwaukee Braves. It was the first meeting between the two teams since the world series.

Mantle and Berra aroused the entire Yankee cast from its lethargic play and lifted New York's Grapefruit League record to 4-5. The Yanks got some solid pitching from veteran Art Ditmar and youngsters Ryne Duren and Al Cicotte, who combined for an eight-hitter.

Mantle stroked two doubles, scoring twice and accounting for one run driven in. Berra slashed a double and a single and picked up two RBIs.

Cleveland Indians' ace pitcher Herb Score finally made his exhibition debut. Sidelined last year when a batted ball struck him in the eye, Score suffered an ankle sprain early in spring training.

A 20-game winner in 1956, the young Cleveland fastballer gave up two runs and four hits in a three-inning stint as the Indians bowed to San Francisco 6-5 for their fourth consecutive loss to the Giants. Score was the loser. Johnny Antonelli picked up the win.

Elsewhere, Washington Senators unveiled a slugger in Neil Chrisley, who hit three homers in a 10-6 victory over Detroit Tigers. St Louis defeated Cincinnati 6-3; Los Angeles knocked off Boston 5-1; Pittsburgh edged Philadelphia 6-5 in 10 innings, and Chicago White Sox clubbed Kansas City 8-2. Chicago Cubs and Baltimore were rained out.

Chrisley drove in six runs with his three round-trippers, one a grand slammer, as the Senators routed Paul Foytack with five runs in the first. Herb Plews also homered for Washington.

Stan Musial's three-run homer off Hal Jeffcoat brought the Cardinals their victory.

The Dodgers received good pitching from Don Drysdale, Danny McDevitt and Jackie Collum, who limited the Red Sox to five hits.

When you ask for a loan

you do not ask a FAVOUR

WHEN the housewife calls at the grocery store and orders a supply of provisions, she is not asking a favour . . . she is buying goods for which she will pay cash . . . purely a matter of business.

So with your bank. It is a business proposition just as much as the grocery store.

The grocer deals in groceries . . . the banker deals in credit. And, as the making of loans is the principal way by which his bank derives its revenue, he is as anxious to sell his credit as the grocer is to sell his groceries. And, like the grocer, the banker naturally wants to know that he is going to be paid for his goods . . . that his loans will be met when they fall due. That, too, is only good business.

When you have occasion to ask for a loan, look at it this way. Come to the Bank, not feeling that you have to ask a favour, but to offer the manager a sound business proposition which will be of profit to you and to his institution.

Bruins and Canadiens took leads in their bantam city semi-final series at Memorial Arena Saturday morning.

Bruins downed the Rangers 4-1 while Canadiens defeated the Maple Leafs 4-2. Both were the first games in two-game, goals-to-count series with the winners to meet for the championship.

Wayne Williams, with a pair of goals and one assist, led the Bruin scorers. Pete Emerson had one and one while York also scored. Anderson and Genereaux had single assists. Brien McBride tallied for Rangers on a pass from Boyle.

Jerry Jones sparked the Canadien victory with a goal and two helpers while Gary Duvall had one and one. Jim Rutherford and Cliff McGrimmon added a goal each. Norm Richards and Pete Armstrong were the Maple Leaf marksmen while Seames picked up one assist.

In last Thursday's story of the squirt games between Barons and Maple Leafs it was reported that Doug Lucas had scored six goals. Gary Lucas of the Barons was the six-goal man rather than Doug.

VANCOUVER (CP) — Bill Slater of Vancouver's Dolphin Club smashed two national records in one race Saturday night during the B.C. swim trials.

Slater, in the 440-yard free-style event set a mark of 4:43.3, beating the six-year-old 4:48.2 record of Vancouver's Gerry McNamee. He also lopped 1.4 seconds from McNamee's 400-yard free style in the same race with a time of 4:18.9.

Kathy Campbell of Vancouver Amateur Swim Club set a new mark of 5:24.8 in the women's 440-yard free style.

Clyde Ousts Falkirk 2-1

LONDON (Reuters) — A battling Clyde team, sparked by Willie Currie's two goals, edged Falkirk 2-1 Saturday and eliminated the defending champions from Scottish Soccer Association Cup play.

Clyde joined Hibernian, Motherwell and Rangers in the semi-finals of the knockout competition. Hibernian edged Third Lanark 3-2, Motherwell squeezed by Aberdeen 2-1 and Rangers scored a 4-3 victory over Queen of the South.

In English League play, the powerful Wolverhampton Wanderers closed in on the first division championship by humbling Nottingham Forest 4-1. With nine games left to play, the Wanderers have a seven-point lead over runner-up Preston. Preston won 3-0 over Leeds United.

Manchester United dropped further down in the standing by bowing 3-0 to Burnley.

Fourth-place Fulham continued a late drive toward the top of the second division by smothering Doncaster Rovers 6-1. The London team now is four points behind division-leading West Ham and has two more games to play than the leaders.

West Ham bowed 3-1 to Huddersfield Town and had its lead over second-place Charlton trimmed to a single point. Charlton was held to a 1-1 tie by lowly Swansea Town.

The winners scored early in yesterday's game and were never behind, although Hillcrest tied the score at 1-1 and later at 2-2 before Don's pulled ahead to stay.

Junior Day, Bob Wannamaker and John Casey were the Hillcrest marksmen. Both clubs scored once with the opposition a man short.

Quebec Hockey

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The playoff hopes of Trois-Rivieres Lions in the Quebec Hockey League were ended Sunday by Montreal Royals, a hard-pressed club battling for third spot. The Royals maintained a deadlock with Quebec Aces by battering the Lions 8-2 before a hometown crowd.

At Quebec City, the Aces scored a 3-2 win over Chicoutimi Sagueneens on Kenny Hayden's goal in overtime.

The Sagueneens clinched the QHL championship last week. They have 73 points, 10 more than Shawinigan Cataracts, who were not in QHL action Sunday.

Despite Earlier Rejections 'Music Man' Proves Big Hit

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Music Man Meredith Willson, who proved that wholesomeness can pay off on Broadway, is a clean-cut Iowa boy (56) who doesn't gloat over his success.

Although well he might, for his show, Music Man, once was dropped by the hit-making production team of Feuer and Martin.

CBS bigwigs declined to back the show and predicted it would be a flop. Victor, Columbia and Decca turned down chances to buy the record album rights.

Despite this, Music Man is a solid smash. The backers will get back their investment tenfold, and the Capitol album is selling like crazy.

"I'm not sure I could have done Music Man one day sooner than I did," said Willson, a one-man gang who wrote music, lyrics and book for the show. "I wouldn't be surprised if it didn't take 56 years of living."

KICKING THEMSELVES

He added that many well-wishers tell him, "I'll bet Feuer and Martin are kicking themselves because they didn't keep your show."

Willson hasn't the same reaction. He took his show, which he called the Silver Triangle, to the producing team in 1953. "They flipped over it," the author recalls, "and Cy Feuer renamed it The Music Man.

Bernie Martin came to Hollywood to aid Willson in the rewrite, but the script worsened instead of getting better. The deal was called off.

Still obsessed by the story of a con man who sells musical instruments in a small town, Willson continued working on his own.

Eventually he called producer York. The producer hadn't heard of Willson despite his years in radio and TV, but the Feuer and Martin connection made him listen. Willson flew to New York for a midnight audition the next night, and exactly one year later, Music Man and star Robert Preston were Broadway hits.

Reg England Named President Quinte Football

The annual meeting of the Bay of Quinte Football Association was held Friday night in the YMCA in Belleville with President Les Digby in the chair. Seven clubs were represented; Batawa, Belleville, Northern Electric, Belleville Wilsons' Concrete, Campbellford, 6 RD RCAF, Station Trenton RCAF, and Trenton. It was intimated that Brighton was considering an entry and there was a possibility of Picton Army Camp being interested once again.

Les Digby in his remarks as president reviewed the activities of the previous year. Northern Electric had won the League trophy and the Belleville Charity Cup whilst Batawa had won the Trenton Challenge Cup. He felt that the prospects for the coming season were bright.

He informed the meeting that he had recently been elected to the executive of the Ontario Soccer Football Association and therefore he would be available for re-election to the office of president which he had held for the past nine years. He stated that the Ontario Football Association executive were responsible for organized soccer all over Ontario and thus he would be available to the new officers for guidance at any time.

Secretary Reg Dickman brought in a very healthy financial report which showed a profit for the season's operations.

The officers elected for the coming year were President Reg England, Vice President, Reg Dickman, and Secretary Treasurer Flying Officer Lynch. It was decided that the executive should be the officers plus one member to be appointed by each club.

The latest date for team entries was set as April 10 and a meeting has been arranged for 8 p.m. on Friday April 11 to draw up a schedule. This meeting will be held in the YMCA.

It was suggested that efforts should be made to promote minor soccer again. Les Digby said he felt that some financial assistance might be obtained from the Ontario Football Association in this connection.

David Brinkley and Huntley Revitalize NBC News Report

By CHARLES MERCER

WASHINGTON (AP)—A young man named David Brinkley is delivering a television news report from Washington these evenings that is fresh and bracing.

Brinkley and Chet Huntley from New York head the team of NBC reporters who have revitalized the network's news coverage with The Huntley-Brinkley Report.

As an experienced reporter who writes his own material, Brinkley takes a dim view of the rapidly fading old - fashioned announcer who had a script ghost-written for him.

"It's no wonder," he said, "that many reporters used to scorn a man who made $800 a week for reading the AP radio news report in an animated fashion. Too often a television news reporter is thought of a performer—which is not his function."

Brinkley covers the news without pretence of omniscience or a too-humble objectivity. He does not force his personal opinions into his report, but he is master of an aseptic style of writing and speaking and his occasional slightly twisted smile is never a sneer or a leer. As a result, viewers enjoy a quality rare in television newscasting: Irony.

Is irony effective on television?

"I think so," said Brinkley. "People either understand it or else it totally eludes them and they think, on hearing the facts of a situation, 'isn't that nice,' or 'what a shame.'"

The main function of a newscaster, he believes, "is to say things clearly."

Although the eye may be more receptive than the ear, the NBC TV report declines to be bound solely to events which have had camera coverage. Recalling times past when TV news seemed to be largely a coverage of such things as water skiing in Florida or beauty pageants in California, Brinkley said:

"I hope those days are gone forever. We stick with the news. For a late - breaking important story which we can't illustrate with film we'll throw out something less important for which we have excellent camera coverage."

The synchronizing of time and coverage between Huntley in New York and Brinkley in Washington is never a problem, he says. A couple of hours before air time there is a phone conference conducted by Toronto - born Reuven Frank, the program director in New York. Changes often are made up until the last minute.

Brinkley believes that the chief problem of a TV newscaster in Washington is that "there never is enough time—my biggest regret is that I never have time to polish a script."

New Drug Makes Animal Cancer Tumors Vanish

NORTH HOLLYWOOD, Calif. (AP)—The human placenta has yielded an extract which, a veterinarian says, has eliminated cancer from many animals.

The placenta is the bodily substance which nourishes an unborn baby.

Dr. W. Steele, Livingston refuses to say cancers in his animals have been cured. He uses the phrase "complete regression," meaning tumors disappeared and have not returned.

The liquid from the placenta apparently achieves this by converting tumor cells into normal body cells, Livingston said.

STILL ONLY EXPERIMENTAL

"The substance has an effect on all cancers in the animals we have tested," he told an interviewer Friday. "However, the work is purely experimental and it will be some time before we can talk about any substance for human use."

His 16 years' research in cancer was reported in the current Journal of the National Cancer Institute.

Livingston said he and his assistant, Dale Gillette, have produced a substance that accelerates cell growth and one which decelerates it.

Livingston said he believes normal cells may become cancerous when their respiratory system is interfered with and that, some way, the substance he has obtained from placenta restores this system to normal.

PICTON

Saskatchewan Is Backing PC's States Monteith

PICTON — "I have just returned from a trip to Saskatchewan and I found there has been a terrific change in thinking in that province. They feel that John Diefenbaker and his government have done what they promised to do last June and are rallying to the support of P.C. candidates," stated Hon. J. Waldo Monteith, Minister of National Health and Welfare, in an address before a large gathering in Picton Saturday afternoon.

In a comprehensive review of the record of the Conservative government, Dr. Monteith declared "A budget wil be brought down at the right time. The budget of Walter Harris is in force until March 31. To make tax cuts and to pass legislation, amendments were made. We are going to finish the March 31, 1958, fiscal year with a surplus despite increased expenditures."

While there will be a surplus this year, Dr. Monteith said such may not be the case the following year, in order to carry out John Diefenbaker's pledge that no one will suffer due to lack of employment.

The speaker declared that the Liberal government's announced surplus of 200 million dollars was many hundreds of millions more, hidden by grants to the Canada Council, superannuation fund and reserve — "yet they refused to cut taxes or increase grants.

"The Diefenbaker government said it would cut taxes and it has by 178 million dollars. A hundred thousand fewer people are paying income taxes under new legislation."

"We increased old age security pensions from $46 to $55 a month, increased old age assistance, allowances for the blind and disability allowances.

"If the Liberals had been elected last June, there would have been no such increases. They had 22 years but did nothing.

Dr. Monteith referred to Dr. Clark of the University of British Columbia making a study of social welfare in the United States. "The main point is that it is a contributory plan, but I stress if any part is adopted here it will be over and above the present legislation governing pensions, etc.

"The Diefenbaker government has given the lie to whispering campaigns that if the Conservatives were elected that pensions and allowances would be reduced."

HOSPITAL INSURANCE

"Hospital insurance will be in effect July 1, 1958, six months earlier than the Liberals said possible. We removed the clause whereby six provinces had to agree and it will be available for Ontario when that province is ready," said Dr. Monteith who pointed out that at least two provinces have hospital plans which will permit them to take advantage of Federal grants sooner than others. Two weeks ago, Ontario signed an agreement. "It is being offered to all provinces. I think all Canadians should receive these benefits so that they will have no fear of being ruined financially because of the cost of hospitalization."

Dr. Monteith spoke of grants for hospital construction being doubled and was pleased to learn that these increased grants made possible proceeding with plans for the new County Hospital at Picton. He said there had been a need for increases to meet increased construction costs and to encourage provision of new beds which will be called for under hospital insurance. Grants will also be available for renovation of hospitals. "I cannot understand why these increases were not made years ago."

The speaker explained the increase in Federal grants for assistance for unemployed unemployables.

Increased grants to Provinces, he felt, will be passed on to municipalities.

"The Liberals are now trying to buy their way back into power with promises of tax cuts. I don't think the opposition's platform has any basis of sound thinking. It has been plucked from thin air. They had a huge surplus but did nothing".

Of trade, the minister asked, "is the United States likely to become angry if we believe it best that 15 percent of our trade is switched from them to the United Kingdom".

"In 1956 we bought 300 million dollars more goods from them than we sold them. The same year we sold 441 million dollars more goods to the rest of the world than we bought from them. With the U.S.A. we had a trade deficit, with the others a trade surplus, in all a net trade deficit of 842 million dollars.

"Fifty percent of the overall industry in Canada is owned in the U.S.A.

"We have a surplus with Britain. They haven't dollars with which to buy our products. We want to buy from Britain so that they will have dollars to buy our products. The United States is chiefly interested in our raw materials."

Dr. Monteith highly praised the local member, Clarence A. Milligan.

Mr. Milligan dealt with agricultural legislation.

The government has shown that former cabinet ministers were not indispensable as they thought, he declared.

Concerning unemployment, he felt a good portion of the increase is attributable to increased benefits being given.

Norris Whitney, M.P.P., and Jim Thompson, Peterborough, vice-president, Ontario Y.P.C.A. spoke briefly. Phil Dodds was chairman.

No New Signs For Montreal Hotel Seen

MONTREAL (CP) — CNR spokesmen said Sunday there is "no pressing need" to install new identification signs on the Queen Elizabeth Hotel since the 21-storey building won't be officially opened until April 15-16, although some guests have been registered.

The former exterior signs were removed last week because the hotel's management committee felt "a flamboyant impression was given and something more in keeping with the characteristics of the building was needed," the spokesman said.

The officials said they had no idea of the design of the new signs, or when they would be put up, "but since the official opening is still a month away there's no hurry."

The old signs, white plastic lettering about two feet high, stretched 20 feet across the hotel above the main entrance on midtown Dorchester Street. The block lettering, with bulbs inside for illumination at night, spelled Queen Elizabeth and Le Reine Elizabeth, separated by the hotel's bright red crest.

It is almost certain, the spokesmen said, there will be no changes in spelling.

St. Patrick's Day in Ireland

By HUGH MULLIGAN

DUBLIN (AP)—What's it like to be in Ireland on St. Patrick's Day?

It's not like Christmas or New Year's or Easter Sunday morning, when relatives inhabit the parlor and wee Brendan gets a bright new shilling from Uncle Tim.

It's not even remotely like St. Patrick's Day in New York or wherever else Ireland's wandering sons and daughters get together to laugh a little and cry a little.

The Irish in Ireland have a sneaking suspicion that they already are Irish, through and through, and hence find no need to advertise it.

There's a St. Patrick's Day parade all right, up O'Connell Street in Dublin with banners flying and pipes skirling. But it goes by so fast you'd miss it entirely if a pretty wisp of a colleen happened by at the same time.

NO SHILLELAGHS

And there are shamrocks, real shamrocks, home grown and fresh picked, peeking out of every lapel and tucked smartly into the band of every hat.

There's dancing too, at almost every crossroads hall and schoolhouse, far into the night, with the fiddlers frantically screeching out wild jigs and reels and hornpipes, and throngs of quick-footed boys and girls kicking up the dust in time to the ancient airs.

But you won't find a shillelagh anywhere except in the tourist shops, and nobody will be sporting a green cardboard hat or weeping his eyes out over a throaty tenor's rendition of When Irish Eyes Are Smiling.

The shop windows won't be decked out with gold harps or clay pipes or any of the other vaudeville trappings usually associated with the race.

DRINKS SCARCE

Most startling of all, you'll have enormous difficulty getting a drink in Ireland on St. Patrick's Day. It's a religious holiday, first and foremost. All pubs and bars and shabeens—as they call after-hours drinking spots—are closed.

And if a deep thirst suddenly comes over you, there's an alternative. You can literally go to the dogs, as many Dubliners do. For some unknown reason, the drop flows freely at the annual dog show held this day on the Royal Dublin Society Grounds in Ballsbridge, a Dublin suburb.

Or you can hop over the border into Ulster and find the pubs doing a brisk business. St. Patrick's Day is observed in the north with shamrocks and dances and military reviews, but it is not a national holiday as it is in the south.

FUN AND FROLIC

In the Republic, the day is a time for sport and fun, for friends and frolic. Workers are off from their jobs. School children enjoy their first holiday since Christmas. Farmers break out a stiffly starched shirt and don their "blues and yellows," meaning their Sunday blue serge suit and highly polished tan shoes.

Spring, at last, is definitely in the air, with the drizzle gone from the grey limestone mountains and a bright sun smiling on the yellow gorse blossoms in the emerald-jewel fields.

The day begins early with church bells calling the faithful to 6 a.m. mass, during which the priest will deliver a special sermon in the Gaelic tongue. Those who have been "wetting the shamrock," indulging in a few pints the night before, will probably go to the later masses, which run all the way until noon.

For schoolboys, this is their day of adventure. With a blackened tea kelly, a paper satchel crammed with eggs and cheese and meat, and a little extra pin money for buying sweets along the way, they cycle off to the mountains for a cookout over a sweet smoking cedarwood fire.

Older brothers and sisters, up to 30 and beyond, likewise catch the wanderlust and head for a seaside resort like Greystones or Bray or Warren Point for a bracing walk along the strand and a good meal at an inn.

At home, whether in a whitewashed thatch cottage in some remote county or a stately Georgian mansion in the heart of Dublin, custom rigidly dictates that the main meal—a chicken or a roast—be held at noon. St. Patrick's Day provides the only exception to lenten fasting regulations and Irish appetites are usually whetted for the challenge.

The afternoon is given over to sporting events: horse and dog racing, soccer, rugby, Gaelic football, golf, plowing contests, track meets.

Brookdale Farm Forum Holds Meeting

6th SIDNEY — Brookdale farm forum met on March 10 at the home of Mr. and Mrs. G. Pollard with nine members present.

In answer to the question as to women's effectiveness and benefit to the farm organization the answer is as follows:

"We think it best to have greater women's participation without any special women's section or program. Otherwise the male portion is not much interested — as tonight. They all enjoyed the broadcast but did not contribute anything to the discussion. The female side must still continue to be the "silent partner" to the public.

The Women's Institute have done a great deal to educate our women giving them a broad knowledge and understanding so that they can talk intelligently on most subjects that concern the home or affect it in any way. Our farm forums have brought the discussion method and many are drawn into discussion who would otherwise remain silent.

President Sole Judge of What Is Secret in Public Interest

By REM PRICE

WASHINGTON (AP) — The red ink pad and the rubber stamp marked "secret" appear to have become a permanent part of government in the United States.

Is anybody getting exercised about the trend?

Some people are, pointing out that:

1. Democracy's basic doctrine that the people need facts to make intelligent decisions is being stamped silly.

2. There is evidence that governmental preoccupation with secrecy has damaged U.S. defences, military and scientific.

3. There is testimony that most of the so-called secrets are secrets only from the American public.

Some examples:

An important report on the state of U.S. defences has been suppressed by the White House.

NOT TOLD

Americans never have been told the whole story of their missile program, and how it stacks up against what is known of Russia's.

Books and records of nearly every governmental department are closed to public inspection. There are 2,000 active agencies, bureaus and departments in the federal government, plus some 5,000 advisory bureaus. Nearly all meet behind closed doors.

Almost $70,000,000,000 has been spent on foreign aid since the war — but the government never has given the public a detailed accounting of where the money has gone or how effectively it has served.

The cutback in funds for missile work was concealed until after reporters began digging into the program in the wake of Russia's Sputnik I.

HIDE INFORMATION

Secrecy mania has reached the point where scientists in one branch of the armed forces don't know—and can't find out—what their colleagues in other services are doing.

Agents of the government accounting office, supposedly the watchdogs against graft and waste, cannot inspect all the records of the defence department on the ground that some projects are secret.. The department spends two-thirds of very tax dollar.

The roots of the problem go back to General George Washington's administration, when the executive department was made custodian of records. This is the so-called Housekeeping Act.

As custodian, the executive department has refused to turn over records to Congress on the grounds of the constitutional separation of powers between the legislative, judicial, and executive branches.

The justice department has held that the president is sole judge of what is secret in the public interest.

Elliot Lake Man Held At Detroit On Murder Count

'Feel I Killed My Wife' First Tip on Slayings

ELLIOT LAKE, Ont. (CP)—A 28-year-old woman and her two young daughters were found slashed to death in a blood-soaked trailer a few miles north of this Northern Ontario uranium-mining centre early today.

Ontario Provincial Police found the bodies shortly after 3 a.m. acting on a report from Detroit that a man identified as Roland F. Sabourin, 31, walked into Detroit police headquarters Monday night and said: "I'm haunted by the feeling I killed my wife and daughters."

Detroit police booked Sabourin on an open charge and held him for questioning.

The victims were identified as Mrs. Lucille Sabourin, Lorraine, 7, and Jeannette, 3.

MURDER CHARGE SWORN

Charges of murder were sworn out today against Sabourin. Provincial police headquarters at Toronto said Insp. H. M. Purdy has gone to Detroit to arrange Sabourin's return to Canada.

Police broke into the locked 35-foot trailer and found the three bodies on beds. An inspector said Mrs. Sabourin and the girls had their throats cut. The woman also appeared to have been badly beaten.

The walls of the green-and-white trailer, one of 177 located in a trailer park on a mine property 10 miles north of here, were spattered with blood.

Residents of nearby trailers said they had not heard disturbances from the Sabourin quarters. Harold J. Cook, who lives in a trailer five feet away, told police he had not seen anyone enter the trailer since last Wednesday when he noticed Sabourin outside.

Sabourin, a cage-tender at the Algom-Quirke Mine, quit his job March 9 and picked up a pay cheque March 11, police said. He was last reported seen at 5 p.m. the next day near his trailer.

Mrs. Sabourin is a former resident of Sudbury, 85 miles east of here. Sabourin formerly lived at Sturgeon Falls, Ont., and Sudbury.

Police in Detroit quoted Sabourin as saying he did not know how he got to that city or how long he had been there. He was taken to hospital.

All-Male Jury Cannot Agree On Verdict

TORONTO (CP) — County judge Robert Forsyth Monday night discharged an all-male jury that had deliberated nearly 8½ hours and returned without a verdict in the trial of industrialist W. J. Philip LeGros, charged with obtaining more than $80,000 in stolen bonds.

LeGros was remanded in custody until a date can be set for a new trial on 29 charges of fraud, forgery, uttering and receiving.

The jury was earlier ordered by the judge to deliberate until a verdict was reached after it had twice returned without a verdict.

Jury foreman W. Herb Little told the court he and his fellow jurymen could not reach agreement on any of 29 charges.

LeGros, who rose from a newsboy to a $25,000-a-year industrialist in less than 20 years, is accused of obtaining $80,000 in loans in 1951 and 1952 from two branches of the Bank of Nova Scotia by tendering bonds stolen in bank robberies and burglaries.

He pleaded not guilty, saying he did not know the bonds were stolen and that he bought them from a bookmaker and a lawyer after getting approval from bank managers William Thompson nd G. W. Poole, now both retired.

Six Rescued From Fishing Boats on Lake

DUNNVILLE (CP) — Five men and a boy aboard two fishing vessels arrived home Monday night after being stranded in the ice in the east end of Lake Erie for more than two days.

The United States Coast Guard cutter Kaw reached the vessels late Monday and towed them back to nearby Port Maitland.

The boats had been locked about 20 feet apart, 15 miles southeast of this town. Dunnville is 18 miles southwest of Welland.

All aboard the fishing boats were reported in good condition.

The Charles R., with owner Daniel Minor, Leonard Farr and Wayne Chalmers aboard, became stranded Saturday after going out to set nets. It radioed for help and the Kolbe, owned by William Siddall, set out with his son, Wayne, 21, Minor's brother Ray and Matthew Vargo, 14. It also became stranded.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO (CP) Synopsis: — Skies gradually cleared across Northern Ontario Monday night as drier air moved in from Quebec. A thick cloud cover still persists across the southern regions this morning. A few light snowflurries are expected from this cloud, occurring mainly in southwestern Ontario during the afternoon today. Sunny weather is forecast for most of Southern Ontario Wednesday. Temperatures dropped to the tens in the north country this morning, but under sunny skies the mercury should rise to near 30 this afternoon.

Indian Family of 9 Living in Tent Typical of Thousands off Reserves

CALGARY (CP) — Help was promised today for a destitute Indian family of nine living in near-zero temperatures in an 8-by-10-foot tent near Cochrane, Alta.

Several Calgary citizens and organizations have offered clothes and food to help George Gerioux, an enfranchised Indian, his wife and their seven children aged nine months to 12 years. The father is without a job and another baby is expected next month.

Larry Hunter of Edmonton, assistant regional supervisor of the Indian affairs branch said aid for the Gerioux family is being requested from the authorities the department believes responsible. Under present rgulations. Indian affairs can't help him.

Mr. Gerioux' problem began when he became an enfranchised Indian.

He left the Indian reservation four years ago with $100 — his treaty money for 20 years. Now he wants to return, and he has promised to pay back all the treaty money.

But Mrs. J. C. Gorman, legal counsel for the Alberta Indian Association, says he can't go back. The law is quite clear. And there are thousands of Canadian Indians in the same position, Indians who want to return but can't.

If one is allowed to return thousands will ask for similar treatment, Mrs. Gorman said. The reservations simply are not large enough to hold them.

The problem is inadequate preparation, she said Monday in an interview. The Indians cannot understand the meaning of leaving the reservation. The white man's law is incomprehensible to them.

The Gerioux family, in their tent in a hollow near Cochrane, 17 miles west of here, is a typical example.

It is compulsory on reservations that children go to school. None of the Gerioux children has ever been in a classroom. By white standards, the 12-year-old boy will be ready to work in four years.

CONTESTS WILL BE HELD IN EVERY RIDING

No Acclamations On Nomination Day

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

A contest in every constituency is lined up for the March 31 Canadian election.

There were no acclamations when nominations closed Monday across the country. Among the 836 candidates named were 265 Progressive Conservatives and the same number of Liberals, one for each seat at stake.

CCF had 169 candidates in the field, Social Credit 82, Independents and others 55. The total was the lowest since 672 candidates contested 245 seats in 1940 and compared with 862 in the election last June. The record of 954 was set in 1945.

Nominations were made Monday in 242 constituencies, two of them with two members apiece. Nominations in 21 other large scattered ridings were held March 3 to allow time for distribution of election material.

DISSOLUTION STANDING

Standing of the House at dissolution Feb. 1 was: Progressive Conservatives 113; Liberals 106; CCF 25; Social Credit 19; Independent 2. There were no vacancies.

The Liberals contested all the seats in 1957, winning one in Newfoundland by acclamation. The Progressive Conservatives had 256 candidates, CCF 162, Social Credit 114, and Independents and others 65.

Among the "others" this year are 18 members of the Communist Labor - Progressive party, headed by leader Tim Buck. The party had 10 candidates in the last election and failed to win a seat.

Among the independents are 11 straight Independents, 10 Independent Liberals, eight Indepedent Progressive Conservatives, one Independent Conservative one Independent Social Credit and one candidate apiece with the labels Canadian Labor, Radical Christian, Capital Familial Socialist, Electors Candidate and Socialist Educational League.

Twenty-one women were nominated—eight Liberal, eight CCF, three Progressive Conservative and two Social Credit.

The Progressive Conservatives nominated all but two of their members of the last House, including Prime Minister Diefenbaker and all his cabinet ministers. Only Angus R. MacDonald, in Antigonish-Guysborough, who is ill, and Neree Arsenault, in Bonaventure, are missing.

Sixteen Liberal members of the last House did not seek nomination, among them former prime minister Louis St. Laurent and Rev. Dan McIvor, Fort William's veteran member who has retired from active political life at the age of 85.

No Enthusiasm Among Voters For Coming Federal Election

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Social Credit Leader Solon Low says there is no enthusiasm among voters for the March 31 federal election.

Moving into Toronto Monday for his first Eastern Canada address in this campaign, he said this is "the slowest election I've ever seen because there was no reason for this election."

A bad cold, meantime, forced CCF Leader M. J. Coldwell to cancel his engagements for this week and remain in his Ottawa home to fight it off. He said the development was a great disappointment.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker campaigned enthusiastically through Manitoba while Liberal Leader Lester B. Pearson made final appearances in Quebec before moving into Ontario. Both turned some attention to the issue of tight money.

Mr. Diefenbaker said at Dauphin, Man., that a tight money policy existed under the former Liberal government and quoted the annual report last January of James Muir, president of the Royal Bank of Canada, to support his statement.

Mr. Pearson said at Mont Joli, Que., that Bank of Canada Governor James E. Coyne's annual report makes "nonsense" of the Progressive Conservative contention that they inherited a recession caused by Liberal tight money policies.

Mr. Diefenbaker did not directly mention the controversy that developed last week when Mr. Coyne said in his report that the present recession did not begin until the latter part of 1957 and was not caused by monetary policy. Mr. Coyne said there had been no tight money policy in the sense of a contraction in the money supply.

The prime minister said Mr. Muir had stated there had been "a moderate easing of the tight money policy of the past two years."

The prime minister has been arguing in his campaign speeches that one reason for present unemployment was that the former Liberal government continued a tight money policy for too long.

Mr. Pearson said the Coyne report "shows that one cause of this recession was not monetary policy." It was set off by a slackening of demand for Canadian products.

The report also showed that if a "loose money policy" had been adopted last spring—"whether by the Bank of Canada or by the (Liberal) government through a tax cut—this would have brought on a more serious recession with a great degree of unemployment."

Leaders of 42 Cuban Groups Join in Demand Batista Quit

HAVANA (AP)—Cuba's President Fulgencio Batista showed no sign today of heeding a call for his resignation by leaders of 42 organizations.

The combined manifesto, declaring that anarchy and bloodshed could be averted only if Batista got out, followed a 22-point demand by rebel leader Fidel Castro giving the president of this Caribbean island until April 5 to quit or face "a fight to the finish."

The presidential palace made no immediate comment on either demand, but it appeared clear that Batista is determined to stay on until after the election he has set for June 1. His choice for president—since he cannot succeed himself—is former premier Andres Ribero Aguero, who has said no one can stop the balloting which the rebels claim is rigged to block any opposition candidate from winning.

The manifesto, put out by representatives of 42 religious, fraternal, professional, civic and cultural organizations, calls for the dissolution of Congress and formation of a provisional transition government representing all major factions.

Castro's demand calls for setting up a military junta immediately after Batista's exit, to be followed by a provisional regime to rule until general elections are held.

The civic leaders' manifesto denounced "repressive forces exercised by Batista" in an attempt to stem the Castro revolt. It said Batista's enlargement of his armed forces might increase the number of victims, but that the rebel movement would continue to grow.

Democrats Feel Reds Stole Propaganda March on Dulles

WASHINGTON (AP) — State Secretary Dulles returns today from a 10-day Far Eastern trip, facing a mounting campaign for a space-age summit conference.

United States officials clearly are looking to Dulles for guidance on how to offset propaganda gains they say Moscow registered last weekend with a surprise proposal for a United Nations outer-space agency.

Opposition Democrats, led by the Senate majority leader, Lyndon Johnson of Texas, denounced for what they called allowing the Russians to steal a propaganda march on the U.S. with the outer-space proposal.

Johnson called for an American proposal for a UN space agency stripped of Russia's demand that this be coupled with liquidation of all overseas American bases.

President Eisenhower already has proposed, in a letter to Soviet Premier Bulganin Jan. 12, an agreement to limit use of space to peaceful purposes. He did not at that time propose UN action, as the Russians did Saturday as part of their "abandon the bases" proposal.

Dulles faces the task of advising Eisenhower how to counter this and other Russian moves, presumably through more public statements outlining the positive side of the American stand.

Dulles' major advice in the pre-summit jockeying, officials said, will be for Eisenhower to continue to insist on the need for solid diplomatic preparations, including perhaps a foreign ministers' meeting, before any parley with Soviet leaders.

This view probably will be reflected in a new letter Eisenhower is reported drafting to reply to a message Bulganin sent him March 5.

Meanwhile in London a 3,000-word letter from Soviet Premier Bulganin to Prime Minister Macmillan is being translated. The text may be published within the next two days.

The letter — ninth from Bulganin to the British leaeer—was said by informed sources to be mainly a restatement of the Soviet position on top-level talks between East and West.

Outlaw African Congress in Certain Areas

PRETORIA, South Africa (Reuters)—The African National Congress, major African political organization, was outlawed Monday in certain selected areas. The organization speaks for 9,300,000 Africans.

In these areas, designated by Native Affairs Minister Hendrik Verwoerd, Africans are forbidden to belong to the congress or shout its slogans.

The Congress decided Sunday to stage a week of "national protest and demonstration" from April 14 to coincide with the country's general elections. Africans are not permitted to run for parliament.

INSURANCE PLAN NOT STEP TOWARD STATE MEDICINE

Frost Answers Question in House

TORONTO (CP) — Premier Frost told the Ontario legislature Monday the province's hospital insurance plan is not intended as a step toward state medicine.

"If state medicine were to come at a later date it would have to come with an entirely different approach—it's not within the ambit of this act," said the premier.

He spoke in reply to CCF Leader Donald MacDonald, who said the Ontario Medical Association "had to put down revolts in some areas" such as Sudbury and St. Catharines.

He said objections from doctors reached "serious proportions" as the result of the government dealing with the medical profession "at arm's length."

Mr. Frost said two doctors are on the Ontario hospital services commission and the profession is receiving full consultation.

MDs FEARFUL

"They are fearful this plan is the commencement of state medicine," said Mr. Frost. He indicated this was one reason why outpatient diagnostic services have been omitted from the plan at first.

"A great many doctors were very, very suspicious — I think wrongly — about diagnostic coverage."

Speaking during consideration of estimates for the hospital insurance services commission, Premier Frost said the Ontario government does not intend to substitute a sales tax for premiums in the insurance plan.

John Wintermeyer (L — Waterloo North) asked the premier about the "rumor" after contending that premiums will prove expensive to individual households and difficult to collect.

75 P.C. COVERAGE

Health Minister Phillips told Ross Whicher (L — Bruce) at least 75 per cent—and probably 80 or 85 per cent—of Ontario's population will be covered by the plan when it goes into effect Jan. 1, 1959.

MENTAL HEALTH

CCF Leader MacDonald called for higher expenditures for mental health. Mental hospital costs were $3 per patient a day, compared with $12 a day in general hospitals, while only $500,000 was being spent on mental research in Canada compared with $24,000,000 for defence research.

Dr. Phillips said $35,287,600 for mental health has been alloted in his department's budget, $4,560,000 more than during the current year.

"I'm not satisfied with our research," he admitted, "but I

Vanguard 'Moon' Goes Farther Out Into Space Than Other Satellites

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) Two — really three — American "moons" whizzed around the earth today in company with Russia's second — but already doomed—Sputnik satellite, as the United States continued to press on with programs to launch additional space craft.

The Navy Vanguard satellite was launched early Monday into an orbit that pushed new frontiers out into the unknown.

The announced orbit ranged from 400 miles above the earth to a peak of 2,500 miles, the highest yet attained by a man-made satellite.

Its true artificial moon is a shiny aluminum sphere only 6.4 inches in diameter and weighing 3¼ pounds, but somewhere close behind it in an 18,000-mile-an-hour orbit hundreds of miles out from the earth is the 50-pound, five-foot long, 20-inches-wide third-stage rocket that pushed Vanguard to orbital speed.

The navy estimates the sphere will stay in orbit five to 10 years. The dead rocket in its wake will have a much shorter ride.

Dr. Milton Rosen, technical director of the Vanguard project for the U.S. naval research laboratory, said the exact altitude attained by the new satellite cannot be ascertained until information received by radio from the sphere has been analyzed. The orbit peak may be 2,500 to 3,000 miles from earth.

But Rosen said he is more interested in the fact that the Vanguard orbit's low point is 400 miles.

"That's far better than we had hoped for," Rosen told a reporter. He said provisions had been made for the possibility of a low point of only 200 miles.

"The fact that our low point is twice that high means . . . the satellite will have a much longer life than could have been expected."

The U.S. Army launched its 30.8-pound Explorer I satellite Jan. 31, and it is still in orbit.

In Washington, Dr. John P. Hagen, director of Project Vanguard, said the navy will try to launch six Vanguard rockets with 21-inch, 20½-pound spheres.

Russia's Sputnik II is expected to cease orbiting about April 17. It weighs 1,120 pounds.

Mid-February's Total Only 35,000 Up From January

Unemployed Increase But Those Laid off Cut

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's jobless numbered 555,000 at mid-February, the government reported today, indicating a sharp slowdown in the rise of unemployment in a month.

The figure showed an increase of 35,000 over the 520,000 at mid-January, against an increase of 134,000 between December and January.

Like its January predecessor, the February figure outstripped any unemployment estimates since the depression years, when Canada had considerably smaller population and working force.

Along with the 555,000 estimate of persons without jobs and looking for work in the week ended Feb. 15—made by the bureau of statistics—the bureau also reported that 36,000 persons with jobs were on temporary layoff for that full week.

This was down from 50,000 of the month before.

The bureau, in its monthly sampling of 30,000 households, also estimated that persons with jobs at mid-February totalled 5,314,000, compared with 5,371,000 at the same time in January and 5,580,000 in December.

The figures thus indicated the rate of decline in employment over the two months was slowing in pace with the retarding of the unemployment rise.

The 5,314,000 with jobs in February compared with 5,362,000 in February, 1957.

The unemployment figure of 555,000 for mid-February compared with 323,000 for February, 1957.

The unemployment figures also compare with 401,000 in March, 1955, which was the post-war high before the onset of heavier-than-normal unemployment this winter.

With the bureau's estimates of jobless, the government also announced that at Feb. 13 there were 854,257 persons registered for work with National Employment Service, highest number since the service was created in 1940.

Employment service figures do not indicate absolute unemployment. They inevitably contain an unknown proportion of those seeking to shift from one job to another, or who have found work after registering.

Between December and February, these figures also showed a slower pace in their rise. The mid-January total was 816,982 and that of December 570,674.

Registration figures for all regions were up between January and February except for the Pacific regions, where there was a slight drop.

Today's bureau report showed the labor force at 5,869,000, compared with 5,891,000 in mid-Jan-

Wage Standard Core of Dispute In Negotiations

MONTREAL (CP) — Witnesses before the federal conciliation board hearing a dispute between Canadian railways and their non-operating employees today are to explain details of a wage study used by the railways as a basis for new wage standards.

The major railways are seeking acceptance of a wage yardstick based on an annual wage-rate survey conducted by the federal labor department. They claim this shows the wages of two-thirds of the non-operating employees in relation to comparable jobs in other industries.

Using this standard, the railways claim their non-operating employees are already paid more about seven cents an hour—than they could earn elsewhere.

The witnesses will explain the job specifications and other points by which the comparison was made. They are to be cross-examined later by union negotiators.

The wage standard is at the core of the dispute. The negotiators bargaining for 15 non-operating unions claim the 130,000 employees they represent should be paid 35 cents more an hour on the basis of wages in the durable goods industry.

The railways, who first introduced it, now reject the durable-goods standard which has formed the basis of settlement in other disputes.

Minister Will Enter Dispute Over Salaries

TORONTO (CP) — Education Minister Dunlop said Monday he is considering some sort of intervention in the salary dispute between the North York board of education and the Ontario Secondary School Teachers' Federation.

"I don't want to do anything that could be considered unfair," Mr. Dunlop said in an interview, "but this is a situation that cannot be allowed to go on indefinitely."

He said he is considering some form of conciliation or arbitration.

The board has refused to negotiate further on salaries until the federation lifts its pinklisting written notification advising teachers not to deal with the board — and the federation says it won't lift the pink list.

The Inside Tale Of How to Spot Money-Winners

Monday was quite an eventful day in this old world. The U.S launched Explorer III (successfully), the Belleville Macs licked the Pembroke Lumber Kings (8-3) and The Ontario Intelligencer began celebrating National Want Ad. Week.

The other happenings of Monday are incidental compared to the impact National Want Ad. Week will have on 42 people in and around Belleville.

Beginning yesterday and ending with Saturday's edition, seven people each day will win two-dollar bills.

There's no gimmick attached Just keep your eyes peeled on the classified advertising pages. If your name appears, then call WO 8-5757 and you will be awarded two dollars.

Here are yesterday's winners: Mrs. V. Manera, 103 South John; Mrs. D. Golka, 112 Pinnacle; Mrs Allan Nobes, 2 Elm; Mrs. Earl Stratton, 5 Bettes; Mrs. H. P. Rush, 167 Church; Mrs. H. A. Carter, 57 Dundas E., and Mrs. William Cameron, R.R. 3, Belleville. These names were scattered through the columns of Monday's want ads.

By the way, here are Tuesday's winners: Mrs. James V. Boyle, 356 Bleecker; Mrs. W. Henn, 14 Lattimer; Mrs. Fred Harten, 38 Cannifton Rd.; Mrs. W. J. Carson, 57 Montgomery Blvd.; Mrs. G. D. Percy, 109 Humewood Dr.; Mrs. Douglas Kingsman, 154 Church and Mrs. Robert Fargey, 102 Cedar St.

HOW NAMES FOUND

It is interesting to note how The Ontario Intelligencer finds the names of winners. Well, a couple of the girls in the business office are ardent readers of the telephone book. They simply thumb over the pages until their digits become tired and then jot down the first name they lay eyes on. It's not very complicated, really. Then the girls scatter the names through the want ads columns.

National Want Ad. Week is being observed throughout North America. Every salesman knows the folly of not advertising. So, too, anyone with anything to sell enjoys the same folly if he or she does not advertise in the classified pages of The Ontario Intelligencer. Classified ads are your silent workers. They can accomplish wonders — and quickly, too.

Perhaps you have a few things around the house that you do not need any longer and which would help someone else. Why not call WO 8-5757 or drop in to 166 Front St. and place your want ad. today? This is a very good way to pick up extra cash.

Don't forget, National Want Ad. Week ends on Saturday, March 22. Now go and read the classified pages and you might win two dollars.

Progress in Car Industry Outlined to Rotary Club

The car of the future is becoming more and more the result of combined scientific and technological inventions, a General Motors Public Relations department supervisor told Rotarians at the regular weekly meeting Monday.

"Thirty of forty years ago cars were the product of the inventive genius of outstanding individuals who were many years before their time," said Ian McNabb, editor of the 15,000 circulation bible of the automotive industry, "G.M. Topics."

He pointed out automobiles have come a long way since the days of the horseless carriage —"the brainchild of dreamers and cranks." Cars today are so much more complicated machines and require the efforts of both scientists and engineers to build and perfect them, he stated.

Mr. McNabb said the number of engineers in the automotive industry has increased 10 times since 1900. It is their job to solve the problems of the future and put scientific discoveries to practical use.

General Motors, with one of the largest research departments of any industry, is doing just that, the speaker said. At the G.M. proving grounds in Warren, Mich., cars are tested for performance, comfort, durability and safety. Test drivers drive 50,000 miles daily over 25 miles of specially constructed roads ranging from cobblestones to the smoothest surface, he explained.

The speaker predicted cars of the future (about 240 years from now) will probably be electronically operated and will run on sunlight. They will be lighter in weight and the ultimate in comfort and safety.

CONVERTING SOLAR ENERGY

"G.M. has made a good start in converting solar energy to practical use," Mr. McNabb said. "At the G. M. Powerama in Chicago is September of 1955, the company demonstrated an experimental car operated entirely by a solar battery".

In the not too distant future all cars will be equipped with gas turbine free piston engines, he said. This will do away with a transmission system, and will allow any kind of fuel to be used.

Synthetic materials will replace rubber for the tires, upholstery materials now in use, and even the steel for body construction, the speaker said.

"The discovery of a new synthetic substitute for rubber called polyurethane has made a big improvement in tires. Tires made of polyurethane will last the equivalent of 100,000 miles of driving", he stated.

Another important discovery is tetanium which will be used in body construction in the future. This light-weight but durable metal substitute weighs one-quarter that of steel, he disclosed.

"Three or four years ago synthetic materials were used to trim the upholstery. Today new 1958 cars are being upholstered entirely in these new synthetic materials. A new process has been developed called "dialectic embossing" which will soon make the sewing needle obsolete", he said.

There will be no definite change in body design the speaker stated. In commenting on the fantistic European designs, he said: "We feel it is safer to keep to the styles already in existence."

NO CHANGES COMPLICATED

There will also be no change in power brakes and power steering, almost standard equipment on today's new cars, and wheels in the near future.

The speaker felt the biggest change will be in engine construction. "The engine has not changed much in principle since the steam engine," he said.

"Engines in the near future will be constructed of lightweight aluminum and will have a compression ratio of 12 to 1, as compared with the present ratio of 9.2 to 1," Mr. McNabb explained.

The recent advances in gas technology have brought the automotive industry a step nearer to this goal, he stated. Premium fuel now has 99.8 octane as compared with 89 octane previously.

"There is also a trend to better breathing — larger valves, better carburators and exhaust systems," the speaker said.

During his address Mr. McNabb performed several experiments showing G.M.'s progress in the scientific field. They included operating a sun motor by means of a candle flame and a 150 watt bulb connected to 12 photo-electric cells, producing synthetic rubber out of a bottle, and hammering a nail into a board with a glass bottle without breaking the bottle. The bottle (having a dual personality) shattered when a piece of abrasive material was dropped into it by president Joe Demeza.

The speaker was introduced by Walter Elliott and thanked by Ernie Gurnett. He was presented with a token of the club's appreciation by president Demeza.

MINUTE OF SILENCE

At the beginning of the meeting a minute of silence was observed for the late Jamieson Bone, a charter member of the club who died Wednesday. "He was a great citizen and a great Rotarian," president Demeza said.

Prior to the address a little guest was introduced to the club by Fred Adsett, chairman of the Rotary Crippled Children's Committee. He was 2-year-old Randy Sararas, son of Mr. and Mrs James Sararas.

Little Randy who lives near Stirling was recently outfitted with a new fibre-glass artificial leg, financed by both Stirling and Belleville Rotary clubs. "This is the first case on record of a local crippled child being cared for financially by two Rotary clubs," Mr. Adsett stated.

He also pointed out that contrary to popular belief, 50 per cent of all funds collected by Belleville Rotary through the Easter Seal Campaign is used to help local crippled children.

"We keep half the total amount in our Crippled Children's fund to help city and district children," Mr. Adsett stated. "The other half is sent to Toronto headquarters of the Ontario Society for Crippled Children. They allow us to run our own affairs as we see fit."

He urged local citizens to remember when they buy Easter Seals they will be primarily helping unfortunate local children.

F. H. Deacon, Manufacturer, Dies Suddenly in Florida

The city in general and business circles in particular were shocked today with the news of the sudden passing in Florida of Fred H. Deacon of 220 William St. Mr. Deacon was in his 55th year.

Mr. Deacon passed away in his sleep, succumbing to a heart seizure. He had been in fairly good health for some time prior to leaving for Florida, but had been subject to a heart condition for the past five years.

President of Deacon Brothers Ltd., well known Belleville manufacturing company, Mr. Deacon was one of the progressive younger business men of the city. He had been associated with the firm founded by his father, the late William B. Deacon, and his uncle, the late Fred H. Deacon, all his life. He assumed the presidency on the death of his father in 1943.

Belleville-born Fred Hicks Deacon was a personable member of the community which gave him birth. His interests were many. He was a devoted family man, but found time to give much of his effort to things which influenced the good of the city in which he lived.

In church, service club, business and the other circles in which he moved, Mr. Deacon enjoyed a well-deserved popularity. He essayed a willingness at all times to extend the benefit of his knowledge, experience and ability to assist in causes that were beneficial to those with whom he associated and to the community at large. He will be missed in the many phases of activity which knew him so well.

He lived all his life in the city which gave him birth with the exception of the years he attended the University of Toronto. He received his public school education here and was a graduate of Belleville Collegiate Institute. Later he attended St. Andrew's College, going from there to Varsity. He was a member of the Delta Kappa Epsilon fraternity.

ON BOARD OF STEWARDS

Upon completion of his education, Mr. Deacon became permanently associated with the firm that bears the family name. At the time of his passing he conducted the business in partnership with his only brother, John W. Deacon.

He was a member of Bridge Street United Church and served as a member of the Board of Stewards for a number of years. Interest in his community took him to municipal affairs and in 1950 and 1951 he served as an alderman on the city council. He did not seek higher places but was content to serve his city in an aldermanic capacity, which he did with characteristic sincerity and effort.

He was a popular member of the Rotary Club for a number of years and was honored with the presidency of the service club. He acted as a member of the Belleville Cemetery Board and the Arena Commission.

He was a firm believer in recreation and was a member and past president of the Bay of Quinte Country Club. With other forms of sport in which he took a passive interest, he was an ardent fisherman and hunter. He enjoyed his summer home at Lake L'Amable.

Surviving are Mrs. Deacon, the former Ethel Barlow; three sons, Fred of the University of Western Ontario; Donald and Eric at home, and one brother, John W. Deacon, of this city.

The funeral arrangements will be announced later.

Council Refers Recommendation Back for Action

Although the general concensus seemed to be one of approval, city council last night referred back a recommendation to engage the Canadian Shade Tree Service Limited for maintenance of the city's shade trees.

Following a brief discussion the matter was referred back to committee to allow councillors to get further information.

Maintenance which would be covered under the proposed agreement would be pruning, removal of branches to provide clearance over streets, sidewalks and buildings, shaping of trees to insure safety; bracing of weak fork formations, disposal of wood and brush and taking down of badly rotted or broken trees.

Cost for this service this year would be $4100.

City manager Drury Denyes said this figure compared with the $6,000 cost per annum under the present system which is carried out under the direction of the public works department.

It was noted that the present man who did tree maintenance for the city would be retained under the new contract.

Ald. Ralph Graham suggested that the present man was doing an excellent job and if he had the knowledge and ability to take over the job he might be given an opportunity at the contract.

Trans Mountain Pipe Line, a strong winner among industrials last week, was off two poits at 47.

Council Supports Recent Action On Buildings

City council last night supported its own action of two weeks ago and turned down a motion from Alderman Dr. James Forrester calling for the rescinding of three recommendations concerning the vacant building on the Pinnacle Street municipal parking lot.

Ald. Forrester asked that the three recommendations be rescinded on the grounds that they were improperly introduced to council two weeks ago.

At that time council voted to take the building back from the recreation commission, voted to investigate the possibility of tearing down the north end of the structure and pending action on the razing, to make the entire building weather tight.

Last fall council turned the building over to the recreation commission with the intention that it be used for recreational purposes. However, at the December municipal election, the ratepayers turned down a proposal to spend approximately $30,000 to renovate the structure.

In asking for the rescinding of council's action two weeks ago, Ald. Forrester said there had been no advance notice of the recommendations and that the committee had been "unwise and poorly advised."

He said the ultimate decision on the disposition of a building which saw wide council controversy last fall should not have been entered into so hurriedly.

However, Alderman R. Graham who had been responsible for the introduction of the three recommendations two weeks ago, said he could see no point in debating council procedure on such a minor matter. He said a quorum of council had debated the question two weeks ago.

Mayor Gerald Hyde admitted there was merit in the motion for rescinding as Ald. Forrester was technically correct.

He noted, however, that rescinding of the recommendations would accomplish nothing, as both the by-law to take the building back from the recreation commission, and the report for demolition of the north end of the structure still had to come back to council, while weatherproofing of the building had already been finished.

The motion to rescind the recommendation of two weeks ago was defeated by an eight to three recorded vote. Aldermen voting for the motion were Forrester, Grandame and Wishart, with Mayor Hyde and Aldermen Argue, Collins, Digby, Graham, Ireland, Moxam, McCabe, Safe, Temple, Tice and Whalen opposing.

Mrs. Lucy Church Retires From C.N. Telegraphs

On March 5th, at the Town and Country Club, Toronto, Mrs. Lucy B. Church, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin S. Burley of Wellington was guest of honor at a dinner party on the eve of her retirement. Mrs. Church has completed forty years service with the Canadian National Telegraph's head office, Toronto, and was the first member to ever retire from the automatic department.

Some two hundred guests were in attendance, and Mrs. Church's farewell gift was a diamond studded wrist watch. The presentation was made by Mr. M. L. Prentice, superintendent of the Canadian National Telegraphs, and Mr. Frank Prior, manager. The master of ceremonies was Mr. Eddie Bentley of the Western Union. She also received a travelling bag and jewelry from the Central Telegraphs Union.

Mrs. Church, in her response, thanked her many friends, and gave a fifteen minute discourse of the many changes that had taken place in telegraph business since the early years. She first entered the service in 1918.

City May Acquire More Land When Annexation Made

Belleville city council will go along with a request from Sidney township council for Belcrest School west of the city to be included in the annexation order by the Ontario Municipal Board.

Council will make a further request, however, for an area of vacant farm land owned by the Ontario School for the Deaf, to be also taken into the city to straighten out the ultimate city boundary in the west end of the city when annexaion becomes effective.

City Manager Drury Denyes told council that Sidney township was asking the Municipal Board to include the Belcrest School in the annexation order as with plans for a new structure the township would have no further use for the school. He said there was reason to believe the Municipal Board would go along with the township request and although he was not wholly recommending it, he felt the city should "go along", but should also request the inclusion of the section of O.S.D. farm land property.

Mayor Gerald Hyde noted that the vacant farm land property owned by the O.S.D. some day very likely would be in the city and suggested it could be included in the annexation order.

He noted, however, that there would be little benefit to the city in the Belcrest School being taken in, but this would assist the township in its school problem. Straightening of the city boundary by taking in part of the O.S.D. farm area would eliminate certain inter-municipal road development problems.

Council voted to purchase the lot and remains of a residence at 15 St. Paul Street from Cecil Styles at a price of $300.

City Manager Denyes said the reason for the recommendation was that the residence was razed by fire some weeks ago and Mr. Styles wanted to rebuild. Under the building by-law he could rebuild on the present location but as the whole of Foster Ward is zoned as industrial area, he was recommending it should be a policy of council to try to discourage rebuilding of residences in the area. He estimated it would cost an additional $400 to tear down the burned structure.

Council authorized the city solicitor to prepare an amendment to city by-law No. 6691 deleting sections five and six. These sections cover the repair of TV antennas and require a permit to be taken out by installers before such work may be done.

Council also concurred in a city of Stratford resolution in connection with the 70 per cent subsidy plan for municipalities with the addition of a further recommendation that the dates be extended beyond May 31st to August 31st.

Council voted to close the unopened street allowance from Ridley Street to the C.N.R. tracks. This is the extension of Pinnacle Street and is wanted by W. R. McCreary for construction of a railway siding to his business property on Coleman Street.

Under enquiries Alderman Les Digby asked if the provincial or federal governments were giving any direction or guidance toward setting up a civil defence program. Mayor Hyde said Major Broadbent, area civil defence co-ordinator, was prepared at any time to meet with council on the matter.

Alderman William Argue suggested that the city enquire into purchasing a property at the corner of Albion and Station streets with the idea of providing greater visibility for motorists.

Two More Street Sections Under 'No Parking' Ban

Belleville city council added two more sections of streets to their expanding list of no parking areas last night when approval was given for no parking on the north side of Victoria Ave., from John to Church Sts., and on the north side of Bridge Street, for a distance of 135 feet easterly from Church Street.

In both instances Sunday parking in these areas will be permitted.

Alderman Robert Temple as chairman of the traffic committee said that both recommendations were being brought in in the interest of safety.

He said that Victoria Avenue was narrow and with parking permitted on both sides there was insufficient room left for two lanes of traffic especially during the winter season.

He cited an instance during the past winter when a BCI student narrowly escaped injury because of the crowded condition on the street.

Ald. Ben Safe was not too happy with the no parking areas being so constantly extended.

"It seems that every time we come down to council there is another no parking recommendation up for consideration."

He felt that retention of parking might serve to slow down traffic and prevent establishment of a speedway.

"The traffic committee has no intention of setting up a speedway, nor is the intention to eliminate parking willy nilly," returned Ald. Temple. He felt the no parking recommendation was a step in the right direction.

He said the elimination of parking for a greater distance along Church Street would give additional visibility for drivers to watch for cross traffic.

Alderman Ralph Graham asked why parking could not be eliminated for the entire block from Church to John Street, but Ald. Frank Grandame suggested that some consideration should be given to apartment dwellers who might be relying on the street for short period parking.

Alderman Doug Moxam said the two recommendations up for consideration had been introduced in the interest of safety, but added he was opposed to any further parking restrictions until more off-street parking was provided.

Council approved of both recommendations and later passed approving by-laws.

Rough Usage Of Garbage Pails Under Discussion

Residents' complaints of the noise and rough usage of garbage pails by the city garbage collector comprise more than half the total of all complaints received at the mayor's office.

This was made known by Mayor Gerald Hyde at last night's regular meeting of city council after the matter was raised by Alderman William Argue who said that by actual check one day along Alexander Street less than half of the garbage pails were set back where they were found after being emptied.

"Instead of setting the pails back they are flung all along the street. Something should be done about the matter," he said.

Mayor Hyde agreed that garbage collection was the subject of much complaining on the part of residents. He noted that the garbage collection contract was not up for renewal this year but it could be up for consideration.

Alderman Moxam said treatment of garbage cans by the collector was "ridiculous." He said residents couldn't pay $3 for a garbage can only to have it battered up by rough usage. "And we haven't got to put up with all that noise," he said.

The alderman claimed that the garbage collector or his representative should attend council so he might be told council's feeling on the matter.

So-Ed Group Makes Plans

The monthly meeting of the Belleville So-Ed club steering committee attended by President Bert Hiles, Vice-President Tom Mitchell, Secretary-treasurer Jean Vickers and Miss Eunice Thomlinson, chairman of membership and registration, took place last night.

The main topic of discussion was the spring '58 session which commenced last Wednesday night and will continue for the next seven weeks. Miss Thomlinson reported on the registration and how the group was divided into craft classes and discussion groups and courses. It is expected that more registrations will be received next Wednesday evening and that none of the activities will be dropped from the program as a result of non-support.

As a result of the favorable response from a number of leading hotels and motels, a supply of So-Ed advertising folders will be left with the managements to pass along to patrons as they see fit and a monthly schedule of activities will also be supplied to them throughout the year to help Belleville entertain its out-of-town guests and tourists. Appreciation is expressed to local merchants also who are displaying So-Ed posters.

Future plans were discussed. The Blossom Ball, a formal dance to be held near the end of May, is already in the planning stage. A So-Ed Conference is scheduled for June at Geneva Park, Lake Couchiching and it is expected that representatives will attend from Belleville. A trip to Stratford for the Shakespearean festival is on the agenda for the summer.

The proposed driving school is still very much in the minds of the So-Ed Steering Committee and investigations are still under way.

Memorial Hospital Requests Usual Town Grant of $5,000

TRENTON — A letter from the Trenton Memorial Hospital asking the town for the usual grant of $5,000 was read at the council meeting last night and handed over to the finance committee for consideration when the budget is drawn up. In his letter to the council S. O. Graham, chairman of the hospital's Board of Directors revealed that in 1952 the hospital treated 1,105 patients from the town of Trenton as compared with 1,631 in 1957. This represented an increase of 48 per cent over the first complete year of operation. Total patient days in 1952 were 20,875 as compared to 27,931 in 1957.

Clerk treasurer O. W. Larry and Councillor James MacDonald may attend the annual meeting of the housing branch of the Department of Planning and Development to be held in Niagara Falls on June 2. A letter inviting representatives from the town was read at the council meeting. Councillor MacDonald said he would know soon if he could get away but if not would like to see some other member of the town planning board go in his place. He felt the town could gain a lot of information on planning from a convention of this type. The registration fee to the convention will be $12 and would entitle the delegate to take his wife.

A letter from MacConnell and Brawley concerning town liability in the incident in which the car of William Anderson was damaged was read. In its letter the insurance firm said it could find no reason to believe the town was responsible. The letter also indicated the firm considered the matter closed but that Mr. Anderson was privileged to take any action in the matter that he should see fit.

No reports were given by the chairmen of the public works or sanitation and waste committees with both councillors saying they will have nothing to report until the budget is drawn up and they will know how much money they will have to work with. Councillor Worrall, chairman of the protection to persons and property committee, brought up the matter of a second cruiser and a radio set for it. However, after some discussion no definite decision was reached on the matter. It had been decided at a previous council meeting to go ahead and purchase the second car for use by the police department.

ASKS FR ESTIMATES

Councillor Vagn Lange, chairman of the finance committee, said he would like to have the budget ready by the end of the month and to do this he urged all the committee chairmen to get their estimates in to him before the end of this week. Councillor Lange said the available money is going fast.

Councillor Worrell also gave a brief report on the matter of the purchase of a new aerial fire truck saying the committee was seeking the best equipment they could find for the amount of money that was allotted for this purpose. Mayor Ross Burtt stated he was against spending $35,000 for this truck. He said he felt there were many more ways this money could be spent for use in the town and that the present ladder truck the fire department now had was big enough for any of the buildings in town.

Council gave formal approval to the setting up of a Juvenile and Family Court in Trenton by passing a motion that $1,180 be set aside for use in expenses for the half year the court will be in session here. Councillor Worrall said the court will not be set up until July 1 and the money allotted will only be for the half-year period.

The placing of another street light on Wall Street between Front Street and Water Street was approved by the council after it had been requested by the mayor.

Leo Hogan was appointed to the post of dog catcher for the coming year after councillors heard recommendations from the police chief, mayor and chairman of the protection to persons and property committee. Mr. Hogan is to start work immediately and it was stated he has the necessary equipment to run the pound efficiently and in a humane manner. Mr. Hogan was at the council meeting last night.

We are proud to welcome you and trust you enjoy the curling and your stay in this, the friendliest city," said the mayor.

Annual Meeting of Quinte Cattle Breeders Held Here

A very enthusiastic group of farmers in the Quinte district, turned out on March 14 to hear Mr. George Clemons, secretary-manager of the Holstein-Friesian Association of Canada, address the annual meeting of the Quinte District Cattle Breeding Association here.

In his address, Mr. Clemons referred to the terrific growth of the artificial insemination business in Canada during the past ten years. He stated that at the present time they were registering purebred Holstien calves as the result of operations being carried on by eighteen semen-producing businesses and 54 inseminating businesses and that they had a list of 454 licensed inseminators in Canada. Over 500,000 cows will be bred artificially in Canada this year.

He also emphasized the importance of all farmers supporting the present Brucellosis eradication program. Last year 45,000 Holsteins were exported to the United States. Seventeen thousands of these animals were purebred Holstein cattle. The present regulations of the United States Department of Agriculture will be revised, effective the middle of this year, so that only animals from certified Brucellosis-free areas or from listed herds will be eligible for export. This means that several people presently exporting cattle to the United States may be temporarily barred from doing so. He urged as many persons as are interested in exporting cattle, to apply for listing status in order that they would still be eligible for this market.

Mr. Clemons stressed the importance of eliminating undesirable characteristics in cattle and stated that the artificial insemination businesses can take a very leading role in this field. He felt that if insemination units would dispose of all red factor carrier Holstein bulls, and refused to use such bulls, the breeders in turn would be forced to prove their own sires and to guarantee their animals offered for sale as free from this undesirable characteristic.

LISTS SIX FACTORS

One of the key statements in Mr. Clemons' address was "moderation is important in breeding cattle." To back up this statement he cited six important factors to observe::

1. Color: Mr. Clemons referred to the interest at the present time concerning black spots touching the hoof on purebred Holstein cattle. He said that the best road for breeders to follow is the one down the middle in which they will strive for a true type marked animal which is not to the extreme in either black or white.

2. Sales within the herd: He felt that a breeder should keep his good animals, especially if they are the members of a strong transmitting family. At the same time, a farmer should not refuse to sell a good animal when offered a good price, or he will be passing up an opportunity to obtain working capital which he probably required in carrying out his farming operations.

3. Fat percentage in milk: Again he felt that the middle of the road was the best policy and that a breeder should not attempt to develop a herd of cattle with extremely high test for that breed or go to the other extreme of large volumes of milk with a border test requirement.

4. Use the blood lines of other breeders: He referred to instances where breeders had made the mistake of feeling that only their cattle and their blood lines were good enough to be used in their herd. As a result they inbred their animals until they, as Mr. Clemons worded it, "had a dispersal sale or ruined their herd."

5. Some farmers go to the treme of being at home much of the time. The ot extreme to this is the farm who is away from home so mu of the time that when he d return, he doesn't know what going on there. He empha ed that a farmer today must tend meetings, sales and so to know the value of his cat and to make the necessary co tacts to carry on his farmi operation. The farmer w stays home all of the time refuses to turn over some of t responsibility of his farm ope ation to others will make h dollars the hard way, and lo some of them through not know ing the trend in markets.

SHOULD ADVERTISE

6. Advertising. Advertisin should not be overdone. A far mer should not advertise a pr duct or his animals and no have anything to back it up. A the same time, it is a mistak for a breeder to not advertis at all and consequently no keep the public informed o what he has to sell.

Reports were also given b the chairmen of the various bul buying committees, Fred Hubb of Bloomfield, chairman of the Holstein bull buying committee; Scott Gilmore, Tamworth, chairman of the Dual Purpose Shorthorn bull buying committee, and John Lean, Cobourg, a member of the Scotch Shorthorn bull buying committee.

A draw for a purebred Holstein heifer calf, sired by Regasborne R.A. Royal Governor, and from a listed and accredited herd on R.O.P. testing, was won by Clarence Baker, of Napanee.

Chairman of the meeting was the president of the Quinte District Cattle Breeding Association, Mr. J. S. Macklin of Cobourg. Mr. Macklin stressed the importance of strengthening farm organizations today so that farmers can speak as a group and so demand attention from those sources where they hope to sell their products.

RECORD YEAR

Dr. J. M. McLean, manager of the association, stated that a record number of cows had been serviced in the Quinte district in 1957, when 35,083 cows were bred through the association. He referred to the scrub bull that is the herd sire on many farms even today and stated that "this was the animal that we needed to make war on." With the efficiency in farming at an al time high in importance, he stated that he could not help but believe that more and more men would resort to the use of artificial insemination to develop herds of more efficient and better producing cattle.

The directors of the association that were approved for 1958 are as follows: Wm. Simpson, Gananoque; Ralph Aylesworth, Napanee; Fred Hubbs, Picton; James Broad, Belleville; Hudson Ketcheson, Belleville; John Caskey, Madoc; Allan McComb, Belleville; Aylmer Petherick, Campbellford; Earl Drope, Harwood, Douglas Turnery, Morganston; J. S. Macklin, Cobourg; Wesley Werry, Bowmanville; Harold Detlor, Stirling; Rusesll Osborne, Newcastle; William Hume, Campbellford; Hugh Wilson, Kingston; Arthur McLaughlin, Bath; Scott Gilmore, Tamworth.

JAMIESON BONE

The passing of Jamieson Bone removed from the city a resident whose contentment in life was measured to a great extent by the well-being of his community.

While Scottish born, he easily adapted himself to the environment of his adopted city, and it was not long before he took up the cudgels of betterment to increase the industrial, recreational and other standards of community life.

He reorganized the Chamber of Commerce and as its president was mainly instrumental in the location of industries here. He was honored with a seat in the city council, later serving for two years as mayor.

He fought hard for the things he believed were right. A stern battler, he used natural weapons of brilliant wit and sometimes caustic repartee, but never to the personal detriment of an opponent.

He had a sunny disposition and a personality that made him a popular figure in business, industrial, service club and other circles in which he moved.

His activities were many. As a charter member of the Rotary Club and later its president, he accomplished much in its welfare projects. As a city alderman he was chairman of finance. As mayor he served honorably and well.

In the high seats of office he never sat idle, always striving for improvement and expansion of worthy effort. A severe critic, and generous supporter, Mr. Bone carried his contentions through the press of three countries. His articles on various themes, especially property ownership, were widely quoted in newspapers and trade magazines.

He was a man of many qualities, who lived a truly full life and who will be greatly missed in the city which knew him so well.

HOOD ORNAMENT KILLS CHILD

How many of us would sacrifice a child's life to satisfy our desire to have the family car look stylish?

The answer to that question is obvious. None of us.

The other day, though, 10-year-old Maria Maisja died at Ruthven, Ontario, after being hit by a car. It was not the massive body of the car that killed her, but the slender ornament on the car's hood. It pierced her heart.

On more than one occasion in the past this newspaper, and others, have urged that dangerous pointed ornaments should be eliminated from the hoods of cars.

If all of us did our duty, we would take a file, or a hammer and chisel, and knock off the spear which, chances are, juts out from the hood of the car we drive.

Most of us, though, are lazy. We let the ornament stay.

Laziness, however, does not seem to be an adequate explanation of why car manufacturers continue to turn out models with these dangerous projections.

Perhaps they think the motoring public would not buy a car which lacked a stylish ornament on the hood. If they do, we think they are wrong.

If the manufacturers do not act, to make certain that no more children are killed because somebody thought the car hood needed an ornament, then it is up to the Ontario Legislature. It ought not to be too difficult to win approval for an amendment to the traffic act which would deny licences to cars carrying such ornaments.

THE UNCONVENTIONAL BRIDE

The other day a young bride of a few months served her guests macaroni and cheese and followed up by laying salad forks beside the plates.

Now, as any ardent reader of books of etiquette knows, salad forks are not supposed to be used with macaroni and cheese. However, the bride stood her ground when the breach of proper etiquette was brought to her attention.

Her retort? "I am tired of being conventional. It gets too dull."

Especially coming from the younger generation, this bit of philosophy might well be digested by other Canadians. Perhaps one of the troubles with Canadians is that too many of them adhere to convention.

We would like to see a few more natives of this country stretch themselves out on a limb, and about things more important than the correct use of salad forks.

CHEER UP

Never mind the wintry weather,
Never mind the frost;
Though you cannot see the tulip,
Still it isn't lost.
Crocus and the violet blossoms
Out of sight, but still
Pretty soon you'll find them blooming
Yonder on the hill.

Though the world seems dead about you,
Soon you'll see it yawn,
Stretch its lengthy arms and murmur
Welcome to the dawn.
And the flowers you thought were smothered
Soon will reappear
Violets and tulips smiling,
Glad that they are here.

Heavy Warm Air Needed

By John Allan May in the Christian Science Monitor

The idea came to me when Joy and I were on the ceiling. It was the dining-room ceiling. When I say we were on it, I mean we were working on it with paint brush and roller, not that we were actually standing on it. But we were close to it. The time was, as I recall, 16.15. It was Saturday and raining.

I want to put this on record so that in the future there will be no mistake. People will look it up in the encyclopedia and it will be there, clear, definite, detailed, authoritative, and no argument about it.

Too often in the past inventors have been careless about this sort of thing. Westminster Bridge, some say, was lighted by electricity nine years before Edison invented the electric light. Popoff, others claim, had the idea even earlier. Popoff (the "wizard of Omsk") is credited with many inventions and discoveries — ginger biscuits were just one of his triumphs—even many sketched centuries earlier by Leonardi da Vinci. The beginnings of almost everything are confused, enigmatic, uncertain.

In this case there will be no doubt. Here it is on the record.

• • •

As I said, Joy and I were on the dining room ceiling. Murphy, the electric convector heater, was woofing out warm air from the north-eastern corner.

"You know something?" I said suddenly, stopping my paint stroke halfway as the thought struck me.

"Yes," Joy said, "I know what you are going to say — it's nice and warm up here."

(It often happens this way. Sometimes I have to pretend I was about to say something quite different from what I was going to say, just to maintain some kind of ascendancy or authority, or to allow the conversation to continue.)

"Exactly," I said. "It is a great deal warmer up here than it is down there at ground level."

"We can have afternoon tea up here if you like," Joy said.

"Roger."

Ideas began to flow inside me. Were I an electronic computer you would have seen little lights flashing. As it was there was no means of telling what was happening, if you discount the wide-open eyes, arched eyebrows and utter immobility.

• • •

"Warm air rises," I declared at last. "It does not circulate like the advertisements say it does. If it did circulate the hot-air balloons they used in the old days would have been useless; they'd simply have gone round and round like cars on a big wheel and never got anywhere. But they did not. They went up. Of course, of course."

"I saw Anne yesterday," Joy said. "You know what she and Eric are doing this spring? Going on a cruise in the Aegean."

"You know that modern furniture they have," I continued, "which is suspended from the ceiling and swings on wires."

"No," Joy answered. "Do they?"

"Well, if you had some of that and some blocks and tackles you could live near the ceiling on cold days. You could simply haul yourself up, and the dining rom table and anyone else who was with you, and enjoy the warm air"

"Yes, dear," Joy said. "Did you get the present for Mrs. Greyburn that I asked you to get? It's her birthday next week."

"I'll get it on Monday," I said. "It really is incredible that even in this day and age we go to all this trouble and expense, and what for? To warm the one part of the room that we don't use. We are all down there on the floor, oblivious of the fact that the warmth is up here.

"If you have good insulation above you," I went on, "you certainly make sure that the warm air does not escape and that means that the air down where you are will get a bit warmer, because it gets jammed up against the even hotter air which is building-up, only downwards, layer by layer, from the ceiling. But that does not affect the fact that it is still hotter on the ceiling than at ground level. By staying on the ground you're wasting heat. If we lived on the ceiling we could cut our fuel bills by about 75 per cent."

• • •

Joy smiled at me with, I suspected, unconcealed admiration. "I've finished my bit," she said. "I think I'll do us some toast and honey while you finish yours."

And it was actually while I was painting there on my own that the great idea struck me. It was impossible for an apple to fall on my head, because of my position, but otherwise I am sure that one would have done. Or something like that. It always happens that way.

This is the idea: Warm air ought to fall.

For far too long we have been stuck with this proposition that warm air rises. Why? Nobody has bothered to do anything about it, that's why. Yet it would be so very much more convenient if warm air did not rise.

Instead of monkeying about with nuclear explosives natural scientists might give a little thought to this very simple but basic human need. They have developed "heavy water" for their experiments, why not heavy air for our sitting rooms? (And heavy open air for English cricket fields, too.) Such air would be "heavy" of course, only in the sense that it descended through the lighter, colder air, but not in the uncomfortable barometric sense. It would be cosy. It would be soft and balmy. Certainly to establish the possibility that, when needed, warm air falls would be one of the greatest contributions natural science could make to our society.

Well, there it is. As I said, the time was 4.15 p.m. It was a Saturday. The inventor and his wife ate toast and honey for tea. They were painting the ceiling. JAM was wearing his best gray flannels (by mistake).

Moon Belongs To Everybody

Financial Post

"It has been said that he who controls the moon controls the earth. If this is true, and I for one think it is, then the U.S. must control the moon." So declares Brig. Gen. Homer A. Baushey, deputy director of research and development in the U.S. Air Force.

One senior officer's view is of course not necessarily the official policy of the American government. But Gen. Baushey's endorsement of celestial imperialism is sure to be picked up abroad, especially in Russia, and taken as representative of opinion in the higher military echelons at Washington.

Gen Baushey apparently assumes that the moon, not yet reached even by a bullet, must be controlled either by his country or the Soviet Union. But is it a rational proposition that one country, with eight per cent of the earth's population, should take charge of the satellite that is mankind's common property? Clearly this uniquely dominant position could only be won by fighting for it.

Maybe Gen. Baushey's idea should be classified as a moonbeam from the larger lunacy, to quote Stephen Leacock. But it is given prominence in a normally sensible U.S. publication, under a headline that refers to the moon as "a vital base of operations in the not-so-distant future." Unless the human race goes collectively mad, there will be an agreement that the moon shall be nobody's military base but internationally controlled. That is, if and when the human race gets there.

COST OF REAL FREEDOM

Income Tax!

Every three months the bill comes in, and every three months we pay it with considerable grumbling. Yet why should we grumble? This is the price we pay — and a very low price it is indeed — for living in a free country The Communists do not tax; they take over. They do not require their victims to pay part of their earnings in order to keep the government going. The communists lords give their slaves enough to live on and to be sufficiently healthy for good driving work. And then the leaders manage the rest to their own interests.

The blessing of living in a free country is too often taken for granted. We and our forebears have never known anything else but freedom. All over the world, people — outside the free countries — cower lest they be awakened at night by so-called "police" who will take them away for questioning and hard labor and perhaps death. The great mass of humanity has nothing to say about how it will live. Ruffians with whips settle that.

But in the free countries, we really have a chance to live. Oh yes, it costs something, and we sputter about it every three months, when we have to pay the revenue department or when we look at our take-home pay and realize that quite a bit has been taken out.

But thank God for it all. If income tax were vastly more burdensome than it is, it would nevertheless be well worth what it purchases. For in democracies it pays for liberty — for the implementation of liberty and for its defence.

TODAY'S TALK

KEEP YOUR CHIN UP

We can see more with our chin up — and what a swirl of ideas all about us! It is an inspired sight, but it is essential that we get the spirit and translate our ideas into action.

It's when we look down that we stumble. Confidence is always progress. If enough people get pessimistic about affairs, at the same time, they can stop any forward movement. Confidence is the backbone of the dreamer, the builder, and the creator. He likes to get the difficult jobs. They are his specialty. Meet that chap upon the street and you will note that he has his chin up, and his eyes on the horizon. Never does he spend any time with that one who says "it can't be done." In association with other darers, he gets the thing done, no matter how wild the idea may appear at first sight. Attempting the impossible is what gives to us that divine incentive that spells character, courage, patience and humility.

Keep your chin up. Make it a kind of Pilot that will direct you through the calm, and the troubled sea of life. The athlete spends long hours conditioning himself for any important event. He knows that he must be in perfect condition. He won't even imagine the possibility of defeat. Perhaps he will just win his race by a chin! But an accurate inch would be sufficient to hand him all the glory.

It's the great little things that mean so much in any summing up. The apparent insignificant things of today become the significant, and all important things and events of tomorrow. Keep your chin up — and face them!

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

We have Mother's Day, and Father's Day, and sundry other popular dedications.

We were looking out the window that filthy day last week when the postman came in view, his heavy haversack sheltered with his arms, his hands protecting from the bitter rain the clutch of letters for the next house, his cap, shoulders, knees soaked, his feet lifting the heavy goloshes.

"Why," asked my wife, "don't we have a Postman's Day?"

Postman's Day should be one of the first fine days of spring. The sun should be shining, the first tulips and daffodils should be peeping, the trees should all along the street have that first faint veil of green before the buds break.

And along the street, in his shirt sleeves, and the bag not too full or heavy, in honor of his day, should come the postman.

And on all our verandahs and front steps, we should be out to welcome him and shake hands with him. And the corner houses should have the honor of handing him a cup of tea.

And it would be the occasion of thanking him for all the 300 days of the year, come winter, storm or torrid summer, that he has been our faithful and unfailing courier.

Most of us, indeed, seldom even see him. Our only awareness of him is the clunk of our letters through the letter box.

To Your Good Health

By Joseph G. Molner, M.D.

IF THE SPLEEN IS REMOVED, OTHER ORGANS DO ITS JOB

A reader wants to know what the spleen does and "if one can get along without it." That's something we haven't discussed in the column.

There is also a question concerning the necessity of removing the spleen to correct an internal hernia, a type known as hiatal hernia. It is not, to my knowledge, necessary to remove the spleen in that type of operation very often. There may, of course, be some special circumstances that require it! At my age, I've learned that special circumstances may call for almost anything under the sun. Upside-down stomachs, hearts on the wrong side, third sets of teeth developing — you can't astonish me with much, except maybe a reduction in taxes.

The spleen is a soft organ in the upper left corner of the abdomen, somewhat smaller than the fist.

Centuries ago people guessed that it was "the seat of the emotions." Actually its purpose is quite different: To store blood, to create some blood cells; to destroy red cells when the have passed their useful stage, keeping the correct number for a suitable blood count.

The volume of circulating blood, you see, is not constant. It varies under different conditions — under exercise, or under variations of temperature. The spleen is the storage place that takes up the slack.

Besides creating and destroying red cells at the proper time, the spleen also produces white cells of the type known as lymphocates.

The spleen becomes enlarged in certain diseases, among them malaria, mononeucleosis (or "glandular fever"), Hodgkins Disease, leukemia and some blood disorders noted in infancy or childhood.

IT BECOMES TOO ACTIVE

Sometimes, in a condition known as hemolytic jaundice, the spleen overworks itself, becomes too active. In such cases removal of it effects a cure.

Sometimes the spleen is ruptured — a violent blow, a fall, an automobile accident, a gunshot wound — and when that happens, the bleeding will soon be fatal, unless the spleen is removed, and the blood vessels connecting with it are promptly tied off.

What happens when the spleen is removed? Nature has provided a reserve system so that, if the spleen is gone, other organs will take over its labors. The bone marrow is one such blood - controlling mechanism. In other words, life will go on even with the spleen removed, without any crippling of the body.

"Sir: I am trying to learn to use vegetable oils instead of regular fats for cooking. In your opinion which is the safest to use over a long period of time? I have heard so many criticisms of corn or cottonseed oil, yet olive oil is so expensive.—M.R."

What objections? I know of no objection to using these oils over a long period. They all contain what is called unsaturated fat, and are rich in one of the essential fatty acids.

I have eaten eggs fried in cottonseed oil and found them delicious. Any cooking requiring deep fat frying can be done with these vegetable oils. Salad dressings are comminly made with such oils. Please don't ask me for trade names — but to answer your main question, I don't know of any authoritative objections to the use of vegetable oils. Incidentally, another one, safflower oil (from a daisy - like plant) has been getting considerable attention lately.

"Dear Dr. Molner: I am 65. When you feel a heart beat in your left ear, would that be high blood pressure?—V.M."

It might be — but not necessarily. It is not unusual to sense a pulse beat in the ear when lying on a pillow, because the pillow acts as a reflector. The blood pressure needn't be high for this to occur. Another factor in such a case can be wax plugging the ear, or even some disorder of the ear itself. Don't jump to worrisome conclusions.

Beset by blinding, painful headaches? If so, write me, in care of this newspaper for a copy of my booklet, "How To Tame Headaches," enclosing a large, self - addressed stamped envelope and 20c in coin to cover cost of handling.

Dr. Molner welcomes all reader mail, but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Dulles in Other Days

By Barry Mather in the Vancouver Sun

Washington — U.S. Secretary of State Dulles, opposing a "summit" peace parley, suggested today that it was a Soviet trick. (News item).

Old John Foster D. is really a "no, no . . . whoa, whoa, slow, slow" boy, isn't he? The others are ready to meet. But Foster is a party-pooper from away back.

How far back?

• • •

It is recorded that when the children of Israel were wandering in the wilderness Moses sent forth spies to find the promised land. One day these spies returned bearing joyful tidings . . . "We have found a land flowing with milk and honey . . . Come, let us hasten unto it!" And the multitude lifted up its voice in gladness. Not so one John of the tribe of Dulles. "Don't go," he said. "It's a trick —it's just a scheme to get us out of the wilderness."

• • •

"Wake me early, mother, dear," the happy lass sang, "for I'm to be queen of the May!"

"You'll do nothing of the kind," old Foster, her father, growled. "It's no honor. It's just a trick to get the family to go and spend money."

• • •

"Where," asked old Scrooge, happily, "where do you think I'm going tomorrow? . . . I'm going to a Christmas dinner at Bob Cratchit's How wonderful! A family dinner!" "Don't go," old John Dulles growled, "Take my advice—stay away, Scrooge It's a trick. Cratchit is going to soften you up for a raise. You can't afford it."

• • •

"What do you think," Dulles said, tossing the letter that was post-marked Yukon, down disgustedly. "That crazy, wandering uncle of mine has staked a claim in the Yukon. He think's there's gold up there! Not only that but the fool has staked a claim for me, too! It's a trick to get me to pay $2 for the registration. What does he take me for? There's no gold in the Yukon."

• • •

Macmillan, John Foster Dulles' partner in the juggling act that was the sensation of the London season, ran into their rooms waving a newspaper in excitement. "Look at this John!" he cried. "'The Queen,' he read, 'The Queen has issued a command performance invitation to the team of Macmillan and Dulles to entertain the Royal Family next "Wednesday evening".'

"Bah," was John Foster Dulles' response.. "It's a trick to get us to put on our act free. I'm not going."

On The Hustings

Socred Leader Scheduled to Move Into Que.

TORONTO (CP)—Social Credit Leader Solon Low was scheduled to move into Quebec today on his first Eastern Canada swing of the federal election campaign.

He was to speak at Hull, Que., tonight and move into Ottawa the following day.

In a public meeting Monday night, Mr. Low said "deliberate unemployment" is being pursued in Canada as the only means of adjusting the economy and asked that his party be given the balance of power in Parliament to provide a brake and a spur to "old-line parties."

Mr. Low spoke following a private dinner for party workers in Casa Loma. About 75 persons heard the address in the foyer.

Mr. Low said Social Credit monetary reforms are the "only answer" to what he called "deliberate unemployment."

He quoted the 1956 Bank of Canada report by James Coyne as saying that periods of unemployment "always follow the periods of boom." The answer of the Liberal and Progressive Conservative parties to threats of inflation, he said, was a "tight money" policy which dried up borrowing power and created widespread unemployment."

WANTS POWER BALANCE

With the other three main political parties in Canada inclined to socialism, Mr. Low said, Social Credit should be given the balance of power in Parliament to preserve the rights of free enterprise.

"It is needless for me to say that we do not hope to win a government at this time," Mr. Low said.

What he does hope for, in "the slowest election I've ever seen," is to retain the seats his party holds in British Columbia and Alberta and to pick up such as Athabaska, the last Liberal seat in Alberta; Edmonton West; and Coast-Capilano, held by former fisheries minister James Sinclair for the Liberals.

Diefenbaker Invades Enemy Camp in North

By ALAN DONNELLY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

SELKIRK, Man. (CP) — Prime Minister Diefenbaker again moves into political territory held for years by other parties as his election campaign swings today from the prairies into Northern Ontario.

The Progressive Conservative leader, who said his party has lit "a prairie fire" in Canadian politics, sought new support Monday in three Manitoba constituencies. He appears today in the same number in Ontario. None of the six has elected a Conservative more recently than 1930.

But Mr. Diefenbaker emphasized at all three Manitoba meetings the report issued Saturday by the Canadian Institute of Public Opinion (Gallop poll).

"Never before has there been anything like it," he said at Dauphin to an audience of some 3,500, largest afternoon crowd so far in his campaign.

MARGIN SAID 56-32

He said figures from the report show Conservatives leading in public support in all four major areas of Canada, with an overall lead of 56 to 32 per cent over the Liberals.

At a morning reception at St Boniface, a predominantly French-speaking city adjoining Winnipeg, he said the poll shows Conservative support in Quebec at 49 per cent compared with 45 per cent for the Liberals.

Some 500 persons turned out to shake hands with the prime minister at a morning reception in St. Boniface. For the evening meeting in this town of 7,400 population, some 900 persons jammed into a small community hall while loudspeakers carried his words to an overflow audience in an adjoining 1,600-seat arena, which party officials said was filled.

Today Mr. Diefenbaker has an afternoon meeting in Kenora, Ont., main centre in Kenora-Rainy River riding which has had Liberal representation in the Commons since it was established in 1925.

Tonight he speaks at the Lakehead in a rally aimed at the adjoining ridings of Port Arthur and Fort William, both of which elected Liberals from 1935 until last year when CCF candidate Douglas Fisher ousted former trade minister Howe in Port Arthur.

DEVELOPMENT TOPIC

He centred his speech here on the Conservative platform of national development, which he said would "preserve to Canadians control over their own economic destiny."

He promised tax changes to give Canadians equal opportunities with foreign investors in developing natural resources. And to help small businesses, the government would set up a special branch to help small firms obtain a fair share of government contracts and financial aid to expand.

Mr. Diefenbaker was interrupted five times by hecklers in the first 15 minutes of his speech. He answered some of their comments.

Bad Cold Knocks CCF Leader From Campaign

By DON PEACOCK
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP) — CCF Leader M J. Coldwell has been forced by a bad cold to cancel his activities this week in the fast-dwindling campaign for the March 31 federal election.

His doctor has confined him to his Ottawa home for the next few days. Later medical checks will determine whether the 69-year-old CCF leader will be able to resume participation in the campaign.

The development came as quite a blow to Mr. Coldwell, who had set out on a vigorous campaign schedule this election after being forced to sit out much of the campaign for last June's election because of a mild heart attack.

Mr. Coldwell worked for a few hours Monday at his office here and then stopped in at his doctor's office. Ottawa heart specialist Dr. T. L. Fisher found Mr. Coldwell suffering from a cold that the CCF leader said he had been trying to shake off all through the campaign.

"COULD HAVE CRIED"

"I could have cried," Mr. Coldwell later told a reporter. He feels his party's hopes have never been better and he was anxious to stay in the struggle.

Mr. Coldwell first entered the Commons in the 1935 election, representing the Saskatchewan constituency of Rosetown-Biggar. He has held the seat through five other elections.

He was to have spoken tonight in Montreal and to have moved into Ontario Wednesday for speeches in Hamilton and Welland. It was to have been his first main tour of the central provinces in this campaign.

Later in Montreal, a spokesman for the Social Democratic party, the CCF's Quebec wing, said Deputy Leader Stanley Knowles would substitute for Mr. Coldwell at the meeting there tonight.

Pearson Heads Into Ontario For Final Drive

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

RIMOUSKI, Que. (CP)—Lester B. Pearson heads back to Ontario today for the final phase of this cross-country campaigning after urging Quebec to vote Liberal March 31 and end the "bad dream" of Progressive Conservative government.

"On March 31, millions of Liberals will be on parade," the Liberal leader said Monday night as he spoke before an overflow crowd of some 1,500 in a local community hall.

"They shall fight an unemployment situation which is increasing. From one ocean to the other, Canadians will ratify the non-confidence vote the Conservatives called upon themselves when they abandoned ship during the first storm.

"The bad dream will be over. The prosperity of Canada will return in the same manner your region awoke — more beautiful, stronger and confident—from the ashes of its great challenge."

Mr. Pearson made stops here and at nearby Mont Joli before heading for Ottawa for a national television broadcast tonight. He will swing Wednesday towards his own riding of Algoma East and then tour other Ontario ridings.

The Liberals greatest hope is to regain strength in Ontario. That is apparently why Mr. Pearson plans to spend the remainder of the period before the election in that province.

At Mont Joli, he said party reports strongly indicate the Liberals will hold their present strength in this province. The best the Conservatives had hope for "is a stalemate."

"If the general public begins to realize this, people will swing to the Liberals."

At the evening rally here, the Liberal leader pledged to expand rail, air and water transportation for the Gaspe area.

Prime Minister Diefenbker had said he would give the rail branch project serious consideration but a Liberal government would go ahead and do it, said Mr. Pearson.

Mr. Pearson said he wanted to carry on the work of Mr. St. Laurent who had initiated a Senate study of land reform.

QUEEN TO MOSCOW

LONDON (AP)—Queen Mother Elizabeth of Belgium has accepted an invitation from Soviet President Klementi Voroshilov to attend a Moscow music festival soon as a guest of honor, Moscow radio said Friday night.

Some crippled children must have the support of braces on their legs or arms to help them move about and be self-sufficient. The Ontario Society for Crippled Children and the 200 Easter Seal Service Clubs in the province go to the public annually asking for their support to help these handicapped youngsters. The campaign, which runs until April 6th, has a provincial objective of $750,000.

Easter Seal Funds Help Children Get Proper Care

The Ontario Society for Crippled Children is coach to the vast Easter Seal team of service clubs. The Society's headquarters is not only a clearing house for cases, but also a council prepared to advise and assist the clubs with any crippled children's problems.

One of the services of the Case Department of the Society is the provision of temporary foster home care for severely handicapped children, whose mothers need some respite from their care or because of illness or confinement cannot care for them temporarily. Also, they make arrangements for diagnostic clinics so that children living in the more remote parts of the province may have the benefit of a specialist's examination. They also might give vocational guidance to handicapped young people and assist them to find suitable employment.

The Case Department operates a loan cupboard and supplies wheel chairs, walkers, crutches, Legg Perthas stools and other orthopaedic equipment when required for a period up to six months.

If an Easter Seal club finds that they have exhausted their Easter Seal funds for caring for crippled children, they may apply to the Society and the Case Department for financial aid and this money is made available to the club to take care of the case in their area.

Easter Seal funds make certain that no crippled child in our province will go without t treatment and assistance that h or she might need. The 19 Easter Seal Campaign is hopin to raise $750,000 dollars in On tario to continue the service they are now providing for th handicapped children of this pro vince. The campaign continue until April 6th.

HiFi
What is it?

We hear so much about Hi Fi these days. What is it? It means the almost perfect transmission or reproduction of sound by means of radio or record player.

Recorded Hi Fi sound, depends on a series of elements, the microphone, the process of cutting the "original master" through to the pressing of the record on pure vinyl — then the turntable, the pick-up arm and the electronic amplification right through to the speakers. One weak link in this chain will spoil your Hi Fi enjoyment. You must start with the utmost in finely made records. Records with startling realism, with maximum frequency ranges from 25,000 cps to 16 cps — sounds so high and so low that many human ears cannot hear — but you'll feel them!

This is true High Fidelity!

Records such as these are available to you today through the Mercury "Living Presence" process.

Mrs. A. Bates was appointed delegate to the Guelph Conference in May.

Mrs. J. Fargey and Mrs. J Empson were chosen to make plans for a bus trip to Ottawa in May.

The leader, Mrs. W. Gillespie, was in charge of the program Everyone joined in singing, "The Rose of Tralee." The topic, "New Industries," prepared by Mrs. W. Slingerland was given by Mrs. J. 21 Women Will Seek Seats In Election

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

A small but select field of women candidates will seek seats in the House of Commons in the general election March 31.

Only 21 women were among the 836 candidates entered in the election race when nominations closed Monday. They included the two women members of the last House, State Secretary Ellen Fairclough and newspaper columnist Margaret Aitken, both Progressive Conservatives.

Thirty women were named as candidates for the election last year and 48 in 1953 when four women were elected.

Although short in numbers, this year's representation includes some of the most prominent women in the political life of Canada.

In addition to Mrs. Fairclough, contesting her fourth election, and Miss Aitken, contesting her third, the women include Charlotte Whitton, the ebullient ex-mayor of Ottawa. Miss Whitton, a Progressive Conservative, is a candidate in Ottawa West, a riding that has returned Liberals to the Commons since its establishment in 1933.

WOMEN OPPONENTS

The Liberals have put up women in their effort to unseat Mrs. Fairclough and Miss Aitken. Mrs. Dorothy Crewe, a Liberal worker for 24 years, is one of Mrs. Fairclough's opponents in Hamilton West, and Mrs. Elena DaCosta, who learned politics at the side of her father, the late Senator James Murdock, will oppose Miss Aitken in York-Humber.

William Scandlan, CCF, is the lone male candidate in Hamilton West and Len Collins, also CCF, will battle the women in York-Humber.

Quebec's two women candidates include Mme. Therese Casgrain, who led the battle that won women the vote in Quebec provincial elections. Mme. Casgrain, former leader of the Quebec arm of the CCF, is CCF candidate in Montreal Jacques-Cartier-LaSalle.

Gisele Couture, a switchboard operator, is Quebec's other woman entry. She is CCF candidate in Montreal Mercier.

13 ONTARIO WOMEN

Ontario has the most women in the race, 13, with the remaining six contesting seats in Western Canada. One of the western candidates is Mrs. Jessie Caldwell, Liberal nominee in Saskatoon.

Mrs. Caldwell is president of the national federation of Liberal women and was the only woman member of the Canadian delegation to the United Nations in 1953.

Mrs. Thora Wiggens, CCF has taken on top competition in Prince Albert where her Progressive Conservative opponent is Prime Minister Diefenbaker.

Liberals and CCF have eight women candidates apiece, Progressive Conservatives three and Social Credit two.

The tea was replenished by Mrs. J. Sutherby and Mrs. [illegible] Wiley.

Mrs. Robert Cook was in charge of the guesses on the bean jar, and the lucky winner was Mrs. Connie Genereaux

All extended their heartfelt thanks to Mrs. Storey for her gracious hospitality.

WOMEN OF THE MOOSE

The first meeting of the Women of the Moose for the month of March was held in Moose Hall with the senior Regent, Nora Kaiser, presiding, who called the meeting to order with officers, escorts and committee chairman taking part.

The Recorder, Grace Bartlett called the roll of officers, escorts and committee chairman.

The guest speaker for the evening was Dr. Ryley, of the Belleville General Hospital, who was introduced by the junior Graduate Regent, Nellie Scrymgeour, and escorted to the altar. Dr. Ryley gave a talk on the blood donor campaign which required 1500 donors in Belleville and district. The donors may be called every six months or maybe not for a year, depending on number of donors. He asked if there were any present who were considering giving a donation, and a number of the girls consented, to whom he gave cards to be filled out.

During the question and answer period, Dr. Ryley answered a number of questions regarding what had to be done when the would-be donor was notified to come to the hospital.

The senior Regent, Nora Kaiser thanked Dr. Ryley for his talk on the Red Cross blood donor campaign.

After the guest speaker left, the recorder read cards of thanks from a number of members who have been sick at home and in hospital. Gladys Ritch and Irene Gamble thanked the chapter, personally, for gifts sent to them when they were ill at home.

The "At Home" proceeds of $32.35 were turned over to the March of Dimes campaign.

There will be an auction sale next meeting, to which each member is asked some item to be auctioned off.

Following the meeting, a penny bingo was enjoyed during which Nellie Burd and her committee served refreshments.

The next meeting will be held on March 27.

A euchre was held at the home of co-worker, Annie Young, on the 11th, with prizes won by Mrs. Shorey; Mrs. Kaiser; Mrs. Seams; consolation, Mrs. Hall; lone hand, Mrs. Coon with special going to Mrs. Coon and Mrs. Cleaver. Men's prize went to Pat Tracy.

Community Concert Body Marks 25th Birthday At Its Campaign Dinner

There is usually an aura of excitement present at most birthday parties — whether for young or old — and this ebullient spirit certainly pervaded the atmosphere last night at Tabernacle United Church banquet hall when nearly 100 people gathered to celebrate the 25th birthday of Belleville Community Concert Association. This annual dinner launches the one-week campaign during which the association plans to enroll a capacity audience which will insure another concert series for next season.

Miss Leona Riggs, president of the association, presided at the dinner and welcomed the guests on this gala occasion. She said "we have reached an exciting point in our history when we can look back and realize that we have been responsible for bringing 87 concerts to Belleville." Miss Riggs recalled the tenacious little group whose efforts resulted in an enrollment of from 200 to 300 members. The early planting of these strong qualities bore fruit later on when the association reached a "sell-out" peak. "Concerts have now become part of the Belleville scene," said Miss Riggs, and she felt the scene would not change because of the wonderful 'esprit de corps' of the executive and workers.

Mayor Gerald B. Hyde brought the greetings of the city.

ATTENDED ALL CONCERTS

Imagine not missing a single concert for 25 years! That is the proud record of Miss Helen Keeler, Mrs. W. H. Ponton, and Mrs. H. R. Gibson who were presented with memberships by Miss Riggs. In commending them for this perfect attendance Miss Riggs said that neither storm nor flood held any threat for these music lovers or, she added, "perhaps it was their Scotch ancestry that made them want to get their money's worth."

A festive birthday cake graced the head table and the candles were blown out by some of the 25-year members to the accompaniment of "Happy Birthday To Us."

During the dinner Jack Deacon led the gathering in a few songs, with Alec Gordon at the piano.

Mrs. Harold Robbins, membership campaign chairman, introduced her co-chairman, Mrs. R. L. Warren, and the new workers and she said she and members of her committee would be on hand all week at the "Y" to take memberships. She said receipts would be mailed to new members so that the first 150 could use these as admission to the Saturday concert featuring the male quartet, "The Chanticleers." In referring to the workers' kits, Mrs. Robbins whimsically said they "seemed like Christmas stockings because there were so many surprises included this year."

Miss Riggs voiced her appreciation to the various committees who had contributed to the planning of this anniversary campaign, and complimented Miss Helen Sulman on the excellent dinner arrangements, as well as the attractive table decorations she had created for the occasion.

Lieut.-Col. E. S. Fairman extended to Mrs. P. Way and her committee a vote of thanks for a most sumptuous dinner.

Miss Camelia Campbell, New York representative, introduced the guest speaker, Mr. J. Warren Tapscott, executive assistant of Community Concerts Inc., and remarked at that time how impressed she had been with the wonderful spirit of the meeting.

Mr. Tapscott opened his address by saying that anniversaries are for a time of looking back, for remembering and recapturing the nice things that have happened to an individual or a group of people down through the years. Some of the artists who have appeared over the last 25 years were not so well known and some were at the peak of their careers. The fact that they have been presented is a recognizable accomplishment and the reason why people will join.

"There are a number of other results of your work over the past years which are not so recognizable—the cultural asset to your community: first, it makes Belleville a better place to live in; two, existence of this association is high on the list of requirements which business and industry look for in a community when they are seeking a new business outlet or endeavor. Leaders of business today are coming more and more to look at what a community has to offer their employees in the way of cultural advantages. Your Community Concert Association is a positive asset to your community. And, third, concerts you present are an inspiration to your amateur musical groups. Fourth, young people and students possibly stand to gain more than anyone else. These young people may or may not be studying music but if they can listen to good music and take from it even a small portion they will profit from this influence all their lives.

"Glenn Gould, whom I heard with the New York Philharmonic, is a Canadian, one of a host of young Canadian artists who occupy a major position in the concert field. Others are Lois Marshall and Ray Dudley, who, I understand, is from a city not too far up the line. A great many other Canadian artists may have been inspired by community concerts or by the opportunity to attend local 'live' concerts in the city in which they lived. These people do not rise from cities which are barren in musical endeavor; they rise from cities where music plays an integral part of these communities.

"You have accomplished during the past 24 years a valuable contribution to your community. Toscanini said, 'A great music work is born three times; once for the composer; at the hands of the voice, the interpreter, and finally, in the heart of the listener."

Mr. Tapscott remarked that due to increased ease of transportation artists and audiences have been meeting with more frequency throughout the U.S. and Canada.

Instead of defeating the concert business, Mr. Tapscott believes that television in many instances has fostered the public demand for live performances of artists after viewing them on television.

Another reason why concerts have increased tremendously, he stated, is due to the dedication of its volunteer workers throughout the country who take time out each year to promote the activity of their local association.

"In this work," Mr. Tapscott concluded, "you are inviting others to join you in a great musical experience."

Mr. J. G. Demeza offered a vote of thanks to Miss Campbell and Mr. Tapscott.

Spring Citrus Crop

By ALICE ALDEN

It is the citrus colors rather than the softer floral shades that take over for fashion this spring. This generalization applies in full force to the hats now coming into the stores. In keeping with this trend, look for miniature citrus fruits in lieu of the more familiar trims. They add a pungent and original touch, as you can see from this youthful hat designed by Miss May. She fills the brim of a lemon yellow straw roller with tiny citrus fruits in their proper shades.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

Editor's Note: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, a newspaper editor, a women's editor and two writers. Each article is a summary of an actual case history. The Council reports on problems that have been dealt with by responsible agencies and counsellors.

Larry F. — My wife wants me to go to college.

Linda F. — He is rude to my friends.

• • •

Larry F. — My wife and I have been unhappily married for two years and are just about ready to call it quits.

We had been going together off and on for about ten years — since our high school years. We got along just fine as friends, but as soon as we started to consider marriage all kinds of disagreements arose. Linda doesn't like the work I do and wants me to "better" myself. I think that's silly as I earn a good living as a salesman and I don't see how college would help me.

I never did like most of Linda's friends and she didn't care for mine. We agreed that we'd have our separate friends, but this doesn't seem to work out.

• • •

Linda F. — Larry and I agreed that if our marriage didn't work out after two years, we would separate. It hasn't seemed to work out, yet I find that I am lonely when I am not with him and dread being alone now that all my friends are married.

I don't feel that Larry has tried to meet me halfway. I've tried very hard to please him by keeping a nice home and being affectionate and considerate. But I don't see that he does anything to please me. He knows how much I want him to go to college, but he is so stubborn about it.

I would be willing to accept Larry's friends if he would be decent and courteous to mine, but he seems to be deliberately rude.

• • •

The Council: The basic trouble with this marriage is that neither party ever accepted it as a real marriage. According to Linda's statement, it was a "trial marriage" from the beginning.

A big factor in the success of any marriage is the definite commitment of the two partners to a lifetime pledge. Even if the partners' religion permits divorce, a marriage made in good faith is one in which two persons make a profound commitment. If the commitment is insincere or half-hearted, there are at least two strikes against the marriage.

Despite Linda's claim to great effort to make a go of things, we are not impressed. Linda shows that she is not prepared to love her husband as he is, but wishes to turn him into something else

No adult can go through the long, rather grueling experience of working days and going to college at night without a strong desire to do so. Encouragement from a mate can be helpful to someone with real ambitions in this direction, but pressure is another story. Larry cannot possibly go through college on Linda's steam.

The question of friends is probably closely tied up with this issue. Linda has certain social ambitions her husband does not share. If she values her marriage, she'll compromise.

We don't mean to put all the blame on Linda. Larry shows lack of love for his wife and lack of sincere effort to create a good marriage when he makes no attempt to understand her feelings or to respect her friends and ambitions.

Their long association before marriage is proof that Larry and Linda are drawn together in many ways, in spite of all their conflicts. They need to find the areas that bind them and built from there, dealing honestly and gently with the areas of conflict.

GOOD MANNERS

By Mrs. Beeckman

NEVER USES READER'S REAL NAME IN COLUMN

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Am I right in thinking that you never print a questioner's name in your column? (If this is true I would like to send you two questions on which I need your personal advice.) — Reader

You are right . . . I never print a reader's name in my column in any way, either as signature or in the question itself. Even when a reader doesn't ask that her or his name not be used, I still never use it. And when the question itself includes the real name, I always change the name to a name that could not possibly be identified. So send along your questions . . . they will be held in complete secrecy.

TOMATO JUICE COCKTAIL AS FIRST COURSE

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I'm cook and waitress as well as hostess, and I'm always trying to figure out short-cuts that are really correct.

(1) I've just developed as a "specialty" what I think (hope!) will be an interesting and unusual-taste tomato juice cocktail. This I would like to serve as a first course. Is it correct for me to have these cocktails already placed at the individual places before I summon the guests to the table?

(2) My sister says that when a tomato juice cocktail is served as the first course, the glass containing the juice cocktail should be put with the water goblet, at the right of the plate. Correct? — Hostess

(1) Salutations to you for developing this "specialty"! And it's correct to have the tomato juice cocktail glass on a plate at each place before the guests come to the table.

(2) Not correct. The tomato juice cocktail is, as you say, to be regarded as a first course . . . not as a beverage.

INVITATION TO WEDDING RECEPTION MUST BE ANSWERED

Dear Mrs. Beeckman

My husband and I have just received a formal wedding invitation with no "R.s.v.p." on it or "Please reply" or any other request for an answer. Is it necessary to answer this invitation? My husband and I disagree about this. — E. and M.

If this formal invitation is to the church ceremony only . . . the invitation that requests "the honor of your presence" . . . it is not necessary to reply. But if it includes an invitation to the reception . . . the invitation that requests "the pleasure of your company" or the invitation-card worded "Reception immediately following the ceremony" or similar wording . . . then this invitation must be answered, even if it does not request an answer.

HOSTESS RISES TO ACKNOWLEDGE INTRODUCTION OF GUEST

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

In her own home should a lady rise when her husband introduces to her a man who has just been admitted by him? Say the man has come to talk over some business with the husband, but before settling down to the business, the husband introduces him to his wife. And say the wife has been reading at the other end of the living room. Should she rise, or merely acknowledge the introduction from her chair? — W.

It is a fundamental rule of courtesy that a woman rises to greet and to shake hands with a guest arriving in her home — man, woman or child. In the case you mention, when her husband opens the door to admit the man who has come to talk over some business with him, the wife should rise and come forward to acknowledge her husband's introduction of the guest to her, to shake hands with him, and to greet him cordially. This is proper hostess-procedure.

WRITE "AND" AND "DOCTOR"

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Will you please answer two questions, to settle a discussion between my sister and me?

(1) When addressing an envelope, is it correct to write the sign of and (&) in "Mr. & Mrs" — or should the "and" be spelled out, "Mr. and Mrs."?

(2) When addressing an envelope to a doctor and his wife (for example, a wedding invitation) should one write "Dr. Jones and Mrs. John Jones," or "Dr. and Mrs. John Jones"? — T and R

(1) Always write "and" in "Mr. and Mrs." This gives a better appearance than "&". The abbreviation indicates haste, not desirable on any envelope — social, business or professional. (2) The usual form is "Doctor and Mrs. John Jones." Also correct is "Doctor John Jones and Mrs. Jones." (Best form to spell "Doctor" in full, on a social envelope, such as a wedding invitation.)

All-Weather Topper

The barrel or cocoon line is encountered constantly in new coats prepared for spring, both regular and the all - weather variety. The latter category is extremely good this season at every price level. Polished cotton, in white or in such strong shades as turquoise, yellow and bright green, has been given cocoon lines and weatherproofing. The collar lends itself to nice draping. The sleeves are also barrel shaped to complete a pretty silhouette.

Tempting and Satisfying Cheese Dishes

By Mary Moore

The Europeans who are becoming new Canadians are good for our morale. They demand our respect. I know several families of them but one in particular gets full marks from me for all out effort.

Dinner Menus

TUESDAY

Hamburghs by Bun (see Monday); Green Beans in Sour Cream Dill Sauce; Buttered Noodles; Carrot and Celery Sticks; Apple Batter Pudding with Pouring Cream; Coffee.

For generations they have been living on the land and have never had plenty as we Canadians know it. The fact that meat was scarce did not prevent them from having a diet high in protein. They have discovered every known way of fitting cheese into meals — from soup to dessert.

One of my standbys when I am preparing a vegetable plate or a main course shy on meat is to make a custard pie rich with eggs and milk.

Another such dessert high in protein is a cheese cake and I have this recipe from Marie. She says these amounts serve 10 and that it is very similar to the cheese cakes you buy in European bakeries — for 60c or 75c per pound.

CHEESE CAKE

One 6-ounce package zwieback, ½ cup butter or margarine, 1½ cups sugar, 3 cups cottage cheese, 4 eggs, ½ cup table cream (or rich milk), ½ teaspoon salt, 4 tablespoons flour, 2 tablespoons lemon juice, 1½ teaspoons grated lemon rind. Roll the zwieback into fine crumbs and mix with the melted butter or margarine and ⅓ cup of the sugar. Pack all but ½ cup of this mixture on the bottom and sides of a well greased 9-inch pan. Press the cottage cheese through a fine sieve — this is important. Combine the eggs and remaining 1 cup of sugar and beat until light. Add the cream, salt, flour, lemon juice, lemon rind and cottage cheese and mix well. Pour into crumb-lined pan and sprinkle lightly with the remaining ½ cup of zwieback crumbs. Bake in a moderate oven, 325 dgs. Fahr. for 1 hour. Turn off heat and leave in the oven for 1 hour. Remove from oven and allow to cool. Serve cold.

For some time I have lamented the fact that both Pete and Herbie are not enthusiastic over cheese souffle. I spoke to Marie about this and she said that she added rice to give it a little more body and her boys liked it. Her "boys" are her husband Max and her 3 grown sons.

MARIE'S CHEESE AND RICE SOUFFLE

One-quarter cup butter or margarine, ¾ cup flour, 1½ cups milk, 2 cups grated medium Cheddar cheese, 1½ cups cooked rice (½ cup raw), 2 tablespoons minced parsley, ¾ teaspoon salt, dash of pepper, 6 eggs, yolks and whites separated. Melt butter and blend in flour. Add milk and cook over low heat, stirring constantly until sauce is thickened. Add cheese and continue cooking only until cheese is melted. Stir in rice, parsley and seasonings. Remove from heat. Slowly add egg yolks, well beaten, stirring to blend well. Beat egg whites until stiff but not dry. Gently fold cheese mixture into egg whites. Pour mixture into buttered 2½ quart casserole. With back of spoon, make a groove around top of souffle about 1 inch from edge of dish. Bake at 325 degs. F. for 1 hour and 20 minutes.

"HOW MANY more days 'til Christmas?" is a regular question about this time of year. Help your children answer it themselves by putting up a ribbon line with numbered clothespins attached. Each morning, one pin is removed, until the Big Day arrives.

SIGNS OF SPRING

A sure sign of spring is in the sugar bush. Leon Guertin, 64, of St. Alphonse de Granby, Quebec, started tapping his maple trees a week earlier than usual this year. Syrup makers said he was two weeks ahead of last year's start. His son Ronald, 24, is shown here at work. Horses are used to haul the buckets of sap to the sugaring house. (CP Photo).

Spring Signalled by Lark, Snow Goose or Killdeer But Ignores Formal Arrival Date

CP CROSS-CANADA SURVEY

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Spring comes to Canada at many times and in many ways.

It may come in February at the Pacific coast, in May or later in the northland.

It may be signalled by the lark, the snow goose or the killdeer; the mayflower or the prairie crocus; the gopher or the grizzly bear; by melting ice or floods or sugar parties in the maple woods.

The one thing spring ignores is its formal arrival date—the vernal equinox, timed from the astronomer's calculation of the time when the sun appears to cross the equator on its northward swing to warm the top half of the world.

This year that time is 10:26 p.m. EST next Thursday, March 20.

CAPRICIOUS NATURE

Nature jumped the clock in at least two provinces—then jumped right back again in one.

Roses bloomed in gardens of southern Newfoundland in mid-February. A robin popped up at Bonavista in January and laid the earliest spring egg seen in those parts in many a year. But winter in a last kick laid down a sleet barrage on the Avalon Peninsula early in March that left St. John's for a time a darkened, tangled mass of smashed poles and strewn power lines.

It was difficult to distinguish the seasons on the Pacific coast. Migrant birds like the audubon warbler and the tree swallow apparently stayed all winter and primroses and snowdrops bloomed in February, a good three weeks ahead of schedule.

Elsewhere in the country spring traditionally comes later, sometime in the months of March, April or May. And this year few exceptions are expected.

PROVINCIAL SURVEY

Canadian Press reporters surveyed the 10 provinces for the expected signs of spring.

In the Maritimes the robin usually comes first. Blackbirds and song sparrows are also harbingers. In Nova Scotia the mayflower blooms first and in New Brunswick, the colt's foot and the shad bush.

In rural sections of Quebec's Eastern Townships the crow cries the first real spring sound and in the north the Canada snow goose barks his way to Arctic breeding grounds. There are black bears to growl and, of course, the maple sap to run.

Ontario has pussy willows and the province's own official flower, the trillium. Redwing blackbirds and kildeer join robins in early song while black bears growl across the north where the crow is the early bird.

The prairie lands of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta boast especially of the meadow lark and cite the gopher as the first to emerge from winter hibernation. The prairie crocus is the first bloom.

MOUNTAIN GRIZZLIES

Mountains in Alberta and British Columbia have bears of their own — the hibernating grizzly. Ground squirrels and groundhogs follow close behind. Crocuses also bloom along B.C.'s coastal plain which early becomes a blaze of color from a variety of wild spring flowers.

As nature churns from the dead of winter many provinces see threatening violence, often tragic and usually costly. Ten years ago British Columbia had its worst floods of the century as mountain run - off swelled the mighty Fraser River and its tributaries into torrents of destruction. In 1950 the Red River flooded hundreds of acres of Manitoba wheat lands in the worst Prairie rampage in recent years. Indications are that neither will be repeated this year and reports from the rest of the country promise a minimum of spring flooding.

Icebergs drift south from the Arctic to melt along the Atlantic seaboard in warmer southern air off Newfoundland. Last year they were the worst in 50 years, threatening coastal shipping and isolating many ports for weeks. This year few bergs are expected and officials say they believe last year was at the peak of a cycle.

Seals have arrived for centuries along with the bergs and seal fishing has been a major Newfoundland industry. This year so few seals are expected not one major sealing boat plans to set out from Newfoundland ports, their traditional base.

Here is a detailed picture of Canada on the verge of spring:

ATLANTIC PROVINCES

The Newfoundland winter was so mild in all but the north that residents have reported signs of spring all winter. Ski - equipped planes were unable to deliver mail to northern Newfoundland and Labrador communities because there was not enough snow or ice most of the winter on which to land. Highways department workmen left their snowplows and took to graders to continue normal road repairs and most construction was able to continue throughout the winter.

Only the Annapolis Valley and some inland areas of eastern Nova Scotia get typical spring weather. Along the coast weather changes from a mild winter to summer. Biggest spring worry is the condition of highways which often become impassable in spring mud. Flooding is not usual.

New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island usually get more typical spring weather. In Fredericton spring comes when the St. John River ice breaks up in the first half of April. Flooding is not usual. Spring run-off churns P.E.I.'s red soil along the island province's rivers but there is little flooding and in May the first farmers are able to plant their famous potatoes.

QUEBEC

In Montreal people turn out to stroll along the slopes of historic Mount Royal. Beaver Lake on the mountain top, turns from a skating rink to a fish pond and horse-drawn caleches with sleepy drivers solicit customers. In rural sections of the Eastern Townships farmers troop to maple groves for sap which they turn into some of the world's best maple syrup.

In Quebec City the unpredictable Chaudiere River normally overflows its banks flooding many towns in Beauce County. Skiers north of the capital refuse to admit winter has gone until flowers bloom on the southerly slopes. Farmers seldom get into their fields until late April or early May.

ONTARIO

Spring is one of Ottawa's most beautiful seasons. Even before the snow has disappeared the crocus has splashed the bare patches of lawns with color, especially on Parliament Hill and around the National War Memorial. A little later daffodils and tupils transform federal parkways into vistas of vividly colored blossoms. Throughout the Gatineau Hills area skiing often continues for weeks after snow has left Ottawa streets.

Shipping opens along Great Lakes waterways in April. In Essex County, Canada's most southerly tip, spring turns to summer in a hurry and the first market garden crops are usually at market by the end of April. Although the Niagara Peninsula's chief crop is fruit, the main spring event for many there is not tree pruning but horse racing. The country's earliest race meeting opens at Fort Erie in April.

THE PRAIRIES

Across the wheat lands snow and frost usually begins to go late in March and early April and farmers start greasing machinery for spring seeding. In some areas fields are unworkable until the sticky gumbo soil dries out. Wheat is the first crop and the mainstay of the Prairie economy. Across the north there is a rush of trappers and commercial fishermen to get to their bases before the break-up of ice makes travel impossible.

In Alberta there is the added rush among oilmen to prevent rigs becoming bogged down in the thawing muskeg and bush. In the shadow of the mountains spring is usually a short season and the rush is accentuated.

BRITISH COLUMBIA

Spring sneaks up almost unnoticed along the Pacific coast and this year, they say, it will be more difficult to detect than ever. Agriculturalists report they haven't had such abnormal weather since 1929. Some rye grasses, fescues, wild radish and chickweed grew this year all winter and most of the frost was gone from the ground in February.

This year many migrant birds stayed all winter along the coast. In the interior crows are usually calling early in March. Fruit farmers in the Okanagan and Kootenay valleys start early in their orchads.

Water resources officials say there is little liklihood of spring floods this year because there has been higher-than-usual early runoff along the Fraser River and its tributaries.

First Goal Of Season By Moore May Decide National Scoring Title

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

"I may referee minor games, and skate a little but I will never play organized hockey again."

The well-dressed chap wearing the dark-blue eyeglasses spoke with a ring of sincerity in his voice. He was this department's seat companion in the bus en route to Pembroke on Saturday.

Bucky Buchanan, a veteran of the ice lanes and one of the Pembroke Lumber Kings' scoring aces until the time of his unfortunate accident that may or may not cost him the complete sight of an eye, had seen the game the night previous, stayed overnight and was en route back to Pembroke.

Bucky told this reporter it will take at least three years before he will know if he will lose the sight of an eye. He has no vision at all, at the moment, but can distinguish between light and darkness.

"I was amused during my stay in the Boston hospital when reports were circulated that my eyesight would be regained. My brother even phoned me from Montreal about it. I only wish it had been true."

Buchanan, who was accidentally hurt during a Cornwall-Pembroke game, said the injury to his eye was caused by a hair-like sliver of wood penetrating the eyeball. "There was no swelling, and no discoloration immediately following the accident," he said.

"I felt a sharp prick in my eye, that was all, at the time," he said. "Then the pain started and it hasn't been so good since."

Did he think that hockey players like Tommy Burlington, Jo-Jo Grabowski, and others who played hockey with one eye were taking any exceptional chances?

"Certainly," Bucky said. "After my experience I know how easy it is to lose an eye. I will never play in organized hockey again. It is not worth the risk."

Buchanan had glowing words of praise for Wally Lenser, owner-manager of the Pembroke Lumber Kings.

"Wally did everything humanly possible for me after the accident," he said. "He paid all the expenses and continuously asked me if I needed anything.

"He refused to cut me from the team," Bucky went on. "I felt I was of no further use to the Lumber Kings, and would go back to my home in Montreal. Lenser refused to take back my pay cheque and has insisted I remain on the payroll since. I have been skating a little and coaching some minor teams in Pembroke. That has been the extent of my activities."

Bucky has also been an ambassador for Lenser in a public speaking capacity. He has addressed several organizations, including service clubs on what hockey means to a community.

"It is surprising what the average man does not know about the inner workings, and the behind-the-scenes activities of a hockey club," he said.

"I spoke to a prominent service club on one occasion, and members were amazed when I told them how much tape, how many sticks, pucks, etc., were used in the course of a season. They did not know how much it costs to fully equip a player. They were surprised at the cost of sweaters, skates, pads and items that go to complete a player's gear."

Did he feel that hockey was on the decline?

"I believe it is slipping," he said, "but not to the point where it cannot be resurrected. I believe hockey has to be resold to the public, and good public relations, through contact with men who can afford to support the game a lot better than heretofore, can do the job."

"The man on the street who is hockey's main supporter is doing a fine job," Bucky said. "After all he is the fellow who is paying the shot, but I feel there are fellows who can well afford to support hockey a lot better than they have been doing, should hold up their end."

While Eastern Ontario has taken to senior "A" hockey, it was never more clearly demonstrated that the fans want good teams, and winning ones, Buchanan said. "This has been proven in practically all centres of the league, with the exception of Belleville. When other clubs slumped, so did the attendance... This was particularly noticeable in Pembroke, Kingston and Cornwall. Give the fans a well-balanced league, and you will have no trouble getting them through the turnstiles."

Buchanan was definitely against the Ottawa-Hull Canadiens set-up, as of last season, with their three-point wins and two-point ties. "They were not a drawing card for any team of the league from what I hear," he said. "If the senior clubs hit them or beat them they were taking advantage of a bunch of kids. If the juniors won, they were praised to high heaven. They did not draw well against senior clubs in their own arena in Hull."

Habitant Star Three Points Ahead of Pocket, Bathgate; Gordie Howe Trails With 68

MONTREAL (CP) — It's beginning to look as if the National Hockey League scoring championship may not be decided until the schedule ends next Sunday and it's possible a goal scored by Dickie Moore of Montreal Canadiens last Oct. 13 may decide the whole thing. It's that close.

The league's official statistics, released today, show Moore with 79 points and Andy Bathgate of New York Rangers and Henri (Pocket Rocket) of Montreal with 76 each. Gordie Howe of Detroit Red Wings, last season's champion, is the only dark-horse threat. He has 68 points.

Moore has scored 34 goals and collected 45 assists. Bathgate has a 30-46 record and the little Rocket 27-49.

League regulations provide—for some reason or other—that in case of a tie both on total points and total goals, the governing factor is the first goal of the season—when it was scored.

A WEEK APART

Moore scored his first goal Oct. 13, in a game at Detroit. Bathgate didn't get his first until Oct. 20, against Chicago Black Hawks in New York.

Henri Richard now has only 27 goals, compared with Moore's 34 and Bathgate's 30. But if he should bust loose in Montreal's remaining three games and create a tie on goals and points, he would be the winner. He scored his first goal Oct. 10, in Montreal's opening game of the season, in Montreal against the Black Hawks.

If there is a tie on total points but not on total goals, then the nod goes to the player with the most goals.

For the record, the champion gets $1,000; the runner-up $500.

In last week's play, Bathgate clipped a point off Moore's margin. The Ranger right winger scored one goal and collected four assists. Moore potted no goals but also had four assists. Henri Richard duplicated Bathgate's five points on two goals and three assists. Howe lost ground, getting only a one-one count.

HOLDS FIFTH PLACE

Bronco Horvath of Boston Bruins easily held on to fifth place with two goals and one assist, running his total to 62. Eddie Litzenberger of Chicago kept pace with a goal and two assists and is still in sixth place with 57 points.

There were few other changes among the first 10. Alex Delvecchio of Detroit moved from an eighth-place tie to seventh-spot bracket with Camille Henry of New York, each with 54 points. Delvecchio scored two goals and two assists and Henry one of each.

Montreal's Jean Beliveau, banging in four goals, stepped up from 12th-place tie to ninth-place tie.

In the league race itself, Detroit took over third place from Boston. The Red Wings compiled two wins and a tie in three games. The Bruins dropped two of three, winning the other. New York has all but clinched second place, well behind the champion Montrealers.

Chicago Black Hawks are still hopeful of getting out of the cellar. They won only one game in three but Toronto Maple Leafs dropped all three starts and now are ahead of the Hawks by only two points.

Wembley Lions Hand Dunlops First Setback

LONDON (CP) — Wembley Lions of the British National Hockey League defeated Whitby 6-2 Monday night, handing Canada's newly-crowned world champions their first setback of their European tour.

A rash of first-period penalties against the Canadians enabled Wembley to take a four-goal lead and they increased their margin to 6-0 before the visitors first found the score sheet. All but one of the Wembley goals came with Whitby a man short.

The Canadians looked more the champions the rest of the way but diligent back - checking by the Lions and brilliant goal keeping by Ron Kilbey kept the game out of reach.

Gordie Scott, the Lions' assistant captain, fired two of their goals. Bill Glennie and Ray Maisonneuve, borrowed from Harringay to fill out the Wembley lineup, each scored once, and Ken Booth and Les Strongman completed the total.

SMITH ENDS DROUGHT

Playing-coach Sid Smith ended the Canadian drought with an ankle-high drive from 12 feet out just past the game's halfway mark. George Samolenko tipped in Bobby Attersley's screened shot for Whitby's second goal early in the third period.

Whitby, unbeaten in 24 previous European appearances, looked sluggish and stale. They played without four of their regulars and badly missed penalty-killer Tommy O'Connor and Jean Paul Lamirande.

The losers took eight of the game's nine penalties, including 10 - minute misconducts to Bus Gagnon and Ted O'Conor.

Roy Edwards had a busy night in the Whitby nets as his teammates were outskated by the Lions, particularly in the early stages.

Bonus Beauty Not Clouting In Training

SCOTTSDALE, Ariz. (AP)—Curve ball pitches baffle Baltimore Orioles' Dave Nicholson, the 18-year-old who cost them an estimated $110,000 two months ago.

"I think I'm pressing too hard," says the youngster who became the object of 14 major league clubs through his power hitting as a schoolboy.

But he hasn't been hitting much in training camp. Against Chicago Cubs he fanned three times and one baseball observer commented: "The kid looks as if he never had seen a curve ball."

Manager Paul Richards says Dave needs lots of work in the minors if he's ever to make the grade with the Orioles.

In past years, the Orioles would have had to keep Nicholson on their roster as a bonus player but this season the rule is changed to allow the farming out of players who received big bundles of cash to sign.

Braves Send Six to Minors

BRADENTON, Fla. (AP) — The pitcher - rich Milwaukee Braves returned six rookie pitchers to their top minor league affiliates Monday. All six had been invited to train with the Braves, but were not carried on their roster.

Supreme Court May Change Ring Empire's Death Order

WASHINGTON (AP) — Promoter James D. Norris is getting another chance to fight a court order that spells death for his International Boxing Club as one of history's most fabulous ring empires.

The U.S. Supreme Court agreed Monday to review a lower court ruling that the IBC be dissolved on grounds it monopolized championship bouts in violation of anti trust laws.

Because of a crowded calendar, the court is not expected to hear the IBC appeal until next fall at the earliest and more months could pass before ruling is announced. Meantime, the lower court's ruling has been suspended.

In Other Words What's the Rush Here's Your Hat

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto Maple Leafs won't make coach Billy Reay a sacrificial goat for their terrible National Hockey League record this season.

"We had the wrong line on a lot of hockey players," acting manager Stafford Smythe said Monday. "Under our old system the short-comings of a lot of players were covered up. We were wrong in thinking we could rely on those players but we had to learn the hard way.

"We aren't contemplating any changes in the coach's position at the present time. Of course, a could happen between now and the start of next season. Reay is not under contract, so he is free to do what he wants."

Macs Strengthen Grip On Finals With 8-3 Defeat Of Lumber Kings

Grab First-Period 3-1 Lead Tuck Victory Away in 2nd; 4th Game Pembroke Tonight

By GEORGE H. CARVER
Sports Editor

The McFarlands raced to their second victory in the Eastern Senior "A" league finals here last night, defeating a somewhat listless Pembroke Lumber Kings team 8-3 to fasten a stranglehold on the best-of-seven series. The teams play the fourth game in Pembroke tonight. The other tilt was a tie.

The Kings appeared to be showing the grind of travel and consistency of games. The Macs travelled at a fair speed and after slamming home three goals to a single return in the first period, were home free. They exploded for four as against one in the second and split a pair with the Kings in the third.

The Menard, Payette, Guidolin line flashed into scoring action, leading the points parade with twelve of the 21 garnered by the Macs. Menard and Guidolin each had two goals and two assists, with Paul coming up with one goal and three helpers Wiener Brown maintained his scoring pace, getting a pair again with Barton Bradley getting the other. Brown and Bradley also had assists with Hildebrand and Lepine chalking up a pair each.

NO ROUGH STUFF

The game was a somewhat tame affair as far as penalties go, Referee Bill Balmer of Toronto handing out six minors, the teams divvying up on the total. Each club scored while the opposition was a man short on two different occasions.

PAUL PAYETTE

Bep Guidolin was credited with his first goal of the playoff series when his shot deflected off a defending player's foot at 2.42 of the first period. The Macs carried the play which was hardly the fast, furious type.

Bruce Giesebrecht paved the way for the second Belleville goal when he was waved off for hooking. Wiener Brown hit the hemp for his first goal of the game, tipping in a pass from outside the crease. Guidolin and Bradley were given assists.

Four minutes later Wiener scored his second goal of the game and the third of the period blasting another slapshot home from squarely between the posts.

Benoit was chased for holding and the Kings surged on the attack, Bruce Giesebrecht breaking Pembroke scoring ice when he slipped home Bernie Limoges' pass. The Macs outshot the Kings 8-4 in the period.

Minnie Menard drilled a knee high shot at Payette at 2.55 which trickled through the goalie's pads, dropped to the ice and rolled over the goal-line to give the Macs a 4-1 lead. They kept up the offensive and Kowalchuk's high drive missed the open net.

The Kings battled back hard and Gerry Plamondon scored their second goal of the game at 6.37 when the puck rolled through a Macs defenceman's leg to the Pembroke coach's waiting stick. He made no mistake. A minute later the Macs shot their lead up to 5-2 when Menard blasted a high shot that caught the top corner behind Payette with Paul Payette and Guidolin setting up the play.

O'Connor went off for holding and the Bradley, Brown, Hildebrand line took over. Bradley whipped the puck into the net with his team mates assisting while the Macs powerplay was on. Twenty seconds later Dennis Menard of the Kings was chased but no damage was done. The Kings were at full strength when Payette [illegible]red a beauty. Guidolin slipped Paul the pass, then took Douglas out and Payette walked in to score the seventh McFarlands goal. The Macs had eleven shots on goal, the Kings seven.

Benoit headed for the sin-bin a minute after the third period started and the King's first play took them into paydirt, Bert Giesebrecht scoring on a drive with Farelli and Chiarelli.

A minute later the Menard, Guidolin, Payette line again flashed into action, Guidolin scoring from a neat passout from behind the net with his line-mates collecting assists. That ended the scoring for the night.

MINNIE MENARD

The Muretich, MacDonald, Kowalchuk line seemed to be the hard-luck trio. They worked like Trojans and did practically everything but sink the puck. Joe Lepine missed a fine chance when he took a perfect goal-front pass only to have Payette in the Kings' goal kick the shot away. The Macs outshot the Kings 34-24 in the night's play. Some 1,700 Monday night fans saw the game.

Irish Boxer Wins St. Patrick's Fight Honors

TORONTO (CP) — Boxers fighting out of Milwaukee, Wis., won four of their seven bouts on a St. Patrick's Day amateur card at Maple Leaf Gardens Monday night, but appropriately a Belfast boy collected the evening's major honors.

Walter Henry, formerly all-Ireland juvenile bantamweight champion now living in Orillia, survived two first-round knockdowns and went on to score a technical knockout over his Milwaukee opponent, Clarence King, at 1:13 of the fourth round of a scheduled five-rounder in the 118-pound class.

Henry was awarded both the Saiderman Trophy as the night's best boxer and the Globe and Mail Trophy.

Milwaukee's Don Hughes won a unanimous five-round decision over Reg Richardson of St. Catharines and townsman Jody James took a three-round split decision from Salvato Bernadelli of Toronto. Both bouts were at 148 pounds.

Jerry Pate of Milwaukee won a three-round verdict over Junior O'Shea of St. Catharines at 160 pounds.

In the 126-pound class Don Spears of Camp Borden, Ont., won a unanimous three-round decision over Milwaukee visitor James Holling. In an all-Camp Borden bout in the heavyweight class Ross Kelleher won a split decision over Don Adams.

Kerwin Fights Dupas Tonight

OTTAWA (CP) — Gale Kerwin, Ottawa boxer who now fights out of New York, and Davey Dupas, of New Orleans, La., meet here tonight in a 10-round lightweight bout that has the appearance of a grudge fight.

Dupas, Texas state lightweight champion, earned a split decision over Kerwin in Dallas earlier this month. The referee gave the nod to Kerwin by a good margin but the two judges favored Dupas.

The fight is the first promotional effort by Howard Darwin, an official in amateur boxing in the capital and marks the first professional bout here in more than a year.

Kerwin, since leaving Ottawa about three years ago, has acquired a name in boxing, mainly as the result of three televised main events in the United States.

Alouettes Get Dick Huffman In Player Deal

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal Alouettes today announced acquisition of Dick Huffman, a top-rated import tackle, from Calgary Stampeders with whom he played in 1956-57.

Huffman comes to the Big Four club in a trade which sends Hughie Simpson, promising rookie halfback of last season, to the Stampeders along with "other considerations."

Johnson Out For Two Weeks

MONTREAL (CP) — Defenceman Tom Johnson will be lost to Montreal Canadiens for at least two weeks and possibly longer, the club announced Monday.

Johnson suffered an injured right knee in Saturday's National Hockey League game against Chicago Black Hawks. The knee was put in a cast Monday for a week.

Johnson thus becomes a doubtful participant in any of the Stanley Cup semi-final games which start March 25.

Dollard St. Laurent, second defenceman injured in Saturday's game, may be able to play then. St. Laurent suffered a comparatively small fracture of the left cheek-bone and underwent an operation Sunday.

Cubs' Nomadic Pitcher Wins 2nd Cactus League Victory

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Jack Littrell, who has played with 11 different baseball clubs in the minor and major leagues in 10 years, may be the latest to make the big switch from an infielder to a pitcher.

Littrell, no man to be feared by opposing pitchers as his .190 batting average in 61 games with Chicago Cubs last year will attest, won his second Cactus League decision Monday when the Cubs defeated Baltimore Orioles 5-3.

The 29-year-old native of Louisville, Ky., pitched two innings and was credited with the victory when Walt Moryn rapped a three-run homer with two out in the seventh inning. The game was limited to seven innings by agreement, since Cleveland Indians defeated San Francisco Giants 9-6 in the opener of the exhibition doubleheader.

ALLOWS TWO HITS

Littrell allowed two hits and one run, but issued no walks. This was his second victory over Baltimore. On March 8 he worked two scoreless innings and the Cubs won 6-5 in 16 innings.

The 185-pound righthander played four games with the Philadelphia Athletics in 1952, then went to Ottawa in the International League. He went back to Philadelphia and then moved with the As to Kansas City in 1955. Littrell played shortstop with Portland of the PCL in 1957 and part of last season.

Frank Thomas hit two homers for Pittsburgh but Chicago White Sox defeated the Pirates 7-4.

PHILLIES POUND CARDS

Richie Ashburn hit a double and three singles as Philadelphia Phillies pounded out 15 hits in a 6-2 decision over the St. Louis Cardinals. Jack Sanford hurled five scoreless innings for the Phils.

Cincinnati Redlegs downed Washington Senators 9-6 with Frank Robinson hitting two homers and driving in six runs.

New York Yankees rallied for a 15-8 victory over Milwaukee Braves as Mickey Mantle, Andy Carey and Hank Bauer hit homers. Wes Covington had a grand-slam home run and Joe Adcock also had a round-tripper for Milwaukee.

Los Angeles Dodgers had to go 10 innings to squeeze out a 3-2 victory over Spokane, their PCL farm club. Felipe Montemayor produced the winning run with a sacrifice fly for the Dodgers, who got only four hits.

Three Teams Hold Lead in Bowls Tourney

TORONTO (CP) — Teams from Guelph, Kirkland Lake and Toronto held the lead in the three divisions of the open five-pin bowling tournament as the third day of play at the Sportsmen's Show ended Monday.

A Guelph team took over first place from Hamilton in the major division with a five-game total of 1,178 that gave them a total of 5,822 points. Hamilton has 5,454, Kitchener is third and Brantford fourth, followed by Barrie, Timmins, Toronto and Sarnia.

In the men's open division Kirkland Lake held on to its lead by a slim 30 points over Toronto, which has 4,263. Hamilton is in third place and Thorold and Collingwood follow in fourth and fifth.

Toronto Lakeviewers displaced Windsor as leaders in the ladies' open division with a three-game total of 3,437, 480 points better than second-place Windsor. London, a second Toronto team, Kingston and Guelph follow in that order.

APPOINT CAMPAGNARO

GUELPH (CP) — Joe Veroni, general manager of Guelph's entry in the Intercounty Baseball League, said Monday Alex Campagnaro has been appointed business manager of the club for 1958. Sievers Likes Mantle, Musial And Williams

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — "Mickey Mantle is the only hitter with the power to break Babe Ruth's home run record."

"Ted Williams is the best hitter in the game."

"Stan Musial is the best all-around ball player."

The man who was so generous in his praise of others was Roy Sievers, the Washington slugger who beat both Williams and Mantle last year in the home run and runs batted in races.

"I don't have any ideas about any triple crown (batting, homers runs batted in)," he said. "I'd just like to keep at least one of the titles I won last year. With hitters like Williams and Mantle around, I have my work cut out for me.

"Somebody said I expected to hit 40 homers this year but I'd settle for anything over 30. I want to drive in over 100 runs and bat .300 again.

"I had a few breaks last year beating out Mantle and Williams. Both of them were out for a time with injuries. I got off fast and when I got ahead of them in late season I was able to stay ahead."

Sievers clouted 42 home runs last season, hit .301 and drove in 114 runs.

Marshall Has Title in Bag

NEW YORK (AP) — Willie Marshall of Hershey Bears has all but officially clinched the American Hockey League scoring championship as he nears the 100-point mark.

Marshall has 98 points, 15 more than runner-up Dunc Fisher, also of the first-place Bears. Cleveland's Jimmy Moore is a point back in third place with 82.

Johnny Bower of Cleveland Barons, out for the balance of the regular season with a rib injury, has sewed up goaltending honors. The netminder has allowed a low of 2.19 goals per game and leads in shutouts with eight.

MONCTON, N.B. (CP) — Chris Shaban, manager of British Empire light heavyweight champion Yvon Durelle, says he has been in touch with Montreal promoter Eddie Quinn about a rematch in Montreal with Tony Anthony, New York fighter who stopped Durelle on a seventh-round TKO Friday night.

"We're definitely interested in a rematch," Shaban said Monday. "But I want to have a serious talk with Yvon first."

Claims World Bowling Record

MADERA, Calif. (AP) — William Lamb, 29, claimed a world marathon bowling record Monday night after 663 consecutive games. He started last Wednesday—126 hours previous.

At his side, encouraging him, was Richard Bryant of Tulare, Calif. who three weeks ago set the record of 661 games.

Bowling with alternate hands, Lamb averaged 131.9. He has been bowling three years.

Quebec Hockey

TROIS-RIVIERES, Que. (CP) Trois-Rivieres Lions, playing for next year's contracts, Monday night got an overtime goal from Gilles Thibault a 3-2 victory over Quebec Aces that spoiled a chance for the Aces to take over undisputed possession of third place in the Quebec Hockey League.

The loss left Quebec deadlocked at 59 points with Montreal Royals. The Royals now have four games left in the 64-game schedule and the Aces, three. Trois-Rivieres, with 52 points, is out of the playoff picture.

Had Free Hand In Dealing With Suez Situation

RIMOUSKI, Que. (CP) — Lester B. Pearson disclosed Monday he had a fairly free hand in dealing with the critical Suez situation at the United Nations in 1956.

The Liberal leader and former external affairs minister told about 300 persons at a civic reception that when he was at the United Nations during "those very tragic days" of the Suez crisis, he telephoned to former prime minister St. Laurent for some guidance, instruction and encouragement.

"We had differed with our friends, the British and the French, and that is not a position in which a Canadian likes to be. But Mr. St. Laurent was more than a prime minister to me, he was always a very close friend.

"'Don't worry' he told me. 'Do what is best. Do the right thing and I'll back you'."

Mr. Pearson said the "very horror of a possible war is the best hope of avoiding war."

He was sure that one day the Russians would meet the West half-way in a desire to make arrangements to avoid a catastrophy.

Oxford Students Broadly Against Nuclear Weapons

By ALAN HARVEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP) — Oxford University students are broadly against nuclear weapons.

A generation of undergraduates who know only by hearsay of Oxford's famous pacifist resolution between the wars expressed their views in a seven-point poll made public Saturday.

More than half the university's 8,000 undergraduates took part. Responses showed a general bias against hydrogen bombs, with women more strongly disapproving than men.

Sixty per cent of those who replied said Britain should stop testing bombs until new efforts are made to reach agreement with Russia. Forty - seven per cent did not think Britain's possession of the bomb reduces the risk of total war.

Results of the poll were analyzed by two statisticians using an electronic computer. After studying all answers, they said only 15 per cent of undergraduates showed unqualified opposition to nuclear weapons against nine per cent in unqualified support.

A Canadian don at All Souls College, 26-year-old Charles Taylor of Montreal, took a leading part in organizing the referendum. Taylor is president of the Oxford committee associated with the campaign for nuclear disarmament, now being waged on a national level with protest meetings and propaganda.

He is also a guiding spirit behind a magazine called Universities and Left Review, intended for the intellectual who likes his politics abstruse, argumentative and with an admixture of marxism.

The referendum was carefully conducted. It indicates a quickening of political interest at Oxford, but should not be interpreted as betokening an upsurge of emotionalism among the students, whose varied opinions reflect uncertainty and earnest reflection rather than youthful absolutism.

The results will be studied by British politicians. Some are already convinced that public concern about the H-bomb is a big factor in the decline of popularity of the Conservative government, badly buffeted in recent byelections.

Viscount Hailsham, Conservative party chairman, warned against the emotionalism inheritant in undergraduates referenda. He referred to the days of Munich, and the memorable Oxford resolution 20 years ago in which undergraduates vowed they would not fight for king or country.

Conservative uneasiness about what some call the nuclear neurosis was also apparent in a weekend speech by Sir David Eccles, president of the Board of Trade, a government department.

"We are not prepared to be panicked by the Liberals and pacifists or people who say it is too terrible to defend our country," Sir David said.

There were sincere pacifists whose refusal to fight was a decision of conscience, but they "exploited all the timid people." These timid people "idealized their views and joined the pacifists because they thought they could evade the facts of life." They were the "people who let Hitler in."

Doorstop Used Went Off With A Big Bang

MIDDLETOWN, Ohio (AP) The doorstop in Mrs. Blanche Thompson's home has taken the usual amount of raps and bangs in the last 38 years of use—but never the big one.

Mrs. Thompson said Sunday she found that the doorstop, a First-World War German artillery shell given her husband by a brother, contained the equivalent of five pounds of TNT.

The national guard found the shell very much alive—and at last it gave off with the big bang when they destroyed it.

Free Educational Program Being Offered by TV Station

By CHARLES MERCER

NORFOLK, Va. (AP)—In New York you hear many fine theories about the potential of television as an educational medium. But in Norfolk a commercially successful station has been making educational TV a fact for many months.

Each week day station WVEC-TV offers 2½ hours of forthright gimmick-free educational programming. It is directed primarily to classroom students. The public can tune in, too—and does.

It began last September after the Ford Foundation for the Advancement of Education made a grant of $56,000, which was matched by the Norfolk public school system, to use television as a means of teaching students in nine large city schools.

Thomas P. Chisman, the young and energetic president of the Peninsula Broadcasting Corporation, offered two hours of WVEC-TV daily air time—time spots worth thousands of dollars—to bring the project into being. The station, with studios in both Norfolk and Hampton, charges only $4,00 a month for this valuable morning and afternoon time to cover the cost of image orthicon tubes, the principal tube in TV cameras.

"We had those two hours free from our network commitments as an NBC affiliate," Chisman says today. "And I've always believed that television has a greater potential than only entertainment. What good is a theory if you never put it into practice? So we did."

As a result, WVEC-TV has been televasting two hours daily of geometry, American history, Virginia history and elementary science taught by four public school teachers. Students in groups numbering from 250 to 300 at a time are studying these television taught subjects. The result?

"At the end of four months," says Chisman, "the school system found that television geometry students were ahead of non-television geometry students. And in all courses it was found that there are no disciplinary problems in television taught classes. Even the record for tardiness was away down."

Buffalo Storms Brewed Right in Own Backyard

Editors note: They get snow in lots of places, but Nature concocts it more liberally for Buffalo. A case in point was the celebrated St. Patrick's Day blizzard of 1937, and many a peculiar storm since them.

By DICK WHALEN

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — Take a mass of cold air out of northern Canada and pour it across the Great Lakes. Give one chunk of it a spinning motion as it flows down Lake Erie toward Buffalo and Niagara FFalls, soaking up moisture from the lake.

Then duck.

Because for the 1,089,230 people living in metropolitan Buffalo, it means snow—huge quantities of it—from one of Buffalo's homemade snowstorms.

The storms are peculiar. They are brewed right in the city's backyard, Lake Erie, and they strike in a narrow belt, sometimes only five miles wide.

When they hit hard, everything stops. The railroad yards, second largest in the country, are paralyzed. Industry is crippled. Traffic is halted.

THE BIG ONE

The storm everybody here remembers as THE storm is the St. Patrick's Day blizzard of 1937.

It started on March 17, just three days before spring, and piled up 27.4 inches of snow. Troops were called in to help.

'Twas the luck of the Irish that they had held their St. Patrick's parade on Sunday, two days before the blizzard.

The lake storms deliver about half of Buffalo's snow, and Buffalo averages six feet of snow a year, nearly twice as much as any other major U.S. city.

The storms brew quickly. One of them struck on a crisp, sunny Saturday in October. Thousands had gone on picnics in the hills south of Buffalo. But black clouds percolated over Lake Erie.

Four feet of snow fell in that storm and stranded thousands of motorists south of the city, but Buffalo escaped with scarcely a snowflake.

Snow removal is a major problem. The city spends about $600,000 a year on it.

LEOPOLD LEAVES

NEW YORK (AP) — Nathan Leopold left today for Puerto Rico to take up a new life as a $10-a-month hospital laboratory technician. The 53-year-old parolee, who served 33½ years in prison for his part in the 1924 murder of Bobby Franks, 14, was paroled from an Illinois prison Thursday.

MID-FEBRUARY'S

uary and with 5,685,000 in February, 1957.

The mid-February unemployment figure tops any since the depression year of 1936, when the bureau estimated 565,000 jobless. However, at that time the labor force was only 4,417,000.

High point of Canadian unemployment was an estimated 817,000 in 1933.

In breaking down the February employment figures, the bureau estimated that persons with non-farm jobs numbered 4,706,000 compared with 4,734,000 in January and 4,708,000 in February, 1957.

Farm employment stood at 606,000, against 637,000 in January and 654,000 in February of last year.

The total of employed at 5,869,000 was divided among 4,611,000—of 78.5 per cent of the labor force—who worked 35 hours or more during the survey week; 528,000 or nine per cent who worked less than 35 hours; and 175,000 or three per cent who had jobs but did not work during the week.

The 555,000 of unemployed represented 9.5 per cent of the labor force. This compared with 5.7 per cent in February of last year.

The government said that increases in unemployment occurred mainly in Quebec, Ontario and the Atlantic provinces between January and February, largely reflecting seasonal declines in agriculture, forestry and construction.

In the Prairie provinces, there was little change in unemployment.

"Unemployment also showed little change in British Columbia," the statement said, "though there were indications that the peak had been reached."

Police Blotter

In the city last night police nabbed three drivers for operating their vehicles with 1957 markers. A 78-year-old gent was picked up near a school while sitting in his car sipping from a bottle.

A Howard Street man was charged with careless driving after his auto almost hit a city police cruiser on Church Street. He pleaded guilty and paid a fine.

INDIAN FAMILY

"What sort of a job can he get?" asked Mrs. Gorman. "Bootlegging is all he'll be good for."

Mrs. Gorman said the number of such cases is increasing so rapidly it is becoming a serious social problem.

Each successive government tried to get by with spending less money on the Indians, unconscious of the fact that money spent up-grading the Indians would be a saving in the long run.

Indonesia Govt. Retakes Medan

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP) — More foreign elements were ordered to leave Indonesia today as prospects loomed for more fighting in the see-saw battle for the North Sumatran capital of Medan.

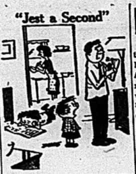
Confirming that the key port and rail centre which fell to the rebels Sunday had been retaken the United States vice-consul, Richard Dleary, indicated that another rebel attack was expected.

"The city is in government hands," he said, "but I don't know for how long."

Dleary said 250 Americans, including women and children, will leave for Singapore Thursday aboard the liner Oranje. The liner also will take out 825 Dutch nationals from the oil area.

The Americans were told to leave by U.S. rubber firms and Christian missions whose forces make up most of the American population in North Sumatra.

"Jest a Second"



"I've just found out the government gives you six dollars a month for me. How come I never get it?"

CONTESTS WILL

None of the defeated members of Mr. St. Laurent's last cabinet, except former defence minister Paul Hillyer, was nominated, but Liberal Leader Lester Pearson and seven other former ministers who survived the PC victory last June are in the field.

CCF Leader M. J. Coldwell will lead a slightly larger group into this year's election—169 candidates compared with 162—but Solon Low's Social Credit group has only 82 candidates compared with 114. Social Credit has a full entry only in British Columbia where each of the four major parties is contesting every seat.

Take a tip from me

There's only one way to get the things you want . . . and that's with cash. How do you get the cash? You open a Savings Account at Imperial Bank of Canada, and deposit regularly until you've saved enough to pay for what you want, at the regular retail price . . . and sometimes for less. While you are saving, Imperial Bank pays you interest and, because you are not involved with carrying charges, you also save money on your purchase. Take it from me, cash buying is the smarter way.

Remember—when you buy on time, you pay interest.
When you save at Imperial, we pay you interest.

CHECK NURSING COURSES

The health minister also told the legislature his department is investigating correspondence courses in nursing being offered to Ontario girls.

He said only one school—the Practical School of Nursing—has been recognized by his department. Others were being investigated but no other nursing-assistants' certificates were considered valid.

Dr. Phillips said he has "a whole box" of letters from girls who took courses believing they were approved — some of the courses offered by firms from as far away as Texas.

Students Use Centre of Road Drivers Complain

City high school students using the east end of Queen Street on their way to and from school are drawing complaints from motorists who report the young people are walking in the centre of the roadway and blocking vehicular traffic.

City Police Inspector J. Clair Hayes reported today that the police department had received many complaints from motorists of the students' action.

At the point in question there is no sidewalk on Queen Street and the students walk in the centre of the roadway and are said reluctant to give passageway for motorists.

Inspector Hayes pointed out that the Ontario Highways Act requires pedestrians using a highway to walk on the left side of the roadway facing oncoming traffic.

Will Licence Nursing Homes In This City

Nursing homes operating within the city in the future will be required to be licensed, it was decided here Monday night by city councils.

Mayor Gerald B. Hyde told council that the measure would allow a certain measure of control as licensing would provide for inspections by the medical officer of health.

He noted that there was no suggestion the nursing homes currently operating within the city were not up to standard. The recommendation called for the city solicitor to prepare he necessary by-law to provide for licensing on the nursing homes.

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — On April 16 the wartime liberty ship William C. Ralston will be loaded with 6,500 tons of United States Army lewisite gas cylinders and mustard gas bombs, towed out to sea and scuttled in water 2,257 fathoms deep. The army chemical corps said "dumping the chemicals in deep holes in the ocean involves no danger to human beings or fish."

Expect More Registrations in So-Ed Courses

More registrations are expected tonight, as the second meeting of the So-Ed spring session is held at the YMCA here. A total of 63 registrations was made on the first night.

Ballroom dancing class, instructed by Barbara Diment of the Diment School of Dancing is, as usual, the most popular of the skills and crafts group. There are still a few vacancies in this class for men. Following closely in popularity is the handicraft class instructed by Doug Smith. The handicrafts taught will be whatever each person chooses to learn, such as copper tooling, aluminum etchings, textile painting, artificial flowers and many others. This class has not yet reached its limit and a few more registrations could be accommodated. There will be an extra charge for materials used for this class.

The first aid course, under the capable instruction of Mr. F. L. Allcorn, still has a few vacancies. This course is an abbreviated one made to apply specifically to So-Ed outdoor activities (or any other group activities) where injuries are liable to be sustained. It covers application of dressings, bandages and splints; artificial respiration; what to do in the case of broken bones and bleeding. A photography course is conducted by members of the Belleville Camera Club. These experts will discuss members' particular photograph problems and help solve them. This is a wonderful opportunity for the amateur photographer to get expert instruction in a short time and at small expense.

The courses and discussion groups have been well received with both the course and discussion group on "This Marriage Business" being especially popular. The discussion group will discuss "Choosing a Partner" this week — the first question to be tossed to the group will be "Why 'A' Partner." The discussion group on general topics will discuss "So-Ed" under the direction of the So-Ed committee.

TORONTO SPEAKER

The guest speaker for the opening evening was Mr. Don Brundage, Young Adult Secretary of the National Council of YMCA's of Canada who came town from Toronto for this event. Mr. Brundage is no stranger to So-Ed as he had been associated with So-Ed in Calgary for some years before coming east. President Bert Hiles welcomed new members to So-Ed and greeted regular members. He then introduced the guest speaker.

Mr. Brundage's talk was entitled "Great Expectations." George Williams gathered together a group of young men in England in the 1800s in an effort to combat the result of an industrial upheaval that at that time was suppressing the development of individual personalities in young people. The idea spread like wild fire and soon many groups were gathering throughout England to talk about many and varied subjects. A young man from Boston was invited to one of these gatherings and was so impressed that he returned to America and within a short time a YMCA appeared in Boston and four years later one appeared in Montreal.

Mr. Brundage stated that as a YMCA member or affiliate, the community expects certain things of one in respect to community welfare. He stressed the point of having faith in oneself, one's God, one's associates, one's organization and one's YMCA and not to be afraid of failure. Failure in itself is a means of character development.

CRITICIZES CONFORMITY

He spoke about the present trend of conformity, especially in suburban living. People tend to dress in the same fashion, live in the same way, act in the same manner, because they are afraid in this day and age to be themselves. "Dare to be an individual, take a stand — any stand as long as you take a stand — not just drift along with the sheep," he urged.

Vice-president Tom Mitchell thanked the speaker and presented him with a small token of So-Ed's appreciation.

President Hiles announced that a block of tickets had been ordered for the Bolshoi Ballet coming to the Odeon McCarthy Theatre on March 28 as part of So-Ed's educational responsibility, and these would be distributed to members who wished to attend.

Refreshments were served and social activities began for the remainder of the evening. Snowball and elimination dances were held with Mr. and Mrs. E. Lind winning prizes for an elimination dance.

CHINA TESTS TV

TOKYO (AP) — Red China tested its first television station Monday night. Radio Peiping said the Chinese-made Peiping installation operates on 1,000 kilowatts and has a broadcasting range of 16 miles. A Peiping dispatch said the test program was received by one Chinese-made set and several Russian sets.

Postmaster General Outlines Concepts of Female Shopper

Guest speaker at Tuesday night's meeting of the Sales and Ad Club meeting here in the Knights of Columbus Hall was Hon. William Hamilton, Postmaster General.

Introduced by an old friend, Fred Maund, Mr. Hamilton spoke for a half hour, never once touching on the political scene. He is a former executive of the Federation of Canadian Sales and Advertising Clubs and last night the speaker outlined his concepts of the modern female shopper.

It was Mr. Hamilton's opinion that the whole Canadian economy must look for improvements of sales methods. He reminded his audience of over 100 club members that today's shoppers must keep up the demand for goods to allay economic difficulties in the country. Much of this can be assisted by merchants, who will take pains to cater to a discriminating public.

"If the public does not keep moving goods from the production line," said the Postmaster General, "the benefits of our free enterprise system will be negligible."

He remarked that some observers believe Canada's gross national product in 1967 will reach $50 billion, as against today's $30 billion, providing demand for products increases with the growing population.

It is up to salesmen, merchants and retailers to educate, stimulate and direct the buying habits of the public. The consumer's habits are very important to today's markets. There are various ways store keepers can attract more customers and thus experience a larger turnover of goods.

"One of the greatest changes in the history of marketing is the self-service technique used by an increasing number of stores," he said. Variety of goods today is greater than in the past. The Postmaster General remarked that there used to be 862 different food items in the average supermarket, but today there are over 4,700. At one time there were 23 brands of canned fruits, now there are 138 from which the consumer can choose.

MADE PREVIOUS VISIT

Postmaster General William Hamilton visited the Sales and Ad Club once before in 1950. But last night he had an enjoyable time suddenly recognizing familiar faces. And he did not mind breaking away from his address to say a few words of greetings to them.

A good 75 per cent. of all purchases are finally influenced by women, although their husbands may be the family banker. Mr. Hamilton pointed out that 13 per cent of the shoppers are men; 12 per cent. are couples and the remainder are women.

Using an attractively clad mannequin, Mr. Hamilton attempted to point out in detail some of the peculiarities of women shoppers. Women possess "lazy" minds as far as shopping is concerned. They do not like to spend too much time planning a shopping excursion. Most females are "one stop" shoppers. That is, they prefer to buy close to home and at the first store they arrive at, if possible. Today's women, according to Mr. Hamilton, do not like to spend much time shopping about, although they most certainly do like to hear a salesman's "line" on a bargain.

Women, he said, are good mathematicians and are susceptible to vivid suggestions of any kind. But they can be "surprisingly" rational about prices. Although not too devoted to brand loyalty, women have "unpredictable" hearts and they like luxuries and quality.

PURSES WELL PADDED

"Women's purses are well padded today," said Mr. Hamilton, "but it's a problem to get them to open their purses."

The distinguished guest speaker reminded the merchants in the audience that they can do much to encourage a larger turnover of goods and, therefore, more local prosperity. Care must be taken to display products in colorful and differentiating patterns. (Women like color.) Shop keepers should strive to build a wholesome personality in their store to increase business and keep customers coming back.

In conclusion, Mr. Hamilton said: "The Canadian system of free enterprise is based on the economic condition that the demand must equal or exceed the supply."

He was thanked by William McCormick.

Among the guests were Mayor Gerald Hyde, Lee Grills and the local postmaster, Al Clare. Mr. Hamilton put in a brief appearance later in the evening at Lee Grills' social rally in the CNR recreation centre.

Prior to the address by the Postmaster General, Dr. Donald Scott outlined the organization of the Red Cross blood donors clinic. He asked for volunteer donors to contribute at the Tuesday night clinic at Belleville General Hospital.

High School Board to Offer Teachers New Wage Schedule

Finalization of new salary schedules for high school teachers with the Bay of Quinte High School Board is expected to be made at the April meeting of the board.

This was noted today following Tuesday night's regular monthly meeting of board members when the salary schedule to be offered to teachers was decided on.

The board will offer a $300 increase in maximum and minimum salaries for non-specialists and a $500 increase in the same categories for specialists. The board's offer would increase the minimum for non-specialists from $3,700, to $4,000, and the maximum from $6,700 to $7,000. The board offer for specialists would increase minimum salaries from $3,900 to $4,400 and maximum salaries from $[illegible]900 to $7,400.

The resignations of four teachers were accepted by the board. Resignations were from Miss Barbara Arnott, Miss Janet Ziegler and Mrs. W. J. Musgrove, from B.C.I., and Mrs. Sheila Park of Quinte Secondary.

Permanent teaching contracts will be offered to six B. C. I. teachers and two from Quinte, and continuation of probationary contracts will be offered to 11 Quinte teachers and to seven from B. C. I.

The resignation of Mrs. Louise Loan, assistant secretary to the principal's office, was also accepted.

With all four municipalities in the Bay of Quinte High School area having given notification of willingness to assume debenture costs for a third secondary school, the board is now interviewing architects with seven different architectural firms to meet with the board.

The board ratified advisory vocational committee recommendations for the sale of a large grinder in the BCIVS machine shop, and for the purchase of a used hot solution parts washer from Garage Supply at a cost of $450.

Purchase of a new duplicator and seven new typewriters was also authorized.

The board authorized four delegates to attend the Ontario Urban and Rural School Trustees Association convention which will be held this year at London in June. Previously this convention has been held at Bigwin-Inn.

Rosicrucians Hold Conclave

The re-enactment of a ceremony that began in ancient Egypt over forty centuries ago was the highlight of a local Rosicrucian conclave held in the Masonic Temple, on Tuesday evening.

According to Leonard Hart, Master of Quinte Chapter, the Rosicrucian Order, AMORC, is a philosophical fraternity whose traditional origin occurred during the reign of Amenhotep IV, in 1350 B.C. Because spring is symbolic of new life, the 21st of March was considered the beginning of the new year, and the Rosicrucian Order, AMORC still commemorates the ancient New Year with a symbolic feast and ceremony.

March 21 is also the beginning of the fiscal period of all Rosicrucian Lodges, Chapters, and Pronaol throughout the world, and the date is marked by the installation of new ritualistic and administrative officers. New officers of the Quinte Chapter installed in a special ceremony were: Leonard Hart, master; Marion Bucher, secretary, and Ross Lindsay, guardian.

IN MEMORIAM

DAWSON. — In loving memory of a kind and thoughtful dear friend, Margaret Dawson, who passed away five years ago today.

Like falling leaves a year slips by,
But memories of you will never die.

—Always remembered by Syd, Mabel and Joe Palmer, Montreal.

CRUICKSHANK. — In loving memory of a dear husband and father, George Cruickshank, who passed away March 19th, 1955.

We were not there to say goodby,
But maybe it was just as well;
Because it's hard to say goodby,
To one we loved so well.
In tears we saw you sinking,
We watched you fade away;
Our hearts were almost broken,
For you fought so hard to stay.
But when we saw you sleeping,
So peacefully free from pain;
We could not wish you back again,
To suffer that again.

—Sadly missed by wife, family and grandchildren.

Plane Flips On Landing, No One Hurt

CAMPBELLFORD — Two occupants of a light plane escaped uninjured when they made a forced landing at the snow-covered Campbellford airport amid a heavy snowstorm about 5.30 p.m. Saturday. The pair were apparently making an approach to land on highway 30 when they spotted the airport. The plane's undercarriage sank into the soft snow, flipping it over on its back before the landing run was completed.

The incident was not reported to police, and the names of the two occupants were not available.

The plane was righted on Sunday, and the pair plan to return to check the damage to the aircraft and make arrangements to fly it out later this week.

Quinte Bonspiel Much Enjoyed By Large Crowd

Before a packed lounge the Quinte Curling Club bonspiel got under way Tuesday morning and the crowd never left until the last stone was curled shortly before 10.00 p.m. It was a joyous occasion and the visitors were more than delighted with the accommodation, the ice and the delightful refreshments served by the women's section of the club.

Sixteen rinks took part in the play of Tuesday and an equal number will take part today, Thursday and Friday, with the winners coming back on Saturday to curl for the splendid prizes that have been secured. Each day two three-game winners and two two-game winners are declared to comprise the field for Saturday. In the bonspiel if a rink loses its first game, it must win the next two to remain in the running and if a rink wins its first game, it must win all three of the day to qualify.

The rinks that emerged victorious on Tuesday were George Millar of Kingston and Gerald Woodley of Gananoque, a native of this city. Both rinks won their three games. In the two-game class Pat Houston and R. Walsh, both of Deloro-Stellite were the winners. Some excellent curling was witnessed during the day and many games were decided by the last rock. The ice was in excellent condition and looked very smart in its new coat of paint. The rinks are of red and yellow with a green background.

The women of the club were the busiest people around the rink as they catered to the wants of the inner man. An innovation and one that has won hearty approval was the placing of a large cheese on a separate table with all the trimmings and was free for the asking. The flavor and texture of the cheese were excellent and it soon disappeared.

Three Airwomen Enjoy Show At Toronto

TRENTON — Typewriters were covered and forgotten when three of RCAF Trenton's sports-minded young airwomen, Shirley Bronson of Pictou, N.S., Audrey Stark, Moose Jaw, Sask., and Leona McMasters, Springhill, N.S., and Toronto, were rewarded for their special efforts on the job by time off to visit the Sportsman's Show at Toronto for a day. They were accompanied to the show by Flying Officer Gloria J. Miles of Toronto, the Woman Personnel Officer at Trenton, who selected the girls for the trip.

The show was covered completely with exhibits of special interest revisited numerous times. The highlight of the show from these girls' point of view was a group of golden retriever puppies and one lonesome beagle. These dogs are exhibits of the Ontario Agricultural Department and at the time of the visit were under the watchful eyes of two of the department's doctors of veterinary medicine from Guelph.

They also enjoyed their visit with the wild animals on exhibit but did not express a desire to pet the wolf or lynx or climb into the pen with the moose, which they were told is the only one of its kind in captivity.

Considerable time was spent at the extensive boat exhibits and Airwoman Bronson, who is a salt water woman who had accompanied her fisherman dad on his lobster fishing trips numerous times, decided these sleek beauties were not manufactured for commercial fishermen, but would be wonderful to use on a vacation cruise.

The airwomen were interested in a large collection of lifelike carved birds and were amazed that the size and color were reproduced in wood with every detail completely accurate. The birds are the product of Frank Smith of Scarboro and are used for teaching natural history in schools, as well as being popular for ornaments.

A taxidermist exhibit, too, was viewed with much interest, with all the reptiles so life-like as to cause shivers of repulsion as well as admiration. This portion of the exhibit was not picked up for close examination.

Each had her silhouette cut out on paper by a visiting artist. A sporting goods salesman, shooting his line accurately at the target in the casting pool, gave some pointers on using a spinning outfit. They tried shooting galleries and the archery range with surprising success.

Firemen Get Early Call

TRENTON — Firemen were called early this morning when an oil burner got out of control but caused no serious damage.

The call came from R. Schofield of 211A Dundas Street E. and one truck went out at 6.50 a.m. to bring it under control.

It was the first call the fire department has had in the past three days when they were called for a chimney fire at the home of Mrs. G. Woodcock, 79 Ontario Street. Damage there was slight.

The fire alarm was not sounded in either case and were both promptly handled by the men at the station and the pumper.

In the police department only two slight accidents have been reported during the past two days with neither of them causing much damage to vehicles and with no one reported injured.

With the coming of milder weather the police have taken their motorcycle out from under its winter wraps and are patrolling the town from time to time although the cruiser is still doing the majority of the patrol work, especially during the night hours.

Town Engineer Hands Report To Council

TRENTON — Eric C. Aldersey, town engineer, gave a report to the town council at their regular meeting Monday night, in his recent attendance to the City Engineers Association Annual meeting which was held at the Royal York Hotel in Toronto.

In his report Mr. Aldersey said the association has been working for several years to have the Local Improvement Act drastically changed in order to cut out the ambiguities and provide more specific standards of procedure. In this regard it was pointed out that two directly opposite rulings had been handed down by different judges to whom appeals had been made in exactly similar circumstances. It is now possible for the municipality to appeal to the municipal board. It is hoped to present the act as revised by the C.E.A. to the next session of the Legislature.

Mr. Aldersey's report continued: "Following the regular business an address was given by Dr. McLeod of Imperial Oil on asphalt road design. In addition to going over the basic principles of design Dr. McLeod appealed for standard specifications for asphalt as a result of the latest research discoveries.

"The Association is investigating a scheme to send representatives to an asphalt inspectors' course run by D.H.O. who will apparently give training to urban employees.

"Commencing the afternoon session Mr. C. V. Ludgate of D.H.O. head office gave a brief history of highway subsidies and explained the system. The present system came into effect in 1949 since which time payments have increased from 13 millions to 27 millions last year.

"A panel on Urban Needs Study followed including addresses by various members of D.H.O. presently engaged on this project. Briefly D.H.O. with the cooperation of local councils aim to compile an inventory of roads for each municipality in the province. We in Trenton have completed the first phase of the operation by obtaining the traffic count and forwarding the results to D.H.O. The inventory will show the cost of bringing all roads up to standard and also the order in which this work should be done.

"Following the panel a general discussion followed on municipal engineering problems which provided some useful information on routine matters.

"On Tuesday morning I attended the Ontario Good Roads Association Meeting and heard several informative talks on the subject of highway construction and maintenance, and I left Toronto on Tuesday afternoon."

VON Requests Grant Increase

TRENTON — Grant Elliott, treasurer for the local branch of the Victorian Order of Nurses asked the town council to consider giving them an increased grant for the coming year.

Mr. Elliott reviewed the work of the VON over the past year and their increase in expenses. He said they have boosted the salaries of the nurses and that the car, now five years old, will have to be replaced.

He asked the town to consider a $3,500 grant for them so they can carry on their work here in Trenton. This would be, he said, a $500 increase over last year's allotment from the town. Another $3,000 he told the council, will be solicited from town businesses and from the general public by donations.

On a question from a councillor Mr. Elliott, said the town grant came to them on a monthly basis and their grant from the provincial government was paid on a "per visit" basis.

Following a brief discussion the council turned the request over to the chairman of the Finance Committee for consideration when the budget is being made up. They gave no indication as to whether the extra $500 would be granted.

Provinces Have Suggestions for Federal Action

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Debate in legislatures Tuesday indicate the Prairie provinces may soon be knocking on Ottawa's door with a fistful of suggestions for national programs and Dominion-provincial conferences.

The Saskatchewan legislature would be first in line with two separate suggestions for Dominion-provincial discussions and a request for a national scholarship program.

The legislature also unanimously passed a motion proposed by Premier Douglas' CCF government requesting a Dominion-provincial conference to establish the foundation of a national health program.

If general agreement on a national program should fail, the motion asks the federal government to negotiate separately with provinces willing to take part.

ASKS CONFERENCE

Another motion before the legislature requests a Dominion-provincial conference to establish marketing boards for major agricultural products.

In Manitoba, Attorney-General M. N. Hryborczuk proposed a Dominion-provincial conference to relieve Premier Campbell's Liberal-Progressive government of the necessity of dealing immediately with an increasing demand for amendments to the province's Liquor Act.

Newspapers and publications have complained that the act works an unnecessary hardship on them because it denies them freedom to publish liquor ads, yet publications from outside the province are allowed to enter with liquor ads.

The motion asks for a conference to establish a national code on liquor advertising.

PHILIP AMONG BIDDERS

LONDON (Reuters) — Prince Philip paid 50 guineas for a giant black stetson at a light-hearted charity auction in London's Covent Garden produce market Tuesday. The auction raised £3,500 in 40 minutes for the National Playing Fields Association, of which the prince is president.

Arthur Duncan Kiwanis Club Guest Speaker

A humorous and inspiring address was given local Kiwanians at their regular meeting Tuesday by popular speaker Art Duncan, of Bata Shoe Company, Batawa.

Mr. Duncan suggested people should promote laughter as an aid to making life lighter and happier for each other. He pointed out that types of humor vary with different nationalities, and if people try, they can find humor in just about every type of situation.

On the serious side, the genial speaker, noted since the end of World War II a million new Canadians have settled in Canada.

"They have contributed to culture, art, and even the whole national wealth of Canada . . . but they have also brought sad moments, too. They have severed home ties to come to Canada and start anew, and the fact they are here shows their determination to seek self-betterment for themselves and their families, despite the many problems they must encounter."

The speaker disclosed that 60 new Canadians will go before Judge J. C. Anderson this Thursday to swear allegiance to Canada and to accept the privileges of citizenship as well as the responsibilities.

"During the five years they have been living in Canada they have been watching us as examples of Canadian citizens," he stated. "It is our responsibility, particularly as service club members, to promote the best in good citizenship and to show a good example to these new Canadians."

DESCRIBES CANUCK

Mr. Duncan then gave a brief description of his idea of the ideal Canadian. Among the qualities he possesses in a true sense of appreciation of the "gifts" he has because he is a Canadian, such as good schools, freedom of worship; but is willing to share his blessings with others. He reads good books to gain inspiration for the future from ideas of the past. He is contented but not complacent, a regular church-goer, and takes a great interest in his work, and the education of his children.

The speaker was introduced by Anthony Cekota, and thanked by Ralph Graham. He was presented with a token of the club's appreciation by president Charles Lusk.

Prior to the main address, a brief speech regarding the Belleville Community Concert's 25th anniversary and the organization's benefit to the community, was given by Miss Camelia Campbell, a representative from the New York head office of Community Concerts Incorporated.

Miss Campbell is in Belleville to help with the local Community Concert's drive for membership.

"Musical TV shows, radio, and records cannot take the place of live concerts," she stated. "They have a definite place in the community and benefit everyone, not just music lovers," she added, "for fine music is food for the spirit."

She said children are not being neglected in the organization, as student fees are being offered.

SPECIAL SHOW

The drive for membership closes Saturday afternoon, and so far 150 new members have signed up, she disclosed. These new members will be "inducted" into the organization at a special show to be held Saturday night.

Miss Campbell was introduced by Everett Fairman.

Induction of two new members into the Kiwanis Club took place at the meeting Tuesday.

The two new Kiwanians are R. W. G. "Bob" Freestone, of Galt, local manager of the Imperial Bank of Canada, and Fred Taylor, of Brighton, manager of the local branch of Underwriters' Adjustment Bureau Ltd. Mr. Freestone was introduced by George Tripp, and Mr. Taylor was introduced by Jim Jarvis. The induction ceremony was carried out by Al Drysdale.

President Lusk announced there will be no meeting of the club next Tuesday. The meeting will take the form of a "Governor's Night" banquet, marking the first official visit of Governor Ken Hibbert to the local club, and the club's 35th anniversary.

'Small' Fire

LONDON (Reuters)—A "small" fire broke out today at Britain's atomic weapons research establishment at Aldermaston, an Atomic Energy Authority spokesman reported here.

He said the fire was confined to an exhaust duct in an engineering shop. No one was hurt.

Deseronto Town Council Holds Regular Meeting

DESERONTO — The regular meeting of Deseronto town council was held on Monday night with all members present.

In dealing with the correspondence the letters of D. Chapman and N. McMillan were referred to the streets committee with power to act. Reeve A. S. Walker and Councillor Sweetman were appointed official delegates to the Lake Ontario Development Association. The letter regarding the extension of the franchise for municipal elections to all over 21 was filed for future reference. Council decided to become a member of the Association of Mayors and Reeves.

Before passing of the by-laws the mayor informed council that the next meeting of council would be held on Tuesday, April 8th., as the regular meeting night was a holiday.

A by-law authorizing an expenditure of $8,000 for roads and culverts was passed.

Reeve Walker gave council some information that he had received regarding the annexation of property east of the town.

Councillor Howard of the streets committee reported that 56 street signs had been destroyed and asked permission to have them replaced. He also asked for authority to purchase tile to fill in certain open street drains within the town. He was advised by Reeve Walker that such a cost should be included in his estimates. The streets committee was given authority to replace the street signs.

The chairman of the police committee reported that, as the result of a meeting of that committee, it was recommended that the motion stating that no police car be purchased be rescinded. On a recorded vote Councillors Marks, Sweetman, Howard and Stubbs voted against; Mayor McVicker, Reeve Walker and Councillors Knight and Neal voted in favor. The motion was declared lost.

Councillor Marks brought to the attention of council the hazardous condition of the railway crossings south of Main St. on the road leading to the bay. It was moved that the clerk write the Canadian National Railways regarding the crossings.

The chairman of the Public Utilities Commission, F. Toppings, addressed council with a verbal complaint regarding the chief of police. Chief McTaggart was asked by the mayor for his version. Councillor Knight then advised the mayor that the matter could be considered closed.

Ten members of the local branch of the Canadian Legion journeyed to Tweed on Sunday night to participate in the cribbage tournament for Zone F. 3. For the second year in a row the Deseronto contingent brought home the trophy. Charles Knight Sr., and his son Percy Knight were awarded a separate trophy for the highest score of the night. A social half hour followed the contest.

THE PROJECTOR AT BCIVS

The fifth World Travel and Adventure Series sponsored annually by the Kiwanis Club of Belleville ended last week on a sour note. The movie projector owned by BCIVS developed technical difficulties at intermission and held up the final presentation for an hour.

Aside from the last night's break in continuity, the series was well received by hundreds of citizens who came from near and far to watch and hear some of this continent's foremost photographers and lecturers take them on filmed journeys around the world. The Kiwanis Club is to be commended on such a worthwhile project as the series, especially since the profits help the club's welfare work.

Although the audience waited quietly while repairs were being made to the projector, the incident aroused some concern among the thousand people who filled the auditorium of the collegiate. Some folks were afraid they would miss the last half of Curtis Nagel's "Portrait of London," which, from overheard remarks, was said to have been the best production staged this season during the series. This was not the first time the projector broke down this season.

An editorial about a movie projector may seem a waste of time to some readers, but when it is remembered that the machine is not used only during the travelogue series, it is not ridiculous.

If subscribers to the series have been inconvenienced by more than one breakdown of the projector, what have the students of BCIVS been experiencing?

This is 1958. Schools all over the world are using motion pictures as educational aids. Certainly "movies" are able to do a better job in illustrating some things than the voice and drawings of a teacher. If films are going to be used in schools, then the equipment must be first rate. It should never be allowed to deteriorate to the point where its use defeats its purpose.

SUGGESTIONS TO ADVERTISERS

The Canadian National Packaging Conference in Toronto has been told that sales of food slacken when the time-saving effects of modern packaging methods are stressed. Women don't want to be reminded that they are avoiding work when they buy easily prepared foods, said Charles J. Zusi, packaging consultant from Evanston, Ill.

Accordingly we are offering advertisers a few suggestions for revised advertising.

"Use the automatic washer which is so fast you can change your sheets every day."

"With this detergent, dirt disappears so fast that housecleaning can be undertaken every week."

We suspect that men are no different from women and that the same principle would apply to articles they purchase.

How about these for advertisements with a sales punch:

"Get a power mower which cuts so smoothly that you don't have to wait for the grass to grow back on the scalped areas but can mow the lawn every day. Get rid of those tiresome weekends when there is nothing you can do but go fishing."

"Now you don't have to limit fast-growing Chinese elm to a skimpy hedge. Use our electric hand-clippers and you'll find they work so well that you can plant your whole garden with this wonderful shrub."

GOOD IDEA

Fire Chief Stephen R. Zanieski of Greenfield, Mass., has come up with a good idea.

He has inaugurated a special course for baby-sitters, to teach them how to save their charges in case of fire. Students must pass an examination to get a certificate which qualifies them as sitters par excellence, capable of keeping a cool head in a hot situation.

Apparently to be a bay-sitter in Greenfield an applicant must also be a firefighter. Come to think of it, that is not such a bad idea, either.

HER IDEA

I cannot give up during Lent
The candy that I like so well.
Last year I tried and really meant
To do it, but I quickly fell.
I'd shun the dance, but then I know
Before the end of forty days
Where dancing is I'm sure to go,
And I cannot resist the craze.

I can't refrain from stunning clothes,
For they are all I have to wear.
I should do penance, goodness knows;
A little cross I ought to bear.
But it's so hard to do without
The things you really like the best.
Why is it I can't be devout
By shunning something I detest?

Antique Toys Have Charm

BBC London Letter

Even in this age of space suits and moon rockets for children, the toys of other days still have charm of their own, as was evident from the crowds that visited an exhibition of antique toys held recently in London. Among the not-so-ancient toys were the two dolls that French Resistance heroine Odette Hallowes—who opened the exhibition —made from scraps of her clothing while she was in a concentration camp. But perhaps the oldest toy on view, said Noreen Purdon reporting in a BBC program, was a Roman whipping top made of pottery, which had been found in an Egyptian tomb and dated from about the year 100. There were dolls in great variety, many of them very sumptuous ladies, like the mechanized doll, dressed in ivory satin with blue silk coat and carrying lorgnettes, which belonged to Felix Mendelssohn the Elder, who lived early in the last century. A bride doll about 150 years old wore a gown and train embroidered with seed pearls and sequins, but her favorite was an almost blackened wooden doll made for some child in the reign of the first Queen Elizabeth. There was, too a balancing soldier on horseback which was one of the toys given by the Empress Josephine to Napoleon, who then distributed them to the children of his soldiers.

A small and rather pathetic exhibit in the collection was a piece of coral in a gilt holder which Charles II had given as a teething ring to an infant, supposed to be his natural son, whom later he created Duke of Monmouth. The baby who left his tooth marks on the coral was as a man, to end up on Tower Hill, beheaded for seeking to depose James II. Among the exhibits with happier associations was a wooden baby carriage, which has been in the family of the Duke of Devonshire since 1780 and is still pulled round the garden at Chatsworth; and a rag alphabet book with pictures colored by Robert Louis Stevenson for his mother to sell at a charity bazaar. The collection was assembled by author and playwright Medeleine Masson.

Can Cudgel Own Jackass

St. Louis Post-Dispatch

If ever we heard of a jackass case—and we have—it is that of a junior high school teacher at Knoxville, Tenn., charged with using profanity in class because she called some of her students "jackasses." Our doubts are considerable that even the possessor of the longest and bluest nose between the Great Smoky Mountains and the Continental Divide could prove that the teacher was thereby guilty of profanity. Of course she may have been guilty of gross and negligent understatement, but that is another matter, in which we do not hesitate to withhold an opinion.

Whatever the teacher called some of the students, however, we will wager you a four-bit cussword against a two-for-a-nickel piece of slang that it was nothing compared with what some of the students called the teacher, and various other teachers into the bargain. Some of the most creative moments in the art of self-expression occur when a pupil is trying to do justice to one of the guardian angels selflessly seeking to bring the light of knowledge to him.

As a great and memorable editor, Marse Henry Watterson of Louisville, said when he was criticizing the Governor of Kentucky:

Things have come to a helluva pass
When a man can't cudgel his own jackass.

Worse still would it be if a teacher could not from time to time apply le mot juste with righteous indignation to a junior donkey here and there.

Same Sauce For Gander

Ottawa Journal

Mr. Harold V. Lush, president of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, had some things to say in Toronto this week about United States restrictions against Canada's trade. Thus:

"You might think that Canada is the one country above all others that the United States would consider when formulating its trade policies.

"And yet, in matters of trade, the U.S. . . . persistently follows policies which do Canada serious injury. We never know when our exports will be made subject to some form of restriction by the U.S."

All true. But we wonder whether Mr. Lush is aware of the fact that at this moment Canada's Tariff Board has before it applications from certain Canadian manufacturers to restrict imports of Britain's goods to Canada?

There are times when we think Canadians have need to straighten out their thinking on trade restrictions. It is all very well for us to say that Canada is the one country the United States should consider when formulating its trade policies. But if we say that, would it not be well for us to add that Britain is the one country Canada should consider when formulating her trade policies?

Some people in this country, discussing restrictions against Canadian goods by other countries, talk as though Canada were a free trade country. Well, Canada is not a free trade country; we have duties against U.S. goods and duties against Britain's goods, and some among us keep maintaining that such duties should be higher.

Cleanliness Now Problem

Montreal Star

It sounds contradictory, but British authorities are finding that the pursuit of cleanliness is leading to polution. The kitchen problems which synthetic washing compounds help to solve are escaping into broader waters.

Sewage treatment plants can't deal with the chemicals in the compounds. They must, come to think of it, give almost any bacterium indigestion, and sewage treatment takes advantage of bacterial action.

But whatever the explanation, a lot of the mixture is passing on into streams and rivers. There it is producing suds in a quantity that may be pretty but at the same time makes it almost impossible to find anyone who may have fallen in.

Again the dissolved compounds interfere with the self-cleansing properties of the streams affected, and are being drawn up again into drinking-water supplies. A "bead" on a glass of tap water is not likely to be appreciated, any more than the flavor of what produces it.

Progress, it's wonderful.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

In the fashionable eating places, especially in expensive hotel dining rooms, we see these little ugly rich old women with pouchy cheeks like chipmunks', and hot, small, rude eyes, as they chomp their food, and stare boldly about at everybody.

They are quite a familiar feature. How is it that we so seldom see the male counterparts of these ladies? Where are the little, ugly, rich old men with pouchy cheeks and hot, small, rude eyes?

Well, they have been driven under cover. If little, ugly, rich men behaved in public as their female counterparts do, they would get back stare for stare, and there would be a lot of cheerful derision aroused, as we others nudge one another and call open attention to the actions and airs of the offensive little old rich men. But thanks to the ancient traditions which protect ladies from reprisal, or tit for tat, little ugly old rich ladies are allowed to get away with it. They can chomp and rudely stare to their hearts' content.

Where are the little rude old rich men? Why, in those exclusive clubs dedicated to the privacy of the male, and in which the members are entirely accustomed to such characters, and keep them cut down to size. It is better to be snickered down by fellow-members than by perfect strangers, many of whom are nobodies on expense accounts.

Strength for The Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

FEAR NOT

Have you ever thought how terrifying life on earth is?

Think of it — the world is spinning about on its axis at the rate of 18 miles a minute; on its orbit at the rate of 18 miles a second. And then throughout twelve months the axis inclines and again rights itself, thus passing through vast distances. And all the while we are clinging to the side of the planet. Think of being whirled through space at 18 miles a second. If suddenly we become conscious of what was being done to us, we would feel that we were being jounced about like a handful of dice in a cracker barrel.

The awlfulness of all this is hidden from us. If it were not, we could not exist through a single day. We would literally fly to pieces if all these motions occurred in an earth-made vehicle. But we all cling to the planet together. Those in Australia are walking upside-down if our posture is regarded as right-side up We take our eighteen mile a second ride and never blink an eye.

The terrifying thing about all this is that we are only a dot in a great celestial system. What is our destiny?

Well, whatever it is, it is in the hands of God — a merciful God, loving, forgiving. All that is, is for our good and for His glory. We do not understand all things, but we are not to fear. "Fear not, little flock," were the words of our Lord.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

SCARS

There is one thing certain about the man who has scars, and that is that he has gone through some sort of a conflict. He was doing something. Scars never come to people who sit still. Most scars result from effort. Scars cost Their price is paid in courage, sacrifice, unselfishness, suffering.

But scars silently testify to the value of character as no number of material medals or written words possibly could.

Some bear scars that no human being can see. Some carry around scars that any one could discern if one would. Who is it that can see the scar left inside one's very soul after a winning fight against some devastating habit? Who is it that can measure the depth of the scars interwoven about the lines and planes of a man's face?

Boast not at all, but take pride in every honorable scar that your body and character carry.

A great lawyer, whose name is known by the masses of America, went to a photographer for some pictures. He sat in his office with a friend as the finished pictures were delivered to him. "Oh," he remarked on glancing at them, "see what they have done. They have taken all the lines and scars from my face that it has taken me thirty years to put there"

Face the fight today. Scars may come before the nightfall, but each will mark a milestone in your career of worth.

To Your Good Health

By Joseph G. Molner, M.D.

ARTHRITICS SHOULD BE ACTIVE TO KEEP THEIR JOINTS FROM "FREEZING"

"Dear Dr. Molner: You recommended that a person remain 'mobile' when they had rheumatoid arthritis. May I say amen!

"I had it in '44 when I had to remain active. I had a 9-month-old baby, a 9-year-old daughter, and a husband who worked nights. I was stricken rather suddenly, and there I was with a house, a family and no help to be had.

"Even my collarbone ached, and I couldn't use my hands at times. I crawled up and down the stairs. At night I would stiffen up so I couldn't get out of bed in the morning and would have to call my husband and say, 'Give me a shove.'

"During the day if I bent down I'd have to crawl to some place so I could lift myself up. I slept in long wool johns as my feet were always frozen. I used to soak my hands in real hot water to take the ache out, and would move them at the same time. I slept with a heating pad.

"Today I'm glad I couldn't hire any help. Or maybe I'm the stubborn type. All I know is the pain was unbearable at times and I'd cry.

"But I'd work all day until late at night when I'd finally limber up a little. I took baths, four, five, six a day, just as hot as I could stand. I took pain pills every four hours. I had it all winter, real bad. In the spring I began to get better. I could walk a little faster. (How I dragged.) By the next summer I was in control and all I got was one little bent finger. I still get it in the back, but I've had two more children and I get a twinge now and then, but I add heat (at home) to your therapy.

IT WON'T KILL YOU

"I've never written a letter before, but I feel sorry for people with arthritis, and if they don't sit down and worry about it — they'll get better. It sure won't kill you but I wouldn't wish the pain on my worst enemy. Thank you. — Mrs. W."

"P.S. — I also had a great faith. I just knew I'd be well again."

I hope your letter will help people as much as I know it can! Both you and I realize the overwhelming importance of faith

Let me add these few thoughts. Medically, your method was perfect. There are multiple types of arthritis. You had rheumatoid, the bangbang, inflamatory type. Older folk have slow type, osteoarthritis, which attacks here or there gradually, and not all over.

But in either type, it is vital to keep the joints moving. Heavy or prolonged strain is to be avoided. Rest is necessary. But movement, too, is needed to prevent the joints from "freezing."

As you so well know, movement is agonizing. But as you know, too, it is vital. Thank you for your splendid exposition of a very important fact.

"Dear Dr. Molner: Is a daily (on awakening) tablespoon of olive oil harmful? It feel it lubricates the system and helps digestion. My family tell me not to take it as I may be doing more harm than good. Will you clarify this? — M.W."

Olive oil is a perfectly good vegetable oil. It does not "lubricate the system," since it just goes into the stomach and is digested like a pat of butter. It does not help digestion. But unless you are overweight, and the calories are verboten, I can't think of any reason why you shouldn't take it if you want to. (I presume that this frank answer will make everybody in your family hate me!)

"Dear Dr. Molner: I have heard that a person who is overweight can have the fat of the lining of their stomach cut out — Mrs. M.J."

Somebody is mistaken, or is kidding you.

Afflicted with arthritis? You may find relief if you follow the advice given in my pamphlet, "Don't Quit Because of Arthritis." To receive your copy write to me for it in care of this newspaper, enclosing a large, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 5 cents in coin to cover handling.

Dr. Molner welcomes all reader mail, but regrets that due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Buying Votes Never Good

Saturday Evening Post

The laudable effort to persuade people to go out and vote, even when they can't think of anything worth voting for or against, has taken on some odd excresences.

For example, the Junior Chamber of Commerce of North Miami Beach, Florida handed to every citizen who cast a ballot in a recent city election 100 trading stamps! Presumably if they vote often enough, the citizens of North Miami Beach will be able to cash in their suffrage for a brand-new toaster or home freezer.

Once it is accepted that people have to be rewarded for voting, the possibilities are endless. "Voter for a Day" on television could load the dutiful citizen with a year's supply of campaign buttons, a trip by plane to observe a free election in Cambodia, or a split-level house.

Buying votes is an old custom and, in our opinion, it is not much more respectable when the buyer doesn't care how you vote than it is when he insists that you vote for him. Voting is a duty and a privilege, not something to do under compulsion or in hope of reward. Give the people real issues and honest candidates, and we can forget the trading stamps. People who require such inducements to get them to the polls probably have little to say through the ballot anyway.

Packaging Costs High

Windsor Star

Economists in the United States have been taking a close look at retail prices, particularly those of foodstuffs, to see why they have continued up despite the recession. They have come up with some enlightening facts.

Packaging costs they estimate, now represent 20 per cent of sales of grocery manufacturers. That is a big slice out of the consumer's dollar, in some instances more than the farmer gets for producing the food in the first place. In an effort to make food products attractive, the manufacturers have gone hog wild with all sorts of fancy packages, boxes, jars, bottles, etc.

It applies to many other goods or services also. It's got almost to the point now that one can't take a suit out to be cleaned or a shirt to be washed, but what it comes back neatly done up in cellophane.

That is all very nice — except that the customer pays for it.

Another cost factor is the amount of paper work now involved in getting foodstuffs and other commodities to the consumer. This, also, eats up time and money. The time is gone when the grocer or other merchant kept few accounts other than some scraps of paper tucked in the cash box.

With many commodities, actual costs of production are becoming less and less a factor in prices charged consumers. There are so many intervening charges which contribute to retail prices.

Knowles Claims Attack on Coyne Not Justified

By ARCH MacKENZIE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MONTREAL (CP). —. Deputy Leader Stanley Knowles of the CCF says the way in which Donald Fleming "attacked" the governor of the Bank of Canada ill befits the finance minister and suggests the bank's 1957 annual report "in a subtle way criticizes both old-line parties."

The CCF spokesman added at a press conference Tuesday that his observations in nine provinces indicates more public interest in the March 31 election than in any previous one he had encountered.

He reiterated that the CCF will not align itself with any of the other parties in the event of a parliamentary stalemate.

Public opinion poll figures being hailed by the Progressive Conservative party as a sweep indicator might well cause the Canadian public to think twice before voting for Prime Minister Diefenbaker's candidates.

REPLACES LEADER

Mr. Knowles was in Montreal replacing CCF leader Coldwell, recovering from a cold in his Ottawa home. His visit is the only one scheduled to the city by CCF leaders.

Commenting on the Bank of Canada report, Mr. Knowles described bank Governor James E. Coyne as an important public servant, able in his field and qualified to comment.

He said Mr. Fleming's answer to Mr. Coyne's analysis of the so-called "tight money" policy—which the governor said had not in fact existed — indicated that Mr. Fleming "doesn't know too much about finance himself."

It seemed to him, Mr. Knowles said, that the bank report supported long - standing CCF demands for controlled investment in "plant and equipment." He said that whether Mr. Coyne so intended or not, there was the inference of support for such a policy to avoid inflation and subsequent unemployment caused by excessive industrial investment.

Speaking later at a political rally, Mr. Knowles said the Progressive Conservative government, rather than accelerating expenditures on public works, has virtually adopted a go-slow policy on investment spending.

About 300 persons—less than a quarter of the available space in the Montreal high school auditorium—turned out for the only public address scheduled by a CCF leader for Quebec province.

Pearson Claims Canada Should Support Ban

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP) — Lester B. Pearson says Canada should support an immediate five-year ban on nuclear bomb tests "as the first stage in bringing these awful weapons under control."

The Liberal leader also said Tuesday night that Canada's defence should be revamped to bring them into line with the new concepts of Intercontinental and outer space warfare and that reduction in the number of United States air bases ringing Russia should be offered as part of diplomatic bargaining for peace.

The creation of new long-range missiles, the conquest of outer space, requires a reassessment of the deterrent value of "ringing Russia with such a large number of bases," he said in a national political television broadcast.

"Surely less than this now is needed with intercontinental missiles, soon to be a normal part of armaments. There is a card here that perhaps could be used effectively in diplomatic bargaining; in a way which would ease tensions and solve some problems. So why not try to use it?"

SEARCH FOR PEACE

In elaborating on his own views on world problems, the 1957 Nobel Peace prize winner and former external affairs minister said the search for peace is one reason why he wants to be prime minister.

"As the head of a Canadian government, I would have greater opportunities than I ever had before—even as secretary of state for external affairs—to work for and help bring about policies that would make for and perhaps one day help to establish a secure, enduring and creative peace . . . ."

He said he cherished for Canada "a leadership in this international effort not merely to bring about a better world but perhaps to save the world we have."

Both East and West have been talking of banning nuclear tests with no agreement reached.

External Affairs Minister Smith said on March 11 at Gilbert Plains, Man., the Conservative government favors the West stopping hydrogen bomb tests. But it wanted the Russians to stop at the same time.

Mr. Pearson, now in the final phase of his national election campaigning, said he believes that Canada should support an immediate ending of nuclear tests for a substantial period, say five years, after which the ban could be reviewed.

"This ban should be supervised by the United Nations. With the detecting apparatus now available, I am satisfied that a nuclear explosion could not take place—and the prohibition evaded without it being known."

Tuesday night, Mr. Pearson said the Liberal party's promise to cut taxes by $400,000,000 is justified by new Canadian economic conditions.

In an address, filmed and recorded in advance, over the CBC's French television network, the national Liberal leader said the party's current policy does not contradict the policy it held while in power. The Canadian economy no longer was threatened by inflation, but was by a recession.

Prime Minister Moves Campaign Into Ontario

By ALAN DONNELLY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

FORT WILLIAM (CP)—Prime Minister Diefenbaker, keeping on his election campaign schedule despite a storm-caused detour of 270 miles, has moved into Ontario with an optimistic statement about unemployment.

A new government report on unemployment, he said here Tuesday night, "indicated we have come to the crest and that it's in reverse now."

The Progressive Conservative leader referred to Tuesday's report at Ottawa by the bureau of statistics that mid-February unemployment stood at 555,000, having increased by 35,000 since mid-January and by 134,000 by mid-December.

In defence of his government's $1,185,000,000 public works program this year to provide jobs, he said the United States government is doing the same thing.

WILL CREATE BOARD

Earlier, at an afternoon meeting in Kenora, he said his government intends to create an independent semi-judicial board to rule on disputes between private broadcasters and the publicly-owned CBC.

That was a promise he made in last year's election campaign. No action was taken on it during the single session of the last Parliament.

The new semi-judicial body, he said, would ensure justice in the development of radio and television. In controversies between the CBC and private stations, the CBC now was "both judge and jury."

"The time is long overdue to assure private stations, in competition with the publicly-owned national organization, that their casts shall be judged by an independent body."

ONLY A FRACTION

His audience at Kenora, some 350 miles west of here near the Manitoba border, was only a fraction of the 3,000 to 4,000 persons who turned out to give him a noisy reception as his train arrived from Winnipeg. Before he spoke about 800 of them crowded into the Legion Hall, across from the railway station, to shake his hand.

As he spoke, hasty arrangements were being made to get him to the evening meeting here on time. Snow squalls and poor visibility at the Lakehead washed out all possibility of using two small passenger planes, as planned, to fly the prime minister's party here.

Instead, he was driven the 135 miles back to Winnipeg in about 2¼ hours, was whisked through downtown Winnipeg streets in the rush hour by a squad of motorcycle policemen, and then flew from there in a hastily-chartered airliner equipped to land despite the low visibility.

The meeting here began only 30 minutes late.

Sell Resources To U.S. to Meet Trade Deficit

HULL, Que. (CP) — Social Credit Leader Solon Low charged Tuesday night that Canada has been meeting her deficit trade balance with the United States by transferring to Americans the country's rich resources.

He told a meeting of about 60 persons who filled one-quarter of the seats in a high school auditorium here, that this situation started developing when Canada signed the Bretton Woods agreement in 1945.

"The Progressive Conservatives at the time joined with the internationalism supported the Liberals and with almost hysteric agreement."

OPPOSED AGREEMENT

The Social Credit party opposed the agreement because it "would eventually be dangerous because it would tie us to the apron strings of the United States." The party's predictions have come true, he said.

(The Bretton-Woods agreement resulted in the setting up of the World Bank for Reconstruction and Development of the International Monetary Fund. It was intended to stabilize fiscal relationships between the dollar area and the sterling bloc, and to enable international support of large-scale national projects.)

In a speech in which he reiterated remarks he made earlier in a broadcast from Ottawa on the CBC's national television network, Mr. Low said part of Canada's troubles stemmed from a rigid federal trade policy following the 1945 agreement.

The agreement, he said, lost this country's markets in western Europe, the Commonwealth and the Middle East. The result had been that more and more markets were sought in the United States.

Postmaster Speaks at Canara Club

A capacity crowd greeted the Hon. William Hamilton, Postmaster General at the new Canara Club last night where the minister spoke on behalf of Mr. Lee Grills, Progressive Conservative candidate for the riding of Hastings South.

The occasion was a social evening and dance with addresses by the minister and Mr. Grills being heard during the evening.

Mr. Grills, who was a member of the railway committee in the Department of Railways, Canals and Offices in the last government, complimented the Club Canara officials on the excellence of their new building, saying it was not only the pride of the CNR but of the city as a whole.

Mr. Hamilton spoke generally on the platform of the Conservative party and its work during its tenure in parliament.

Both speakers were given an outstanding reception by the large crowd present. The addresses concluded at approximitely eleven p.m., with dancing continuing until one a.m.
